CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — In the Saguenay district when men speak of girls, they use these terms: "charmante, attrayante, coquette et tres, tres feminine."

This is easily translated as: charming, allur i n g, coquettish and very, very feminine. The second stress on "feminine."

The men of Saguenay boast that the typical Saguenay girl—they call her La Sagueneenne—is the last of a species gradually becoming extinct in Canada. The species, la Canadienne feminine, can be distinguished by qualities of high femininity and is found today confined to the rugged and somewhat isolated Saguenay district of interior Quebec.

SCORN JEANS, GUM

They point with pride to the fact that les sagueneens don't include slacks and blue jeans as part of everyday attire. The girls don't cut their hair to resemble frizzled mops. They don't stand on street corners chewing bubble gum or ride about on the back of a motorcycle or do many of the things considered chic and modern in the rest of Canada.

The proud Saguenay men claim the girls of their isolated area have maintained something of the charm of old - world Quebec despite the encroaching of modern influences.

This writer, who has toured the whole of Canada, will back them up.

She is dark-complexioned, exquisitely shaped with a pleasant, smiling face. She is, as they say, "physiquement bien tournee et jeune." Some things are said better in French.

A love of nature can be read in the expressive, dreaming eyes of la Sagueneenne. High, well-defined eyebrows curve above her eyes and long, dark hair frames her face.

TAKES PRIDE IN DRESS

But there is something more about la Sagueneenne, something mysterious about her that shows up in her air of quiet reserve. Saguenayans admire but often cannot understand their Sagueneennes. How can they explain this attitude of mystery? Some say the girls are only timid, unable to conquer a certain shyness.

Maybe the answer is in the district. It may be the depth of the Saguenay River, the power of the mountains, the rigor of the climate that shapes and moulds attractive and feminine daughters of Saguenay.

We have one word for them: Marvellicuse!

TRES FEMININE — Men of the Saguenay district of Quebec describe the girls there as alluring, charming, coquettish and very, very feminine. They claim "les Sagueneennes" do not include slacks and blue jeans as part of everyday attire. They don't cut their hair to resemble frizzled mops. They don't stand on street corners chewing bubble gum or ride about on the back of a motorcycle or do many of the things considered chic and modern in the rest of Canada. They point out that the girls of the Saguenay, unlike those in other parts of Canada, seem more feminine and slacks as every day attire, don't cut their hair to resemble frizzled mops, abstain from chewing bubble gum on street corners and don't ride motorcycles. They dress with elegance, pride and good taste. Some of the beauties is Rose Tremblay, above, of Jonquiere. (CP Photo).

Stabs to Death Two Women, Young Baby

SHREWSBURY, England (AP) — A wild-eyed man with a knife burst into a country cottage near here Tuesday and stabbed to death two women and a 15-months-old baby.

Villagers barred their doors in terror as the man ran berserk through the hamlet of Harpsel Hill, holding the baby's body in one hand and knife in the other.

Police detained Michael Thackstone, 34-year-old father of the dead baby girl. He and the child's mother were separated.

The slain dead were Thackstone's mother-in-law, Mrs. Dorothy Tibbott, 53, and Mrs. Tibbott's 28 - year - old aunt, Mrs. Hilda Sutton, who lived next door.

The killer also went for Mrs. Tibbott's husband, Ted, when he arrived home from work on his motorcycle. Tibbott dropped the bike and escaped.

Thackston's estranged wife, Jean, an 18 - year - old stenographer, was at work in Shrewsbury. When she returned home an aunt met her at the bus stop with the news. She and Thackston were married two years ago.

Court Upholds Conviction for Second Time

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state supreme court Tuesday for the second time upheld the kidnapping conviction and death sentence of Caryl Chessman, who wrote a best seller book in prison.

The unanimous decision turned down Chessman's attack on the transcript of his original trial in Los Angeles in May, 1948.

The Los Angeles Superior Court now must set a new execution date. Chessman still has the right to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review the California high court's decision.

The 38-year-old convict has won notice for two books published since he entered San Quentin in 1948. And he has won court stays which have saved him from seven dates in the gas chamber.

RAWDON

Relatives Fete Trenton Family On Departure

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

RAWDON — On Sunday afternoon 100 relatives enjoyed a pot dinner topped off with strawberries and ice cream at Frankford Community Hall. The family gathering was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Charlesworth, David, Debbie and Pamela of Borden Drive, Middleton Park, Trenton, who are leaving in a few days for Fonialnbleau, France, where David has been posted with the R.C.A.F. at NATO headquarters, along with Airforce groups from other countries.

David is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Charlesworth of Smithfield, and he has one brother Mr. Richard Charlesworth, Trenton. Guests included Mrs. Nellie Purdy, Winnie Mrs. May Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Baker, and Mr. and Mrs. Christ Ralph of Toronto; also relatives from Hamilton, Brighton, Trenton, Foxboro, Stirling, Frankford, Edward county, Sidney township, Stockdale, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, and other points.

The party was convened by Mrs. Fred Charlesworth of Frankford, and was a delightful affair. She and her assistants were thanked for their splendid arrangements.

A large bouquet of mixed delphiniums and bachelor buttons was the central decoration, and place cards were used.

At the close of the noon meal a short program was staged with Mr. Ernest Anderson, R.R. 2, Belleville, as master of ceremonies. He spoke briefly and said he hoped a larger gathering would be in attendance when David and Madeline and children back to Canada in 1962.

A sing-song of hymns followed with Mrs. F. Charlesworth as pianist. Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a reading entitled "The Sacred Stone," and later a humorous selection.

At this point everyone was formally introduced and this added a happy addition in the proceedings and gave the large group a chance to become better acquainted.

Brief addresses of "best wishes" for happy sojourn in France were given by Messrs. Basil Baker, Chris Ralph, Ross Ladd, Ralph Bell, George G. Montgomery, Harvey Pitcher, and others.

Mr. Harold Pitcher read an appreciative address to David and Madeline expressing best wishes for a safe return to Canada. In closing he read a poem based on Genesis 31:49, "The Lord watch between me and thee when we are absent one from the other." The poem read as follows: "Oh, then thy way and I go mine, apart, yet not afar, Only a thin veil hangs between the pathways where we are; and God keep watch between thee and me, this is my prayer."

Mrs. Percy Charlesworth presented her son David with a leather-bound copy of the Bible, and to Madeline, a matching Hymnary with words and music.

Mrs. William Pitcher sang "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," followed by all singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and a benediction.

The younger folk went to Frankford Tourist Park and the older folk had a delightful session of reminiscing under the shady trees on the adjacent lawn. Several members of the family remained for a cafeteria-style supper.

Since David is interested in photography, the group will be looking for pictures of another party in 1963 and too enjoying his views of Europe.

DESERONTO

Firemen's 'Fun Fest' Well Attended

DESERONTO — The Firemen's "Fun-Fest" held in the town park on Friday and Saturday nights attracted an excellent crowd. On Friday night the games got under way fairly early and a crowd of some 400 enjoyed themselves until about 11:30. A large number of children were on the grounds and gave the merry-go-round a busy night.

On Saturday afternoon the firemen had a number of races for the children and some close and amusing contests were seen. In the age group of five and six, Judy Huffman and Stan Moon came out as the fastest; age seven and eight, Brenda Graham and Dickie Hill took first money; nine and 10, Judy O'Brien and Denny Tompkins, and for 11 and 12 years old, C. Sherman and Allan Spicer took top money. The bike race was won by Allan Spicer and the wheel-barrow race was won by Allan Clark and Marvin Brooks.

LARGE CROWD

On Saturday night the crowd was well over the thousand mark and all seemed to enjoy themselves visiting friends and playing the various booths. A prize of $10.00 worth of merchandise was given by Moody's clothing store to the holder of one of the tickets on the draw. The number was announced several times and the holder of the ticket had only to present the ticket to Moody's store and pick out the merchandise.

A beautiful doll was won by John Johnson and two oil paintings were won by Charles Joyce of Kingston.

The firemen were out in force and in charge of the booths were: Bingo, darts, Jim McVicker Jr.; fish toss, Don Whittam; crown and anchor, Roy Cole; ball game, Charles Knight Jr.; shooting gallery, Don Hubbler; fish pond, Lucilla Claus. The general chairmen for the event were Albert Fraser and James McVicker.

Pick A Park For Pleasure

Outlet Beach Provincial Park, near Picton, is an extremely popular spot for bathers and picnickers. As can be seen in the above picture the water is shallow for quite some distance off the shore of the extremely well kept beach. / Almost two miles of fine white sand beach is available for the use of visitors.

The provincial parks which come under the supervision of the Tweed District of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests offer the earnest camper or the casual picnicker a wide variety of scenery and facilities. From Lake St. Peter, located at the northern end of Hastings County, through the parks at Black Lake in Frontenac county, Mazinaw Lake in Lennox and Addington and Lake on the Mountain, The Outlet and Sandbanks Parks in Prince Edward County, there exists many types of scenery and recreational provisions for Ontario vacationers.

A few miles north of Marmooth, Lake St. Peter provincial park provides 114 camping sites among a stand of beautiful silver birch trees. Each camping site is provided with a picnic table and benches, a barbecue pit, and a refuse container. Conveniences and a launching slip for watercraft are close to hand. On the bathing beach there is another boat launching site, more picnic tables, and conveniences for the casual one-day visitor. Swimming facilities are very good, and the lake is stocked every second year to provide lake trout and speckled trout for the fishing fraternity. A biological survey has been recently completed and the results will be used to promote better fishing. Privately - owned cabins and a dining lounge are located beside the park land and are used by many of the campers and visitors.

THREE BEACHES

The Black Lake Provincial Park has seen much development by the Lands and Forests people during the past year. There are now three beaches available with designated picnic areas. New car parks have been provided away from the beach and picnic areas. The two boat launching areas and 145 camping sites have also been provided. This park is located about three miles west of the intersection of Highways 38 and 7, near Sharbot Lake.

Outlet Beach Park, which is southwest of Picton about 10 miles, is an exceedingly popular spot for week-end picnickers and swimmers. There are numerous facilities available for these people, including 12 changing houses, three comfort stations, large parking areas, and many picnic tables.

The Outlet swimming facilities include a beach which is not quite two miles in length. The water is quite shallow for a long distance out from the shoreline. The beach is of a fine white sand and is kept very clean by the Lands and Forests parks attendants. Dead fish and algae are cleaned up before their presence is noticeable.

Besides the facilities for the casual visitor there are 140 campsites for the outdoorsmen. The camping area is kept separate from the picnicking area by means of a natural river. Every shortly a pumping station is to be installed for the convenience of campers.

The Outlet Beach Lands and Forests staff also supervises the nearby Sandbanks Park. This area is at present undergoing development and is quite useful as a pleasant spot for group picnics. There are no facilities for swimmers and no camp sites available, although it is expected that eventually these amenities will become available as the development of this location progresses.

Besides the larger provincial parks in this area three are several smaller ones. Mazinaw Park, 35 miles north of Kaladar on Highway 41, provides some 40 campsites in a very scenic setting of tall pines. There is also a picnic area. Lake On The Mountain, at Glenora in Prince Edward County, is another small park picnic facilities and a comfort station. There are also limited swimming facilities.

In direct comparison to the heavily occupied beach at the Outlet Park is this scene at Lake St. Peter Provincial Park, the most northern of the parks under the control of the Tweed District of the Department of Lands and Forests. The plane of the local Lands and Forests Ranger can be seen in the centre background.

All of three parks have personnel of the Department of Lands and Forests in attendance who will assist either the casual visitor or the confirmed camper in finding the sport best suited to his needs.

Another provincial park, which is popular with local residents, although it is in the Lindsay district of the Lands and Forests, is Presqu'ile near Brighton. This park has a large sandy beach with many picnic and camp sites available.

FEAT FAILS

SEATTLE (AP)—A boy who leaped into the Lake Washington ship canal with his hands and feet tied in what was to have been a demonstration of his swimming prowess was drowned Tuesday night. Robert Waugh, 13, was swimming with two companions when he suggested trying to untie himself while under water. His body was not recovered.

Annual Dollar Parks Fee Purchases More Each Year

Those who believe that the value of the dollar is declining almost to the point where its buying power, as compared to years gone by, might be measured in mills should be heartened by learning there is one investment which an Ontario resident or visitor can make which is bringing greater value for the dollar with each succeeding year. This is the one dollar annual fee to visit any or all of the many parks which are under the administration of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

Among the many duties of this organization, which include fire watching over Ontario's forests, reforestation projects, and preserving the province's wildlife, is the provision and upkeep of parks with campsites and recreational facilities for picnickers and campers. To gain admission to any of the many provincial parks one has to pay a one dollar fee the first time his vehicle enters one of these parks during the course of the calendar year. After this initial fee he can return as many times as he may wish with as many people as he desires in his car with him and to whatever provincial park he may wish to visit without further charge.

CHARGE FOR CAMPING

This dollar allows the picnicker or casual sight-seer to make use of the provincial parks' many facilities with the exception of the camp-sites, which are for those who may wish to set up their tent or sit down their trailer for a couple of days or more and enjoy living in the out-of-doors. For the use of a campsite there is an additional charge of 75 cents a day or four dollars a week, with persons allowed up to four weeks occupancy of any one site.

The Department of Lands and Forests has worked hard and continues to do so, to provide the visitor with pleasant surroundings. Parking facilities are being developed so that there will be no need for cars to be located on the beaches of these parks. Landing platforms where boating enthusiasts may unload and launch their craft are provided at nearly every park. Comfort stations with running water are now available at all of the larger parks and many of the smaller parks will have these in the near future. Other conveniences are available at all parks. Where good swimming facilities and beaches are present, such as at Outlet Park in Prince Edward County, changing houses are provided for the bathers' use.

Each park is provided with plenty of picnic tables, barbecue grills, refuse containers, a good supply of water and firewood, and the advice and assistance of the Lands and Forests people at each park. Firewood, which was once charged for, is now provided gratis.

PARKING SPACE PROVIDED

Throughout each park every possible means of enhancing the natural appearance of the area is employed whilst still providing adequate facilities for the park users. All buildings constructed on a parkland are designed with a finish to complement and blend in with the natural setting. Campsites are interspersed with "green areas" so that the area does not become cramped or lacking in beauty. Parking lots are now provided so that swimming and playing areas will not become clogged by automobiles. The laying of sod and the planting of plants or saplings in order to better preserve the scenery of the land and provide for a better appearance, is also utilized.

As each year comes along better facilities and more conveniences are provided for Ontario campers and picnickers so what one receives for his dollar at a Provincial Park steadily increases each year.

CANADIAN WINNER

LONDON (Reuters)—A Canadian MP was one of the top prize winners at an international lily show opened in London Tuesday. Charles F. Stinson, M.P. Best of Georgetown, Ont., Progressive Conservative member for Halton, was awarded the Lindley Silver Medal for his collection of lilies.

Improvements Show Initiative Of Camp Staffs

The provision of pleasant vacation spots throughout Ontario with but a nominal charge to those who wish to enjoy them is certainly a very commendable feature of the current government. Little has been left undone in the way of provision of facilities for those who wish to spend a few hours or a few weeks in the out-of-doors enjoying Ontario nature.

The parks are staffed by very pleasant personnel of the Lands and Forests department, which is responsible for these many provincial parks, and these people are present for the well-being of the campers and visitors. The enthusiasm of these men is certainly evidenced by the many projects and improvements which may be seen underway in Ontario provincial parks. Many of the improvements within a certain park are the result of that park superintendent's own observations and recommendations or those of his own.

In return for these considerations and facilities there are a few small things which the user can do in return. One, which is quite important, is not to destroy any of the trees or wildlife to be found in these parks. Souvenir hunters, who strip off a piece of silver birch bark, are actually killing a tree's beauty and nobility can be done to save it. The cutting of other trees for firewood and tent-poles is another thing for which there is no need or justification. These items are usually provided by the men in charge of the park.

Litter-bugs are never an advantage to anyone, other than to point out to a child what he should not do, and there are provisions for campers to put their waste and garbage, out of sight in barrels or containers at every campsite and picnic ground. That people make use of these is the other request made of those using the parks.

The well-wooded stand of silver birch in which the Lake St. Peter park, near Maynooth, is located can be seen along the shore of one of the bathing areas in this park. Much work has been done at this location to provide better facilities for campers and picnickers.

CBC Board Gets Complaints Of Kingston TV Programming

OTTAWA (CP) — Two applicants asked the Board of Broadcast Governors Wednesday for a licence to operate radio stations in the Hamilton area. They are J. Irving Zucker, who asked for a licence to operate at 1280 on the dial at Hamilton with a power of 1,000 watts day and 250 watts night, and Andrew Peller, who asked to operate a daytime station at Burlington, with 1,000 watts at 1540 on the dial.

Mr. Zucker's application was opposed by Vincent Regan of CKSO London, on the ground the proposed station would "frustrate" his plan for a power increase.

Harry Gillis, appearing for Mr. Peller, said 3,000 residents of Burlington signed a petition in favor of a local station.

Howard Caine, owner of CHWO Oakville, opposed Mr. Peller's application on the ground that Oakville and Burlington "are at one" community. They could not economically support two separate radio stations.

ASK POWER INCREASES

Three northern Ontario radio stations asked for power increases. They are:

CFCH North Bay, from 1,000 watts to 10,000 watts day and 5,000 watts night.

CKGB Timmins, from 5,000 to 10,000 watts day and night.

CHNO Sudbury, from 1,000 watts to 10,000 watts, daytime only.

A. L. Davies, managing director, said he has received reports of interference when the channel 7 station at Watertown, N.Y., is on the air.

The cause is that when a receiver is tuned to Watertown it causes interference to receivers nearby which are tuned in to CKWS.

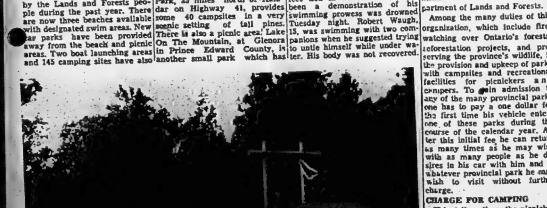
"Jest a Second"

"There'd be no arguments in this house if you saw things my way."



Dr. Andrew Stewart, board chairman, said the board has received a "considerable volume of complaints" from the Kingston area about the small amount of local live programming.

The board was told that the station does about two hours a day, including news, sports and weather broadcasts. It had no facilities to do remote broadcasts live, but covered many local events on film.

Mr. Davies said he is sorry to say that many Kingston residents watch the Watertown station because it has the pick of the best programs on the American networks.

TOURIST ROBBED

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An American tourist was robbed of his car and about $80 in cash by four hitchhikers on a lonely sideroad northwest of Lambeth Monday night, Charles Peck, 35, of Fulton, N.Y., told police the hitchhikers ordered him to stop the car, dragged him into a field and pummelled him with their fists. He said he picked up one of the hitchhikers in Niagara Falls.

Last Sunday a visitor count was made of those using the Outlet Beach facilities. Well over 3,000 enjoyed the use of the park and its picnicking and swimming opportunities. There are also some 140 camping sites in this park as well.

FELLOW TRAVELLERS — Here are two of the three animals which Russians say were shot into space in a rocket that came back to earth in good shape. The white dog, named Otvazhnaya, had made two previous rocket flights, according to the Soviets. Another dog was said to have been along with Otvazhnaya and the rabbit in the latest space trip, all occupying a specially designed parachute-rigged chamber in the rocket. (AP Wirephoto).

Air-Sea Rescue Of Actor's Yacht Cost $6,700

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The Australian government says the air-sea rescue of Hollywood actor-magician John Calvert's disabled yacht has cost about $6,700 and the incident is going to be investigated.

Air Minister Frederick M. Osborne told a reporter his attention had been called to some "curious features" and he would get a detailed report. Osborne did not elaborate.

A navy tug reached the stricken yacht Sea Fox with a new bilge pump today about 90 miles off the north coast of Australia. The tug said the yacht was taking water through an open seam.

An Australian Air Force bomber located the vessel Wednesday in the Arafura Sea. The pilot said the vessel seemed in no immediate danger and the eight persons aboard—including two women—did not appear to be bailing or working unusually.

Calvert radioed he would not accept help from private ships, presumably because he feared he might have to pay heavy salvage costs.

The actor had been sending out distress messages since Sunday. At Darwin, rescue authorities said they were puzzled at the slowness with which he answered radioed questions about his position.

The Sea Fox was expected to resume her voyage to Sydney. Actor Calvert is scheduled to open a show Aug. 1.

Red Terrorist Explodes Bomb In U.S. Billet

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A Communist terrorist slipped into an American military billet 20 miles north of Saigon Wednesday night, during a movie and exploded a bomb, killing two U.S. military advisers, himself and three South Vietnamese.

Another American officer was wounded and two others escaped injury.

The wounded American was flown to Manila for treatment. A communique from the South Viet Nam government and the U.S. Embassy said his condition was not serious.

Following the bomb attack, other members of the terrorist band opened fire from outside the billet with small arms and automatic weapons, the communique said.

Vietnamese army guards returned the fire, "forcing the terrorists to flee to the nearby river from which direction they had come," the communique reported.

The South Vietnamese killed were two army guards and an attendant who tried to prevent the terrorist from exploding his bomb. Another terrorist who had slipped into the building with the bomber escaped before the charge went off.

The attack occurred at the south Viet Nam army's training centre at Bienhoa. The five U.S. officers were members of the U.S. military assistance advisory group stationed in South Viet Nam to train president Ngo Dinh Diem's forces in the use of American weapons.

Mother Told To Make-Peace With Her Church

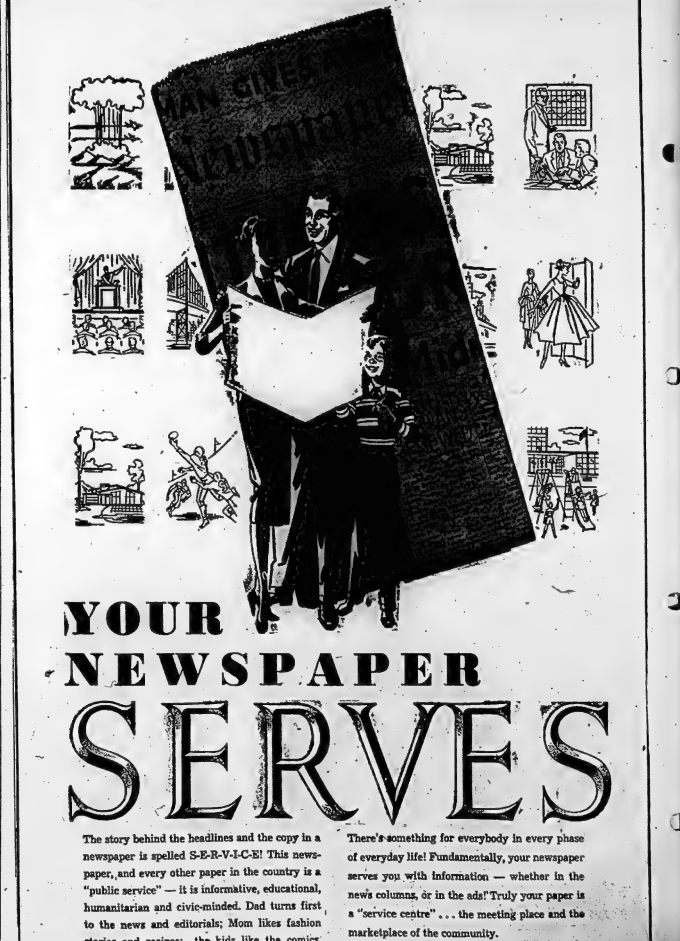
TORONTO (CP)—A North Bay woman who married outside her Roman Catholic faith was advised by a judge Wednesday to "make peace with the church" if she wanted to adopt the child she took into her home 2½ years ago.

Mrs. June R. Dunn and her husband, Wilbert, were refused an injunction that would restrain the Children's Aid Society from removing 3½-year - old Suzanne from their home.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville turned down the application after he learned that the child was a Roman Catholic living in what the Roman Catholic Church considers a non-Catholic home. Mr. Dunn is a Protestant.

The Dunns took Suzanne into their home in February, 1957. Subsequently a priest visited Mrs. Dunn and told her that she was no longer considered a Roman Catholic because she had married outside her faith.

WANT TO KEEP GIRL



Lawyer Harold Fulton, acting for the parents, said the family started adoption proceedings when it appeared they might lose Suzanne. He stated that the girl be allowed to stay in her home until an adoption application had been heard.

F. J. O'Donnell, counsel for the Nipissing district branch of the CAS, said the law stipulates that the CAS cannot place a Catholic child in a Protestant home or vice versa. "Their case is hopeless," he said.

The judge said he could grant the injunction but added: "Perhaps if the mother makes peace with the church and tries to be accepted back into the church, she might succeed with her adoption application."

450 Paid Attendance At Drag Race

DESERONTO — An estimated paid attendance of about 450 was attracted to the Drag Races last Wednesday at the Mohawk Airport. This was the first sponsored event of this kind ever to be held in this district. The Peaceful Pacers, a hot rod club from Kingston were the hosts and competing cars came from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and many neighbouring towns such as Kingston, Belleville Trenton and Port Hope.

The president of the "Peaceful Pacers" is Ray Gowett, of Kingston; and the "Drag Strip" manager for last Wednesday was Bob Beazer. The club had an amplifying system on the grounds for the benefit of the crowd but they experienced some trouble when the electrical timing device broke down. As a result, none of the times recorded for the runs could be taken as official. There was some good dragging done and the cars attracted considerable attention from the crowd. Before the drags began all competing cars were given a close inspection which began shortly after 8.00 a.m. and the dragging began about eleven a.m. and finished about 4.30 in the afternoon.

East Germany Reports 40,000 Seek Asylum

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany claimed today that it has granted asylum to more than 40,000 persons who fled from West Germany in the first six months of this year.

Aden, the official East German news agency, said this is 36 per cent above the number of refugees in the same period of last year.

Allied officials in West Berlin conceded there is a significant flow of East German refugees back to their homeland from West Germany.

Some East Germans are going back because of improved living standards there or because of difficulty in adjusting to life in West Germany.

West German refugee authorities reported 72,377 political refugees fled from East Germany in the first half of this year. This compared to 56,389 in the same period of 1958.

City Commercial Softball League

The Bankers racked up their second victory of the year in the City Commercial softball league last night, both over the same club, by hammering the Bobcat Juveniles 16-6.

Six runs in the first got them away to a fast start last night and five in the fourth left no doubt as to the outcome.

Don Smith pitched the victory, allowing ten hits over the route. He struck out five and issued four free passes.

Ken McLaren was the loser, lasting until the fourth, when Sonny Holloway took over. They gave up ten hits, whiffed three and walked nine.

Big Al Chalmers spearheaded the Bankers' attack last night by clouting two doubles and two singles in five trips. Don Smith and Goodfellow each had double and single. Don Wood and Burgess also hit safely.

Gary Duggan hit a two-run homer in the seventh for the Bobcats. Bucky Kihler had a triple and double and Dick Clapp two singles. Doug Moreau and Pug Kellar contributed doubles with Stu Mutton, John Lewis and Paul Zakos getting singles.

NBC Survey Shows TV Sets Most Important in Homes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The men who live by television have figured out a way to beat a boring summer schedule: They spend their time reading the results of surveys telling them what viewers are looking at, and why.

A new flood of surveys seems to have been unleashed within the industry and one or two are of more than passing interest.

For instance, NBC is circulating a survey report which shows that most viewers think their television set is the most important thing in their homes, more important than the refrigerator, the stove, and a washer-dryer and Mod Cons.

The same survey revealed, too, that 35.2 per cent of viewers are completely or mostly satisfied with television. This compares with 49.2 per cent who are satisfied with 1959 automobiles; 49.6 per cent, with popular music and 10.3 per cent with the cost of living. Presumably the study was made before the onset of TV's hot weather doldrums.

Another survey suggests that women have the upper hand in picking the channel selector dial. Women, this survey says, take the initiative in choosing half-hour dramas, network specials and—their favorite—hour - long dramas.

Olds and ends: Ed Murrow's replacement for Person to Person is expected to be settled any minute now. Asked whether there were many applicants for the job, CBS Vice President Mike Dann replied: "Millions!" . . .

Joyce Jordan, host on the commercials on The Price is Right, The Verdict is Yours and other shows, is something new in pitch-women. She wears glasses and cat-runners, and more important, on. She says they make her spiel more believable—that other women don't respond to gorgeous, slim, young, perfect and thus remote females. . . .

CBS wants to put its cameras on the salvaging of the sunken passenger liner Andrea Doria this summer. It plans for both the salvaging and the ownership shape up, it would be great TV—better even than Sea Hunt. . . .

Minor Baseball

The Red Sox used two big innings and a top pitching effort by Herring to hand the Cardinals an 11-0 defeat in a Peewee baseball game played last night.

Herring allowed only one single and struck out four batters while his mates scored six runs in the fourth and five in the seventh to give him plenty of working margin.

Finny toed the rubber for the Cards, allowing just three hits. Fenwell, Schofield and Law collected the Red Sox hits. May got the lone Cardinal safety.

By BOB THOMAS

The Negro star is a perfectionist, as believe crowds at the Greek Theatre in Los Angeles attest nightly. He is also a young man who thinks seriously about his race. For these reasons, he has been unhappy with his films thus far.

He publicly lambasted Island in the Sun as a bad picture, much to the dismay of 20th Century-Fox. Now it's time for MGM to cringe. He has sharp words about his current release, The World, the Flesh and the Devil.

"It's not a bad picture," he allowed, "But the tragedy is that it could have been a great picture. Everyone who sees it agrees that the script, showing the holocaust caused by an atomic explosion had terrific quality."

FALLS APART

Then, as many critics pointed out, the movie fell apart. Belafonte believes it was because the script failed to resolve the issue of a romance between himself and Inger Stevens.

"I said from the first that I didn't care whether I got the girl in the picture," he said, "the only thing I wanted was to have the issue resolved, and resolved honestly. I was assured that it would be. But during the filming I spent arduous week after week hoping that the script would be fixed to match the original, exciting conception. It never was."

So great was his disappointment that he contemplated giving up films.

"I have never reached in movies the quality of performance and reaction that I get in concerts and other in - person shows," he said. "I began to think that perhaps I should stick to live performing, where I had control over what I was doing."

HAS OWN COMPANY

Instead of quitting, he went into production with his own company. He recently filmed Odds Against Tomorrow with himself, Robert Ryan, Shelley Winters, Gloria Grahame and Ed Begley. He feels that is the crime story he achieves what he had hoped for on the screen for the first time.

"Let's face it: There are only two Negro stars who mean anything at the box office—myself and Sidney Poitier," he said. "I'd rather do a story about a Negro and strikes out on both of us, he's dead."

But there should be a vast field of dramatic stories for Negroes to be added, and not merely concerning the race issue. He cited a number of historical subjects plus the fact that Negroes now figure in many more walks of life than they did a decade or two ago. His own ambition is to do a sophisticated comedy, and he has one by S. J. Perleman under consideration.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The gasping-for-breath Quebec Hockey League rolled away from the brink of the grave, opened its eyes and sat up. It felt better.

It should. It had just been given a triple transfusion of Ontario blood, with Doc Pollock standing by ready with another shot if necessary.

It looked in surprise as a squad of husky Hull-Ottawa Canadiens lugged away a headstone. The name on the headstone had been scratched out and a new one inscribed underneath. It read "Eastern Professional Hockey League." This was a time-saver just in case it is needed within a year or two.

The back-from-the-brink league cocked an eye at a freshly-filled grave nearby. Its headstone read:

"Eastern Ontario Senior 'A' Hockey League, 1956-1959." There were no flowers, no mourners, no memorials. Just a piece of paper pinned with a stick to the earth. It read: "I O U (I Owed You) $3,500—Kingston Merchants."

The least Dr. Pollock could have done is to have placed a small wreath on the new grave with the inscription, "Greater Love Hath No League Than This . . ."

And so with a great fanfare of radio-television and newspaper trumpets, the hockey world was informed yesterday that the new Eastern Professional Hockey League was born. The king is dead—long live the king.

There was elation in Kingston. Those in the know, who knew it several days ago, smiled to themselves as radios and television sets rocked to the announcement. "Kingston has professional hockey."

In and around Sudbury, the rivers, lakes and forests resounded to the triumphant howl of the Wolves. Their sportswriting yapi Paul Patton, rushed an order for a dozen new crystal balls. He didn't bother ordering crepe. They have lots left over.

Everything was normal on the Hull-Ottawa scene. Why shouldn't it be? Everything had gone according to plan. The pasture field and training grounds for the Montreal Canadiens had been given a new lease of life. The old horse had been given a new blanket.

Happy days are here again. As the Hull-Ottawa representative told the swan-song meeting of the Eastern League Tuesday night, "We are quitting the senior 'A' league because we have been finished in it for years. The new pro set-up this won't happen," or words to that effect.

This should be wonderful news for Kingston, whose senior "A" club grossed $58,000 last season, finished with an operational loss of $8,000, couldn't afford the new would not, pay an honorable pool debt of $3,300, yet only had to meet a $1,550 weekly salary list. Next season they will operate in the "black" with a salary minimum of in the neighborhood of $140 weekly per player.

Those loud chuckles you hear in the background originate from the Quebec Aces and the Chicoutimi Saguenoens.

And the office wag wants to know if there is any truth in the rumor Kingston will change its name from Merchants to "Welchmen."

No wonder the members of the "finest and largest news staff in Eastern Ontario . . . 19 hours a day, etc., etc., etc." did not evince any surprise at the Eastern League meeting the other night when chairman Lorne Cook announced that the Western Ontario teams would be willing to talk turkey with Eastern clubs.

They knew it all the time.

They knew it because sports editor Don Soutter, apparently asked for and got a story on the subject from Len Taylor, his counterpart of the Kitchener Record.

It was published in the Kingston paper on the afternoon of the day of the meeting.

Taylor said: "Western Ontario senior A hockey teams would very likely be willing to play games against teams in Eastern Ontario if conditions in that group are such that it may be reduced to two or three teams."

A check-up of Windsor, Chatham and Kitchener-Waterloo today found all three teams responsive to competing against Whitby, Belleville and Kingston, the story said.

Taylor said Ernie Goman, business manager of the Kitchener Dutchmen, said his club would be willing to sit down and talk to Whitby or anyone else in the Eastern League.

Although no one will admit it, there is reason to believe that certain operators in Eastern Ontario have already made approaches to the Western Ontario clubs with a view to forming one group in Southern Ontario, Taylor wrote.

This was exposed at the meeting here when Wren Blair said he had contacted Kitchener with regards to playing in the Western League and had been told he would be welcome along with Belleville and other clubs.

Kingston in 'Money' Ranks To Form Five-Team Circuit; Sault Ste. Marie May Enter

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of Canada's top hockey leagues died this week and from their ashes rose a new minor pro circuit incorporating Quebec and Ontario teams.

The five-team eastern professional hockey league was created Wednesday, minutes after the Quebec Hockey League folded.

Two of the new league's teams came from the QHL and two more from the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A eastern division, which collapsed Tuesday. A third was from the OHA-NOHA.

So far Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Kingston Merchants have joined from the OHA and Montreal Royals and Trois-Rivieres Lions from the QHL. Sudbury from the OHA northern section also was admitted.

3000 AT PARLEY

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., applied for admission and was given until tonight to submit satisfactory scheduling and transportation could be made. Attendance would then be a formality.

Following the organizational meeting, a formal meeting was held for July 22 in Kingston.

The QHL, formed in 1933 from the old Quebec Senior Hockey League, ceased operation "until further notice" when Buffalo Aces and Chicoutimi Saguenoens announced a one-year suspension of operations. Under the QHL's constitution, at least four teams must operate in the league.

The EPHL immediately applied to the National Hockey League for affiliation with all professional hockey and said it will continue amicable relations with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, "in the best interests of minor hockey, particularly below junior A competition."

It was indicated the new league would have the same status in pro hockey as the Western Hockey League.

It was stated that clubs in the NHL and the American Hockey League would be interested in tie-ups with the new league.

Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers of the NHL and Buffalo of the AHL were considered most likely to make farm club arrangements.

Yankees Clobber Bosox 11-5 After Beaneaters Blow Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

That's quite a chore Freddie Hutchinson has undertaken as new manager of Cincinnati Reds, but it's a toss-up how toughness compared to the job facing Billy Jurges with Boston Red Sox.

Hutch, fired last September in his third season with St. Louis Cardinals, agreed Wednesday night to a third shot as a major league pilot. He succeeds Mayo Smith with the seventh - place Reds, who are 10½ games back in the National League race.

But Jurges, who succeeded Mike Higgins as Boston boss last weekend, now not only is last in the American League, but is a full dozen games behind first-place Cleveland—and he has five games to play against New York Yankees in five days.

The Red Sox blew a chance to split the cellar Wednesday night, getting a 5-3 lead slip away and taking an 11-5 walloping from the Yankees, who tied for third place, in the only game scheduled in the majors.

MOVE TO BOSTON

That game, making up an April rainout, was at New York. The next five are at Boston as the result of a weird schedule and a rainout.

The Yankees did some blowing themselves before rolling back with a 15-hit attack. Yogi Berra, who homered, and Bill Skowron, who tripled, doubled and singled, drove in five runs between them. Elston Howard, scored on three runs, two on a bad-hop single that struck Boston second baseman Pete Runnels in the face.

A five-run fourth inning, triggered by Skowron's two - run triple and Berra's two-run, ninth homer, gave it to Jim Coates and reliever Bobby Shantz (3-2), who has won three straight.

Shantz, perhaps ready to regain starting status on the Yankees' stumbling staff, gave up two-run double by Jackie Jensen and an RBI single by Runnels in the second inning before relieving starter Don Larsen. But with his lefty fast ball the Red Sox to one run on four hits and struck out eight in a 7 2-3-inning stint. Coates got credit.

RESUME GRIND

While the Yankees make their latest bid to get a toehold in the AL against the Red Sox, first-place Cleveland gets back to baseball after the all-star break with the opener of a two-game series at Chicago tonight.

Baltimore has five games in four days at Washington, starting with a twi-night double-header tonight.

In the National League, Milwaukee takes a .003 percentage point lead into the opener of a three - game series with Philadelphia Los Angeles Dodgers, who trail by a half-game.

Faloney Signs Three-Year Cat Contract

HAMILTON (CP) — Quarterback Bernie Faloney of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats has signed a three-year contract, Ticats announced Wednesday night.

Team president Jake Gaudaur and coach Jim Trimble both said they've never heard of a Big Four football player or any other professional signing a three-year contract before.

They said the contract hinges on Faloney's ability to make the grade in the start of each season. A former member of the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, Faloney was last year's Canadian Press all-star quarterback.

Gaudaur said that Faloney himself asked for the three-year contract.

Phillies Sign 17-Year-Old

WINDSOR (CP)—John Upham, a 17-year-old Windsor pitcher-outfielder, currently playing with the class D division of the Detroit Amateur Baseball Association, has signed a professional contract with the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League.

It is understood Upham signed for between $5,000 and $10,000.

A southpaw, Upham has hurled shutouts in his last three outings, and boasts a 4-0 record for the season.

He will attend the Phillies' Lewsburg camp for minor league players next March, and is slated to join the class D Tampa, Fla., team in the 1960 season.

A 6.400-hitter, the six-foot, 180-pound athlete attended a Dearborn, Mich., clinic held by the Phillies last week. He plans to finish his final semester at the University of Detroit before going south in March.

'Hard-Boiled' Doesn't Scare Very Easily

Didjever see a colpie of human rattlers in a wrestling ring? Well, that's what's on tap Friday night when the 300-pound of muscular ferocity, Don Leo Jonathan, tangles with that tough ombre, Hard-Boiled Haggerty.

Jonathan is absolutely pitiless when he gets his forearm at a disadvantage, and he stops at nothing. He tosses his 300-pound six foot carcass willy - nilly at the opposition with hands and feet working in rapid action all the time.

Bad Hard - Boiled is no pantywaist pachyderm. He knows a lot of the tough stuff and he won't hesitate to use it if he gets the chance. He's one of the scoriest cusses ever to appear in a Belleville ring, and it should be quite a tussle when the twain meet.

Rocky Says Patterson Has "Fair Chance"

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) Rocky Marciano, who retired undefeated in 1956 as world heavyweight, believes Floyd Patterson has a "fair chance" to beat Ingemar Johansson in their return bout next September.

"If Patterson has anything, he has a fair chance to regain his title when he fights Johansson again," said Marciano who watched the bout from ringside in Yankee Stadium.

Marciano, 34, said he plans no comeback.

Marciano, who picked Patterson to whip Johansson, before the upset, said: "I don't know how much that beating took out of Floyd. I hope he's not gunshy.

Becerra Wins Bantam Crown With Sensational Knockout

The underdog buzzsaw ended the savage fight by dropping Halimi, who had won only two of his feet in 38 professional bouts, with a devastating left under the heart.

The time was 2:02 and the 15-year-old Becerra, from across the border, went wild. He screeched around the ring shouting "Viva Mexico." He is that country's first world king in a weight class.

Becerra said: "I am so happy to be able to take the champion's ship back to Mexico. The people of Mexico have waited so long.

"I went out there to knock him out in the first round."

RAPID FIRE

He and Halimi banged away at each other at a pace nobody figured they could stay the scheduled 15 rounds. Sometimes they had to give each other room to swing.

It was the champion, who hit the deck twice in the eighth round.

The Hawaii-born Halimi bled from for defeat on Alphonse's bowed shoulders.

"We held him a little too close to stay off the ropes," said his manager, Lou Rizzo.

Halimi, making his second defence of the championship, had signed the blame and shrugged: "I started too fast with him. I thought I could knock him out, but pout."

Halimi began peppering away at the challenger with a long jab. But he soon was forced to take bombed Becerra in rugged in-fighting.

Becerra said he was jarred only once—in the seventh when Halimi shook the 23-year-old Mexican with right and left hooks to the head.

HOOKS HALT HALIMI

Undaunted, Becerra followed the Negro champion like a gathering storm. Th storm broke in the eighth. Becerra sent Halimi into a corner and the little gamecock hammered away, landed some dandy punches but wilted before Becerra's attack.

Becerra hooked a left to the stomach and connected with the right uppercut. Halimi pitched forward on his face. He got up at the count of nine.

Referee Tommy Hart counted 10 but it was a good minute before Halimi's handlers got him on his feet. Becerra weighed 117 pounds, Halimi 117.

The upset—Becerra was an 8-to-1 underdog—came as a surprise change in recent months. Don Jordan took the world welterweight crown from Virgil Akins; Dewey Moore took the featherweight championship from Davey Moore and Ingemar Johansson bombed Floyd Patterson to win the heavyweight championship.

BECERRA SOON

Becerra, who has knocked out 21 of his opponents, said he'll come to meet Halimi in a rematch. It probably will be back in the Los Angeles Coliseum, no matter whether it will be in the United States or France.

The gate was $151,151. Halimi will get at least $65,000, his guarantee before the bouts. Becerra receives about $20,000.

Halimi won the championship in 1957 in a fight with Mario d'Agata of Italy. He retained it over Paul (Rato) Macias of Mexico.

Latta Breaks Deadlock in Eighth To Hand Belleville Jrs. 4-2 Loss

"Daylight darkness" hailed the Belleville Lloyd's Cleaners Juniors-Latta South Hastings baseball League game at the Fair Grounds last night.

Unfortunately for the city youngsters they were two runs down at the time and had to accept a 4-2 loss, their third of the season. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning.

With the score tied 2-2, it was the threesome behind the mound in the eighth when Latta shoved across two runs to clinch the verdict.

Glen Dalzard started for the hosters and gave up two runs and four of Latta's eight hits. Latta could not look over in the sixth, and had a similar record. They split eight strikeouts, Dalzard walking three and Latchford one.

Lorne Crookwright went the distance for the winners yielding six hits, whiffing eight and strolling one. He singled for good measure.

Latta took a run lead in the first innings with the juniors trying it up in the fourth. Both teams scored singles in the sixth.

In the top of the eighth Ray went down swinging and Buskard belted a double to start the belated rally. Gow struck out and Glen walked. Crookwright drove in Buskard with his single and Denyes leaned another to score Glen. Meeks popped out to end the innings.

Soden poled out three doubles and a single for a perfect night at the plate. Bill Mercer and Glenn Clarke singled for the remaining junior clouts.

Teams — Latta: Parks, Ray, Buskard, Gow, Glass, Denyes, Rollins, Meeks, Harris, Reid.

Lacrosse

LONG BRANCH (CP) — Wellard Switsons defeated Long of Toronto Malies, who produced their best night in Ontario Lacrosse Association senior action.

Ron Roy was top marksman for Welland, scoring three goals. Scotty Galloway, Mike Hanna, Frank Benedict and Dave Hall each had doubles. Singles went to Richard Daniel, Bill Good, Peter Burns and Gerry Carr.

For Long Branch, Leo Yeates, Merely Hligh and Jake Lawson each scored two goals. Singles went to Nolan Williams, Flory Trudahen, Jim Davenport, Bruce Steam and Fred Henderson.

Harmon, Hank Are Midway Slug Leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — Harmon Killebrew of Washington and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee are the major league slugging leaders at the season's midway mark.

Killebrew paces the American League with a slugging average of .628. He has scored 173 total bases in 277 times at bat. Included among his 73 hits are 19 doubles, two triples and a big-league best of 32 homers. No Washington player has won the slugging championship since Ed Delahanty in 1903.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press also show that Aaron tops the National League with a .584 mark. The Braves slugger has produced 216 total bases in 316 trips. Aaron has 37 doubles, three triples and 22 homers among his 117 safeties.

Ed Mathews, another Milwaukee star, has been the closest to Aaron with a .502 average. Ernie Banks of Chicago, who won the National League slugging title with .614 last year, is tied for third with Don Robinson of Cincinnati. Each is at .500.

Gus Triandos of Baltimore is second to Killebrew in the American League with a .576 average. Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees is third with .575.

Stan Leonard Will Play in Pro Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Stan Leonard, 42-year-old golf pro who prescribed a long vacation for himself a couple of days ago, apparently has decided to cut it short.

The Vancouver player, a partime traveller on the tournament trail, will play in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship at Riverwood Conservation Club, Que., July 22-25.

It's likely now that he will also play in the Millar Trophy event at Toronto Cedar Brae a few days after the CPGA.

Word of Leonard's entry for the Mull meet comes from CPGA secretary-treasurer Merth Marshall.

It is also understood that the travelling companion, Al Balding of Markham, Ont., will likely be in both events.

Total prize money for the CPGA this year is $8,500, part of which will be used to send low-shooters on an all-expenses paid winter tour of the Caribbean, where another $38,500 will be available in several tournaments.

"Who Dat Down Dere?" Twas Nikita

MOSCOW (AP) — A giant Negro basketball team was strolling through the Kremlin Wednesday when a big Russian cop was witnessed by his grinding halt, and out stepped Nikita Khrushchev.

"Ah, basketball," he shouted in English and walked from his car to shake hands with the entire group of Harlem Globetrotters from towering Wilt-the-Stilt Chamberlain on down.

Khrushchev chatted for five minutes, the seven-foot Chamberlain and others literally at his feet, making a startling contrast with the chubby, pink premier. Soon a crowd had gathered.

"This is the American basketball team!" Khrushchev announced, and that it was he said: "Basketball is very interesting, very dynamic game" and shook hands with all in the party before driving on.

Leafs Defeat Red Wings 5-2; Royals Split

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The way the baseball bounced Wednesday night kept Havana from dropping into the International League cellar. Instead, the Sugar Kings are tied for seventh place with Columbus.

Jerry Snyder's 12th - inning single through the legs of Hiraldo Alvarez scored Jose Valdivielso with the winning run and a 2-1 victory while Columbus dropped a doubleheader setback to Richmond, winning the first 2-1 and losing the nightcap 5-2. Ed Bergey registered a tie-breaking single off the glove of Columbus third baseman Bob Boyer for the Richmond victory.

Buffalo won the nightcap 5-4 with all runs off Syracuse 7-7 after the Royals had taken the opener 5-0. Toronto defeated Rochester 5-2.

COULD HAVE CLOBBERED

A Havana victory would have put the Cubans a game in front of the Jets, who had been tied with a Columbus second-game victory would have plunged the Sugar Kings into the cellar all alone.

Snyder's hit drove home Frank Kellert, who had walked and advanced to third on two sacrifice bunts by Valdivielso and Jim Archer went the distance, with Archer (6-6) getting out 11 and giving nice hitz without walking a man. Cuellar allowed 10 hits in handing his seventh against four wins.

Boyer's high chopper broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth as it scored two runs, Dave Jiminez was the losing pitcher, while Bob Welaer got the win.

Fred Green came on in the seventh for San Frank Leis who threw two and two out in the last inning. Columbus starter Paul Foytack (10-5) went.

USE 11 PITCHERS

Buffalo used five pitchers to gain its second - game victory while Montreal used six in losing the nightcap. Al Mahaffey (4-2) got the victory, and Bill Georgo (3-3) lost.

Buffalo rallied to hold a 4-0 lead, Bob Lennon's 18th homer pulling Montreal even at 7-7 in the seventh. Doubles by Jack Phillips and Wally Shannon's triple in the third inning scored the Wing's only runs.

Toronto scored its five in the top of the first inning on four hits, two errors and an intentional walk.

Cheap Seats Found Game Was Costly

MONTREAL (CP) — Some twenty-two persons paid $3.50 each in court Wednesday after they were caught watching a soccer match from "free stands" on private property.

All pleaded guilty to charges of loitering.

Policemen picked up the free-loading spectators while they were watching a game in Fallon Stadium Wednesday night from lumber piles and nearby buildings.

OFF TO BIG SWIM

PRESTON (CP)—Fred Higgins, 30, said Wednesday he has been chosen as one of the 15 swimmers who will take part in the Atlantic City long distance swim early next month, active in long distance swimming for three years, he turned down for the 25-mile swim last week.

Hutchinson Replaces Smith As Manager of Cincy Redlegs

Cincinnati general manager Gabe Paul announced Wednesday that Mayo Smith had been fired after only 80 games as pilot, and Hutchinson, former pitching ace of the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals, was named to manage Seattle of the Pacific Coast League, a Cincinnati farm club.

Hutchinson will be the 10th Redleg manager since 1947 and fourth in less than a year though Jimmy Dykes had only a "interim" tenure last year after Birdie Tebbetts quit.

DYKES BYPASSED

Under Dykes the club rallied last from deep in the second division to fourth but Dykes was bypassed for Smith this year.

The fans didn't like the choice and Smith took the brunt of their displeasure.

Hutchinson said Paul told him he was under "tremendous pressure" to make a managerial choice.

Hutch, 39, will be taking over a club mired in seventh place, 10½ games out of first. It is a club so admittedly weak in pitching that Smith pulled out that phase as a major reason for the team's plight.

Paul said Hutchinson would be signed to a contract running throughout the 1960 season when he arrives here today from Seattle. The terms were not disclosed.

OFFERED ANOTHER JOB

Paul said Smith had been offered a job in the Cincinnati organization but Smith asserted he had not yet decided whether to accept it although "I want to stay in baseball."

Smith, former player with Toronto of the International League, had the Reds close to the top early in the season. They even were in first place for one day in May. Then as the pitching slumped, the hitters also faded. A big blow hit, been the batting failure of Frank Thomas, obtained in a trade with Pittsburgh.

Don Jordon Will Need Punch To Whip Unbeaten Ken Moyer

By MATT KRAMER

PORTLAND Ore. (AP)—Welterweight champion Don Jordon intends to show his detractors Friday night that he can punch.

Jordan, who won the title by a decision over Virgil Akins last December and successfully defended it against Denny Moyer by Decision—in April, will take on Ken Moyer of Seattle in the Canadian in a 15-round title bout.

"Most people don't think I can punch but I can. I've punch real good," said Don Nesseth, one of Jordan's managers. "Besides, Moyer he is facing a real tough fighter. Moyer's a pretty fair 15 rounder."

"He's punching hard," said the other manager, Jack McCoy. "He almost paralyzed one of his sparring partners with a body blow the other day."

WON 19 STRAIGHT

Moyer, 22, is working on a string of 10 straight victories, planned one final light workout then he journeys over the 100-mile wired title bout.

In Moyer, Jordan faces a hometown favorite who at 19 could become the youngest champion in welterweight history.

Moyer has 29 straight victories in his professional career which has not impressed many with his punching ability. He has decisions over Gaspar Ortega and Vince Martinez, Ring Magazine's fighter of the month contender, and the National Boxing Association as No. 1.

Nesseth said he has a $70,000 guarantee for this fight.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Apprentice jockey Frank Johnstone, 18, suffered a fractured right foot and a severely bruised left elbow when he was thrown at Greenwood Ship while on post parade for Wednesday's third race at New Woodbine Park.

It was the second time in a row that Mikey Ship has ended up before a race and been ordered scratched. Last week the chestnut 3-year-old (3P) jumped the outside rail during the parade to the post.

The Alberta Ranches speedster, who earned as probable favorite in th $100,000 Hollywood Park Juvenile championship, had to be destroyed.

The horse was beaten only once in four starts and earned $22,700. The owners said they turned down a $250,000 offer for him last week.

TORONTO (CP) — Larkin Malloney's and Conn Smythe's Kitty Girl, shipped by Toy, took the 1¼ pounds and favored by the crowd at 2-1, to record her 10th place at the head of the lane and won the $7,500 added Nassau Stakes at New Woodbine Wednesday.

Harness Nags Play Follow The Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — The pacers just followed one another around the track at Richelieu Raceways Wednesday night. In one of the most unusual harness races Montreal has ever seen, horses numbered 1-2-3-4-5-6-7 finished 1-2-3-4-5-6-7.

Wet Amboy, which would have been number 8, was scratched.

Track officials said they couldn't remember any such finish ever before.

Burning Home Proves Jinx For Managers

CINCINNATI (CP) — Fred Hutchinson, who succeeded Mayo Smith as manager of Cincinnati Redlegs, would be well advised to stay away from Jim Bunning's house.

Bunning, a pitcher for Detroit Tigers, lives in nearby Fort Thomas, Ky. Last year he rented his home during the season to Birdie Tebbetts, then manager of the Reds.

Late in the season Tebbetts quit under fire of the fans and after the team had fallen into the second division.

This year, Bunning rented his home to Smith. Mayo was fired Wednesday. And once again the Reds are deep in the second division.

Pointers Nudge Loop-Leading Cats After Dumping Cobourg Two in Row

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen, riding the crest of a six-game win streak, climbed into second place in the Belleville and District softball league last night with a 5-3 victory over the Cobourg Merchants.

It was the second win in as many nights over the Merchants who dropped into third place while accepting their fifth loss against seven victories. The Cementmen have won nine and lost five and are closing in on the front-running Bobcats.

The Lob-Case squad erupted for three runs in the sixth frame to overcome a 3-2 deficit. And with the excellent hurling of Pat Marsicle and an air-tight defence, the surging Ox-Pulsters made the two-run lead hold good until the end.

Marsicle received errorless support from a sharp infield and an alert outfield in pitching his third win of the year. He let the visitors down on just three hits, two of these coming in the fifth when all of Cobourg's runs crossed the plate. Marsicla made four and walked the same number.

Rolly Campbell, after pitching in innings the night before, was back on the Merchant's mound. "Sleepy" Dave in an effort to spread-out Campbell was touched for ten hits while whiffing two and passing three batters.

Point Anne jumped into a 1-0 lead in the second when Gary Goyer smashed his initial home run of the year into right-centre field.

The slim lead was short lived however as Cobourg came back with a bang in the third, mostly on the strength of two walks, two base-hits, fielder's choice and Dick Turpin's bouncing single that scored the first unearned out but coach Burke Clarey lined a double home with Goyer's head in centre field to put his club ahead 3-1. The other hit Marsicle gave up that was a single by Scotty McSporran in the seventh. He was quickly erased on a slick double play, Jones to Batchelor to Kingston.

The Cementmen got one back in the fifth when Goyer beat out an infield hit, Soule singled and a fielder's choice misfired at the bases. One man was forced at home but Carr's double batted plated the winners' second run.

The Point Anne nine, back over the .500 mark, Batchelor and Kingston ripped hits into right field and Jackie Elliott singled mightily to drive in the equalizer. Goyer sacrificed the runners to second and catcher Wright threw into the outfield let both score for the 5-3 score. Marsicle and Soule also hit safely and Carr walked but all three died on base.

Gary Goyer with a homer and single, Johnny Batchelor with a double and single and Jack Elliott with his key base hit were tops for the winners for the second night in arow. Marsicle also had two hits with Chuck Kingston, Dave Jones and Doug Soule had one apiece.

Cobourg's circuit blast and singles by Turpin and McSporran took care of the Cobourg hitting.

COBOURG — Turpin c, B. Hart lf, Clarey cf, Campbell p, third wk of the year. He let the visitors down on just three hits, two of these coming in the fifth when all of Cobourg's runs crossed the plate. Marsicla made four and walked the same number.

Robinson Says He Will Defend Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson said Wednesday he definitely will defend his share of the middleweight title in September or October against German champion Gustav Scholz in Berlin.

"I've got a big offer from Germany to fight Scholz and I may fight him there," said the 39-year-old New Yorker. "I've got lots of offers to fight in Europe. Jack Solomon (British promoter) wants me to fight Terry Downes (British champion) in London.

"I may go over there in the late summer and fight every defence in Europe but I still want to fight Carmen Basilio and maybe I will yet."

Queen Will Have Music on Visit To Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP) — The Royal Tour committee here has decided to give the Queen music wherever she goes during her July 25 visit.

A band will greet her at the airport, others will play along the royal route, and plans are for 7,000 children to sing at the city athletic field.

Yet, with 18 days to go, just 5607 of the committee's $5,000 budget remains. Chairman Doug Higgins told a meeting of the committee Tuesday:

"Take it easy."

Kidnapped Girl Not Harmed

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va. (AP)—Three young reformatory prisoners kidnapped a young secretary Tuesday and took her on an 80-mile ride, threatening to kill her if she resisted.

Sandra Lynne McKeen, 18, was not harmed and the youths were captured less than five hours after their escape when they tried to get food and money for a trip to Florida.

Larry Anthony Rector and Roger Lee Morse, both 16, and Paurk Jarrell, 17, were charged with kidnapping and grand larceny.

Algerian Rebel Losses 114,500 Dead, Estimate

ALGIERS (Reuters) — The death toll in the Algerian rebellion is estimated at 114,500 in figures compiled by French sources on the basis of official bulletins and statements.

The main source of the casualty figures in the more than 4½ years of fighting is the weekly bulletin issued by the government delegate-general here. Military and civilian authorities decline to give any over-all figures.

The sources said 8,500 security forces and 80,000 insurgents had been killed. Insurgents wounded or captured numbered 20,000.

In the civilian casualty toll, 2,000 Europeans have been killed, 4,500 wounded and 270 are missing and 11,000 Moslems have been killed, 8,500 wounded and 6,000 are missing.

The insurgents put the casualty figures on both sides much higher.

HOUSE PLEDGES NON-PARTISAN FOREIGN POLICY

Green Makes First Speech as Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—There will be no playing party politics over foreign policy, the government has been assured.

New External Affairs Minister Howard Green got this promise of a continuation of existing relations from the opposition groups as he engaged Thursday in his first major external affairs debate since taking office.

For the Liberals, spokesman was Lester B. Pearson (ex-External Affairs minister). He will get from them "co-operation, understanding and collaboration."

For the CCF, H. W. Herridge (Kootenay West) said: "We seek no party advantage."

NEGOTIATION KEY

Mr. Green told the House there is no alternative to negotiation in solving world problems.

Canada, he said, favors a summit meeting with as few participants as possible and "in good conditions as possible."

He also told the House, firmly, that Canada intends to retain independence in foreign affairs and not hang over the coat-tails of the United States or anyone else.

The lean 43-year-old Vancouver lawyer got a thumping reception when he got up to make his maiden speech in the foreign affairs minister. He is the successor in the late Sidney Smith, whose portfolio he held until recently by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

PROPOSE JOINT FUND

From the opposition parties, there came suggestions that Canada make efforts to have established a permanent United Nations defence force.

A standby force of this kind would be useless in a big nuclear war but might be invaluable as a peace-making element, said Mr. Pearson. Former Liberal external affairs minister and 1957 Nobel Peace Prize winner.

If the UN force cannot be persuaded to agree on such a force, Mr. Pearson said, then perhaps Canada could lead the way in proposing creation of such a force in the middle and smaller powers.

Former House Leader Hazen Argue suggested Canada might even consider calling all the armed forces at the disposal of the UN for peace-policing duties.

MANY VACATIONS

Mr. Green said that the view of the Canadian government on such a standby force is that the requirements can involve a wide variety of types of service, according to their particular situations—in particular areas.

There is, for example, one "may offer an exact precedent for a more permanent type of military force."

At least, Mr. Pearson said, it is worth while pursuing.

During a long exposition of Canadian foreign policy before departmental estimates finally were approved late Thursday, Mr. Green also said:

1. If the Berlin question can be settled, there should be opened for consultation between East and West on broader problems.

2. Canada will lead the Canadian delegation at the September session of the United Nations Assembly.

3. Thermonuclear war is unthinkable, and there is no alternative to negotiations for the solution of these problems.

4. Nothing visible on the horizon suggests that "surprise attack" is being made in defence preparedness of the free nations.

Calgary Barbecue for Queen Sees 250 Invited, 600 There

CALGARY (CP) — The Queen dined outdoors Thursday night on prime roast ribs of beef cooked over charcoal for nine hours.

The setting for the barbecue was a private hunting lodge at Bragg Creek, 30 miles southwest of Calgary, in the foothills of the Rockies rising 6,000 feet above the surrounding prairie.

Some 250 guests were invited but nearly 600 turned up. They ranged, financially speaking, from oil millionaire Frank McMahon to a taxi driver, in uniform.

The guests were hungry or polite or both. They lined up for great slabs of beef and baked beans and didn't stare at the Queen and Prince Philip eating at a table in front of the ranch-style bungalow of Mr. Justice M. M. Porter.

There was supposed to be tight security around the property and police kept the bushes on the lower slopes of the ridge. But nobody in Bragg Creek thought security seriously. Two of the armed guards slipped into the house, picked up heaping platefuls of meat, took them back to their sentry posts and began sitting in the long grass.

Nearly all the guests, both men and women, were 10-gallon hats and bright shirts, scarves and sticking ties. One man wore twin holsters and pistols but declined to say whether the pistols were real.

A pipe band from the Calgary Highlanders and the Medium Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, played during the meal. They downed instruments later and got in line, too.

Watson Rook, in charge of carving operations, said to Prince Philip: "How would your wife like it?"

The prince looked into the oven and saw the two thermostats used to control the heat.

"This isn't so rough and ready, this is scientific," he said with a grin.

A few minutes later when the chef hauled out a huge roast—500 pounds were cooked and it was the whole end of a five-pronged pitchfork, Mayor Mackay said: "That's Canadian beef, Prince."

As the sun sank behind the mountains, a crescent-moon appeared in the southwest. A lone musician on horseback patrolled the open range, for all the world looking, as he was supposed to, like an early member of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police on Prairie patrol. But two fences had been set up for added effect.

Coffee was brewed in milk cans over open fires but there were no tin mugs to drink out of. There were paper cups and plastic spoons.

TRAILER CAMPERS REFUSE TO OBEY ORDER OF COURT

Said Camp's Sewage System Inadequate

HAMILTON (CP) — Nearly 1,000 residents of an east-city trailer camp have indicated they have no intention of moving out despite an Ontario Supreme Court decision Wednesday ordering the operators to close the camp.

The decision, issued by Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan, granted the city an injunction, effective immediately, restraining camp owner George Knapman from operating his 25-trailer camp.

The decision was reached on the grounds that the camp's sewage system was inadequate and might spread epidemics. Mr. Justice McLennan declined to grant any postponement.

AGREE TO SIT TIGHT

At a meeting Thursday night, residents declared not to move out.

Mr. Knapman said he would confer with his lawyer to determine whether the ruling should be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Knapman said he had offered to spend $50,000 on the camp.

The city wants this site for industrial assessment and is blocking every move it makes. You can't throw these people out like a bunch of cattle," he said.

Mrs. Leo Gallant, wife of a construction worker, said: "If people don't move, they won't get anywhere."

She said her husband earns $280 a week and they could easily afford an expensive apartment but have preferred to live in a tidy trailer camp.

The camp and its sewage system has been the subject of bitter debate in the city council for months. The camp is owned, backed by residents, have maintained that the camp is as healthy as any other city district.

KITCHENER (CP)—Provincial legislation outlining the powers of municipalities in regulating trailers of trailer camps is too simple to support a summary conviction, ruled Magistrate Allan G. Barron Thursday.

He dismissed charges against Mrs. Dorothy Dwyer, Hespeler, who had parked trailers on the land of Alfred Martin, Waterloo, for a period of more than 30 days.

It was charged that by staying more than this period they were violating a bylaw enacted by the township last November.

Magistrate Barron said the legislature passed four separate statutes dealing with the control of trailers from 1952 to 1957. The first in 1952 was elaborate. The subsequent legislation in 1955, 1956 and 1957, and in his opinion the 1957 legislation hopelessly confuses the situation."

Allies Want Berlin Issue Frozen For Several Years

New Proposal Will be Put to Reds at Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — The Western Allies are reported preparing a new proposal that would put the Berlin dispute on ice for several years and give the Soviet Union a summit conference in the fall.

The foreign ministers of Britain, the United States and France are expected to put the proposal to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko soon after the Big Four conference resumes here Monday.

As outlined here, the plan contains only one change in previous Western proposals. East and West Germany would be given equal representation on a subcommittee to take preliminary steps toward reunification of Germany.

Previously the West proposed a subcommittee of West German and the Communist East, because West Germany's population is more than three times that of the East.

NOT OPTIMISTIC

In return for this concession, Western officials think the Russians might agree to freeze the situation in central Europe, for a time. They feel they are considerably less than optimistic.

"It all depends on Premier Khrushchev wants any kind of settlement at all," said a Western official.

In addition to the freeze of the Berlin situation, other key point in the plan is appointment of a Big Four commission to work out plans for reunification of Germany, the end of the Berlin occupation and a mutual security system in central Europe.

The foreign ministers would set the deadline for the commission and the subcommittee to complete their work. That would be left to a summit conference.

Any proposal to put East and West Germans on a committee in equal numbers is certain to be looked on with distaste by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. The Western Big Three have counted on Adenauer the subcommittee will have no power and will merely report to the Big Four commission.

Canada Council Says Aid Can't Continue Indefinitely

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council today served notice it cannot commit the bulk of its arts-promotion funds to permanent annual grants.

Individual groups or for large perennial contributions to big, established organizations.

The council said in its annual report, tabled in the Commons, that it thinks it should ask for increase in income its principal role will have to be confined to giving help for the beginning of programs or improvement, but not to their continuance indefinitely continued."

The report, signed by chairman Brooke Claxton, said the annual income of some $4,000,000 from the capital fund of $50,000,000 endowment fund can be stretched only so far.

The council, federally-financed patron of Canadian culture, said there is a shortage of experience its policies are beginning to take more definite form.

For one thing, it would be "fatal" to try to support the box-office take of, say, the orchestras, choirs, little theatres and the like which, collectively, already devour the council's budget.

"The nature and purpose of financial help is such that the continued health of their programs depends on that support. If this support is not available, there can be little justification for their existence must build up the help from an organization which of necessity must have a broader and more stable foundation."

On the other hand, the council said it tried to avoid concentrating its resources on the relief of temporary difficulties in fields already have attained high standards and can find support elsewhere.

There is a danger of creating a "false dependence on a few" sickners who will come to place an unhealthy reliance on the council, the report said.

During the fiscal year ended last March 31 council grants to organizations totalled $1,146,779 and $180,772 in the humanities and $167,440 in the social sciences.

Scholarships and fellowships to 371 individuals totalled $631,000. Creative work was 38 per cent in the humanities, 37 per cent in the social sciences and 25 per cent in the arts.

The council also was given authority to spend $2,000,000 to assist capital construction of university facilities during the fiscal year. It allotted $2,732,000 for this purpose. At April 1 the capital fund had $42,420,000 left for further grants.

Provincial police said Hopkins and another youth were walking in the Kepler area Wednesday when the boy pulled from behind a bush, pointed the rifle at Hopkins and pulled the trigger. Police said they believed the boy thought the rifle was empty.

Route of Royal Tour Wearing But Queen Standing Pace Well

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Queen began her work today as usual.

The place was Banff and the scenery out of the ordinary but it was a day much like Mrs. Elizabeth Windsor with handshakes with officialdom, smiles for the crowds and, behind the plain streets and gathered at ordinary railway stations, airports and docks, a visit to a hospital, factory or school, a few spot broadcasts.

But she realizes that, for royalty there is no escape and she goes to work each day obviously determined to do her job as well as it can be done.

Persons who have talked in person with the Queen—and that doesn't mean at an official banquet—say she is a very pretty woman, gay, vibrant, intelligent, —characteristics more often associated by her younger sister, Princess Margaret.

She does not cease to be these things, of course, when she appears for public duty. But they are mainly masked in the serious attention to duty. The public sees the Queen and not Elizabeth.

Mounties Seek Another Big Narcotic Haul

MONTREAL (CP)—Squads of Mounted Police swooped high-ways, forests and villages as far as 50 miles north of Montreal, in the Laurentians, and as far south as miles south to the American border seeking another big haul in narcotics.

The RCMP already are holding 13 pounds of heroin, with an illicit-market value of $8,000,000, in the case of Cotroni and Robert, 31. Both are also wanted in Chicago on charges of possessing bonds stolen last year in a $2,500,000 robbery of the Brockville, Ont., Trust and Savings Co.

R. J. Belec, RCMP superintendent in charge of the city, said authority of narcotics already seized is huge, we have only a small number of large proportions is reached away" from the FBI in the United States were reported Thursday night. Police said of drug-handling suspects in the New York and Boston areas.

Reports said 19 persons are under indictment in New York and 25 in Boston in connection with smuggling and distribution of narcotics.

International co - operation in the anti-narcotics drive is said to be behind the simultaneous raid on the so-called marble conference last year in Appalachian, Beth.

$10,000 Damage To Strikebound Guelph Plant

GUELPH (CP)—Police kept an all-night watch on the strikebound Ontario Steel Company plant Thursday after about 60 men caused an estimated $10,000 damage to the factory Wednesday night. The guard was ordered by the attorney-general.

Guelph police reported no similar incidents had occurred since midnight Thursday night. The crowd of about 100 persons which gathered near the plant were mere spectators.

The 60 unidentified men threw rocks, chunks of concrete and railway spikes at the plant. At most 1,000 windows were smashed.

George Stevens, organizer of the plant local of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers Union (ind.), said pickets or strikers were not responsible for Wednesday's violence.

The non-striking employees have sent a telegram in Premier Frost asking "immediate reopening of the plant on the private-rule which is currently shaping up in Guelph in the event of the strike becomes of this company" and the union.

Guelph Police Chief R. S. Lamb Thursday denied a report which said police stood by and did not try to stop the stoning.

William H. Martin, plant manager, said he intends to seek "local police cannot cope with the police protection if situation."

Finger Stuck in Washer's Drain Pipe Causes Real Commotion

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Olga Minter's washing machine, and Mrs. Minter's finger tied up 15 firemen, two policemen, an ambulance crew and a doctor for two hours Thursday.

A button lodged in the washer's drain pipe. Mrs. Minter, 30, stuck her finger into the pipe to try to dislodge the button.

The finger wouldn't come out. She sat on the floor beside the machine and tugged. The finger stayed stuck.

The telephone began ringing. Mrs. Minter tried to reach the telephone by dragging the washer along with her. This hurt her finger so much she had to stop.

Water leaking from the machine spread a puddle about her, soaking her backside. And then her three-weeks-old baby began crying and Mrs. Minter.

At this point a neighbor fortunately walked in, sized up the situation and made an emergency telephone call.

Firemen arrived, the police and the ambulance all arrived at the same time.

"I've never felt so ridiculous in my whole life as when all those men walked in," said Mrs. Minter.

While her rescuers began their tug-of-war with the washer, a huge crowd assembled outside. This tied up traffic for blocks around.

In desperation, the doctor was called to where Mrs. Minter — washing machine and all — was in hospital. Then "plop" — the finger gave and the day was saved.

Fear of Reprisals Cuts Parade of Vice Witnesses

TORONTO (CP) — Residents of a section of central Toronto, fed up with conditions in their area, instigated a localized vice probe but now are reluctant to testify.

Two days ago the Metropolitan Toronto Licensing Commission began hearing testimony concerning two restaurants to determine if they should retain their licences amidst reports that they are a hangout for known criminals.

But only four of 70 persons who petitioned for the investigation have come forward to testify, Edward Leonard, counsel for the commission, said Thursday.

BEER INDIFFERENCE

He blamed a combination of indifference and inconvenience for the reluctance of citizens to testify.

To his knowledge, Mr. Oakes told a reporter, the reluctance of citizens is not related to any possible threat of reprisals from the city's criminal element.

Earlier he was reported as saying her citizens living in the area may not want to testify because of the fear of underworld reprisals.

Keiro Toronto police officers said testimony given by a 28-year-old waitress described prostitute and dope addict Mary Carmichael, testified the women frequent at least two restaurants in the area. The commission is reviewing particular the licences of the Spot Restaurant and Norm's Grill, both on Dundas Street East.

Queen, Prince Enjoy Calgary's Famed Stampede

CALGARY (CP) — The Queen and her consort came early to Calgary and stayed late. They went away with a glimpse of what makes this city tick in its wildest six days of the year—Stampede Week.

They left, too, knowing the taste of barbecued prairie beef and of prairie dust kicked up by racing chuckwagons. And they took with them the good wishes of nearly 400,000 people, most of whom saw the royal tourists at one place or another Thursday.

ENJOY SELVES

The stampede's chuckwagon races, where the royal visitors stayed 20 minutes longer than scheduled, and an outdoor barbecue at a private residence were the highlights. It was obvious that both the Queen and the prince enjoyed themselves despite their crowded schedule.

It was estimated that 200,000 of the royal couple on their drive from the airport to the Calgary Auditorium and to the stampede — as slow as 50 in a block on the outskirts of the city.

Police said 9,000 five and six deep in a central-Calgary block.

Other thousands saw them at the stampede — 30,000 in the grandstand and perhaps as many as 50,000 in the adjacent infield areas.

They were given a joyous welcome—quiet hand-clapping and flag-waving along some down-town streets.

Firemen Given Increase of $400 Across Board

Council approval this week of a new wage agreement which the municipality would have, done much earlier in the year, gives city firemen a $400 across-the-board increase. It was announced today by Mayor Gerald B. Ryan.

The new agreement, which is retroactive to January 1st, was officially signed yesterday.

The across-the-board salary increase effects all city firemen with the exception of probationary men, who his year will get a $600 boost bringing the starting wage for new firemen to $5,000. It was agreed by council that the previous wage of $5,400 for probationary men was too low as almost invariably it is insisted that new firemen be married men.

The new agreement increases the salaries for the four grades of firemen. They range from $3,995 to $4,100.

Firemen with grade 1 will receive $4,395; grade 2 firemen $4,595; grade 3 firemen $4,875, and 4th grade men $4,100.

Inspectors will receive $4,285 and captains and mechanics $4,435, regardless of rank, receive an additional $150.

Hours of work for firemen remain the same at 56 hours per week. The agreement asked by firemen among the terms of which the increase was not given.

Firemen now receive a $400 increase granted by the city bringing their annual pay of city firemen to $1.37 per hour based on a 56-hour week.

They also note that a 48-hour work week for firemen would mean an additional eight or ten men on the fire department.

A 10,000 across-the-board increase for police means an additional $15,000 in firemen's and police budgets for interestable 10 seconds, and then diamount without being trodden or gored. This property is temporarily filled with a number of horse races, with excitement rising to fever pitch as the contestants hurtle down the finishing straight.

Belleville Man Enjoys Stampede When Calgary Goes Slightly Crazy

By ROBERT TANNER

CALGARY — When a city 250,000 goes slightly crazy for a week, and regardless of age and sex, shoe leather aches and dances in the streets; when staid and conservative visitors from the east shed their inhibitions to the extent of wearing broad-brimmed white hats, and string ties; then for certain you are in Calgary in July.

Calgary does know the stampede only by hearsay probably think it is a kind of rodeo, with the accent on cowpokes and bucking broncos. But the Calgary show is much more than this. It starts off, at least as far as the general public is concerned, on Monday morning with "the world's biggest parade" a colorful affair of Mounties, cowboys, Indians, beauty queens, wrestlers, drum majorettes (the list is about endless) which takes two hours to pass a given point. To watch this, many local residents as well as the visitors who throng the city at this time, take up their places along the route and fill the sidewalks with folding chairs, blankets and cushions. Others arrive perched atop ladders, or even specially erected car-top seats and one enterprising Belleville resident rented a fork-truck to lift two of his photographer pals high over the heads of the crowd (thus seriously obscuring your correspondent's view from his hotel window). This year the parade was led by Bing Crosby, who in fact a resident of Calgary on his own to see the Stampede, and was somewhat surprised to find himself leading the parade Marshal.

Shortly after a brief (several for lunch, the crowds reassemble in the Stampede Grounds. Here some 18,000 fill the grandstand and bleachers for the afternoon show which is in fact a program with steer and bronco riding, calf roping, and cow milking, etc., with a spectacular chuck wagon race, dare-devil cowboys strive to ride Brahma bulls for the interminable

Meanwhile, others are visiting the various exhibits both outdoors and indoors or experiencing the delight of the midway, like of course, the "biggest in the world."

Back at the Grandstand at p.m. the chuckwagon races begin in action. A team each composed of a four horsed wagon and four outdriving cowpoke in a contest notable for the complexity of its rules, the spectacular nature of its start, the thrill of the finish and the size of the dust clouds produced. Theoretically at the start of the race, the wagons are in camp, with the cook stove in action. At a sound on the horn, the outriders load the stove in the wagon and the whole team performs a figure of eight around two barrels before making a complete circuit down the field with a hair-raising finish in front of the stand.

No sooner is the last heat finished than a tractor pulls a big platform already set up with scenery along the track and comic-type skits are presented ent stage, and the evening show begins. As everyone knows, there are always thrills and variety shows, but as turn succeeds turn, it soon becomes evident that this is one of the better ones, full of surprises, extravaganza, and a spectacular ending in a spectacular display of fireworks.

While all this would seem enough for one day, or even for the whole week, it does not exhaust the activities which comprise the Calgary Stampede. Most mornings, the main streets of the city are closed to traffic and square dancers replace the cars and buses. Chuck wagons serve out free pancakes to all comers and Indians put on displays of dances and other items of their ancient lore. And in the evenings, in the Stampede Corral (their arena), are wrestling matches or western shows.

Altogether it seems clear that the Stampede is a completely unique event. It claims to be the biggest out door show in the world; it must also be the most colorful, the most varied and the most unusual.

Former Belleville Couple Stars Of 'Waterway Holiday' Trent Film

Almost immediate transformation from newspaperwife to movie star proved the thrill of a lifetime for Mrs. David Sutherland of Peterborough.

Her husband, an executive with the Outboard Marine Manufacturing Company, had been selected with his family to act in a color film being produced by the Ontario Department of Publicity.

It meant a 17-day 210-mile trip through the Trent and Severn waterways to Georgian Bay.

Mrs. Sutherland was practically swept off her feet when her husband telephoned to ask if she would like to be a movie star.

"After a hurried 'yes'" she said, "I packed the bags and told him 'let's go'."

The movie "family" was made up of Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, their daughter Peggy and youthful John Coward of Orillia. Their own son Peter, young, so John took his place.

The young housewife-movie actress would not confess her film venture was a success. However she admits having seen it "at least a dozen times" and wouldn't miss it again.

It is reported that "Waterway Holiday" is the most popular tourist movie distributed in the United States this year.

Mrs. Sutherland is a daughter of Mrs. Eva Doolittle, 318 Albert Street, Belleville, while Mr. Sutherland was a staff member of radio station on CJBQ here several years ago.

Northern Electric Starts Round of Plant Holidays

Employees of Northern Electric Company several hundred strong will go on holidays tonight and will see no more of their jobs for the next two weeks. During the holiday period only a skeleton staff will be on duty.

July 17th however seems to be the most popular commencement of the holiday period for most departments as that date was also stipulated in their contract.

Staff of Board Getting Ready To Make Move

The administration staff of the Belleville Public Utilities Board will be in their new offices at the corner of Bridge and Chatham Streets in the near future, ti was assured today.

An official of the Tulsam Co. Ltd., general contractors for the new one-storey administration building which replaces the former structure razed by fire last summer, stated today that the new building would be completed tonight, with school board members now scheduled to make their final inspection early next week. Following final inspection and approval, the building will be formally turned over to the board.

Board administration employees are now packing up at their present offices in King George School in preparation for moving into their new quarters.

Although the contract for the construction of the new building was let last December, actual work was not started until March 5th, after approval had been given for steel and winter construction drawings.

The contracting firm noted that the building has been completed well within the period of 100 working days from commencement of work which was stipulated in their contract.

United Appeal Target $85,000 Same as in '58

The objective for the 1959 Belleville United Appeal campaign has been set at $85,000, the same target figure set for last year's campaign, it was announced today.

This figure was decided upon at the regular annual meeting of the Belleville United Appeal Board of Directors held last night in the assembly room of the Ontario Hydro Building under the chairmanship of Lieutenant-Colonel Forrester.

Publicity and public relations chairman, Louis Maraskas explained that although two new agencies have been added to the Appeal this year, it was felt this objective would satisfy the requirements of all BUA agencies under a contingency reserve for additional expenses. He stated the next campaign had been included in next year's target figure.

Treasurer John R. Henderson reported the total amount collected to date from the 1958 campaign was within $2,000 of satisfying the requirements of all agencies in the Appeal for the year 1958-59.

Campaign chairmen E. G. Gurnett and Miss Ruth Bowerman with the work done by the various committee chairmen and felt the BUA has an excellent chance of reaching the target figure this year.

No Sign Steel Firms Intend To Budge From Original Offer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Steel-Workers Union worked experimentally today for an industry contract-settlement offer. But there was no sign that steel firms intend to budge.

With a walkout threatened at midnight Tuesday, substantial progress must be made before Sunday if costly preparations for a contract-settlement agreement before off steel production are to be avoided.

Executives of the industry's dozen leading steel companies met to decide whether to make a last-ditch wage offer to avert a walkout.

INSIST ON FREEZE

Apparently there was divided opinion. New York newspapers said the industry chieftains were reported to have decided to stick to their call for a one-year wage freeze.

The union was reported ready to be banking on a sudden industry decision to begin shutting down in the hope that a brief industry front, to break the negotiating stalemate.

Industry leaders have persisted in maintaining that any new steel pact should not include much if any new wage-price spiral. They have at present average $3.10 an hour.

Formal negotiations lasted only 3½ hours Thursday, recessing in today to let both sides meet separately to review their positions. The union was reported to have shaved down its demands to a week-to-week basis.

From both union and industry sources came reports estimates that a 10-cent-an-hour increase in wages and benefits, on a probable two-year basis, could settle the dispute.

Detroit Police Stage Course For Strippers

The course, held at the Detroit Police Academy, attracted such nightclub entertainers as Blaze Starr, Red Hot (No 250) Sloan and Senorita Yum Yum.

Presiding over the course was Inspector Melville Bullach, head of the police censor bureau. Bullach instructed the girls how to strip in Detroit and stay out of jail.

Police Believe Outbreak of Goon Warfare Broken

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police arrested a man armed with baseball bats, bicycle chains and a shotgun Thursday and said they believed they had prevented a serious outbreak of goon warfare in Vancouver's waterfront union squabble.

The men were arrested as they drew up in front of a waterfront hotel on downtown West Hasting Street.

Three men were injured and eight arrested Wednesday night in a beer parlor brawl during which one faction accused the other of "strong-arm" work during the two-week-old strike of engineers against Northland Navigation Company. The men were employed by the line.

Furniture and glasses were hurled in the earlier incidents. But police said Thursday night's seizure indicated the violence had developed into "goon squad" action.

Meanwhile the dispute took a new turn.

A spokesman for a group of Northland engineers said Thursday night application has been made for a change in certification which would certify the Seafarers International Union of Canada, formerly expelled from the Canadian Labor Congress, as bargaining agent for the men.

The seafarers at present are represented by the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC) which called the strike against Northland June 26 in support of pay increase demands.

The SIU was expelled from the CLC following complaints by the CLC Marine Trades that it was raiding membership.

The N.A.M.E. has accused the SIU of supplying men to replace the striking engineers and longshoremen who have refused to work the company's 11 struck vessels.

Capt. Harry Terry, president of Northland, said Thursday night application has been made for permits for supplies to be taken to northern coastal communities which rely on Northland's services for their only means of surface communication.

Council Sets Price of Land On Town Lots

TRENTON — An agreement of sale will go with each piece of town land sold in the future It was decided at a special meeting of the town council yesterday.

The agreement will state that the purchaser of the lot or lots will be required to commence building on the land within a period of six months. It is anticipated this will prevent people from purchasing lots from the town and hold until they can re-sell them later at a profit.

The councillors also set new prices on town lots with a minimum of $6 per foot frontage for lots without water and sewer services and $9 per foot on lots with the water and sewer services available.

If the lots to be sold are more than 133 feet deep then they will be given special consideration with the view of a higher rate.

All councillors with the exception of Lloyd Worrall and William Bracken were present for the meeting. Town Clerk C. W. Larry, Treasurer Elmer Eric Aldersey and Town Assessor J. Allan Smith were also present.

It had been decided at the regular meeting of council on Monday night that town land for sale would be revaluated and another meeting or special meeting would be called by Mayor Ross Gerrie and some agreement reached on the matter by the councillors.

TO ABANDON TANKS

The large septic tanks, at present a part of the old sewer system in Trenton, will be abandoned when the new sewer line now being installed on Dundas street is put into operation this fall. The large cement tanks believed to hold about 1,000 gallons each are buried in the area south of the library and north of the portion of Quinte Street which connects with QEW traffic. It is expected that in a few years time the tops will be removed from the tanks and they will be filled in with earth.

SELLING FAST

Tremont report the sale of tickets on the prizes they will give away during the softball game between the Trenton and Belleville departments on August 19 are selling like "hot-cakes". The tickets not only give the holder a chance to win one of the several attractive prizes but will also be the admission to the ball game.

However, the final judging will be on July 18 but store keepers will have their windows judged as they are finished and the judges notified. The association's executive urges all merchants, regardless of size, to participate and in this way help decorate the business section of town for the Royal visit. ANOTHER COLT

Councillor Vagg Lange announced the arrival another colt on his farm on No. 2 Highway just west of Trenton. It brings the total to 13 foals now owned by the Trenton Automobile dealer, and is the second colt to be born on the farm recently.

REPAIR ROOF

Work began yesterday on the repairing of the roof of the Trenton police station during the last rain storm the roof "leaked like a sieve" and damaged much of the equipment used by the Trenton Police Traffic Safety School before it was moved. Council approved the repair of the roof at the last regular meeting held on Monday night.

Recent Storms Produce Floods, Sewers Small

TRENTON — Recent thunderstorms in Trenton have tested storm sewers to the limit and in some cases they have proven too small to handle the runoff, Eric Aldersey, town engineer, said yesterday.

This is mostly in the area south of Dundas Street west, where flooding was noted during the storms last weekend, when 2½ inches of rain fell during Sunday and Monday.

"The storm sewers there at present are too small," Mr. Aldersey stated, "and about 90 per cent of the calls coming to this office about flooding are received from residents in that area."

It is possible that the situation may be relieved somewhat once the new, larger sewer is installed from the Trenton Dye and Finishing plant on Pilon St. to large lines which will lead to the bay.

"Another spot where flooding is a problem," Mr. Aldersey said, "is on the corner of John Street and Campbell Street." It was in this area last spring that flooding became so bad it was necessary to take a fire truck there to assist in pumping out the water. The use of the fire truck was also made necessary by the storms last weekend and pumps were being used in other flooded areas when one pump was available it was put to work and relieved the fire truck.

Another area where flooding has been a nuisance for a number of years is Bleecker Street. All that is needed now to complete it is locking it up to the catch-basin. Once this is done the area will be drained effectively.

Town engineer Aldersey has taken the opportunity afforded him by the installation of the new sewer line under way on that street, to have had a new storm sewer placed there. This will be drained eastward and Albert to the government dock. It has never been drained effectively before, but will be in the future.

Little Girl Appeared Not To Be Worried

TRENTON — Little three-year-old Nancy Corey may have been lost yesterday evening but she wasn't too worried about it, a specialty check on her and a whole bottle of coke all to herself — and for free too.

She was found wandering down Dundas Street West near the Canadian National Railway tracks by L. Murphy, who made an attempt to find her mother but couldn't. Little Nancy's English isn't too easily understood.

So Mr. Murphy brought her to the Trenton Police Station and handed her over to Constable Gary Davis. The constable picked her up and sat her on the counter where she immediately spotted the telephone. She could be understood when she said, "Choose mummy". She lifted the phone off the receiver and dialed the first number "2". She wailed for a respectful minute and then broke the silence by saying into the phone, "Mummy." And then she went into quite a lengthy conversation which couldn't be understood by anyone in the police station.

However, with no one on the other end of the line ran out of "conversation" and hung up. It was then she got the idea of trying on the phone book and decided to make some more calls. The book but was quickly handed a bank piece of paper and a pencil and she encouraged her to draw him some pictures.

This too, became tiresome and she began to insist on seeing her mother but the officer took her mind away from parents and everyone and everything and was finally handed her a bottle of coke.

Later when the officers found out her name and address she was loaded into the cruiser by Constable Gra Graham and driven to her home at 59 Wilson Crescent.

PC Executive To Hear Charges Of Irregularities

A meeting of the immediate executive of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association will be called next week to hear complaints respecting alleged irregularities at the party convention held in Trenton on June 24th.

The announcement of the meeting was made by association president Ralph Noyes, K.C., here, who said it was not proposed to call together all municipal party workers as the hall was too big. The meeting will hear discussion regarding the procedure for a new convention.

Mr. Neal said that at that meeting those who had complaints irregularities at the June 24th convention will be asked to present their case or the matter will be dropped.

The June 24th convention Norwood Reeve Rod Webb was named candidate for the Provincial Liberal nomination after another nominee had been eliminated.

It was charged that no attempt had been made at the convention to determine the number of voting delegates present and that additional ballots had been handed out at the meeting.

LITTLE FORMALITY

It was a western day that Calgarians like to think is typical of the Stampede City — square dancers, cowboys and Indian bands, dancing in the streets. Formal ceremonies were kept to a minimum.

And the weather was kind. The temperature was in the 70s most of the day with the sun shining brightly. There was a slight drizzle in the evening at the stampede only threatened.

The royal party broke away with them gifts from the City of Calgary — a pinto pony brace-and from the Stampede Association a bronze buck-skin horse. The horse also took with him a 10-gallon white hat, presented by Mayor Don Mackay. It race during the day — at the stampede.

BANK ROBBERS BUSY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bank robbers were busier last year than in any year in history, the FBI reported today. The report, for the fiscal year ended June 30, showed 764 violations of the federal bank robbery law. There included 445 robberies, 233 burglaries and 86 larcenies.

Pair of Stock Certificates Sold For $100,000

SARNIA (CP)—A pair of dog-eared stock certificates, believed at one time to be worth $16,000,000, then considered worthless and two weeks ago for $100,000, it was revealed today.

Reached at her new home in Sarnia, Mrs. Eady said she confirmed sale of the stocks to a Toronto financier. The deal was completed less than two weeks ago, she said.

Asked if her new-found wealth would change her future plans, Mrs. Eady said she was "not keeping her head at the moment." She would be returning to Sarnia in the fall she said, and was considering going into the motel business here.

Her eldest child, Linda, now aged 13, was naturally excited by the news, she added. She also has a two-year-old boy, Randy.

GOES BACK TO 1926

Mrs. Eady's story goes back to February, 1926, when her father, Alexander Mackenzie, reportedly died. The executors of her estate asked her to forward all his papers.

It was while searching through the papers that she found the stocks and the dog-eared pieces of paper.

However, unknown to the broker he did not. Mrs. Eady, in her letter to Toronto financier, had admitted a period in the late depression of actually reading .6400 it, read $6400.

That apparently, was the end of Mrs. Eady's story. At that time she was told the stocks were worth about $4,000.

Despite this, she instituted a 14-year search into the history of the stocks, with the aid of her lawyers. At the end of that time she learned Mrs. Eady was told "your stocks are worth around $500,000."

About a month ago, Mrs. Eady was reached at her Sprucedale home by a Toronto financier.

They met, and he offered her $100,000 for the stocks. Mrs. Eady, advised by her lawyers that to realize the full value of the holdings would involve a lengthy and costly legal battle, decided to sell them. The deal was completed on June 27.

Napanee Council Asks Interview On Police Laxity

NAPANEE (CP)—This town's council has asked the provincial government's office for an interview to discuss charges of laxity in enforcing liquor laws in town police department.

The charges were made Monday night at a council meeting when it was revealed a "new set of regulations controlling the revenues from fines and money received from parking meters" would be required.

In Toronto, a spokesman for the provincial police department said today no request had yet been received from the Napanee police force. He declined to comment on the situation until the request was on hand.

Commission Uses New Means To Control Weeds in Harbor

Weeds have always been a problem and as annoyance to local residents and boats in Belleville harbor and this year the Belleville Harbor Commission is using a new method in an effort to more effectively curb the weed nuisance according to Bill Reid, commission chairman.

This year a device, similar in theory to that used by mine-sweepers during the war, is being used to cut the weeds off as close to the harbor bottom as possible, this heavy sweeting wire is attached to a power boat which cruises across the affected area. This part of the operation is followed up by a raft, towed by another motorboat, on which is mounted a rake scoops the loose weeds out of the water and deposits them on the raft.

This method is working quite successfully, stated Mr. Reid, who added that this year there was an exceptionally heavy growth of weeds in the harbor. The previous method, which has been used for a number of years, was simply to rake the weeds. With the assistance of the Sea Cadet Corps "Bellevue II" it is expected that the cleaning operation will be completed in a week's time.

Additional work is also being planned by the harbor commission as respects painting and repairing the docks and the Signal fixing up around the same. Signal is located on the government dock advising people of the dangerous conditions in that location. Other signs advising people of the danger of swimming are necessary have also been posted at strategic points around the harbor with the co-operation of the Belleville Fire Department.

Members of the commission will be visiting Ottawa next week to make representation to have repairs made to the government dock as a further effort to make Belleville harbor attractive for its users.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—The upward price trend that started two weeks ago reached a climax this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

All classes and grades of slaughter cattle, calves and yearlings traded actively at higher rates with the modest numbers failing to fill the buyers' orders. Many buyers were left with unfilled orders.

Steers were the feature of the week with this class gaining 50 cents a hundredweight. Heifers and yearlings were also in broad demand selling fully 50 cents a hundredweight higher. Cow numbers were fairly normal gaining 50 cents a hundredweight. The demand was fairly good until Tuesday afternoon when buyers started to pressure good cows, and as a result this grade closed on an easier note. Lower grades of cows retained the price rise. Bulls enjoyed a good demand at prices strong to 50 cents a hundredweight higher. Veal calf prices were uneven. Hog prices were steady and lamb prices firm.

Cattle receipts were some 900 head more than last week and about 1,200 head less than the same week in 1958. Western cattle receipts totalled 256 head, a decrease under last week of 136 head and 1,000 head less than from Quebec. Eastern shipments were comparable to last week at three carloads and there were no exports to the United States.

A FUNDAMENTAL QUESTION

New York State passed a law which provided for the banning of motion pictures if they were considered to promote sexual immorality. The law was invoked against a motion picture which portrayed adultery as being right and desirable for certain people under certain circumstances. The U.S. Supreme Court has just ruled the law unconstitutional.

Justice Stewart wrote: "What New York had done, therefore, is to prevent the exhibition of a motion picture that advocates as ideas - - that adultery under certain circumstances may be proper behavior. It was the first amendment's basic guaranty is of freedom to advocate ideas. The state, quite simply, has thus struck at the very heart of constitutionally protected liberty."

The Ottawa Journal calls this opinion "startling." It notes its disapproval in the following words: " . . It is now apparently quite lawful in the United States to teach adultery and infidelity. And if this 'idea' is lawful, why is it not lawful to teach that stealing from the wealthy is for the common good, that the murder of some persons in some circumstances is desirable? These are ideas."

Now there are easy answers to the Journal's protest. Theft and murder are crimes in most lands; in many, adultery is not. Moreover, it may be argued that we do permit the propagation of such ideas as that stealing from the wealthy is for the common good. Robin Hood stories certainly fit into this category, even if advocacy of the nationalization of private property is not considered a case in point), and that the murder of some persons in some circumstances is desirable (consider most Western pictures and any number of orations on the ways of foreign tyrants.)

This, though, is just evading the issue raised by the Journal. These quibbles do not provide an answer to its basic query "Is one idea as good as another?"

That answer, in the opinion of all but a lunatic fringe minority, must be given in the negative. But, far from solving our dilemma, this decision just brings a face to face with the difficult decision.

Who is to judge what is good and what is bad?

Not the courts; their function is to interpret the laws. Then those who make our laws, those we elect or just this purpose, it may be replied.

But the Journal senses a new difficulty. "It is, course, always difficult to know where to draw the e between freedom and license," it declares. "Where it is to be drawn, the will be a matter of popularity of an idea should not be the reason for its escription. Most of the great ideas in history - - hristianity included - - were at first unpopular ses."

We have here a classic example of the fundamental ference between conservatism and liberalism. The urnal, recognizing that some ideas are good and me are bad, in true conservative tradition, would erish the good and exercise the bad. It makes its oice in these words: "Surely in the name of freedom do not have to abandon our intelligence and treat ery idea with respect. Has society abdicated the ht to discriminate among ideas, to put evil outside bounds?"

The liberal, both more daring and more timid, takes different view. It the lawmakers have full power decide what is good and what is bad, will not mere butarity often provide the yardstick? The liberal, his timidity fears so, will be even more inclined to as and bad ideas but distrusts the ability of men to inguish accurately between them and would let the Idea be propagated in the fear that the good might erwise be prescribed. And to this timidity is matched daring, a belief that good is always stronger than and that every opportunity the good ideas always grow and increase at the evil. One suspects that men will be arguing from these e positions to the end of time.

TOO CAUTIOUS BY HALF

It is, we suppose, better to be safe than sorry, and ch much better to be safe than dead. We should recoil from a lawyer in the Hamilton Spectator wing two boys testing their wits in a stream below gan declaring "Danger - - Unguarded Swimming Keep Out." while Bonds in a lifeguard's chair e "Go in - - I'll keep an eye on you!" We should recoil - - and yet we do, recalling areas, certainly hazarded, where cool waters ran swiftly, where no ing suit was required, where fish would nibble at curled over the slippery rock, where peril lurked nd life was good.

It may be better to be safe than dead, but it is much better to be alive after having taken some

Blind Girls Fine Typists

Financial Post.

The years ago, commercial aspirations for blind people were a broken dream. But the day is not far off when a large typing pool in a major office could be staffed almost entirely by blind personnel.

This is the opinion of Dr. S. A. Saunders, director of vocational research of the American National Institute for the Blind, where annual classes for blind dictaphone typists have been in operation since 1918.

Dr. Saunders considers this kind of work ideal for blind operators. They are physically especially fitted for performing as well as their sighted sisters and the work gives them an opportunity for an occupation closely allied to their age group and youthful temperaments.

While all the typists must graduate at 120-litres per hour, many CNIB girls achieve outstanding records of proficiency. This year, petite Enid Stevenson, 17, of Calgary received Dictaphone Corp.'s certificate of proficiency for 180 liner of dictation per hour.

This test included such stenographic problems as aligning a paper, setting margins and spacing for chapters.

Apart from learning the operation of standard Dictaphone Time-Master machines, much emphasis is laid on accuracy and correctness in the layout of typed material. Standards of accuracy are usually greater than those demanded in most commercial schools.

The girls are also given executive lessons in the technical vocabularies of the medical, legal and insurance professions, as well as a concentrated program in grammar and spelling.

Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, chief instructress of the Institute's course, says she prefers teaching blind students.

She finds them eager to learn and grateful for the given the opportunity to become useful citizens.

Many of the techniques used by the girls have been developed by Mrs. O'Brien and she points with pride to records of proficiency achieved on standard typewriters, using unmodified dictaphone equipment.

No special equipment is necessary on the part of an employer to gain a normal day's work of a blind operator.

Commenting on the efficiency of blind typists, R. J. Danielson, manager of the personnel department of Imperial Oil Limited, says: "As for efficiency and productivity, the girls trained here have employed have been outstanding. We couldn't ask for better performance from girls with 100 per cent vision.

"While we expected there would be limitations, we have found that natural inventiveness has helped them to overcome every obstacle. I will have no hesitation in employing other blind girls with similar capabilities."

They Exercise On Command

Ottawa Citizen

Having made the grand tour of Canada's camps, Major John Boyd-Orr reports — among things of greater moment — that "everyone in factories and offices takes two minutes' exercise in the morning and one in the afternoon" — for physical setting-up exercises. Whether or not Canada's industrial society approves of this regimen is unrecorded. But Mr. Avery Brundage, president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, declares that in the Soviet Union, at least, this idea of it is to be feared, will, while it would deeply interest Lenin, be dead on the subject. Somebody might get ideas.

In a free society, however, the wage slaves cannot be ordered to exercise under the whip of all. An employer who tried to replace the coffee break by calisthenics would find that individual and mild some of his most valuable employees, those who want to let well enough alone. Even the federal government hardly dare order its minions to undertake setting-up exercises. It is required to lift a cup, for an exodus to private enterprise could ensue.

But in Russia there is, apparently no such fear. At 11 a.m., says Mr. Brundage, there is a signal in all the offices and factories and the factory greeting comes over the radio, followed by the exercise commands. "They are determined to produce the strongest people in the world," he declares in remarks evidently

If the Russians were talking like this, the same sort of thing might come to be all the rage in Canada. Perhaps we might be "sold" on the idea that they would be twice a day in working hours, instead of merely during coffee. Once enough of them became convinced that this was the thing to do, the rest would likely conform, especially when cajoled and nagged at the Rotarian keep the load of physical development. The result could be much the same as though Big Brother had issued orders. The idea is said signal this matter, the better.

Fanfaronade Excusable

New York Herald Tribune

When twelve-year-old Joel Montgomery won the National Spelling Bee the other day with "fanfaronade" and "exanthem," after various rivals had misspelled — — "pachyderm," "syphelis," — "pochade," "vinaigrous" and "porphyry," we had a feeling that the spelling of spelling laughter every year in this democratic American contest there was the time when most of the classic stumpers were at least words in common currency, such as "cemetery" and "accommodate," though, come to think of it, we never had much use for that curious family built around "rhythm" — "rhythmic" and "phthisic."

This year have never heard of an ephelis-faced boy, or of anybody sitting for a pochade. Nor have we ever had occasion to frame sentences from other recent spelling bees in which the definition when we write, or witnessed a polymerization. We have not even had occasion to say, right or an allobi in his abbacy. True there are days when we feel somewhat vinaigrous about the younger generation. But any general feeling that can anthropathize like this is entitled to some fanfaronade.

OFF THE RECORD

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SCHIZOPHRENIA BRINGS CHEMICAL CHANGES IN THE BLOOD

"Dear Dr. Molner: My father was in a state mental hospital. He was schizophrenia. The doctors assured my mother that it was not hereditary, and that it probably was caused by a blow on the head when he was 17 years old. However, my mother can't quite forgive my father as well and I wonder whether she really understood what they said.

"My questions are:

"Was it possible for a blow on the head to have caused it?

"If it is hereditary, wouldn't it show by now? There are six of us children and the youngest is over 27.

"I have read articles about schizophrenics having a certain chemical in their blood. Could it be in ours?—J. J.

On your first question, there is no evidence whatever that schizophrenia (which is the commonest of all serious mental diseases) is caused by a blow on the head injury. It would be my guess that your father (as you suggest) misunderstood what was told to her.

As to heredity — well, I can't speak so positively but I will say that there has been a great deal of study about it.

It may well be that some people, because of their hereditary, are more sensitive to emotional upsets. Indeed, I am rather inclined to think this is probably true.

But at the same time, it is quite true, when a case of schizophrenia is investigated, to find that the person has undergone emotional strains and stresses, and it is certainly uncommon to find the opposite to be true — a person becoming schizophrenic without the presence of such stresses.

NO POSITIVE ANSWER

So we can't give a positive answer, but on the basis of what we have been able to see, I don't think you can say that schizophrenia is hereditary.

For your third question, you have asked something that is being asked by all of us — and millions of dollars are being spent to try to find the answer.

It appears — note that I say "it appears" — that there are chemical changes in the blood in patients with schizophrenia. But is this a cause, or an effect? We don't know.

I am sure that when more is known about these changes we will have a much better understanding of schizophrenia. At the same time, I seriously question whether chemical changes in the blood will ever prove to be the whole story.

There is simply too much reason to feel that the things that happen to us — our attitudes in life, the stresses, the fears and so on — will always have to be regarded as a very important part of the cause of mental illness.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is 'baby's breath'? What causes it? What is the cure?" — Mrs. R.B."

The surface of the tongue is made up of little structures called papillae. If they become enlarged, the result is called "hairy tongue," although, of course, this is just a phrase expressing what it looks — more or less. The tongue naturally isn't "hairy." Irritation is thought to be a cause of this, as, perhaps, from a mouth wash, toothpaste, etc., which doesn't agree with you. The cure: Finding the cause and discontinuing the use of it. Sounds too simple? Maybe, but that's it.

Never Think Of Repairman

Windsor Star

All who have to do with machinery have had this problem. That is, those who design the contraptions have little thought for those who must repair them.

The driver who by watched an expert mechanic trying to drain the crankcase of a modern car, to get the anti-freeze out of it. The top was in an almost inaccessible. He finally got at it, only to find that the top of the tap projected from the bottom of under the wrench.

What should have been a five minute job took him an uncomfortable 20 minutes. When he finally got the nut out, the anti-freeze splattered all over the floor. When it emerged from a hole it hit other parts, which presumably it pouring directly down into the bucket. Almost half the owner's anti-freeze was wasted.

The mechanic told of an expert job of a previous day. He required 2½ hours to do a job for a customer on a car which could have been done on earlier models in 10 to 15 minutes. The reason was that the engine two other parts so he could get at the smaller part he was replacing.

The older generations will recall the days before there was anti-freeze, when the radiators had to be drained each frosty night. It is not so long ago. All one had to do was reach under the front of the car, turn a spigot with the fingers and let it run.

Strength for The Day.

AT THE VIEY CENTRE

People sometimes think that when they have changed a form of sin they have changed a fact.

Let us look at the fact itself closely. We can sometimes change things superficial without changing the things that are fundamental. In the realm of character, we even reform our conduct without in any way having changed the drift of an individual's life or evil life. Much reform throughout history has been superficial reform. Men have changed the outside without changing the inside — they have changed the form without changing the spirit and the content.

Getting right down to the world in which we live, we need always to ask ourselves what we are really working for. Are we trying to get something deep and fundamental changed, or are we simply interested in improving the appearance? Are we trying to use Biblical figure — cleansing the outside of the cup and the platter, but leaving the inside full of extortion and excess? Are we interested in new adjustments in our behavior or are we really trying to bring about a change of heart? Are we changing our program or are we changing our mind?

Jesus was always trying to which Satan sets for the feet of many, namely, dallying with things superficial and letting things fundamental go undone.

It's out the which need to be changed — we ourselves at the centre of our lives.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HEALTH

Our greatest possession is health — far greater than mere money, for all the money in the world cannot restore out health after it has been taken from us. With good health you have a wealth. With increased responsibilities we need all the health we can store away.

The human mind, and all that is dependent on it, is influenced more by health than anything else. This mind of ours can rule every want. It can help us climb into the sky, like an eagle. With health you can aspire to your heart's desire. Nature is our greatest health resort. It feeds the soul. It gives out hope and assurance.

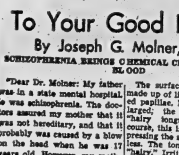
When we feel right we can attempt most anything. The world is ours, or at least as much of it as we can digest. There are those who aspire to own the world but no nation or individual has yet got to first base with their idea alone. We do get health and power by ascending our thoughts so as to help us over many a tough spot in our journey through life. We do not deceive ourselves into superb health easier than any remedy we discovered. God and the clean outdoor air, and a cheerful mind and heart are worth more than any pills.

We look upon a man's face, clean cut, and then we look upon his battered car and we wonder which he looks after the more important — his car or his health. That man may be a good example of his car, failing no care on it till he is forced to his knees. How important it is for us all to keep looking ahead — with vision and confidence.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Now that the hot summer season is at hand and windows have to be left open, even on the ground floor, I think it is time I revealed Grandma Grogle's burglar alarm system.



Grandma had the opinion that there was nothing that so discouraged a wandering burglars and other intruders more than noise. She used to say that if there was a noise that could be imagine, it was a noisy burglar.

So every summer night, when the burglars are all out, she puts out the lamps, and all the children were shed, and the milk pail had been taken out on the front steps for the milkman to fill, and the stove shaken down so that only a little heart of fire remained, on such a hot night, to keep the coals till morning, she would rig her burglar alarm.

First, she took the hammer and screwdriver, deliberately, so deliberately on the half raised sill of the window that the slightest touch would dislodge it with a terrific clang down into the large preserving kettle and on to the floor below the window. The window, of course, was propped so that not even the skinniest burglar could get a wriggle through.

Up on the top of the window-frame she balanced the tin flour sifter. The sieve part was suspended between the flour sifter and the window sash, so that the intruder touch - off Grandma Grogle's burglar alarm, and all the dogs in the township would have started barking.

It was my brother's cue to get that she never had a burglar.

Bay of Quinte Sport Fishery Survey

The Bay of Quinte area receives large numbers of summer visitors each year, because of its scenic attractions, and its proximity to centres of heavy population density. A further drawback of undoubted importance, however, has always been the good fishing the waters provide. The past decade has been a tremendous increase in the popularity of recreational fishing, and in this area, the pressure on the fish stocks has been increasing at a highly accelerated rate.

This growing harvest has accentuated the need for a sound management plan, to ensure that the fish production of the Bay of Quinte will be maintained at a high level. In 1957 the Department of Lands and Forests instituted a long - range program of research on the game species of the Bay to provide the basis for such a management plan. This program involves studies of the life histories, wild statistics and behavior of the various species, and is jointly sponsored by the Department's Division of Research and the administrative headquarters for this area, at Tweed. The project, called the Bay of Quinte Sport Fishery Survey, is based at the Carleton Fisheries Station, just outside of Picton.

During the past two seasons Bay of Quinte anglers have grown accustomed to being interviewed on the water by university students employed by the Department. Their part of the investigation is known as the Creel Census. This work involves the collection of data on the size and composition of the catch, and the type and degree of fishing expended by representative samples of anglers. Used with estimates of total fishing effort made from boat counts on the water and from aircraft, estimates of the size of the harvest are possible. The creel census interviews provide in addition, the opportunity of examining large numbers of angler-caught fish. Scale samples are taken from these fish, and used to determine the ages, from which the rates of growth and age compositions of the fish populations are estimated.

The investigation also includes study of the migratory habits of the fish through recovery of tags by anglers, and the use of experimental netting to measure relative abundance, and to obtain specimens for study of fecundity and feeding habits. To date, research has been concentrated on the yellow pickerel, but no opportunity has been missed to collect data on the other game species and by the time each of these will receive special attention.

While some of the characteristics of the pickerel life history are established, others require substantiation over next year or two, and the statistics relating to reproduction, juvenile survival and mortality (particularly man's contribution to the latter) require data collection over a number of years for complete reliability. The following is brief summary of the findings to date concerning the yellow pickerel.

RATE OF GROWTH:

The Bay of Quinte pickerel population exhibits one of the fastest rates of growth on record for yellow pickerel. To date scales from 2,583 pickerel have been examined. Average lengths (snout to fork of tail) for each age (roman numerals represent number of winters) were as follows: I — 8.2 inches; II — 13.6 inches; III — 19.4 inches; IV — 18.3 inches; V — 23.0 inches; VI — 25.6 inches; VII — 29.9 inches; VIII — 33.5 inches; IX — 34.1 inch; X — 25.0 inches; growth is very slow beyond about age XII, and the greatest age yet observed was nineteen winters. Very few fish ever exceed 29 inches in length. Female pickerel average about 2 inches longer than males over the whole range of ages. Nearly all the annual growth takes place between the beginning of June and the end of September. Average lengths for the corresponding weights are roughly as follows: 1 lb — 13 inches; 2 lbs. — 16 inches; 3 lb. — 18 inches; 4 lb. — 20 inches; 5 lb. 21 inches.

FEEDING HABITS:

Pickerel have been found to feed almost exclusively on alewife (chad) from age II on. Starting in June, the large mature alewife migrating into the Bay to spawn are eaten. The young alewife stay in the Bay for approximately 2 years, and appear to be the main forage of the pickerel after the adults return to Lake Ontario in August. Pickerel fry start feeding on minute plankton organisms and progressively move to larger invertebrate forms until about 10 inches long, when they begin to take small fish.

REPRODUCTION:

Male pickerel spawn first at age III, and the females at IV. The females produce about 45,000 eggs (1.8 millimeters in diameter) per pound of fish. The largest fish on which fecundity observations were made weighed 10 pounds and its ovaries were estimated to contain 420,000 eggs. Obviously the reproductive potential of pickerel is extremely high.

MIGRATION:

The recoveries indicate that movement of pickerel into the Bay of Quinte takes place during the fall and winter, prior to the spawning in April. Maximum number of the fish away from their spawning grounds takes place from June through August. During this period, while anglers still recapture many tagged fish inside the Bay, tags applied in the Bay have been returned as far away as "Treasure Island," east of Kingston, a distance of 45 water miles from the tagging site. Recaptures have also been made in commercial gillnets during this period, to the south of Amherst Island. The long-distance travellers are in general larger fish.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE FISHERY:

Over ninety-two percent of anglers contacted while fishing for pickerel in the Bay of Quinte have been contacted while fishing for pickerel in the Bay of Quinte have been trolling. Depths fished vary from 8 to 20 feet and the lures used are predominantly of the spinner type, or live bait and spinner combinations.

The pickerel are apparently seldom taken stillfishing or from the shore. The areas of highest pickerel production are fairly localized.

The region of the mouth of the Trent River is one of the most productive, and by far the greatest harvest of pickerel is made in Hay Bay, a long narrow bay running east off the Bay of Quinte proper.

The pickerel fishing season begins on the 15th of May, and until the first of June fishing is generally good, and the average size of the fish taken is large. In 1958 the May length average for angler pickerel was 16.2 inches, and the June average only 14.2 inches. In the past two seasons, from the low in June, the average length of the fish caught reflects a change in the age composition. During May the angler catch contains fish up to fourteen years of age, but through June and July few pickerel older than three are taken. Starting in August, the older fish become increasingly available to the anglers again. Pickerel are first caught at age II, and 90% of the angler fish examined to date have been less than 5 years of age.

The 1957 pickerel fishing was exceptionally good. Fishing success averaged .39 fish per-man per hour and the catch consisted mainly of two and three - year old fish in about equal proportions. In 1958 the fishing quality dropped to an average of .109 fish per man-hour with three year olds constituting the bulk of the catch. This is interpreted as the result of natural variation in the size of the pickerel catch. Thus the 1954 and 1955 year classes were strong ones, and the 1956 batch a weak one.

Analysis of the 1958 angler catch and fishing effort statistics has shown that on the average, the size of the catch was proportional to the time spent fishing. However, it was interesting to note that while two men fishing from one boat caught nearly twice as many fish as one man for a given unit of time, three and four-man parties were actually less successful than those with two.

Another point of interest concerns the well - known effect of time of day on the fishing. It was found that evening fishing was 12.7 more successful, on the average, than morning fishing, and fishing before noon on the average netted 22.9% more fish than afternoon efforts.

The total pickerel harvest by anglers in 1958 was estimated at 17,300 fish or 31,140 lbs. Forty-four percent of this yield came from Hay Bay. Thirty - seven percent of the catch came from the upper section of the Bay, between Trenton and Napanee, of which about one-half was produced by the area of the Trent River mouth. The remainder of the season's catch (9%) was produced by the small bays adjacent to Hay Bay.

The support this work has received to date, from the angling public has been most gratifying. The Department of Lands and Forests wishes to take this opportunity of expressing its appreciation for the invaluable cooperation of all those sportsmen who have assisted the work of the research staff by supplying information for the creel census, and by promptly reporting the capture of tagged fish.

Roebuck Asks Distinction Twixt Sex and Obscenity

"Sex is perfectly all right."

Then the deftly Liberal, chairman of the Senate divorces committee, the certificated legal definition of obscenity the government wants written into the Criminal Code.

Justice Minister Fulton has said its main purpose is to rid newsstands of filthy publications.

Senator Roebuck said drafters of the definition failed to distinguish between sex and obscenity.

SEX NOT OBSCENE

"Whether sex comes in small doses or big doses, sex is not obscene; sex is perfectly clean and around it generally clusters the highest ideals and the purest sentiments.

"I do not care whether the whole book is full of it or just one page, sex is perfectly all right."

Senator Roebuck, a former Ontario attorney-general, said sex should be open to discussion. It is on the mind of everyone practically all the time.

"What we should be legislating against is the perversion of sex. That is what is objectionable."

The definition would make any publication illegally obscene if its dominant characteristic is undue exploitation of sex, or of sex and crime, horror, cruelty and violence.

"Obscenity is much broader than just sex," said Senator Roebuck.

Senator Roebuck approved of a government proposal to amend the code to prohibit broadcast or publication of any statements by an accused at a preliminary hearing until the case has been disposed of.

He said there should be a ban on use of confessions obtained from accused persons after their arrests. Usually the accused eventually claimed the police forced it from him and the police denied any pressure was applied.

LEAVITT — McCOY

WOOLER — In a simple ceremony at Cooksville United Church, Saturday, June 27th, Irma May McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Carman, of Elderado, Ontario, became the bride of Dr. Ronald Edson Leavitt, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leavitt, of Wooler.

The Rev. MacBeth Miller officiated. The bride's father-bridegroom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Carman, of Cooksville, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

Dr. and Mrs. Leavitt will reside in Trenton where the bridegroom is a practising chiropractor.

TONER — BYRNE

St. Charles' Bayromee Church, Read, Ontario, was the setting on Saturday, July 4, at 10.00 a.m. for a very pretty summer wedding when the Rev. G. E. Byrne, of Kingston, united in marriage his daughter, Sheila Marie Byrne, of Roslin, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Byrne, to Private Joseph Toner, of Hamilton, Ontario, son of the late Mr. William Toner, and Mrs. Toner of Dublin, Eire. Pink and white gladioli adorned the altar, and white satin bows the guest pews. The Rev. T. E. Strickland and the Rev. W. V. Hamilton were present in the sanctuary during the ceremony and the Nuptial Mass.

Mrs. Frank O'Connell, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Michael Horrigan, who sang "Mother, At Your Feet, We're Kneeling," "Ave Maria," and "Lord, I am Not Worthy."

The radiantly lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of hand-embroidered Swiss organdy over net and taffeta having a Sweetheart neckline, and long, lily-pointed sleeves, coronet headdress encrusted with seed pearls and sequins, held her silk tulle illusion finger-tip veil and she carried a mother-of-pearl missal crested by a single orchid with white satin rosebud-knotted streamers.

Miss Monique Martin, of St. Isidore de Prescott, Ontario, attended the bride, gowned in pale green hand-embroidered Swiss organdy, in ballerina-length with matching bandeau headdress, and shoulder-length veil of the same shade, and carried a bouquet of contrasting summer flowers.

Mr. James Galea, of Hamilton, Ontario, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Michael McLaughlan, also of Hamilton, and Leo Byrne, of Read, ushered the guests.

The wedding dinner was held at the parish hall, Read, followed by a reception and buffet luncheon in the afternoon.

For the wedding trip, including one week in Quebec province, and later a six-weeks' holiday in Europe and the British Isles, the bride chose a two-piece beige-toned ensemble with brown accessories, and corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Toner will reside in Hamilton.

Guests were present from Welland; Hamilton; Toronto; Oshawa; Ottawa; Kingston; Hillier, and other nearby points.

The bride was honored at showers held in Hamilton, and in Welland, Ontario.

Trousseau Tea Fetes Bride-to-Be

On Saturday afternoon the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Plane, 135 Charles St., was attractively decorated for a trousseau tea in honor of their daughter, Lois.

The guests were received by Mrs. Plane and the bride-to-be who wore a tweed green dress and corsage of pink roses and white 'mums.

Miss Elaine Bourgeau; Miss Barbara Belch; Miss Donna Belch and Miss Ruth Rowbotham, showed the guests the trousseau, household, shower and wedding gifts.

Mrs. Donald Woodcox and Mrs. William Belch poured the tea. The dining room table was appointed with a lace cloth, centred by pink bouquet flanked by silver candle holders and tea services.

After signing the wedding book the guests were served refreshments.

Local Artist Wins Art Scholarship

Word has been received from Stirling Dickinson, director of the Institute Allende, San Miguel de Allende, Gto., Mexico, that Phillipa Faulkner, one of the city's leading artists, has been awarded one of the Institute Allende's 1959 scholarships.

In the annual scholarship contest keen competition is shown with entries received from both the United States and Canada, and to win one of these scholarships is a noteworthy accomplishment.

Mrs. Faulkner's work is mature and strong as shown in her exhibition in the Institute gallery display.

Last year the Canadian Embassy in Mexico City organized an exhibition for the Canadian students and it is hoped that later this year that this successful event may be repeated.

The Experts Say

Save Steps, Live Longer Medical Director's Advice

TORONTO (CP) — Save steps and live longer, is the advice of Dr. John Armstrong, medical director of The Heart Foundation of Canada.

"Not only by saving steps, but by using slightly different methods, you can accomplish the same amount of work with less energy, and be less tired," he adds.

In line with this thinking, the American Heart Association has published a booklet The Heart of the Home which gives a score of aids to the homemaker with heart disease.

In 1948, a heart kitchen was constructed according to the carefully-worked out plans of a voluntary subcommittee of the New York Heart Association's committee on cardiovascular diseases in industry, Dr. Lillian Gilbreth of Cheaper by the Dozen fame, headed the committee.

Methods applied in industry are equally helpful in housework. Although the booklet was written primarily for women with heart disease, it has suggestions for every busy housewife who would like to save extra time and extra energy.

Pre-positioning equipment and supplies can save hundreds of steps. Store articles where they are most often used and group things that are used together near a work area.

Organizing canned goods, serving dishes and platters should all be placed near the stove where they are to be used.

Soaps, knives and strainers and other necessities that need refrigeration should be kept near the sink where they are first used.

Baking ingredients are natural companions for rolling pins, measuring cups, mixing bowls and baking pans.

If lunches are to be prepared, assemble the wax paper, bread and other necessaries near the perishable foods used in the lunch.

To save stair climbing, store small things in a box or basket along with the broom, mop and sweeper.

Work simplification can become a game for everyone in the household and can save up to 60 per cent of the time once spent on a job.

The best way to start is to unclutter the kitchen. Good advice from the Heart Foundation is that "with a bit of drawer searching and soul searching you can gather together a box full of things you never use. Throw them away."

Feels Mental Illness Challenge to Education

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dame Olive Wheeler regards prevention of mental illness as a new responsibility for educationists.

Here to lecture at the University of British Columbia summer session, the former professor of education and dean of faculty of education at Cardiff, Wales said in an interview that she believes education must be adjusted to the needs of the individual to lessen the incidence of mental illness.

Statistics indicated a big increase in mental illness in Canada from 1945 to 1955, she said.

"The same sort of thing is true in Great Britain," Dame Wheeler said. "We feel mental illness is a challenge to education as well as to the medical profession.

"Our education in the past has assumed that an individual is divided into body, mind and the emotions. Schools have dealt almost solely with the intellectual side.

"I believe both home and school are always concerned with the whole person and you can't neglect the emotions and the body in school.

NURSE CARE

"As an example, you may make a child afraid of nurses if you're not careful.

"Education should aim to develop whole persons and such well - integrated personalities would promote relationships wherever they are."

Dame Wheeler, collaborating with two doctors, has written a book Mental Health and Education to be published. Her previous books have dealt with Bergson, the French philosopher, education in the future and youth.

"With a new emphasis on the sciences, British educators are moving away from compulsory Latin," she said. "Latin is still a need for the humanities, but scientists should be educated to be whole persons, not just technicians.

"Unwieldy education fits women to cope better with a career or marriage.

"Britain could well follow Canada's lead in including such women's subjects as home economics and nursing in university courses."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

James S. Parents have no right to interfere.

Mrs. L. S. — It's for their own good.

James S. — I am 25 old enough to make my own decisions. But my mother still thinks she can run my life.

I was going with a girl of a different faith for the past year. We were planning to be married. She didn't want to tell her parents of the difference in our faiths until after they got to know me and like me.

Well, my mother found out about this and wrote to the girl's parents. They were so upset they threw me out of the house. They took their daughter away on a trip. All my letters are returned unopened. I know my girl is as heartbroken as I am. I'll never forgive my mother.

Mrs. L. S. — Jimmy keeps saying that parents have no right to interfere in the children's marriages, but I guess I belong to the old school. I think parents have to take a hand when children haven't sense enough for themselves.

I know my son and I know that he would never be happy with a girl of a different faith. He thinks nothing about religion now, but it will be different when he is older and has children.

I figured that the girl's parents wouldn't put up with Jimmy once they knew the whole truth. If the kids had eloped and they found out afterwards, they would have broken it up.

The Council: Parents have not only a right, but a responsibility to guide their children toward a successful marriage. This is as true today as it ever was, although the method of guidance has changed considerably from the time when parents simply arranged the marriage with little or no consultation with the children.

We are not much in favor of Mrs. L. S.'s method in this particular case — although it has probably worked out for the best for everyone concerned. A far better method would have been for her to prevail upon Jimmy and his girl to reveal all of their own free will.

The girl's parents are evidently high-handed and strong-willed as Mrs. L. S. Apparently they have a lot of control over their offspring and would not have made things easy for this young couple whenever they got the truth about Jimmy's religion.

The strong-arm methods used by both Mrs. L. S. and the girl's parents have all the deficiences of strong-arm tactics in any battle. There is the danger that they won't always work. The victims may rebel the second or third time. The victims never learn to understand themselves or their situation and do not learn to steer their own way. They may knuckle under or rebel for the sake of rebelling. Unconsciously they rather depend upon their oppressor to save them from themselves.

In this case if Jimmy and his girl had been more mature and independent, they would have been shoved apart from the beginning. They would not have been afraid to face the many arguments against interfaith marriage. They would have given those arguments a fair hearing and weighed them carefully. They might have decided of their own free will that the marriage was not suitable, or they might have gone ahead with a fuller understanding of the problems involved.

SERVICE PROCEDURE WHEN THE HOST CARVES

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Recently you said in your column, apropos of the host's carving and serving, that when he passed the prepared plate to a guest, he should refrain from either "This is for you" or "Please pass this to Mrs. Blank" now? I'd like to ask what a guest should do if the host does not make this clear? This was my problem several evenings ago when I was a guest at a more or less informal dinner for eight. I was seated at the right of the host. He carved, prepared the first plate, and passed it to me, not telling me whether to keep it or to pass it along.

Since this was the first time I had dined in the home of these friends, where I don't know very well, I didn't know about their serving procedure, don't know if the hostess has herself served first. However, I did decide to keep the plate, was I right, or should I have passed it on?

R. S.

You were quite right in what you did.

Since you were seated at the right of the host, you apparently were considered the guest of honor (perhaps as the hostess-gality-greeter) and it is the hostess has herself served first. However, I do

U.S. Pessimistic Over Agreement At Geneva

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government is frankly pessimistic about achieving any major agreement with Russia in the new round of East-West talks opening at Geneva Monday.

Various American diplomats have said so privately and Wednesday, at his weekly press conference, President Eisenhower echoed that sentiment when he stated that in a recent talk with visiting Deputy Soviet Premier Frol Kozlov he heard nothing that would raise any new element of hope.

The "immovable stone" in the American attitude is that Russia must respect and recognize Western rights in West Berlin—rights the Russians rejected at the first round of Geneva talks adjourned last month.

POSITION IS FIRM

"We continue to say," Eisenhower said, "that the firm position we have is that . . . of respecting our responsibilities and making certain that we retain our rights with respect to Berlin.

"From there on, and with that solid conviction as the unmovable stone in the whole structure, we are ready to talk and discuss anything, because we certainly do want to find some way of reaching a solution that will not keep the whole world on edge . . .

Booklet Outlines History of University

SASKATOON — An attractive, 64-page booklet telling in words and pictures the story of the first half century of the University of Saskatchewan is now available. The title of it is "The University of Saskatchewan: 1909 — 1959".

It was prepared by Dr. Lewis H. Thomas, associate professor of history at Regina College, to mark the celebration this year of the University's Golden Jubilee. It is the second of three Jubilee Year publications to make its appearance.

The accent is on pictures in Dr. Thomas' booklet — there is not a page without at least one photo. However, there is ample text to provide the history from 1909 when classes began, until 1959.

A multi-colored photograph of a campus scene by Gibson Photos of Saskatoon adorns the front cover, and on the outside back cover, there are colorful reproductions of the crests of the various colleges within the University. The booklet's size is 8½ by inches by 11 inches.

The booklet is on sale for $1.00 at the bookstore of the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon and in the general office of Regina College in Regina.

TV Suffers From Re-Runitis, Theatre Business Going Up

By SOB THOMAS

This week nine feature movies are being made for theatres. And 45 television series are being filmed.

There can no longer be any doubt that TV is crowding the movie industry alive. Every major studio is busting with TV activity—Warner Brothers alone has 10 series shooting, and no features. The RKO (now Desilu) and Republic (rented by Four Star) lots now are exclusively devoted to TV production.

The major studios were late to jump on the home-screen bandwagon, but they're making up for it now. The TV profits will be enough to keep them in the riskier business of making theatrical films.

The theatre business outlook is good this summer, now that TV is suffering from re-runitis. The lack of new TV programming is sending viewers out of their homes to see the display of fresh products in the theatres. . .

PAT BOONE HERE

The Pat Boone family will be here through the summer, but they aren't ready to become Californians yet.

"I'll have to return to New York for the TV show," the singer says. "We've got a brand new studio there, and ABC still hasn't built a big enough plant to do the show in Hollywood. They're working on it, but they'll build the executive offices first."

It was nice to see Boone's daughter Lindy Lee and Debbie Reynolds' daughter Carrie Fisher squiring his wife and family around to the Las Vegas shows. The Cantors were hard hit by the loss of their eldest daughter and both parents have been ailing. Eddie looks his usual spry self, but is taking life easy. . .

Jack Lewis gave one of the top parties of the year to salute the condo of Paramount bosses—his partners since the $10,000,000 deal for Jerry's services. The Lewis mansion, once Louis B. Mayer's, was gaily decorated for the 200 guests and the host went all-out to entertain them, even a furious tap dance.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Scented envelopes with a pleasantly different aroma to some of the mail that reaches the sports desk, have been perfuming the newsrooms of late.

And the cause of it all is that handsome hunk of wrestling humanity, one Don Leo Jonathan. This big, good-looking pachyderm is a movie star, amateur idol and a Riviera boulevardier, rolled into one piece of eye-pleasing male. From the distaff side, that is.

DON LEO JONATHAN

But don't kid yourselves. This 100-pound six-footer is no pansy-waist, sissy or a guy, that scares easily. In a football game, one alley brawl or a drawing room he is the kind of bloke you'd like to have on your side.

You can call him "Brother" if you wish. He won't take offence. After all he is a Mormon, a son of an elder of South Utah where everybody is a "Brother."

Boasting the proportions of an oak tree, Don Leo has a boyish commensurate with his size. Any time he feels like it he can go to his 500-acre ranch in Utah, and watch several hundred head of choice beef cattle go by, from the horizon desk of a cow pony.

But he doesn't like counting beef. He prefers to throw it around. That's the reason he is in the wrestling rack—Cops—game. And he doesn't get just peanuts for his ring monkey-shines.

Jonathan is an amazing guy himself. He was a fair basketball player in high school and he was a good enough football tackle to be asked to play for the Montreal Alouettes.

As tough and rough as he is, Jonathan has absorbed some terrific beatings. He had his collarbone broken in one bout, his back dislocated in another. But he got his worst trimming from his father.

Jonathan senior was the wrestling champion of the navy in 1927 and he wrestled for several years afterwards until he was impaled on an angle iron.

"When he was right I couldn't touch him," Jonathan said. "So show you how good he was, he and I won the tag title match once in New Jersey when he was 45 years old. He did the bulk of the work, too. I was still learning."

The big, good-looking lug has a very likeable side. But not many people ever see it. The side the fans see is about the most vicious half of a split personality that ever stepped into a ring. His very size alienates him from the crowd.

Except for a few unpleasant characters like Killer Kowalski and Hard-Boiled Haggerty, who he tangles with here tonight, no current wrestler can arouse so much hatred in the crowd as can handsome young Jonathan.

He does this by showing heroes out of the ring so often they get tired of climbing back. So they give up from the floor, providing they are able.

On one occasion in Milwaukee, Jonathan tossed an opponent out of the ring twelve times — then leaped after him for the "hell." Irate fans interrupted, pummelling him bodily and by the time the gendarmes had quieted everything, Don had settled the fates of half a dozen people.

What irritated the crowd most of all was the fact that through all of this, the irrepressible Jonathan was laughing fit to kill.

You would never guess it to watch him slam together the heads of his opponent and the innocent referee, but Don is very devout, sprinkling his conversation with religious phrases. As was mentioned, he is a Mormon and proud of it.

• Ask him about wives and does he favor them in large quantities, he'll grin and say "I favor wives in the singular —one for every man."

Canadians Meet Tough Foemen In Relays

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian runners will have international competition from two of the strongest Independent track teams in the United States at tonight's national relay championships at Varsity Stadium.

New York Pioneers, New York State champions, and Chicago Track Club, last year's sprint and medley champions, will have runners in the 16-event meet.

The Canadian strength comes mainly from athletes who were trained at U.S. universities and are back here for the summer. East York Track Club a contingent has four in this category.

Running for East York will be Jack Parrington of the University of Houston, Ergo Lepp and Jeff Engel of the University of Michigan, and Carl Reid of the University of Western Michigan.

Jim Irons of Mississippi State will compete for Toronto Olympics. Doug Gilbert of Northwestern University runs for Gladstone Athletic Club and Hamilton Olympic Club colors will be worn by Ed Crowley and Max Weisengruber of Michigan State.

Braves Tumble To Third; Red Sox Clobber Yankees

Giants Take National Lead As 'Bums' Climb Into Second; Birds Win 2, Tribe Beaten

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Two pitchers combining for a doubleheader shutout over one club is rare in itself. Occasionally it happens twice in one season.

But it happened in the American League Thursday night.

While Chicago's second - place White Sox moved to within one game of Cleveland by beating Indians 4-3, Baltimore's 20-year-old righthanders, Milt Pappas and Jerry Walker, blanked Washington 8-0 and 5-0 in a twi-night doubleheader, Kansas City's Ray Herbert and Johnny Kucks each pitched five-hitters while whitewashing Detroit's 11 tumbling Tigers 5-0 and 4-0.

Tigers, who have lost six in a row hadn't been handed a double shutout since Chicago's Mary Grissom and Joe Dobson did it May 3, 1952. It hadn't happened to Senators since Cleveland's Herb Score and Mike Garcia pulled it off Sept. 19, 1956.

YANKS LOSE GROUND

The sweep by Baltimore lifted Orioles out of a third-place tie with the New York Yankees, who were walloped 14-3 by Boston.

Senators, leading the majors with 101 home runs, managed only one extra-base hit among their 17 off Pappas (9-4) and Walker (7-3) — a first game triple by Bob Allison. Walker gained a measure of revenge Washington in his brief major league career. He's now knocked in the majors—both four - hit jobs against Nats.

Pappas, also pitching his second shutout in the majors was backed by Billy Gardner's two run homer and Gus Triandos' 24th 21st. Bob Nieman hit a two-run homer in the nightcap after Brooks Robinson stole home in the fifth. Jim Gentile homered (5-8) and Pete Ramos (9-8) were the losers.

Herbert, pitching his first shutout since breaking into the majors in 1955 with Detroit, walked two and struck out 10 while beating his ex-mates for a 6-7 record. Kucks walked two and fanned three for a 3-4 record and his first complete game in 13 starts since June of last year.

CERV HIT TWO HOMERS

Bob Cerv belted home runs in both games for the A's, one in the opener against Frank Lary (7-6) and his 11th with a man on in the nightcap against Ray Narleski (4-3), who also gave up a home run by Bill Tuttle.

Jim-Landis drove in three runs for White Sox and Sherman Phillips clinched it with a sixth-inning home run off Herb Score (9-6). Both Indians and White Sox had only five hits, with Pierce (9-10) going all the way for his victory after losing three in a row. Jim Brosz relieved Lary for his homer streak to 18 games.

Vic Wertz and Ted Williams each hit safe flies to Boston home runs and Bobby Avila, batting .333, added two singles with a pair of homers. Bob Turley (6-6) gave up three homers in his 2 1-3 innings.

Frank Sullivan (5-5) was the winner for the lifetime major leaguer Yankees, who scored all their runs with two out in the fourth when they lumped half of their six hits.

Leafs Blanked By Red Wings; Royals Win

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rochester's Charley James has added the right tonic to keep the Royals in a winning mood during the battle for first place in the International League.

It's a special formula of base hits and runs batted in spread over 18 games—16 consecutive—in 15 days, James had his streak stopped at 16 on Wednesday but the Royals made it two straight with three singles, a triple and three runs batted in in the Royals' 7-0 victory over Toronto. That plunked the Leafs back into last place.

Walt Craddock pitched a two-hitter as Syracuse defeated Buffalo 4-0 and moved on over league-leading Buffalo 4-3, reducing the Bisons' margin to one game. Jim Pang Boon also ordered a close game over Rochester, Columbus left the league cellar basement and tied Havana for sixth place with a 3-2 victory over Richmond.

25-HIT ATTACK

During James' streak, in which Rochester has been dogging Buffalo for first place, he smacked 32 hits, including three doubles, four triples and two homers, and drove in 10 runs.

His string Thursday night backed up Bill Smith's four hitter —all singles and helped harry a fourth defeat on Ron Negray, who has won 10, Smith is 5-2. The Wings sewed it up with a run in the second, added two in the fourth and Don Smith drove in two of his team's runs with a single.

Craddock (4-7) gave a single to Foster Castleman and a double to Woody Smith in the seventh but left them stranded. He also scored his only run in the third when Ellio Chacon singled, went to second on Jim Pisoni's infield out, to third on a passed ball and scored on Ed Bouchee's Tony Gonzales' grounder. John Callison got the loot.

RAILS OUT VALDES

Fred Rodriguez balled out Montreal's Rene Valdes (6-4) in the ninth inning, combo on with one out and one on. After a single by Bill Hunnefield moved the tying run to third base, he got Bobby Morgan to ground into a game-ending double play. Jim Erickson (3-4) started and lost for Buffalo, which Syracuse led a dozen times on the Bisons, his 12th.

Curt Raydon's third straight victory got Columbus out of the cellar, as Jim Brady, Frank Lucchesi and Lord Richmond scored runs in the fourth off Starter Ed Bauta. Frank Lucchesi drove in both Richmond runs with a two-run homer, and added two doubles.

BEARS SIGN MACKEY

SARNIA (CP) Import end Harry Mackey from Detroit has signed with the Golden Bears for the 1959 senior Ontario Rugby Football Union season, Coach Ed Lord's erroneously reported earlier they had signed the 1957 player, who was with Detroit Lions for the early part of the 1958 season.

...mple's Tabbies Tighten Top Hold ...ith 8-2 Victory Over Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER

...llsville Bobcats tightened their grip on the top rung in the Belleville and District softball league last night at Trenton by defeating the Trenton Giants 8-2.

Kemple's Tabbies got a neat six-hit pitching performance from Robert Hull and backed him with a powerful offensive to help up their eighth win against six setbacks.

The Cats scored one in the second, two in the fourth, three in the fifth and a final pair in the seventh to open up an 8-0 lead. Hull, who was working on no-hitter until the sixth, was touched in the bottom of the fifth with two men out.

An error with one out paved the way for the Giants' two markers. The next batter holsted to center but Roger Drake let the first circuit clout of the season to spoil Hull's shutout bid. He struck out nine batters and allowed single by Drake in the sixth and a double by Gary Hall in the eighth. He struck out 12 men and walked half a dozen.

Meanwhile the Bobcats racked up Wannamaker for 12 of their hits and all but eight runs in the first seven frames. Wannamaker was touched for a second four-run blast and Mooney gave up one hit while pitching the last two innings. He stopped a couple on strikes and walked none. The latter booked six batters.

Denny Hayden's double and the first of Trenton's miscues gave Belleville a 1-0 lead. Earlier Lou Clarke had driven a Wannamaker pitch into deep right field but was stopped at a second base with ground-rule double.

Brown and Hull smashed back-to-back another safety and scored on error allowing Brown to score. Hull flied to end up on third. Wagner's ground ball to first scored Hull across the plate for a 3-0 lead.

Hughes' bunt single, Smrke's base knock to centre, with an error on the same play, put two on in the fifth. Brown drove one home with another safety and Hull's fly ball scored the solid Kitchener product. Hull stopped a solid double to right for the 6-0 lead. Wannamaker loaded the sacks with walks and pulled out unscathed in the sixth. In the seventh Bert Faulkner hit a towering home run with two out. Goegan doubled and made it 8-0 on an error.

Trenton in the meantime was busy getting the base runners but could do nothing with the ball. Hull, who fanned seven in the first, got excellent support from new second baseman Keith Stacey in the sixth. Stacey grabbed a hot ground ball and made the runner down at the base. Hull retired Bob Burner on a fly shot for the third out of the frame with two men on base.

Every man in the Bobcat lineup hit safely except Coubles and a single while Lou doubles and a single while Denny Smrke hit a double and two one-baggers. "Wiener" Brown singled twice and Bert Faulkner homered while the other hits were by Hull, Jackie Hughes, Fiorri Goegan and Keith Stacey.

'Cookie' Intends To Show Tiger-Cats

TORONTO (CP) — Cookie Gilchrist is a good football player with a bad reputation.

He has been called a "dumb athlete" and sold by his team for $5,000 after helping bring home the Grey Cup.

But he dislikes that he has a chip on his shoulder and is hard to handle as a football player.

The crashing fullback who scares coaches despite his brilliant record on the gridiron and limelight accuses Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union of spreading rumors and not treating him with "kindness."

"I expected to be treated as a man and as an individual," he said in an interview. "I've been treated this way by Hamilton."

CITES LOW PAY

He started with them in 1956 for $4,800," he said. "I made the all-star team and they offered me a $700 raise for next year.

"I wanted more. Why some of their imported players are getting more in income tax than I got in salary."

Now with Toronto Argonauts for the 1959 Big Four season, the 31-year-old Negro backfielder is looking forward to a chance to "show people" in Hamilton and Toronto. Trimble shouldn't have traded me last year."

From United States high school ranks Cookie moved to Hamilton after one season with Sarnia and with Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen. He helped the Twats win the Grey Cup in 1957, then went to Saskatchewan Roughriders for $5,000.

Now the Argonauts in a trade after he told the Roughriders he didn't want to play with them any more.

TOOK PAY CUT

Gilchrist said he took a pay cut of $2,500 in 1958 in moving from Sarnia to Kitchener - Waterloo because his former coach, Harvey Johnson, "treated me like a man."

Now married and father of one child, Cookie is trying to establish himself outside of football with a restaurant in Hamilton.

"I have no education to fall back on when I'm through as a football player," he said. "I like good things—clothes, food, cars, all the nice things of life, so I have to make money."

Moore Returns To Road Work

The postponement of the championship battle with Canada's Yvon Durelle changed the date from July 15 to July 29.

Moore has been set for 12 rounds.

The champion, claiming that Durelle "can't fight" with available Montreal sparring partners, said he may have to import one from Chicago.

Durelle, at Moncton, N.B., was reported doing lots of sparring work and his weight was said to be "five pounds over the limit. He is due back here next Wednesday.

Campbell Leads Western Open

Campbell's score was five below par for the 6,626-yard layout. The 36-year-old Pittsburgh golfer, who has been making the rounds of the tournament circuit for 15 years, missed a 45-foot putt on the first hole, he barely missed a 63, which, he said, would have made it "the best round in my life."

The brilliant 31 was a shot better than the previous competitive mark for the course, set posted by Chick Harbert in a qualifying round for the 1953 Open. Harbert's record was matched Thursday by Doug Ford, former masters and western open champion.

Soo Refuses To Nibble At Pro Bait

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The two-day old Eastern Professional Hockey League premiers no great a financial risk to this city's Greyhound club.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and their backers were hopeful of luring the Eastern senior pro circuit, formed from the ashes of the Quebec Hockey League and a wing of the Ontario Hockey Association.

But when the promoters here looked into travel and schedule arrangements for visiting teams they had a back out—for now anyway.

So far Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, Kingston Marchants have penciled the league from the OHA, Eastern division and Montreal Royals and Trois-Rivieres Lions from the Quebec Provincial loop. The same OHA northern section as the Greyhounds last year, Sudbury Wolves.

NEED MORE SUPPORT

President Bob Boston of Sault Ste. Marie Promotions Limited said Thursday the club would have to give up the "reasonably sure" $1,500 support is stronger. The promotions group was formed to back the Soo Greyhounds when they appeared too shaky to continue in the OHA-Senior.

Three members of the new minor pro league were confident Wednesday, at a planned 4-day meeting for July 22 in Kingston.

The QHL, formed in 1953 from the old Quebec Senior Hockey League, ceased operations "until notice" when Quebec Athletic Commission refused to sanction the one-year suspension of operations. Under the QHL's constitution at least four clubs must operate in the league.

The new league has applied to the National Hockey League for affiliation with all professional clubs. In the NHL said they would be happy to make up are Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks and the New York Rangers of the NHL and Buffalo of the AHL.

Quinte Tennis

The Batawa Tennis Club defeated Point Anne three matches to two in a Bay of Quinte Tennis League match on Wednesday.

The results:

Men's doubles—Gerald Ireland and Bill Templeton, Batawa, defeated Gordon Lennox and Gordon Plummer of Point Anne, 6-1, 6-3.

Ladies' doubles — Freida MacDonald and Helen Farrar of Batawa, defeated Esther Jubb and Jean Stewart of Pt. Anne, 6-0, 6-3.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP)—In a spectacular spill less than 100 feet from the finish, two leading horses and their drivers were thrown to the track at Old Woodbine Thursday night.

Mercury Waples, youthful driver from Victoria Harbor, was unconscious when injured in a spill that also involved Ken Galbraith of Chesley.

Galbraith was badly shaken but otherwise unhurt. Waples has a sprained ankle which may show a break when he undergoes X-rays today. Nevertheless, after a short rest he was back driving in the seventh race.

Waples, driving Connie Aiton, a three-year-old filly owned by the Northwood Stables of Pembroke, appeared to have the evening's fourth race won when he took command on the inside to overtake Galbraith, driving Bonny Sister, another three-year - old filly, owned by Norman McIntyre of Charing Cross.

But Boxer's Sister broke stride, then went down, and veered against Waples' sulky and sent him down, too.

The horses were unhurt.

Lacrosse

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough Mercurys defeated Brampton Excelsiors 8-5 Thursday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game and tightened their hold on first place.

Buck Bailey scored three for the Mercurys, while Bob Curtis and Larry Ferguson put in two each and Bob Allen added one.

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Writer

BRANTFORD (CP) — A 105-pound American girl, who looks as if a slight breeze would submerge her, took just 45 minutes to show Canadian swimming officials they will be mighty tough in the Pan-American Games at Chicago.

Fourteen-year old Deirdre Nelson from Philadelphia, Pa., whipped Canadian champion Sara Barbour of Brantford in two straight heats of the opening-day's program of the three-day Canadian senior swimming and diving championships Thursday night. In each case she robbed it in by breaking the Ontario girl's Canadian records.

The attractive black - haired Philadelphian, making her first appearance in international competition after a show from a field of nearly 180 swimmers, made Toronto, Ontario and the eastern states.

CLIPS OFF 11 SECONDS

She clipped just six seconds from Miss Barber's Canadian senior record of 6:14.1 in the 440-yard individual medley and 45 minutes later returned to smash the Brantford girl's freestyle record.

She took the quarter-mile medley in 5:31.4 while Miss Barber was second with 6:06.7. The old record was set last year by Miss Barber in a competition in Pan-American, Olympic and British Empire Games since 1954.

Miss Rhoads rebutted to take the 220-yard freestyle, after a thrilling battle with Miss Barber and Susan Doerr of Philadelphia, in 2:31.5. Susan also clocked the same time but the judges ruled Miss Rhoads the winner. Miss Barber, who set the record of 2:35.1 last month, was third with 2:32.

Cameron Crust of Montreal, a member of last year's Pan-American Games team, won the 440-yard men's individual medley in 5:43.3 after finishing third behind Fred Rounds of Indianapolis and Tom Stout of Montreal in the 220-yard freestyle, won in 2:13.8. Werth won the men's 220 yard backstroke event in 2:30.4.

Steve Rabinovitch, 18, Montreal, set a Canadian open record of 1:15.8 in the men's 110-yard breaststroke.

City Commercial Softball League

Sports Centre increased their lead in the City Commercial softball league last night by scoring a seven-run-behind 10-9 victory over the Bobcat Juveniles.

The winners, who trailed 7-1 early in the game, finally won it in the last frame with three runs on Doug Murray's double and a Bobcat error.

Doug Smith fanned 12-8 and had three home runs.

Junior Day was the winning hurler after taking over from Al Adams in the third frame. They were relieved by Murray Thrasher and walked four. Sonny Holloway lost while going the route for the Juveniles. He gave up only six hits but walked seven. Adams struck out seven.

Leo St. Denis topped the Sports Centre at bat with a double and single. Doug Murray and Ab Wright banged out two doubles apiece. Bennett and Bob Brooks getting singles.

Doug Bennett had a three-run homer and a double, Gary Dungan a two-run single and Sonny Holloway a bases-empty blast and a double. Billy Thrasher, Murray and Adams led twice while Dick Clapp, Pug Keller and Stu Muirhead rapped two-baggers. Joe Robitaille also hit safely.

Northern Electric took advantage of 17 walks to hand second-place Mead-Sportsmen a 21-4 whipping last night for their second setback of the week.

Mead-Sportsmen started with a solid coming on in the fourth and coach Jack Hunter pulled the starter from him in the sixth, for the losers. But between them they allowed only six struck out six and handed out 17 free passes.

Howard Skelly sparked Northern's attack with a double and single and drove in a big eight with the hickory. Harry Wardhaugh contributed three singles to the cause while Doug and Holmes doubled and Williams had a single.

Bill Muirhead, Warren Snell and Dan Belnap rapped doubles in a losing cause. Larry Lougheed, Hunter and Lloyd Worsley had singles.

Harness Steward Fired, Hired In One Day

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Dickenson, dismissed Wednesday as harness racing steward at Old Woodbine Race Track, was back on the job Thursday night.

The Ontario Racing Commission notified Dickenson by telegram Wednesday that his appointment was withdrawn. Signed by commission chairman D. Tupper Bigelow, the letter gave no reason.

Thursday the Canadian Trotting Association warned it might be up to more racing if Dickenson, serving his first term as racing judge, was relieved of his job. He was reinstated.

"There has been no change in Dickenson's status", said Hugh Proudfoot, association president, after receiving interview from his home in Coulonge, Que. "If Dickenson is to be replaced there must be a reason and there must be a meeting."

The track steward is appointed by the CTA, governing body of harness racing in Canada. The racing commission controls the sport's racing in Ontario. It had originally approved Dickenson's appointment.

"We're consulting our legal advisers to see what our position is", Mr. Bigelow said Thursday night.

Jockey Killed Seconds After Winning Race

BUENOS AIRES (AP)— Juan Pedro Artigas, Argentine Turfmont jockey, was battered to death Thursday seconds after leaving a race won by his frightened mount sped 350 yards beyond the finish line, tossing the rider's head against the fence posts or rail all the way.

Artigas, up on San Matias, had triumphed by three lengths in the main and seven-furlong feature at San Isidro Park. When the jockey began pulling up on his mount, the horse flung back its head, striking Artigas on the forehead.

Apparently knocked unconscious, Artigas slid from the saddle but his foot caught in the stirrup. He was dragged against virtually every post in the next 350 yards before San Matias was caught.

Braves Sign Canuck Hurler

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves Thursday night announced the signing of southpaw pitcher Al Nagara Falls, Ont., to a 1960 contract with Cedar Rapids, farm of the class-B three-I league. Newton, 18, a 6-2, 195 pounder, recently graduated from high school.

Riders Want To Expand Seat Capacity

OTTAWA (CP)— Ottawa president Barry O'Brien of Ottawa Rough Riders issued a public invitation to city hall Thursday to discuss an increase in seating accommodation at 30,000-seat Lansdowne Park or the construction of a new stadium for the Big Four football club.

O'Brien said that the club could sell more season tickets if there were more choice seats available between the goal lines. This year the club is aiming at an advance ticket sale of 9,000.

The club has paid two-thirds of the cost—about $18,000—for an addition of 500 box seats, and tickets for the seats were almost all sold before the stands were up this spring.

O'Brien said the city could make a long-term view of expanding the park, property of the municipally-owned Central Canada Exhibition Association.

O'Brien said he has written Mayor George Nelms asking for a meeting.

ARCARO IN SADDLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Eddie Arcaro, injured when his mount fell in the Belmont Stakes, returned to the saddle today. He has been assigned four mounts at Belmont Park. Arcaro spent almost a week in the hospital following the accident, then flew to another week in Eastern Ontario.

Imports Desert Montreal Als Training Camp

A couple of days ago a couple of hunky tackles disappeared quietly — Wayne Farmer from Purdue University in Indiana and Joe Schroeder from Gavier University in Cincinnati.

Farmer and Schroeder were likely prospects as newly needed replacements at tackle. Brodnax was the man expected to fill the fullback spot of Pat Abbruzzi, traded to the WIFU Calgary Stampeders after last season.

"These fellows just don't seem to have any sense of responsibility," said Alouette president Ted Workman. "Some of these boys were given bonuses for signing and advances on their salaries. Yet they just take off and leave without giving us a word of explanation."

Former Senator Denies Getting Union Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former senator George H. Bender swore Wednesday he received no money or political support from the Teamsters Union after being fired in 1954 congressional investigation of high Teamster officials.

Bender, now an antitrust attorney, investigator for President James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters Union, gave his statement to the Senate Labor-Rackets committee.

The committee produced sworn statements from two Ohio Teamster officials that the union did support Republican Bender in his successful 1954 Senate campaign against Democrat Thomas Burke.

The statements were from Walter Schulz and Otto Probe, officials of Teamsters Local 100 in Cincinnati. They contended the union threw its support to Bender in a surprise switch they said was ordered by William Presser, the head of Ohio Teamsters.

Bender had gone before the committee as a volunteer witness to challenge testimony given earlier that Teamster money allegedly had been "spent to pull strings" to see to it that a congressional investigation of Hrescar and one of his aides was dropped.

James R. Luken, president of the Cincinnati Teamsters Union council, told the committee the reference was to Bender's investigation of Presser and Louis (Babe) Triscaro, another head of Ohio Teamsters.

Bender told the committee Luken's statement amounted to reference to raising money for payoff purposes."

"It's perfectly absurd," the former senator said.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, July 11

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Perform that task that is impossible during busy weekdays and gain the support of a higher-up. If you are on the beam, you will then receive a wonderful invitation which you must accept. Increase happiness and prestige. Be gay.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Excellent day for recreation and sports, and especially fine for getting appearance improved by going to beauty or medical experts. P. M. If you are broad-minded, that unusual turn of events can be distinctly to your advantage, at home.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Putting abode in fine order is the best thing to do today, plus adding artistic dashes of color, but bric-a-brac, etc. Fine gadgets that will be time-and energy-savers, too. P. M. enjoy favorite recreation with charming friend.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)—Conferring with regular partners and expressing own ideas for greater success, as well as ironing out any differences of opinion fine today. P. M. plan how to make more money. Talk it over with mate, wisely.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Daytime is fine for repairing real estate that it may take on greater beauty and value. Set up a finer bookkeeping system, too. Tonight ideal for getting your talents before the right people. Be sure to drive with care.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—Make it a point to be with dear set comrades for a day of fun and relaxation. Tonight is best spent quietly, however, or with close intimates. Do not neglect to assist those in need. Use generosity of spirit.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Rolling up your sleeves and delving into all those tasks that have been accumulating of late is then done very quickly today. P. M. go out with friends and have a most happy time.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—You can achieve greater accomplishment today if you cooperate fully with associates, intimates or friends in some common endeavor. P. M. do not argue with higher-up. Impress with your fine capability.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Working practically at your job now impresses one in power who can spell real advancement for you. P. M. is then ideal for looking into more advanced systems, new outlets, research, study, etc. Keep busy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Emerge right at out of dull doldrum routine you may be in and meet fascinating and progressive people. Derive enjoyment from contacts and be alert to any good opportunities. P. M. be with loved one for inspiration.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Considerable time spent for ideas on how to make your enterprises more successful, present occupation more remunerative, will pay big dividends now. P. M. it is possible to go out with that fascinating person socially. Have fun.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Ideal time to confer with partners or regular fellow workers so that you arrive at a more efficient method of operating in the future, realize a greater income soon. P. M. plan better health, beauty and rest periods. Retire early.

There Can Be No Neutrality

By ROY L. SMITH

There are a great many things in this life about which each of us can be perfectly neutral. One may not need to endorse, or condemn, a particular television program, or certain art forms. There is no moral obligation resting upon any man to prefer roast beef or lemon pie. There are, however, other matters in which no man can be neutral without disavowing his own soul, his own conscience, and his own manhood.

WHEN JUSTICE AT STAKE

There come those times in the experience of every community when justice is at stake, and in such the Christian has but one choice. He can stand on the side of justice, or he can betray the holiest thing within him, refuse to take a stand, and play safe. In the event that he prefers to do the latter, he can be perfectly sure that he does it at the expense of his own integrity and peace of mind.

And the same thing can be said of a Christian Church. There are conditions in every community that cry out for redress from which no congregation of Christians can abstain without losing its standing as a group representing Jesus Christ.

WHEN POOR SUFFER

On more than one occasion Jesus identified himself with the poor and the suffering. In at least one instance He said in order to do something for Him we would have to do something for them.

It is possible, perhaps, for some people who have never accepted the responsibilities of membership in the Christian faith to ignore their responsibilities for the poor, the oppressed, and the suffering. But once that any man has affiliated with the Church of Jesus Christ, he has assumed a responsibility from which he can never thereafter be discharged.

WHEN MORALS INVOLVED

Any assault on good morals is a challenge to the Church. That which degrades women and children, which makes holy things common, which undermines the sense of self-respect, and which debauches otherwise honest men, is something to which the Church must give priority attention if it is to continue being the Church.

The Uniform Sunday School Lessons for July 12: "DECISIONS DETERMINE DESTINY." Deuteronomy 29 through 34.

In a certain community an effort was being made to emancipate the city from the grip of a vicious political machine that was in control of the city government. When a prominent church of the town was urged to participate in the clean-up, the governing board held a meeting to consider the call and finally said, "We have members of our congregation in both camps. We will therefore take a position of neutrality, allowing each person to decide the issue for himself." And that day the influence of that church began to wane in that city.

There are times and circumstances in which the first business of the Church is to take sides.

Every man who becomes a member of the Church has given public notice that the will of God is to be the highest law of his life.

It is true, of course, that in some situations there is a wide difference of opinion as to what is the will of God. In such circumstances the individual may be excused from taking a definite position. But there are other circumstances in which the will of God is perfectly plain to all, and on such occasions there can be no neutrality that is without shame.

A young businessman had sought membership in a popular lunch club of his community, and the admissions committee had voted that he should be received. At a certain moment in the indoctrination proceedings the chairman of the meeting said, "Henry, up to this moment you were a free man. As a matter of fact, you can continue to be free, if you so desire. But from the moment that you take the membership vows of this organization you are no longer free. You are obligated. You will assume the obligation of your own free will, but you cannot thereafter do as you please. In taking the membership oath you have sacrificed your freedom to do as you please."

When the Hebrew nation entered into the covenant relation with God, it surrendered its freedom. So do we when we join the Church.

Queen and Prince Starting 56-Hour Rest at B.C. Lodge

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were to head into isolation today for a 56-hour rest, leaving behind an atmosphere of gay informality that marked their first day in British Columbia.

When they boarded their train after lively send-off function Friday night 1,500 people who jammed against rope barrits at a ball field in the village of Sicamous were talking to themselves about the 30-minute visit of the royal couple.

It had been scheduled for 10 minutes but the time ran by quickly as the Queen and prince strolled along the barriers, ignoring the mosquitoes which had the crowd slapping regularly.

CROWD CHEERS

They spoke to dozens of persons, commented on the mountains from nearby Salmon Arm, recalled their visit to Sicamous in 1951 and left the crowd cheering with greater enthusiasm than had been displayed at the earlier Big stops.

They were to make two more stops today before starting their vacation. They were to begin the day in this interior city of 10,000, then travel by train to Kamloops, 80 miles west.

From there they were to leave by air for their rest at Tsuniah Lake Lodge, an isolated fisherman's paradise 50 miles southeast of Kamloops.

The royal couple Friday rode in the royal train from the Alberta city of Calgary to Banff, then drove to Lake Louise at speeds up to 75 miles an hour after they dropped 30 minutes behind schedule. From there they drove to Field, entering B.C. at a more leisurely 40 miles an hour.

STATION STOPS

A station crowd of more than 1,000 cheered them aboard the train and another 1,000 were there at the station at Golden where they stepped and appeared on the platform. Twice that number were on hand to greet them for a one-hour stop in Revelstoke.

In between they had periods of two and three hours aboard the train which afforded them opportunity to act as tourists, filming and photographing the scenic beauty of the sun-bathed mountain peaks.

They had lunch and dinner aboard the train. Over lunch with Justice Minister Fulton the Queen asked whether the cars had exceeded the speed limit—it is 50 miles an hour—during the Banff-Lake Louise drive. Mr. Fulton said he did not know since he had not been in the motorcade.

From the start of the day to the finish, the weather was fine.

JOKE WITH REPORTERS

The royal couple laughed and joked with members of the Revelstoke crowd before making a four - mile drive up 6,000 - foot Mount Revelstoke to a lookout at the 2,500-foot level.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A large area of unsettled weather moved into Ontario late Friday. Changeable skies plus scattered precipitation will be felt in all parts of the province today. Indications point to an improvement Sunday with increased chance of more sunshine than cloud.

Two Bandits Steal $25,000 In Play Money

SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP)— Two bandits, one armed with a pistol and the other with a club held up a liquor store Friday and made off with $25,000—all of it in play money.

Frank M. Lozito, operator of the store, said he had shown the bogus bills away playfully in a beach deposit bag at the request of his children.

He was working at his desk near the front door when the man with the pistol entered. The other bandit came in the back door, carrying what appeared to be a club wrapped in cloth.

"This is it," said the gunman. "Get over behind the counter and get the bag."

Lozito handed over the bag of funny money.

The Queen and her husband looked at the scenery of mountains, passes and rivers. She wore a pink suit and grey-blue print dress, a change from the full-skirted dress of pale blue with white polka-dot sash she had earlier in the day. The prince wore a grey lounge suit and hat.

Just before the royal party arrived at the lookout the RCMP nearly lost a patrol down the mountainside. The band brake failed and when the car was occupied and it rolled off the narrow road, but was stopped at the edge by some trees.

28 Hollywood Homes Burned As Firebug Sets Brush Fire

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Twenty-eight homes are known to have been destroyed in a fire that possibly touched off by an arsonist—which swept through 1,000 acres Friday in Hollywood's Laurel Canyon.

Fifteen other homes were damaged. Three hundred persons were forced to flee.

Most of the homes were in the $30,000-to-$40,000 class. Seven firemen were injured trying to save them. A woman resident and her son suffered burns running from their home as flames raced down upon it. It was destroyed.

A family in a 1959 car barely escaped when the driver, blinded by smoke, drove off the road. The occupants fled on foot. Flames caught the car moments later and set it afire.

The blaze broke out in two different places on Laurel Canyon Boulevard and flared up minutes later a mile away on Mulholland Drive—leading firemen to suspect a firebug.

Gene Fowler, son of Television's Wanted Dead or Alive, helped battle flames that crept within a few hundred yards of his hillside home.

Other homes in the fire area are owned by Ben Alexander, sidekick to Sgt. Friday on Dragnet; and Scott Brady, Dan in O'Herlihy, Dan Duryea, Charles Coburn, master of ceremonies for Jack Bailey, John Smith of TV's 77 Sunset Strip, and Ken Tobey, husband of Reve Gun, Will Travel.

No celebrity homes were reported damaged by the flames.

Wants Canada Represented On Central Africa Inquiry

LONDON (CP)—Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation, says he would like to see representatives of Canada and Australia on a proposed fact-finding commission for the African territories.

A main point is to decide on the composition of a commission to report on the political situation in the protectorates of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, which nominally pass out of British control but remain part of the federation obtaining independence. Southern Rhodesia is the federation's richest territory.

Sir Roy, one-time engine driver and boxing champion, told reporters this week he would welcome representatives from U.S., Canada, Australia and other Commonwealth countries on the commission.

But the prime minister said: "We will not be put in the dock. I believe in partnership with affairs run by the people whose interests are paid out according to what is put in."

Sir Roy said to have had a frank—possibly testy — two-hour talk Thursday with Dr. Dillon, who wants African representatives on the commission.

SEES NO DANGER TO SOVEREIGNTY IN ARCTIC AREA

Foreign Companies' Activities No Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton says no foreign sovereignty in the Far North will not be endangered by foreign participation in the exploitation of oil and gas resources.

He made the statement in the Commons Friday night in replying to Opposition Leader Pearson who accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Hamilton of trying to mislead Canadians about government efforts to preserve sovereignty.

So long as companies searching for gas and oil are under effective Canadian administration "that is the most tangible evidence of the exercise of sovereignty of the world that this is Canada and that this is the land we will fight for," Mr. Hamilton said.

ISLANDS DOUBTFUL AREA

Mr. Hamilton said the question of sovereignty did not arise so far as the Canadian mainland was concerned. But the Arctic islands might be considered by some as "sensitive."

Canadian companies and Canadian individuals held more than 60 per cent of permits granted for exploration in the Arctic islands. As long as all companies operating there and foreign were under Canadian administration "we are giving the best evidence of sovereignty that we can give."

HARDIE PROGRAM

Mervyn Hardie (C—Mackenzie) earlier outlined his own $84,000,000 vision for northern development. He said the government should spend more of its "vision" money on present requirements instead of investing it all in the future.

Mr. Hardie proposed a program that would give existing transportation roads, water supply facilities, emergency airstrips to the Imperial community, a floor price for furs, transportation assistance for prospectors and even television.

Short Shorts Ban Poses Big Problem

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) Police probably will need assistance of tape measures to enforce a proposed new ordinance to bar "indecent" exposure of short shorts in public places.

The ordinance specifies that no part of the body may be bared between the armpit and the knee, except for the hair on the head and the knee joint.

Mayor Ernest Burrows, the city council will first approve the ordinance next week.

Then Mr. Porter, and not himself, will enforce the law, Deputy Reeve Howard to talk over the application for the permit with Mr. Porter.

He said the first time he heard about a police trap was when a provincial police officer asked him to sign a statement concerning his conversation with Mr. Howard. He had told police what he knew but had refused to sign anything.

Mr. Rollis said he called his solicitor, Councillor Harold Lipsett, and asked his advice. Mr. Lipsett, Mr. Rollis and Deputy Reeve Howard met Hall asked for an "election fund" contribution.

DEPUTY REEVE SAYS STATEMENT 'DASTARDLY LIE'

Accused of Taking Bribe for Permit

TORONTO (CP)—Two denials by witnesses, one of them accused of taking a bribe, has further complicated the crazy-quilt testimony in the judicial inquiry into York Township's land sales and financial affairs.

"It's a dastardly lie," shouted Deputy Reeve William Graham. That was his answer Friday to earlier testimony by real estate dealer Arthur Porter that he'd accepted $100 for his help in securing a building permit for builder Ray Zurchiatti.

Mr. Porter had testified that after a telephone call to Mr. Graham concerning the building permit he had gone to Mr. Graham's butcher shop and handed him $100 in an envelope. His statements were backed up by Mr. Zurchiatti.

Asked why the two former witnesses would attack his character, Mr. Graham replied: "It has me guessing."

BUILDERS DENIAL

The second denial of the day was by builder John Rollis. He denied Friday that he had ever had or had never asked him through Mr. Porter for $150 to aid him in getting a permit.

Mr. Rollis testified he had given $150 directly through Mr. Porter on condition that he get a permit to build a bungalow, contrary to zoning bylaws, but township council had first approved the application for the permit.

He said the first time he heard about a police trap was when a provincial police officer asked him to sign a statement concerning his conversation with Mr. Howard. He had told police what he knew but had refused to sign anything.

Mr. Rollis said he called his solicitor, Councillor Harold Lipsett, and asked his advice. Mr. Lipsett, Mr. Rollis and Deputy Reeve Howard met Hall asked for an "election fund" contribution.

Geneva-Bound Herter To Make Call At Ottawa

Is Returning to Parley In More Hopeful Mood

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter takes off for Geneva today by way of Ottawa for a session of possibly more fruitful negotiating session with the Soviet Union over the German crisis.

U.S. officials voiced guarded optimism that, in contrast to the talks that recessed June 20 after six weeks of deadlock, the second round would at least sidetrack the Berlin issue for the time being and pave the way for a summit gathering later in the year.

Herter's flight this time marked the first official jaunt in a new jet plane, one of three $5,500,000 craft the U.S. Air Force has outfitted for use by President Eisenhower and other government leaders. The Queen Elizabeth-sized craft is a military version of the Boeing 707 airliner with special electronic communications gear aboard.

HERTER'S ITINERARY

At 4 p.m. EDT, he was to leave Ottawa for Geneva via a refueling stop in Newfoundland.

The Russians, who also are pushing for a summit parley, launched off the German crisis by demanding an end to the post-Potsdam occupation agreements. Soviet troops still control East Germany, which surrounds West Berlin. Britain, France and the United States are pledged to yield the city's access to the West.

Authorities said Herter is returning to Geneva with the same general plan rejected by the Russians before the recess three weeks ago. But they saw some hope for flexibility.

A statement issued by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko June 28 indicated Moscow is not insisting on a deadline for ending any temporary agreement reached on Berlin or abandonment of Allied rights in the city thereafter.

The talks had reached a cooling conclusion from previous Soviet utterances, which they announced as threats.

LONDON (AP)—Britain got a strong private indication from the Kremlin Friday that Russia is ready to respect Western rights in Berlin at least until early 1961.

Sources said it was the third assurance passed to the West that the Soviet Union is prepared to freeze the Berlin crisis if some agreements can be reached to ease tensions in the city and all Germany.

These hitherto-secret developments clearly lay behind the offe-pressed confidence of Prime Minister Macmillan's government that an East-West summit conference is a certainty. The best guess of authorities here is that the first of a series of summit meetings will be held in Geneva in late August or around mid-September.

Sandwiched between these summit parleys would be a series of negotiations by foreign ministers of the powers.

GENEVA (Reuters) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today expressed hope the resumed Big Four talks here will make the international atmosphere warmer and lead to a summit conference.

Gromyko flew in from Moscow for the purpose. Minister Valerian Zorin, Jakob Malik and other officials arrived with the Soviet foreign ministry. The foreign ministers resume their talks Monday. The reaffirmed stand of the Soviet proposals but steered clear of committing himself on the matter question of the conference. This is whether Russia will insist on a definite limit for ending Western occupation rights in Berlin.

Gromyko, reading from a prepared English text, told reporters the Soviet East-West conference proposals of June 8 and June 18 "constituted a good basis for reaching agreement.

The three Western ministers are due here Sunday.

Face Hard Fight In Effort to Win Steel Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators faced a hard fight today in attempts to win a settlement formula in time to avoid starting the nation's biggest steel strike in 12 years.

With an industry-wide strike threatened at midnight Tuesday, progress so far could be measured in inches—about a mile left to go.

Much hard bargaining over side issues during the last few days has created a situation, however, where a package economic offer could lead to a new contract.

The 500,000 striking workers from both industry and union sources, the dozen leading steel companies have taken a firm stand on their refusal to raise wages or benefits resulting in any cost increases.

WANT CONCESSIONS

Instead, the industry bargaining team, headed by R. Conrad Cooper, U.S. Steel Corporation vice-president, is insisting initially on contract changes that would give steel firms more leeway in working work assignments and otherwise slashing operating costs.

David J. McDonald, Steelworkers Union president, has pledged it may come up with a money offer if the companies will consider allowing more management prerogatives.

Such bargaining was proceeding at an accelerated pace with many key firms planning a Sunday start on the job of cooling open hearths and blast furnaces to get ready for a possible Tuesday night walkout.

There is a costly operation that the industry would like to avoid if it sees any chance of a peaceful settlement.

Struck by Car

TIMMINS (CP) — Robert Laurin, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Laurin, died Friday night after he was struck by a car while riding his bicycle on the first traffic fatality in his northern Ontario city of about 28,000 in 617 days.

RCMP, Metro Police Join in Drive on Vice

TORONTO (CP)—Public attention focused on an area in central Toronto blemished by vice dens has led to police purge against dope peddlers and prostitutes.

"We are going all out after the scum and slime of the underworld," Magistrate A. Bick, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission, told reporters Friday night.

He announced that the RCMP are forming a joint task force combined forces in a drive to erase the underworld's grip on the Yonge-Dundas-Sherbourne streets area.

Magistrate Bick said that in the past the police have been arrested and charged with the illegal sale of liquor.

REVIEW LICENCES

The concerted police action followed three days of testimony before a Toronto commission which is reviewing the licences of two restaurants said to be hangout for prostitutes and dope peddlers.

Magistrate Bick called for longer penitentiary terms for convicted drug peddlers and said the government should increase the 14-year maximum for trafficking in opium and Narcotic Drug Act.

PEST PROBLEM

"With Toronto becoming an ocean port, making it easier to smuggle drugs, we must be constantly on guard against an increase in trafficking," he said.

Toronto police have reported there are about 150 known drug addicts in the city, compared to almost 1,100 in Montreal.

Mr. Bick said investigators will also concentrate on clearing out tawdry houses.

Fell Into River

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Evelyn Clake, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cloke of Penetanguishene, was drowned when he fell into the bank into the Trent Canal here Friday.

Three Strikers Charged With Plant Damage

GUELPH (CP)—Three strikers were charged Friday with causing malicious damage and one of them was also charged with assaulting a police officer Wednesday night in which almost 1,000 windows of the W. C. Wood Company plant were smashed.

Members of Local 544, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union (ind.), have been picketing the company for seven months in negotiations broke down April 3.

Charged Wednesday and Patrick Austins, both 23, were remanded on $100 bail when they appeared in magistrate's court. Roland Hare, 38, who is facing two charges, will be arraigned on Tuesday.

Tavern Owner Slain by Bandit In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A young gunman, his face cut and bleeding, fled from a downtown tavern Friday after shooting and killing the tavern's elderly owner in a suspected holdup attempt.

Arthur Martin, 58, died instantly when shot in the chest after he hurled a beer bottle at the gunman's face in an attempt to thwart the holdup. The bottle cut the man's face badly.

The gunman was arrested a few blocks by firemen from a neighboring fire station, but escaped when he broke away from police.

Police said no money was taken.

MOSCOW (AP) — More than a year ago elderly Agripina Fudovkina died, leaving her aging husband, a carry over from the days of presumed poverty.

Then the husband, Senyo Stephanov, fell ill and a friendly lawyer took him to the hospital.

"Look after my things," Stephanov said.

The lawyer took a look.

But the lawyer found a bank book with 170,000 rubles ($42,500 at the official rate) and 25,000 rubles ($6,250) in government bonds.

Then the old man died and government officials moved in and came upon a hoard that ran back to Czarist days — and there was no hint of how the couple had acquired it.

A box in the cupboard contained a diamond necklace and 11 gold spoons were hidden in papers added.

Two Believed Drowned in River

DUNDEE, Que. (CP) — Police dragged the St. Lawrence River Friday for bodies of two men believed drowned after their overturned boat was found Thursday night.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An automobile insurance policy scheduled with the death of the insured person, according to a Supreme Court judgment handed down here Friday by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence.

Mr. Justice Spence saw "a very strong case" for the implied amendment of this situation." His decision left the estate of the owner of a car involved in a collision, and the driver saddled with a $5,000 claim for damages.

The suit arose from an accident on Hwy. 3, Aylmer, Ont., on Dec. 29, 1952, in which Rosetta Martha Campbell, was killed when driven by Leroy Long, of Poplar Hill, was involved in collision with another car.

The Campbell car collided with another driven by Harold Finlay, of Lobo Township. Mr. Finlay later sued and was awarded damages totalling $1,-452.

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were to head into isolation today for a 56-hour rest, hoping within an atmosphere of gay informality that marked their first day in British Columbia.

When they boarded their train after today's function Friday night, 1,500 people who jammed against rope barriers at a ball field in the village of Sicamous were talking to themselves about the 20-minute visit of the royal couple.

CROWD CHEERS

They spoke to dozens of persons, commented on the cool weather from nearby Salmon Arm, recalled their visit to Sicamous in 1951 and left the crowd cheering with greater enthusiasm than had been displayed at the earlier B.C. stops.

They were to make two more stops today before starting their vacation. They were to begin the day in this interior city of 10,000, then travel by train to Kamloops, 80 miles west.

From there they were to leave by air for their rest at Pennask Lake Lodge, an isolated fisherman's paradise 50 miles south east of Kamloops.

The royal couple Friday rode in the royal train from the city limits of Calgary also Banff, then drove to Lake Louise at speeds up to 75 miles an hour after they dropped 30 minutes behind schedule. From there they drove to Field, entering B.C. at a more leisurely 40 miles an hour.

STATION STOPS

A station crowd of more than 1,000 cheered them aboard the train and another 1,000 turned out at the station at Golden where a guard of honor appeared on the platform. Twice that number were on hand to greet them for a one-hour stop in Revelstoke.

In between they had periods of two and three hours aboard the train which afforded them opportunity to act as tourists, dining and integrating the scenic beauty of the sun-bathed mountain peaks.

They had lunch and dinner aboard the train. Over lunch with Justice Minister Fulton the Queen asked whether the cars had exceeded the speed limit—it is 50 miles an hour—during the Banff-Lake Louise drive. Mr. Fulton said he did not know since he had not been in the motorcade.

From the start of the day to the finish, the weather was fine.

SOME SWEETER

Two Bandits Steal $25,000 In Play Money

SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP)— Two bandits, one armed with a pistol and the other with a club, held up a liquor store Friday and made off with $25,000—all of it in play money.

Frank M. Lozito, operator of the store, said he had stashed the bogus bills away playfully in a bank deposit bag at the request of his children.

He was working at his desk near the front when the man with the pistol entered. The other bandit, with the club, at the door, carrying what appeared to be a club wrapped in cloth.

"This is it," said the gunman. "Get over behind the counter and get the bag."

Lozito handed over the bag of funny money.

The Queen and her husband asked the speed of mountains, passes and rivers. She wore a pink side and grey-blue print dress, a change from the full-skirted dress of pale blue with white polka dots she wore earlier in the day. The prince wore a light-weight tan suit all day.

Just before the royal party arrived at the lookout the RCMP directed the lookout the RCMP—nearly lost a patrol car down the mountainside. The hand brake on the patrol car was set, it occupied and it rolled off the narrow road, but was stopped at the edge by some trees.

SEES NO DANGER TO SOVEREIGNTY IN ARCTIC AREA

Foreign Companies' Activities No Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton says Canadian sovereignty in the Far North will not be endangered by foreign participation in the exploitation of oil and gas resources.

He made the statement in the Commons Friday night in replying to Opposition Leader Pearson who accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Hamilton of trying to mislead Canadians about government efforts to preserve northern sovereignty.

So long as companies searching for gas and oil are under effective Canadian administration "that is the most tangible evidence to any person in any part of the world that this is Canada and that this is the land we will fight for," Mr. Hamilton said.

ISLANDS DOUBTFUL AREA

Mr. Hamilton said the question of sovereignty did not arise so far as the Canadian mainland was concerned. But the Arctic islands might be considered by some as "enmities".

Canadian companies and Canadian individuals held more than 95 per cent of permits granted for exploration in the Arctic islands. As long as all companies — Canadian and foreign — were under Canadian administration "we are giving the best evidence of sovereignty that we can give."

HARDIE PROGRAM

Mervyn Hardie (L—Mackenzie) earlier outlined his own $84,000,000 vision for northern development. He said a part of the government should spend more of its "vision" money on present requirements instead of investing it all in the future.

Mr. Hardie proposed a program that would give existing transportation facilities, water piping facilities, emergency airstrips for assisting communities, a floor price for furs, transportation assistance for prospectors and even television.

Orangemen Mark Battle of Boyne With Parades Across Province

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many of the 200,000 members of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America marched today to mark the 269th anniversary of the Battle of Boyne which secured the ascension to the English throne of William of Orange and established the Protestant succession.

Parades were set for today in Toronto, Winnipeg, Moncton, N.B., New Westminster, B.C., and other communities from coast to coast. Most will be led by "King Billy" riding a white horse.

The Toronto parade with more than 150 lodges is expected to be the largest. Last year there were 6,000 marchers and organizers expect more today. The Toronto group will b augmented by 60 Montrealers.

Lodges assembled at Kemptville, 22 miles south of Ottawa, will hear an address by T. Aubrey Kidd of Kingston, the first Canadian to be grand master of the British Orange Association in the world.

Orange societies have existed in Great Britain since 1686 and were named after William and Mary's successor to the throne. The society as it exists today was founded in Ireland in 1795 to keep alive the memory of the revolution of 1688 and the Battle of the Boyne in 1690 when, on July 12 the forces of William defeated those of James II.

The grand lodge for British North America was formed at Brockville in 1830 but now has its headquarters in Toronto.

28 Hollywood Homes Burned As Firebug Sets Brush Fire

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Twenty-eight homes are known to have been destroyed in a brush fire—possibly touched off by an arsonist—which swept through 1,000 acres Friday in Hollywood's Laurel Canyon.

Fifteen other homes were damaged. Three hundred persons were forced to flee.

Most of the homes were in the $30,000-to-$40,000 class. Seven firemen were injured trying to save them. A woman resident and her car suffered burns running from their home as flames raced down upon her. She was destroyed.

A family in a $250 car barely escaped when the driver, blinded by smoke, drove off the road. The occupants fled on foot. Flames caught the car moments later and set it afire.

The blaze broke out in two different places on Laurel Canyon Boulevard and flared up minutes later a mile away on Mulholland Highway, prompting police to suspect a firebug.

Steve McQueen, of Television's Wanted Dead or Alive, helped battle flames that crept within a few hundred yards of his hillside home.

Other homes in the fire area are owned by Ben Alexander, sidekick to Sgt. Friday on Dragnet; and actors Scott Brady, Dan O'Herlihy, Dan Duryea, Charles Coburn, TV master of ceremonies Jack Bailey, John Smith of TV's 77 Sunset Strip, and Ken Tobey, the hoarsboy of Have Gun, Will Travel.

No celebrity homes were reported damaged by the flames.

Wants Canada Represented On Central Africa Inquiry

LONDON (CP)—Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation, says he would like to see representatives of Canada and Australia on a proposed fact-finding commission for the African territories.

A main point is the composition of a commission to report on the political situation in the protectorates of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, which nominally expire in December, one year after the federation obtains independence. Southern Rhodesia has dominion status.

Sir Roy, one-time engine driver and boxing champion, told reporters this week he would welcome representatives from Canada, Australia and other Commonwealth countries on the commission.

But the prime minister said: "We will not be put in the dock. I believe in partnership with African states. I will not have my deeds are paid out according to what is put in."

He said to have had a frank—possibly testy — two-hour talk Thursday with Gaitskell, who wants African representatives on the commission.

RCMP, Metro Police Join in Drive on Vice

TORONTO (CP)—Public attention has been focused on area of central Toronto blemished by vice. dens has led to police purge against dope peddlers and prostitutes.

REVIEW LICENCES

The concerted police action follows a decision by Metropolitan Licence Metro Toronto commission which is reviewing the licences of two restaurants said to be the hangout for prostitutes and dope peddlers.

Magistrate Bick called for longer penitentiary terms for convicted dope peddlers and said the government should increase the minimum sentence for offences under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act.

DOPE PROBLEM

"With Toronto becoming an ocean port, making it easier to smuggle drugs, we must be constantly on guard against an increase in trafficking," he said. Toronto police have reported there are about 150 known dope peddlers in the city compared to almost 1,000 in Montreal.

Mr. Bick said investigators will also concentrate on clearing out bawdy houses.

DEPUTY REEVE SAYS STATEMENT 'DASTARDLY LIE'

Accused of Taking Bribe for Permit

TORONTO (CP)—Two denials by witnesses, one of them accused of taking a bribe, has further complicated the crazy-quilt of testimony in the judicial inquiry into York Township's land sales and financial affairs.

"It's a dastardly lie," shouted Deputy Reeve William Graham. That was his answer Friday to earlier testimony by real estate dealer Arthur Porter that he'd accepted $100 for his help in securing a building permit for builder Peter Zurchiehl.

Mr. Porter had testified that after a telephone call to Mr. Graham concerning the building permit he had gone to Mr. Graham's butcher shop and handed him $100 in an envelope. His statements were backed up by Mr. Zurchiehl.

Asked why the two former witnesses would attack his character, Mr. Graham replied: "It has me guessing."

BURDEN'S DENIAL

The second denial of the day was by builder John Burden, Mr. Graham's neighbor. Fred Howard also never asked him through Mr. Porter for $100 in return for getting a permit.

Mr. Rolin testified he had brought a property through Mr. Porter on condition that he get a building permit. He had no difficulty in zoning bylaws, but township council had refused the permit.

Then Mr. Porter, and not himself, who wanted to pay the Deputy Reeve Howard to talk over the application for the permit, Mr. Rolin said.

He said the first time he heard about a police trap was when a provincial police officer asked him to sign a statement concerning his meeting with Mr. Howard. He had told police what he had said to the Deputy Reeve.

Mr. Rolin said he called his lawyer, Councillor Harold Lipsden, and asked his advice. Mr. Lipsden then told Commissioner Lucas he never Fred Hall asked for an "election fund" contribution.

Face Hard Fight In Effort to Win Steel Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for an end to the steel lockout in attempts to win a settlement formula in time to avoid invoking the Taft-Hartley law appeared to be in for a long session this week-end.

With an industry-wide strike threatened at midnight Tuesday, progress so far could be measured only in inches with about a mile left to go.

The deadlock over side issues during the last few days has created a climate of pessimism but industry money offer could lead to a new contract.

The offer was reportedly received from both industry and union sources, the source including the union, were stood firm on their refusal to raise wages or make changes resulting in any cost increases.

WANT CONCESSIONS

The basic industry bargaining team headed by R. Conrad Cooper, U.S. Steel Corporation chairman, have been insisting on contract changes that would give steel firms more leeway in making work assignments and otherwise slashing operating costs.

David J. McDonald, Steelworkers Union president, has pledged "no backward step" from present contract terms.

The industry has indicated it may come up with a money offer but has been adamantly against allowing more management prerogatives.

The bargaining was proceeding at an accelerated pace with many top officials working a Sunday start, on the job of cooling open hearths and blast furnaces to get them for a possible Tuesday night walkout.

There is a costly operation that the industry would like to avoid if it sees any chance of a peaceful settlement.

Short Shorts Ban Poses Big Problem

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — The problem with which the arsenal of tape measures to enforce a proposed new ordinance to ban wearing of extremely short shorts in public places.

The ordinance specifies that no part of the body may be bared between the armpit and the knee, except the area above the hip joint and the knee joint.

A public hearing on the ordinance will be held Wednesday. The legislation is designed to tempt by this city on Northern New York city to prohibit the public wearing of what the ordinance considers scanty attire.

Mayor Jodgue Irving Goldman Friday eliminated charges brought under the first ordinance against three tourists. The women arrested for wearing short shorts in public places.

Goldman said the ordinance was too vague.

Defence Minister Robert F. Wylie said one of the women involved in the Avro Arrow cancellation probe by contractor Neel Mcy, who said Thursday he never Fred Hall asked for

Geneva-Bound Herter To Make Call At Ottawa

Is Returning to Parley In More Hopeful Mood

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter takes off for Geneva today by way of Ottawa for a second and possibly more fruitful negotiating session with the Soviet Union over the German crisis.

U.S. officials voiced guarded optimism that, in contrast to the talks that recessed June 20 after two weeks of deadlock, the second round would get least sidetrack the Berlin issue for the time being and pave the way for a summit gathering later in the year.

Herter's flight time this marked the first official jaunt by a new jet plane, one of three $5,500,000 craft the U.S. Air Force has outfitted for use by President Eisenhower and other government leaders. The 600 mile-an-hour VC-137 is a military version of the Boeing 707 airliner with extra communications and navigations gear aboard.

Herter had last-minute talks Friday with Eisenhower and other officials.

LUNCH WITH PM

At 6 p.m. EDT, he was to leave Ottawa for Geneva via a refueling stop in Newfoundland.

The Russians, who also are flying to Geneva, apparently touched off the German crisis by demanding an end to the post-war occupation of Communist-encircled West Berlin, Britain, France and the United States reportedly to yield the city's access to the West.

Authorities said Herter is returning to Geneva with the same basic plan originally put by the Russians before the recess three weeks ago. But they saw some hope for progress.

A statement issued by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and Gromyko June 28 indicated Moscow was not insisting on a deadline for ending any temporary agreement reached on Berlin or a shortening of allied rights in the city thereafter.

The talks had reached a cautiary conclusion from previous Soviet utterances, which they announced as threats.

LONDON (AP)—Britain got a strong private indication from the Kremlin Friday that Moscow is ready to respect Western rights in Berlin at least until early 1961.

Sources said it was the third assurance passed to the West that the Soviet Union is prepared to freeze the Berlin crisis if some agreements can be reached to ease tensions in the city and all Germany.

These hitherto-secret developments clearly lay behind the oft-expressed confidence of Prime Minister Macmillan's government in an East-West summit conference is a certainty. The best guess in London seems to be that the first of a series of summit meetings will be held in Geneva in late August or around mid-September.

Sandwiched between these summit parleys would be a series of negotiations by foreign ministers of the powers.

GENEVA (Reuters) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today expressed hope the opening of four talks here will make the international atmosphere warmer and lead to a summit conference.

Gromyko reaffirmed previous Soviet proposals but steered clear of committing Moscow hard on her question of the conference. This is what Russia will insist on as a flatte time limit for ending Western occupation rights in Berlin.

Gromyko, reading from a prepared English text, told reporters the Soviet East-West conference proposals of June 9 and June 19 constituted a good basis for reaching agreement.

The three Western ministers are due here Sunday.

Three Strikers Charged With Plant Damage

GUELPH (CP)—Three strikers were charged Friday with causing malicious damage and one of them was also charged with assaulting a police officer. Wednesday night in which almost 1,000 windows of the W. C. Wood Company were smashed.

Members of Local 344, United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers Union (Ind.), have been picketing the company for 13 weeks. Contract negotiations broke down April 3.

Ronald Thompson and Patrick Austin, both 23, were remanded to next Tuesday in custody on bail in magistrate's court. Roland Harre, 26, who is facing two charges, was released on personal recognizance until Tuesday.

Riches Going Back to Czarist Days

Found in Home of Moscow 'Pauper'

MOSCOW (AP) — More than a year ago elderly Agrippina Pudovalina died, leaving her aging husband to support and bring up a life of presumed poverty.

Then the husband, Senyo Stephanov, fell ill and a friendly lawyer took him to the hospital.

"Look after my things, Stephanov said.

The lawyer took a look.

The lawyer found a book with 170,000 rubles ($42,500 at the official rate) and 900,000 rubles more in government bonds.

Then the old man died and government officials moved in and came upon a hoard that recalled czarist days — and there was no hint of how the couple had acquired it.

A box in the cupboard contained a diamond necklace and 11 gold spoons were hidden in papers added.

MONTREAL (CP) — A young gunman, his face cut and bleeding, fled from a downtown tavern Friday night after shooting and killing the tavern's elderly owner and robbing the cash register.

Arthur Martin, 69, died instantly when a bullet from the gun struck his heart.

The police said no money was taken.

Auto Insurance Policy Expires As Owner Dies

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An automobile insurance policy expires with the death of the insured person, coroner Dr. Ian Cameron Court judgment handed down here Friday by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence.

Mr. Justice Spence made "a very unusual" but salutary amendment of this situation." His decision came in the case of the owner of a car involved in a collision, in the driver of which a child was killed. The child claims for damages.

The suit arose from an accident Feb. 3, 1958, when a car belonging to the estate of Mrs. Rosalie Martin Campbell, and driven by Ivan Layng, of Poplar Hill, was involved in collision with another car.

The Campbell car collided with a car driven by Harold Blakey, of Zurich, Lobo Township. Mr. Blakey later sued and was awarded damages totalling $31,-632.

William Hay Celebrates 96th Birthday

To live almost a complete century, less four years, does not fail often to the lot of many these days, but today another glorious 25th will be marked by the 96th birthday of Mr. William Hay, formerly of this city, now of St. Mary's-on-the-Lake, Kingston.

Mr. Hay was born in Smiths Falls in 1863. He married Miss Mary Thompson of Perth, (an aunt of the famous skater, Barbara Ann Scott), who died in 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay had four children, all boys, born in the R.C.A.F. in California; Roy, of Detroit; Gordon, of Belleville, and Kitchener, of Detroit. All of the boys saw service overseas, and Gordon in World Wars 1 and 2.

Mr. Hay spent a great portion of his early life as a miller, being employed here at the old Belleville Flour Mill near the corner of Coleman and Moira Streets, where the Alliance Tabernacle now stands.

Mr. Hay is enjoying splendid health for one of his age, reads without glasses and has good hearing, but finds it difficult walking owing to the circulation condition. His one hobby, apart from the "old dusty Miller" was breeding fancy chickens and rabbits when he lived on Bowood Street, here.

There are many grandchildren, with five generations alive today.

The community extends to Mr. Hay best wishes for his 96th anniversary and good health in the days that lie ahead.

Sicily Landing Observed in Ceremonial

Yesterday afternoon a brief ceremonial involving the officers and men of the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment and Belleville Scout Troop was held on the front lawn of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment armouries as a recognition was made of the landing in Sicily. Several of the young men in the ranks had relatives, who were with the Regiment when it landed in the initial action of the campaign to free Europe.

Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy addressed the men and commented briefly on the part which took place some 18 years ago and 4,000 miles away. The Regiment's commanding officer also inspected those present and noted that the record of the Regiment was very high especially since the recruiting of many here in training for two weeks.

Calvary Temple Congregation to Have New Church

Increasing membership and overflow attendance at Sunday services have compelled the plans for the construction of still another new church in Belleville.

This week excavation on the former Green Manor property on East Dundas Street was commenced for what will be a new church for the congregation of Calvary Temple. The new church, to be built of pre-stressed concrete with a seating capacity of about 600 persons.

Workers Asked To Take Cut

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says A. V. Roe Canada Limited has asked the International Association of Machinists to take a substantial pay cut "to place the company in a better position for the new fighter plane contract."

The defence production department now is considering three Canadian aircraft companies—Roe, de Havilland Aircraft of Toronto and Canadair Limited of Montreal — for the contract to make in Canada under U.S. licence 214 T-tonne supersonic fighters for the RCAF in Europe.

The newspaper says the Roe position is "that its wages are substantially higher than its two competitors for the contract."

The report says the pay cut was called for by the contract negotiated shortly after the cancellation by the federal government of the Arrow program.

Police Making All-Out Attempt To Smash Ring

MONTREAL (CP) — RCMP officers were quietly following up leads today in an all-out attempt to smash an international drug ring. They were getting help from the U.S. Federal Narcotics Bureau.

More arrests—but not for a day or two—are expected following the arrests Thursday of two men, charged with trafficking in drugs.

The RCMP has recovered some $8,000,000 worth of raw heroin in past weeks and is looking for more.

They are also keeping an eye on known addicts to check on their hangouts. The search is ranging from Ste. Adele, fashionable Laurentian resort 50 miles from Montreal, to the U.S. border.

TWO IN CUSTODY

Two Montreal underworld figures—Giuseppe "Joe" Cotroni, 45-year-old restaurant owner, and Rene Robert, 34, a former waiter, have been charged with trafficking in drugs.

RCMP Superintendent Rene Belec said more arrests are expected and more dope is expected to be recovered.

The drugs were believed smuggled ashore from ships sailing up the St. Lawrence River to Montreal. At a signal from ships they were dropped overboard in watertight containers and picked up by fast motor boats.

Jeweller Blames Bankruptcy on High Interest

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Arthur Plummer, a former New Toronto jeweler and a church worker who now lives in Ottawa, told Friday how some of the 50 persons to whom he owes money and blamed his bankruptcy on high rates of interest he agreed to pay for loans.

William L. Wallace, the Toronto chartered accountant appointed trustee in Mr. Plummer's bankruptcy, told the gathering which included retired school teachers and other elderly persons that the jeweler appeared to have personal assets of $28,025. His total indebtedness was $153,000, leaving an apparent deficit of $118,-975.

Mr. Plummer said that seven years ago he borrowed $25,000 from a business associate to buy diamonds and agreed to pay 20 per cent interest. Since then he borrowed more money at equally high interest rates until his private debts totalled close to $90,000. Some borrowed money had been used to pay earlier debts, he said.

Accommodate Extra Pupils By Dividing Auditorium

TRENTON — With school open for only a few weeks work is already underway in preparing the town's various schools for next year's classes, it was announced yesterday.

At the Marmora Street school where Grades seven and eight are taught, the auditorium is being divided into two class rooms in preparation to handle 100 extra students this fall. At present the school's roll is 307 and will be 410 when the new classes begin in September. Workman have already begun the erecting of a semi-proof partition down the centre of the auditorium.

These extra students were part of these who would have attended the new school on Dufferin Street South if it had been built in time.

The new school has received another delay when the hearing concerning the price for the site was postponed indefinitely on June 29. It is not known when the hearing will now be held and the Ontario Municipal Board will not allow the borrowing of money to build the new school until a clear title has been obtained for the property. Stevens and Coulter, owners of the land, are asking $37,500 for the site and the school board feels this is too much. They have decided to go to the courts for a settlement.

However, the delay in the hearing is expected to see the school built a year later than planned and will mean a certain amount of over-crowding in other schools.

Small, "make-up" jobs at the Senior High School in Trenton will get underway the first of the week. Yesterday a meeting was held at the High School with representative of Miron and Lasing Associates, a Trenton construction firm, and they were awarded several small jobs which were unfinished in the new addition to the High School, which was constructed by Watson and Smith.

MINOR ADJUSTMENTS

These jobs consist of painting, patching cracks in the plaster, putting handles on drawers and some exterior grading, as well as other adjustments.

Several broken windows in the College Street School and the Queen Elizabeth School have been replaced and were reported to have been broken by young children. Trenton police are investigating the incidents. The swings at the two schools, although not damaged, were wound around the top bar of the frame and will cause a considerable amount of nuisance to get them down again.

The roof on the Queen Elizabeth school, which developed numerous leaks because of the winter snow and ice, will also be repaired and some changes will be made in the design of the roof to allow more room for water to run off rather than to have it sit on the roof. The roof is hooded and will be repaired at no expense to the school board.

A system of air conditioning is being installed at the offices of the school board at Bridge Trenton by McGaughey Electrical and will consist of two, one-ton units. The staff of the school board, consisting of Mr. Carswell and two stenographers work all during the summer months and the board also meets at various intervals during the hot weather.

It was also reported that with the completion of classes in June it also ended 40 years of service in schools for V. P. Carswell, now supervisor of Trenton public schools and secretary to the Trenton school board.

PRODUCTION INCREASE

BERLIN (Reuters) — Communist East Germany's gross industrial production increased by 12 per cent in the first half of 1959 compared with the same period last year, the East German economic newspaper Die Wirtschaft said today.

Driver Rushed To Hospital After Mishap

TRENTON — Charles Ryan Jones, 33, of 131 Sidney Street in Trenton, was rushed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital in Weaver's ambulance at 8.35 last night suffering from slight concussion and severe cuts to the head and thumb after the car he was driving crashed into the curb on Marmora St.

He was treated at the scene of the accident by Dr. E. Campbell and then sent to the hospital.

According to police reports, Mr. Brown was proceeding along Dundas Street East and wanting to make a left turn to get onto Marmora Street at the top of Gilmour Hill he was forced to pass through the west-bound traffic.

When he did so he went too close to the east side of Marmora Street and the right fender of the car struck the curb, sending it out of control and across the street. It crashed head on into the curb on the west side of the street and threw the driver forward into the windshield of the vehicle.

Damage to the car was estimated at about $1,200 to the front end, undercarriage and the windshield.

Part of Sewer Pipes Completed, Road Is Opened

TRENTON — Quinte Street, from Albert Street, part of the Quinte Dry Cleaners, and to Front Street has now opened for traffic it was noted yesterday.

The street had been closed off for some time while the Lightcap Construction Company of Belleville was installing one of the sewer mains for the new Trenton industrial area being built in Trenton.

The road was put about 12 feet under the surface of the road and along the curbing by the edge of the library grounds. It will carry sewage from the entire west side of the Trent River, with the exception of the main which runs along Front Street, to the line across the river and into the sewage disposal.

However with the opening of Quinte Street, Quinte Street from College to Meyers Street, was blocked off with another sewer line being installed by the same construction firm. The sewer main will be larger than the one already along this street.

Steel Erector Dies of Injuries In 55-Foot Fall

TRENTON — Elwood Crosby, 32, of 94 Kidd Avenue, died in the Ottawa Civic Hospital at 12.45 p.m. yesterday from injuries suffered in a 55-foot fall while working on a building in that city on July 1.

Mr. Crosby was working for the Central Bridge Company of Trenton when the accident happened and was employed as a steel erector. He had been with the company for the past nine years.

From the fall he suffered internal injuries, broken left leg, fractured pelvis and several head cuts. It is not known what happened to cause the man to fall but he was working on an apartment building at the time. It is believed he fell into a pile of sand.

It was reported that during the last few days in the hospital Mr. Crosby had shown a slight improvement but yesterday he took a turn for the worse and died despite blood transfusions given him during the morning.

A wife and two children, living in Trenton, survive him.

Ricky Halsey and Bert Besteman, now members of the Avondale Cub Pack, won distinction while in the Avondale Cub Pack by earning all 13 of the proficiency badges displayed on their sleeves.

Negro and Son Welcomed Into Tennis Club

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche, the Nobel Peace Prize winner barred from membership in a Forest Hills club, has been welcomed into another exclusive New York tennis club.

Bunche was invited Friday to accept an honorary membership for Ralph Jr., a Wood Jr., former Davis Cup player and Wimbledon champion, is president of the Manhattan club.

Bunche said the Forest Hills club barred him and his 15-year-old son because they are Negroes.

There have been demands from some, including several U.S. senators, that the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association transfer the U.S. tennis championships and the Davis Cup matches from the West Side Club.

INSTRUCTOR SHOCKED

The man who unwittingly created the controversy said he was "shocked" to learn the lightskinned Bunche boy was a negro.

George Agutter, 72-year-old instructor at West Side, had taught the Bunche boy over a period of six weeks.

"But it never occurred to me that he was a Negro," Agutter said.

Agutter said young Bunche told him he enjoyed the game but had no place to play tennis. The instructor said he replied:

"It would be nice, Ralph, if you could join the club as a junior member." Dr. Bunche made an application soon afterwards.

Thirsty Irish Writer Comes To End of Line

LONDON (CP) — Still ruffled and crumpled but subdued, Brendan Behan rolled into Bow Street court today and was fined five shillings for being drunk in public.

The thirsty Irish playwright pleaded guilty.

"Is anything known about him?" asked Magistrate Clive Burt.

"Not in this court, sir," said a court official.

For since his arrival three days ago from a drying out cours in a Dublin hospital he has been filling the bottle and the headlines day and night.

UNPUNISHED SUIT

The 35-year-old Behan—author of The Hostag now playing at London theatres—turned up in court in an unpressed grey suit. He said he is magnificent when either h had anything to say,e Behan pointed out. The other under his left eye and declared:

"Well, I did not get this eye from the cops! The two policemen who arrested him). They were both unidentified.

A mob of wellwishers cheered him as he left the court and grinned. Behan, who is married, is frequently seen in Dublin pubs. He eventually was driven off in a cab—but after a mas approached the auto waving his arms and yelling "Up the rebels!"

Jailed for five hours, he was let out on bail of 10 shillings Friday night.

Bail money was put up by Desmond MacGreevy, an Irish sculptor, but MacNamara said he didn't know where Behan was staying. He was taken to a police station into the darknesscoaties and clothes to the rain.

Behan on Friday shouted down telephoned piece of his wife Beatrice from Dublin and other friends but he is virtually committing suicide by drinking.

KINGSTON (CP)—Two prisoners escaped Friday morning from a group of inmates of the Joyceville Penitentiary farm, 17 miles north of here, during a baseball game in the prison grounds.

Ottawa Police Probe Possibility Of Foul Play in Plastic Bag Death

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility of foul play in the plastic bag death of Joan de Marcy is being investigated by city police.

The investigation is being carried on despite earlier statements that the 30-year-old head of a modelling agency here committed suicide.

The woman's husband, insurance executive Hubert de Marcy, 35, found her body on his return home the night of June 19 from a trip out of town. She was lying on the living room floor of their home, a plastic bag knotted around the throat.

Efforts by Mrs. de Marcy's mother, Mrs. R. B. Kincaid of Scarborough, Toronto suburb, to convince authorities that the death was not a suicide have led the Ontario attorney-general's department to order an inquest.

Mr. de Marcy told reporters Friday that after finding his wife's body he found a cigaret butt in an ashtray in the living room. He said neither he nor his wife smoked.

A neighbor of the de Marcys told reporters she saw a man enter the de Marcy home about 5 p.m. the night the woman died. The neighbor, who said she wishes to be unidentified, said the man stayed about 10 minutes, got back in his car and drove away.

Mrs. de Marcy was seen walking about after the man's departure.

Her body now is at the University of Ottawa. Her husband said both he and his wife willed their bodies to science.

THERE IS A HAPPY MEDIUM

Bruce Levett, Canadian Press staff writer covering the royal tour, says this may be the last safari-like excursion.

"In its place is predicted the short, swift visit to specific points in the world where the Royal Family may arrive in the comfort of jet travel, perform a specified function and return home."

It is to be hoped that somebody in the Queen's household has heard the suggestion that there is virtue in moderation.

There is no necessity to go to extremes, either to the extreme of the weeks spent in constant travel and ceremonies which have marked the royal tours of the past or the opposite, and equally trying, extreme pictured by the Levett of a jet flight around the world, a banquet and a jet flight home.

There is a happy medium -- a jet flight, a few days spent in one area and a return trip.

Incidentally, this happy medium could provide the remedy for one defect which Mr. Levett sees in jet-style tours. "It was in the smaller towns -- the towns that will be missed when the lengthy Royal Tour becomes a thing of the past -- that the people got close to royalty," writes Mr. Levett.

There is no reason why visits to small towns should be a thing of the past.

Choosing the happy medium, some small towns in the environs of a big city could be visited. Indeed, there is an even better solution. Abbreviated royal tours could avoid the big cities. Let the Queen and her Prince spend a week at Bancroft to enjoy the painted hills of the Highlands of Hastings in Indian summer -- or visit Picton when the speedboats roar down the reach. Let them see Annapolis Valley when the apple trees are in bloom, or the Niagara Peninsula in peach blossom time. Prince Philip would probably enjoy the Grey Cup, or the goose hunting around Moosonee. There's no law which says the Queen has to visit Ottawa, or Montreal, or Toronto, or Winnipeg or Vancouver every time she comes to Canada, though it may be necessary for her jet to land at an airport on the outskirts of one of these major cities.

PROBABLY

We see by a Reuters news item that a Soviet scientist, Professor E. Kalman, reports that scientists (we presume he is talking about Soviet scientists), will "probably" succeed in developing a machine capable of directly transmitting human thoughts. We cannot help but wonder what form this will take. Perhaps it will be a plastic face which inexorably assumes an expression suitable to the thoughts of the user.

Such a device could well revolutionize (with apologies to Mr. Karl Marx) the entire field of human relations. Imagine the tremendous advantage a diplomatic mission could have if it were provided with such a device which it could "tune in" to any of the other delegates' thought-waves. It would serve, we should think, to almost break up a diplomatic meeting.

Imagine the consternation of a diplomat, let us call him Mr. "K", who whilst he was delivering a message of peace and goodwill was confronted with his face distorting in laughing or sneering expression. The shock, we should imagine, would just about shatter Mr. "K's" composure completely. There, for all to see, would be an indication of his true feelings on the subject at hand. All pretence and subterfuge and play acting would have been completely stripped away. There would be a face laughing right back at him.

Or take the case of a leader of state uttering bellicose statements. His words would soon be disregarded by others if they noted that the face of the thought-reading device was actually fearful and anxious.

This world would be entering into an era of honest politics and diplomacy. No longer would veiled threats, false promises, ambiguous platitudes, or straight faces (on the humans not the machine) be of any use. Diplomats and leaders of nations would have to state their intentions forthrightly or else be laughed down or derided as purveyors of falsehoods.

Pathably.

"During a lull in the conversation," playfully suggests the Pembroke Observer, "you might brightly remark that the German word for martini is wacholderbeerenbrannteweinhahnenschwanz." But if you are at a German cocktail party, you had better sak for an old-fashioned. Lulls in the conversation at such gatherings don't come in martini sizes.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

THE SERPENT MOUNDS

One of the most significant historical sites in this part of Ontario is the Serpent Mounds site, located a dozen miles south-east of Peterborough on the north shore of Rice Lake, the Serpent Mounds contain evidence of an early civilization in this Province.

For many decades this group of earthen mounds has been recognized to be historically significant. The Indians show reverence for the area.

The people of the Peterborough area have always referred to these mounds on a hill overlooking the waters and marshes of Rice Lake as "Serpent Mounds" because the largest is in the form of a serpent.

As early as the 1890's archaeological excavating tools and other nearby mounds, but only in the last few years has a scientific excavation of the site been carried out.

In 1955, the area was officially designated an "historic site" and unauthorized digging was prohibited. The following summer the Royal Ontario Museum began an archaeological investigation, the finances for this work being raised by the Serpent Mounds Foundation of Peterborough.

Investigation has shown that the Serpent Mounds are "visual" evidence of a civilization which flourished in this particular area more than 1,000 years ago. At the time Julius Caesar was conquering Britain, there were people living here, practising farming corn, bartering silver, performing religious rites and burying their dead in the same mounds".

Last summer, evidence of eighty burials was uncovered in the main 200-foot-long mound, only half of which has so far been excavated. Diggers also found evidence of much smaller digging carried out over the past half century.

From charred logs used to cremate one body, scientists, by means of the Carbon 14 test, have been able to positively place the age of the mounds at over 1300 years.

Apart from acting as burial grounds, the Serpent Mounds are thought to have had great religious significance for their builders. Like Rome, these great mounds were not built in a day.

It is thought that the Serpent Mound group is a relic of the Hopewellian culture, which flourished in eastern North America twenty centuries ago. Unfortunately, much of the artifacts (pottery, knives, etc.) have been recovered from the mounds, making positive identification of the builders difficult.

Should the Serpent Mounds prove to be of Hopewellian origin, they will be the most northern evidence of that culture, and can lay claim to the distinction of being one of the two or three "serpent" mounds left by these people.

The nearness of the Serpent Mound group to Belleville makes it a pleasant jaunt for the day's venture. The digging is again underway, guides are in attendance to explain the various sites, and there are outdoor exhibit cases to explain the excavations while the mounds, photographs, sketches and maps, which explain the history and importance of this site.

Moreover, the surrounding area is now a park with picnic and camp facilities to make the day a pleasant one.

To quote the booklet prepared for visitors to the site:

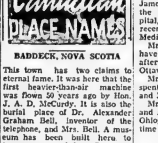
"If Serpent Mounds park had nothing more than its superb view, it would be an attractive park. It has the burial ground, however, and the secrets that it will reveal when the present blank pages in the prehistory of Canada. They are the beginnings of a civilization that was highly organized when Julius Caesar's soldiers were invading Britain."

Legion Faces New Problem

Montreal Gazette

The French Foreign Legion was organized more than a century ago. Its service as the French instrument for the conquest of Algeria and the Sahara. It has served also in other missions such as France built a second colonial empire in Indochina, Syria, in the eighteenth century of her first empire. The Legion, with its French Army officers and foreign volunteer ranks, served as the military garrison of the empire, as well as the spearhead of conquest.

During its century and more of service, the Legion has accumulated a body of traditions as well as special traditions and privileges. Legion, nominally a part of the French Army, it has enjoyed a large amount of independence, being allowed to carry out its special responsibilities in its own way.



Just as Paris did not inquire closely into the Legion's affairs, the Legion has the tradition of never inquiring closely into the affairs of its volunteer members. The glamour of the service has brought to it thousands of professional soldiers out of work after major wars. Its largest single group, today, is German, as it was after the First World War.

The leader of fiction knows, it is also a haven for refugees and exiles from many walks of life other than military from disappointed lovers to fugitives from law.

Now it seems that the less romantic types are in some enough trouble to change the Legion's traditional method of recruiting. Young men from all over Europe have been flocking to the Legion for the adventure of guerilla war in Algeria. Their parents are protesting to their governments and their governments are protesting to Paris.

In reply to complaints from Belgium and West Germany, Switzerland and Italy, President de Gaulle has promised that Legion recruiting sergeants will be more careful about the use of their volunteers and underage recruits will be relieved on the request of their parents.

P. C. Wren and his "Beau Geste" would, this month, find it hard to take, but that's just the point. European parents are blaming the trouble on writers like P. C. Wren.

BADDECK, NOVA SCOTIA

The town has two claims to eternal fame. It was here that the first heavier-than-air machine flew in Canada, when on Feb. 23, A. D. McCurdy. It is also the burial place of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, and Mrs. Bell. A museum has been built to house many of Dr. Bell's inventions. The name Baddeck was derived from the Micmac word "Adabak," meaning "a place with an island near by."

Tortoise Really Slow

Montreal Gazette

While Canada was making up its mind about the Olympic Games plans, Frank Slimmers of Clover Creek, Virginia, had a somewhat different experience. On Tuesday last, Mr. Slimmers found a tortoise on whose back he had carved his initials -- F.S. -- and the date, 1919.

Mr. Slimmers found the tortoise about 300 yards from where he had left it 40 years ago.

Noble Effort Meets Doom

Sherbrooke Daily Record

Another "noble experiment" has gone down the drain.

If you have to make an emergency call from a public phone booth in Germany, you're going to have to continue dredging up the small change out of your pocket or forgo the call.

Pay telephones in Frankfurt and Hamburg started placing small boxes of "emergency coins" in booths for people caught without the necessary change.

In the first day of action, alas the money disappeared. No emergency calls were made.

Not Surprising

Fort William Times-Journal

Some 9,000 applications were received at Ottawa for 4,600 civil service jobs. Considering the total of unemployed in the country, and the attractiveness of a government job from the standpoint of security, the figure is not surprising.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

CHUNKY CHILD CAN LOSE WEIGHT BY CHANGING DIET

"Dear Dr. Molner: How do you put a hungry child on a diet? I feel it would be helpful if I knew the normal calorie intake per day. My 10-year-old daughter was born chubby, and keeps gaining. She is short. The doctors have checked her thyroid, which is okay, and she is normal except for her overweight and short height. What vitamin can she take? -- Mrs. M. S.

She can take any vitamin — but why give her any, when a normal diet will provide all she needs? There is no vitamin, of course, which will reduce her weight.

I doubt whether knowing "the normal calorie intake" would be of any use to you. Anyway, I couldn't possibly give you a figure without first knowing a lot more about your daughter. Her height, weight, metabolic rate, rate of growth and other factors must all be calculated to know what is "right" for her. And also you'd have to take into account the question of how active she is — how much food she "burns up" in daily exercise and activity.

Furthermore, unless you are going to weigh all her food yourself, you can't tell every sandwich or candy bar or bottle of pop or ice cream cone she has; you can't figure her calorie intake accurately.

You know calorie fittings are figured on "normal portion" of potatoes, or "one slice" of bread, and so on. Suppose the idea of a "normal portion" of potatoes is one-third more than another mother's opinion. Some bread slices are twice as thick. Difficult to figure exact calories? Yes! But difficult to work out a proper diet for your daughter? No, I don't think so.

The best, safest and most successful way (and the easiest, too) for the chunky child to start substituting food, if 10, a child doesn't care much about "weight control" — She just can't abide "fuff" but a lot of reasons, quite complicated, some children eat more than others — and pack on pounds.

DON'T STARVE HER

You don't want to starve the child. You certainly don't want to harm her health. But you do want to get her weight normal so that when she's 15, or 16 or 21 she's going to be graceful and attractive.

The answer is substitution. For snacks when she gets home from school, give her carrots or celery, an apple or other fruit. Give her only skim milk — which quite down the fats but doesn't hurt the healthful ingredients.

Give her clear soups (not creamed). No pie for dessert. Try gelatine, or fresh fruit, or such. Serve baked potatoes, or mashed potatoes but no gravy. Avoid fried foods. Boiled eggs for breakfast — not fried. Give her lean meat, never fat. No cake or puddings.

She can eat the same volume of food, but if you cut out sugar, starch and fat, and give fruit instead of sandwiches or cake for snacks, and skip gravy and syrups and pastry you would be just as healthy (healthier, in fact) and you'll see her weight shift gradually toward normal. You want it to be gradual; don't try to accomplish in two weeks of starvation what should be accomplished in year of comfort and health.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is electrolosis fluid harmful in any way? — Mr. H. S.

No. And it can be used in any area where undesirable hair is to be removed. It is, however, a tedious process as each hair root must be destroyed separately.

(2) Re: Removal of tattoo marks isn't easy, but it isn't impossible. Have your regular physician refer you to a dermatologeon, or a skin specialist who handles such cases.

Are you a victim of "vitamin starvation"? To make sure that your diet always contains proper food, write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, 211 E. Ohio Street, Chicago, Ill., for my pamphlet, "Vitamins in the Prevention of Health," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

New Terror For Debtors

Cape Breton Post

A sure-fire way for making housewives pay bills they owe stores, has been suggested by the president of the National Union of Shopkeepers in England. Whether his plan will be effective as he believes may be open to doubt. It is this:

Slightly striped truck labelled "Debt Collectors" would pull up in front of the house. The theory is that most housewives would pay earlier to spare themselves the embarrassment of a call by the unwelcome vehicle.

What would the neighbors think? Some would be more sympathetic than pleased with the conspicuous display. Some, and others would have their own worries about debts owed.

Tom Lynch, of Nottingham, the president of the Union of Shopkeepers, was reported also to the next meeting of the organization's board of directors. Delivery vehicles that the board turns it down. There is such a thing as being too brilliant for the good of business.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BE A WINNING FIGHTER

Learn to be a fighter, through the noble mastering of the forces at your command — generated by your own hearts.

Learn to be a fighter. Then thrill! Fight face to face with fiercely yet fairly. And when everybody looks upon you as a loser and calls you whipped — that's your cue to finish the fight — and win!

Learn to be a fighter. What is your work today? Make it a battle! Herbert Mosier the best that is in you and go out to meet and vanquish every obstacle that seeks to keep this day from being the one you will most prize and the one of all your days most worth while — to other people and to yourself.

Learn to be a fighter. The stronger you fight the greater will be the enthusiasm of everyone around you. You will create a spirit that will be contagious — like the bone run in a baseball game after the team has struck a snag.

There was a time while at college when I got discouraged, and so I went to a kind friend for advice. He listened to me and then said: "Skip-boy, don't quit. It will be your greatest event in after life if right it out. Be a finisher and you will be a conqueror. Get this spirit early and it will last you throughout life. You may even surprise yourself."

That man's advice has helped me to become a fight. To take a new lease on life yourself will affect everyone around you. That's what makes leaders. You be one!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HEAVEN

What is it like up there?
Jesus told us very little about heaven. The Bible gives a description of heaven in the Book of Revelation which transcends human understanding — and is probably intended so to do. Because, as a matter of fact, eternity and the life that goes with it are so different from anything we can comprehend or imagine, that their nature can be only hinted at and most inadequately described.

Personally, I think heaven may be a lot more like this present world than most of us are accustomed to believe. There are some who think that heaven will be a perfected world, physical, just as the world in which we live, but inhabited by spiritual physical world precisely suited for their habitation. Time and space would appear to be categories of this present life and categories which will not exist in the eternal heaven. It will be a realm of pure spirit, the spiritual world we live amid constant and unbelievable turmoil, with them chasing about, phantoms whirling about, the whole universe rushing headlong, coming and going as at a loss to know where).

But in heaven the world oscillations will be over. Peace and quiet at last — the first time the universe has known such conditions. "It's beautiful" cried Thomas Edison, coming out of coma for then closing his eyes in death. And every holy aspiration within us believes he saw something.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A relative of mine who made enough money (wenty years ago to retire to a small village 41 miles from the nearest city and 18 miles from the nearest four lane highway) is always invited to peonies in June, roses in July, chrysanthemums in August, dahlias in September and mums in October, had to come to the city the other day to see a doctor, and I drove him there.

The big attraction was a clangorous with the arrival of local trains bringing the buick-footed suburbanites to work. The cars were parked a block and a half away, the nearest parking lot I could find, we carried the suitcase out and stood at the corner where the crowds were hurrying to work and watched the swirl and fevers of the cars jockeying for the switch. We jostled 'across the intersection in the mob, got my car, paid the 40 cents, tooted come and help us get out against the three cars trying to get in, entered the torrent of nine o'clock traffic, were hooted at, horned, cut in upon, swished, swiped, glared at, the lorry knocks homed.

My relative, who had not suffered a word all the way, but had sat holding rigidly to the window frame of the car, sank into the first chair which we entered the house.

"Rats, he said, "wouldn't engage in a race like that."

Canada's Maritime Provinces Cling to Their Romantic Past

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

The statue of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in downtown Portland, Me., bears a brooding, pensive look on the poet's face as he contemplates the maritime provinces of Canada in the distance.

Somewhere in their forest primeval his Evangeline's mortal bones lie buried these many years. But the memory lingers on. And if the statue image could think, it would no doubt repeat Longfellow's sweetly melancoy but Longfellow.

Evangeline never lived and Acadia is only a vague corner of the snout-shaped promontory in the Atlantic known as Nova Scotia. Evangeline's French descendants form only a modest part of the province's colorful mixture of peoples.

But in every town there is, at least in Evangeline Theatre, at Acadia Cafe and an assortment of similarly named motels, dairies, laundries and even a bus line, Moncton, N. B., has a Hotel Evangeline newspaper called L'Evangeline. A good number of commercial establishments with claims of being "the heart of the Evangeline country" also testify to the romantic past has done much to preserve the atmosphere of the seventeenth and the four provinces so far out in the Atlantic that their time zone is a half hour earlier. Eastern Standard Time. Variously reminiscent of Scotland, Switzerland and Cape Cod the four — Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick — offer a varied pattern of serrated rocky coasts, fishing villages, fog, tides, rolling mountain lakes and deep green river valleys. Twenty Saint John City, where the city fathers thoughtfully provide a blizzard for the time of the next visitation.

Along the winding roller coast-line course on the St. Lawrence Number 2 Highway, particularly near the cities of Edmundston and Edmunston, the tourist this time of year can see the river covered with the white sails of log-gos on their way to the mills to be made into paper products.

At the end of the line proceeding north is the St. Lawrence River. On its east arm lies the Gaspe Peninsula, steemingly transplanted, villages and all, from Britany. And to the west is Quebec City, Montreal and the Seaway. The thick with quaint and gay with banners honoring its royal visit embellishing the always eye pleasing views of the St. Lawrence Valley.

Bride-to-Be Honored By Trousseau Tea

A delightful trousseau tea was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Campbell, 58 Chatham St., Trenton, for her daughter, Miss Joan Campbell, bride of today.

Red roses adorned the rooms and lovely mixed summer flowers graced the tea table with its richly embossed cream rayon cloth.

Miss Bessie Beatty received the guests at the door and also was in charge of the guest book.

Those who poured were: Mrs. Roy Peacock, aunt of the bride-to-be; Mrs. Percy Johnson, also an aunt of the guest of honor, and Mrs. W. H. Walker, wife of the Rev. W. H. V. Walker, former pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Stirling.

Those serving included: Mrs. Allan Fralick and Mrs. John Brown, assisted by girl friends of the bride-elect. Mrs. Jim Magill, another aunt, assisted in the kitchen.

Mrs. Hugh Lyons, Mrs. Jim Raney, and Miss Lois Richard were in charge of the lovely wedding gifts.

During the afternoon a group of girl pupils from Miss Campbell's school, S.S. No. 3, Thurlow, called to extend their best wishes to her for much happiness in the coming days.

GRILLS — REID

Tall, white standards of pink peonies, mingled with purple-toned Canterbury bells, adorned the chancel rail on Saturday, June 27, at 2:00 p.m. for a lovely double-ring wedding when the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, united in marriage, Melissa Elizabeth Reid, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reid, to Walker Edmond Grills of Belleville, R. R. No. 6, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Grills.

Mr. William G. Connor, guest organist from Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, provided the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. G. Mark Reid, of Flint, Michigan, was charming in her beige lace gown in street-length fashioned with three-quarter jacket, and sleeves. She wore a dark lace picture hat with brown accessories and corsage of pink roses. A single strand of pearls and matching earrings, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her ensemble.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Theo Wheeler, wearing one of the loveliest organza in shades, style, misted with chiffon panels, matching hat and corsage of white Shasta daisies, and long white gloves.

Mr. Richard F. Wheeler, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a grey and blue-toned floral gown with a corsage of red roses.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

It is not required of us that we each be specialists in every subject — be it whether it concerns our well being or our deterioration. If we desire a new face, we go to a plastic surgeon or at least T and T presumes that most of us would. If we agree with the President of the United States then we believe that defence of our country is the most urgent talk confronting us. Surely we can't all be experts on defence and being housewives doesn't entitle us to be experts, but imagining could prompte us to show our concern. A week ago today T and T had the temerity to express an unexpert opinion that the vacant seats in our House of Commons during the defence estimate debate was a frightening disclosure.

Although we did speak as a woman and a mother we hoped that we were not entering partisanship. Surely our defence is universal transcends partisanship. War is neither selective nor discriminating. This morning we listened to a Canadian although he may not be an expert on defence, he surely an expert observer of the United Nations. He too thinks that "it is unfortunate" that the people elected to make the decisions that will preserve peace or save us if war is inevitable, are distinguished by their lack of optimism, than for responsible attendance to the affairs of state.

It is frightening for mothers whose men may have to be conscripted. Indifference is pretty close to being an absolute when considered as a symptom of disease in the body politic or society. It can lead nowhere else either without an international nation's well-being. T and T is aware of the difficulties a person recently got herself into, either wittingly or innocently, for speaking her "unexpert opinions." In expecting greater depths of responsibilities from our elected representatives in matters that touch the lives of every Canadian man, woman and child is a universal worry rather than an unreasonable expression of reckless opinion.

If inexpert T and T falters before the awesome dignity of legislative immunity, it finds solace and support when real experts like the late Einstein, Albert Schweitzer, leading scientists, leading military men, Gandhi, a Macmillan or Diefenbaker, Adlai Stevenson or Eisenhower, Diefenbaker or Pearson are worried too. We of little consequence can afford to be worried. Why can't our representatives, of whatever political faith?

It is often a peculiar fact how strangely we are influenced by what grows from a little acorn of sheer belief. Many years ago when Sturseberg's comments yesterday, we had material for a completely different column. Thinking about inexpert knowledge on defence maiggry versus the right of the individual to be concerned, we were reminded of something a high authority wrote a couple hundred years ago about the sagacity of the human before corruption set in. He tells us that in the days of their greatness "it was customary to tempt the protectors of besieged cities by the promise of more distinguished honors than they possessed in love to a people." Thus were the talents of the gifted lured to benefit the conquerors.

You see so many letters in the press concerning experts in the defence of our country, science and education from friendly countries being forced to serve in fields of endeavour where their specialties, are totally wasted as far as benefiting Canada is concerned. It applies to both men and women. We read about a talented musician being unable to find a place; about a renowned specialist of medicine or surgery doing interne work; about a woman with two or three degrees and several languages at her disposal doing domestic work, and so on. T and T don't suggest that there isn't a remedy for this without falling back to the eventual sickness of Rome when undesirables and moniels became destroyers rather than contributors. This is a thought and no expression of a personal or general opinion. Waste, whether it is material waste or intellectual waste, is always a sad factor for one whose could be benefited as well as for the one who is responsible.

The idea of experts came by accident and grew by accident. Sometimes accidents are helpful.

We started with the word "specialist" in the first place. Maybe we should have stayed with it because when we looked up the word for our weekend thought we discovered that "expert" is not highly regarded in every quarter.

Nicholas Murray Butler wrote — "An expert is one who knows more and more about less and less." Another wrote — "An expert is a person who avoids the small errors as he sweeps on to the grand fallacy."

Aren't you glad we aren't all experts?

The World Outside

By Alma Mason

"What I am about to say to you, my dear, doesn't stem from any deep sense of frustration or bitterness. Many years ago I became acquainted and resigned to life inside this grey curtain of illness. I have learned to lose myself in dreams, as I gaze at slanting sunlight, the darting hands of sleet or rain, a tangent gold and crimson leaf journeying dawnwards. Sometimes soft, fuzzy snowflakes-pear at me through my hospital window. For almost thirty years I have lain here and listened to my daily symphony —the swish of a nurse's uniform — the rustle of a magazine — the drawing up of a window shade — the moan of a patient in pain — the hushed conversation of visitors. These sounds have become a part of my very being.

"I often wonder if I could ever again enter your world, your hurried, careless world of humming machinery and rushing humanity. Your world seems to be moving faster and faster and mine is so very slow.

"When twilight slants and deepens across my coverlet I remember the world outside as I knew it a life time ago. Always the beautiful gifts of the spirit become more desirable, infinitely more precious through separation: "I see them again — but not "through a glass darkly" but as if they have been drenched in a whole universe of light and warmth.

"A swallow tall butterfly I chased through the swamp behind our home; a giant brown turtle in the creek; platinum moon beams at the loe of the skating rink; red winged blackbirds perched on the bridge like shadows of the sailing ships beneath; a book of poetry open in the lamp light; my first pink party gown and my sparkling necklace; my little low headed brother high on a swing; mountains humping past the windows of a train; footprints in the sand filling with tide waters."

Dreams I have buried deeply
But I whisk away the sand
And muse and delve and glory
in that long lost land
Of moving trains and boats and clouds.
An old oak tree was once my bed,
Cool branches cupped my tousled head,
I could glance down
On field and town—
Beloved, where I was bred
My window pane becomes a screen
For every deeply treasured dream;
I'm once again a connoisseur
Of life — and voyageur.
I fly again on magic skis;
I glide swan like o'er crystal ice;
I float in sunset tropic seas;
I am a birdling in disguise.
I lie awake and dream again
Of fairy worlds and busy men.

"The World Outside" is dedicated to Miss Ida Campbell—a patient in Riverview Hospital, Windsor, Ontario. Ida is greatly loved by many Windsor folk who delight in visiting her. They leave her bedside heartened and stimulated. Ida is a shining light for so many of us who visit her regularly. She has lain on her back unable to move for over thirty years. She is a brilliant conversationalist. She takes a deep interest in the doings of her many friends — knows of their children and their dreams and aspirations, exploits and activities. She never forgets a birthday. She has memorized many chapters of the Bible and very many of the Psalms. In doing this—she engages the help of many of the hospital personnel and they too—have become interested in reading the Bible. They know how is to love her. To be in her presence is to gain spiritual strength and stimulation. Untold riches of wisdom—that hospital bed. Ida is not "set aside" but is being used as a deeply invigorating implement of God.

Self Treatment Of Arthritis Said Dangerous

WINNIPEG (CP) — Physiotherapist Mary Martin says that on the day a person eats 25 lemons his arthritis may get better—but it wouldn't necessarily be because of the lemons.

The nature of the disease means there are many times its symptoms subside of their own accord, she says. This is unexplained by doctors.

Miss Martin, national consultant in physiotherapy for the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, warns that because of this, there is a danger in self-treatment of arthritis.

"The disease should be diagnosed and treated by a qualified physician," said Miss Martin while in Winnipeg on a tour of Western Canada.

Physiotherapists are playing an increasingly large part in treating the disease, she said, but they are hard to find. About one-third of the present number practising in Canada were trained in other countries, mostly Britain.

There now are only four physiotherapy schools in Canada—at the University of Montreal, McGill University, Montreal, the University of Toronto and the University of Alberta. They turn out about 125 graduates a year.

A new school for physio and occupational therapy will be opened at the University of Manitoba, probably in the fall of 1960.

"Every portage broken around a waterfall . . . was an advance, a broadening of horizons, something daringly new . . ." Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter.

This year marks the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The opening of another important waterway, however, marked the year 1832 — the beautiful Rideau Canal. Well established, it is not only a true historic, but "an enduring monument to the greatness of Colonel By as an administrator and as an engineer."

Today, terminated at one end by the gracious capital of Ottawa, and the city of Kingston at the other, it is the source of pleasure to owners of small craft of all kinds and from many destinations. But, primarily it was constructed with the idea of linking the Ottawa River with Lake Ontario for a vital military purpose, fortunately, never needed. As early as 1819 the Duke of Wellington, had urged the government to head the importance of the Ottawa-Rideau project. By, now Master General of the Ordnance, thus brought to bear "his military genius on all far flung operations of the British Army."

The Governor-in-Chief of Canada, the Duke of Richmond, also had much interest in the start of work on the Canal, concerned as he was for defence measures in general. He "determined to travel on foot over the route advised by the Duke of Wellington as the location of the Rideau Canal". He did so with two attendants during August, 1819. Two days after this remarkable journey — he died, as a result of a bite in his heel from a pet fox.

The man selected by the British Government, (quite possibly recommended by the Iron Duke himself, for his previous services in Canada as well as in the Peninsular War) was Lieutenant Colonel John By of the Royal Engineers. As superintending engineer, he arrived in Canada, May 30, 1826, with his wife and two small daughters, settled down at his headquarters in a small village named in his honor Bytown, now Ottawa. He organized and achieved in less than six years, sans machinery, sans civilization this waterway, with its hand-hewn rock lined locks, staunch block houses and drowned land dams by immigrant labourers, many of whom were brought out to Canada by Peter Robinson (founder of Peterborough) who worked under the able contractors and assistant engineers. This project was the last and the greatest work of the British Military Engineers to be carried out in the eastern North America.

"There is a churchyard in the village of Frant, near Tunbridge Wells in England where is buried the builder of the Rideau Canal. An inscription on a large white slab over his grave reads:

Basket weave, linen-like material makes this skirt and top for wear with a sleeveless blouse. It's an outfit that is cifed for travel since the fabric is crease-resistant and the effect is casual but smart. The jacket has a small, cuff-like, standaway neckline, very cool for summer wear. Small pockets meet the side seamings on either side of the front. The outfit comes in yellow, white or beige with a print or solid blouse. Skirt is straight.

"We," he declares Samuel Butler, "past generations not only for the master discoveries of music, science, literature and art—few of which brought profit to those to whom they were revealed, but those for our ogenism itself, which is an inheritance gathered and garnered by those who have gone before us."

Drama sweeps the entire length of the Rideau Canal. Shrouded in mystery and full truth ever be revealed?

All this we wonder, as our small craft, a 21-foot cruiser, the Delric, starts now, full speed ahead from Kingston to explore this fabulous waterway for ourselves. The flowing wake is a water-lion with crystal wing-like ears: — a sort of mascot that follows us everywhere.

This cake does not contain enough shortening. I know you say you have success with it usually, however, I would like to give you my fool-proof

MIDNIGHT CHOCOLATE CAKE:

1-2 cup soft shortening, 1 1-4 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup cocoa, 1 cup cold water, 1 1-4 cups sifted cake flower, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 2-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening and sugar together until fluffy then beat in eggs. Blend together cocoa and cold water. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Stir in flour mixture alternately with cocoa-water mixture, and add vanilla. Pour into 9" square pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 to 30 minutes. Cooling also be baked in 8" layer tins for 20 to 25 minutes.

ANSWER:

LADY FINGERS:

2 eggs, separated, 1-2 cup sifted icing sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-3 cup sifted cake flour, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Beat in sugar gradually. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored — at least 5 minutes. Fold into egg whites, then fold in vanilla, flour and salt. Shape into 4 1-2" fingers on baking sheet, covered with heavy paper. Sprinkle with additional icing sugar and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 10 to 13 minutes.

To be continued next Saturday.)

NESSELRODE PIE:

1-4 cup all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1 cup whipping cream, chilled, 1-4 cup pineapple juice, 5 egg yolks, 1-4 cup moist raisins, chopped, 1-4 cup blanched toasted almonds, chopped, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons chopped maraschino cherries, 1 teaspoon maraschino cherry juice, 1 teaspoon rum flavoring, 1 1-2 tablespoons icing sugar, chocolate bar, 8" pastry shell baked.

Blend first 3 ingredients in top of double boiler. Stir in milk, 1-4 cup of the cream and pineapple juice. Stir over boiling water until smooth and thickened. Stir a little hot mixture into beaten yolks, then return to double boiler and stir thoroughly. Add raisins, almonds and butter, cover and cook 5 minutes longer, stirring once. Remove from heat. Stir in cherries and flavorings. Pour into pie shell, spreading level. Cool. Whip remaining 2-4 cup chilled cream until just thickened, then beat in icing sugar until stiff. Spread over pie. Sprinkle with shaved chocolate bar. Chill.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beechnose

MOTHER AND SON PLAN HER WEDDING TO ENGLISH GIRL

Dear Mrs. Beechnose:

1. Our son is to marry a young lady who was born in England and has lived there all her life. Because of several circumstances, she is to come here to be married. Through our correspondence with her we have become very devoted to her and we are, naturally, most eager to make her feel as much at home here as we possibly can. She has no relatives or close friends in this country, and she has written to ask us if we would be willing to have the ceremony performed in the chapel of our church (she is of our denomination).

After the ceremony we would like to have a small reception for the couple in our home. Would you approve of our plans so far?

2. Don't you think that formal engraved invitations would not be the right thing? What would you suggest as the proper way to invite the guests?

3. If the bride-to-be wishes to be married in marriage, our son has asked his father if he would be willing to do this, and he has of course consented. Would this be proper?

4. What about mailing out formal announcements of the marriage? The bride and groom are living, but because of their ill health will not be able to come to the wedding. The bride's father may be able to come to the wedding here, and if so will be maid of honor. Thank you for any suggestions you will give us.

— Groom's Mother

1. What a wonderfully kind and thoughtful prospective mother-in-law you are . . . that young lady from England is most, most fortunate to have such loving arms waiting for her, such kind hearts making such good and devoted plans for her happiness and welcome. And your plans so far are excellent.

2. I do indeed agree with you that formal invitations, in these circumstances, would not be appropriate. Since you will, I assume, plan a small wedding (a chapel wedding, you say), I suggest you invite the members of your family and your close relatives verbally, or by telephone, writing notes of invitation when these seem more appropriate.

3. I am sure that this is correct, thoughtful, and often the procedure for a wedding in these circumstances. Particularly a good idea since your son has suggested it.

4. I definitely advise that formal announcements of the marriage should be sent — in the names of her parents, of course. For advice about the correct form for these, I'd abide by the custom she is familiar with; I suggest you wait to have these after talking over the form with her.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a report of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Julian C. — What's the harm in looking?

Hilda C. — He makes me furious!

Julian C. — My wife and I are in our mid-40's and have been married 20 years. In all of that time we have had one big problem — my wife's jealousy.

I must say, first of all, that I have never given her any cause. She knows I've been faithful. Beyond that, I must admit, I have an eye for the ladies. I don't miss a good figure or a nice pair of legs if I see them, however in range of my vision. I also enjoy looking at good-looking girls on the TV screen. What's the harm in that? Doesn't everyone?

The argument with Hilda is that she had a very prudish upbringing. She is constantly writing letters to newspapers and TV stations telling them to censor certain things.

Hilda C. — I don't think it's prudish to be concerned about morality in general and the welfare of children, in particular. My husband makes it sound as though I come out of the Victorian age, but that's not so. I'm up-to-date, wear makeup and fashionable clothes. I just don't approve of a lot of the stuff that is available in today's homes — pictures of certain actresses in the least possible clothing, for example.

When my husband sees things like that he sets up a regular whoop and holler — even in front of the children. He knows this makes me furious.

It's true that I have had no cause to doubt Julian's faithfulness, but it annoys me to death when he ogles every female he sees.

The Council: This doesn't appear to be true jealousy, but rather a case of mutual problem-most.

It is highly probable that Julian and Hilda know something about one another's tastes, habits and attitudes before they were married. Out of a large selection of members of the opposite sex they each chose the one most likely to get their goats.

We should very much whether Julian really enjoys his ogling as much as the tongue-lashing that comes after it. With one gesture he can feel like a big, bad wolf — and then like a little boy who enjoys being kept in line by a severe mother.

Hilda gets her punishment first and her pleasure afterwards. She is probably truly wounded when her husband indulges in his favorite pastime, but then comes the delight of unleashing all her strong will in a battle against unbridled thoughts and actions.

We see no great harm in anyone's noting an attractive member of any sex, but when the observer constantly creates a big issue about it and calls it to the attention of a mate, we believe a problem is going on that meets the eye.

We are in favor of public action on behalf of decency, but when standards of decency become one individual's full-time preoccupation, we believe the person involved is in need of some understanding help from a psychiatrist.

In one sense, however, Julian and Hilda seem ideally mated and could just go on enjoying life in their own peculiar way.

Your Car
Interior Neglect Costs You Money

By EUGENE MILMOE

Since good car-keeping (which includes interior upholstery, door panels, carpeting, etc.) affects the resale or trade-in value, it certainly pays to keep it well groomed.

Using the right type cleaner is most important. Cold or lukewarm water is best to try first because it's often enough to remove certain spots and stains.

Solvents and volatile cleaning fluids applied to certain upholstery and seat cover materials, such as leather, vinyl plastic and foam rubber, can be harmful even when used sparingly.

Your best bet is to get at the stain as soon as possible with cleaners or detergents that are factory approved for your car's interior. If you're not sure about the type of stain or the cleaner recommended, it may pay to check with your dealer.

L. H. writes: "I've checked over carburetor, fuel pump, choke, spark plugs, points, coil and cables, but can't figure why gas mileage continues be low par and why the engine has lost its pick-up and power."

(A) A binding manifold heat control valve could be the answer.

From G. S.: "My car is a '54 with semiautomatic transmission (fluid drive). I want to know how to operate it if I'm getting a push-start from another car."

(A) With the shift in drive gear, hold the clutch to the floor until a 20 to 25 mph speed is reached, then let up the clutch slowly.

C. H. asks: "My car, a small foreign make, has an electric fuel pump which needs to be replaced. If I can't obtain a factory part, could I substitute a U. S. made pump? My service station believes it can be done."

(A) In most cases, a U. S. made electric fuel pump can be installed on foreign car models.

From J. H.: "Several weeks ago I bought a '59 sedan which runs beautifully. But now, after the 1,000 mile check, I'm concerned about future service costs. For instance, I was told the oil filter must be replaced every 1,000 miles."

(A) You probably misunderstood. The filter should be replaced after the first 1,000 miles, but then on 4,000 to 5,000 mile intervals are sufficient under average conditions.

Fanatical Women Blamed for Riot In Polish Town

KRASNIK FABRYCZNY, Poland (AP)—Authorities still show uneasiness two weeks after a riot in this town in southeast Poland that they had thought was a Communist showpiece.

Orders are out for more arrests in a roundup aimed at halting agitation for construction of a Roman Catholic Church. Local persons say at least 300 have been picked up, although officials say no more than 20 are under arrest.

Tadeusz Marx, chairman of the local council, said:

"Before we build a church, which would cost millions of zlotys, we must build more schools which also cost millions."

Catholic officials said the Communists are reluctant to admit that residents of their "model" town prefer a church to other new buildings.

PATROL LUBLIN

Members of the militia armed with sub - machine-guns are on nightly patrol in Lublin, the nearest big city, in fear the unrest will spread there.

The town of 11,000 is a well-built, modern, attractive place from which the marks of war have been removed. But it has no church, despite a petition signed by thousands and warnings of church authorities that the people were getting impatient.

In 1957 local catholics built a shrine in a wood. Last month they rooted it with branches and hung holy pictures and linen draperies in preparation for a children's communion June 28. Police sealed off the area with ropes and the state seal.

MARCH ON TOWN HALL

On June 26 several hundred Catholics came to sing hymns at the shrine and found the draperies gone. As feeling mounted, they decided to march on the town hall and police station. Along the way the crowd swelled to between 1,000 and 2,000.

The angry marchers smashed windows in the police station and Communist headquarters. Police admitted using fire hoses to scatter the crowd, and townspeople said they also used tear gas. Reinforcements were brought in from Lublin.

Hospital authorities say no one was injured.

Interest Rate Increased by Bank of Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada interest rate increased this week to 5.31 per cent from 5.28 last week, the central bank reported Friday.

The rise wiped out half of the decline of .10 per cent that occurred last week when the rate dropped from 5.38 per cent. The present rate, which is charged on any chartered bank borrowings from the central bank, compares with the peak 5.47 per cent on June 18 and the record low of 1.12 per cent last Aug. 7.

The bank said that next week it will issue $135,000,000 in 91-day bills—$20,000,000 more than its normal weekly offering — and $20,000,000 in 182-day bills.

Decision Brutally Exposes West's Failure on Strategy

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The decision to transfer American fighter - bombers and reconnaissance planes from France to England is brutally exposes the West's failure to agree on nuclear-age strategy.

Despite months of trying, NATO representatives have been unable to resolve differences within the alliance on the largest nuclear issues. Among these questions are where the bulk of armament should be stationed, and the moral-strategic problem of whether the West should be first to resort to nuclear weapons.

Gen. Norstad's action is shifting the American squadrons from their natural locale in France and in the process transferring to Britain the dubious distinction of having a higher nuclear "load" than any other country — is the latest and most serious manifestation of western inability to agree on the nuclear role in defence.

TWO VIEWS

It arises from a clash between two points of view. Gen. Norstad is determined that the bombers should carry a nuclear punch. President de Gaulle of France, for a variety of reasons, refuses to have nuclear bombs on French soil, though the French are pressing ahead with development of their own nuclear armament.

French national pride, yearnings for grandeur, a determination that France shall rank among the great powers, these are among the emotional misgivings of de Gaulle's attitude. His immediate concern, it is believed, is that the NATO alliance is really being run by the United States, with Britain a privileged "deputy" in a deep inner circle of command. He wants to make it a threesome.

In London, there is much talk of the so-called "double veto" on use of nuclear weapons from British bases. Theoretically, the British government would have to give permission before American fighter - bombers could launch a nuclear attack.

The question has been raised as to whether such a veto means anything. In kind of emergency that Gen. Norstad might consider required nuclear action by the West, there would be little time for solemn consultation between cabinets.

Still another unresolved issue, at least so far as a bipartisan approach in Britain is concerned, is how to stop the spread of nuclear weapons among powers outside Britain, the United States and Russia. The question has the Labor party in turmoil, and indications are the great debate will continue indefinitely.

From Harbor to Mount Royal Montreal Is in Midst of Boom of Big Buildings

By JOHN TOLSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal is in the midst of a boom in big buildings.

From the harbor to the foot of Mount Royal, the business world is blossoming with smart new office structures ranging from 12 to 42 floors in height.

Centre of the boom is a three-block stretch of Dorchester Street in the hotel, theatre, shopping district. The centre's eye-catcher is the $200,000,000 Place Ville Marie project.

This includes a 45-storey office building and a 19-storey structure to be built on a seven-acre site over the tracks of the CNR's Central Station.

TO OPEN IN 1962

The main building of the Place Ville Marie project — named for the tiny log settlement that became Montreal—should be ready in 1962. It will complement some new and impressive buildings already in use across the street—the 21-floor Queen Elizabeth Hotel and the 11 - storey International Airlines building.

Ville Marie is north of Central Station. South of it, a 17 - floor CNR office building is to start this fall. A bus terminal, whose roof will be a heliport, is included in the all-over plan for the district.

Two blocks west, and just off Dominion Square, a $45,000,000, 42-floor office building will go up on part of the site of the Windsor Hotel.

This is Windsor Plaza, to be completed in 1962. Construction is also under way on a 23-storey office building for the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.

Two newspapers, The Star and La Presse, are building new offices and installing color presses on once-seedy Craig Street.

BANK ADDITION

The Bank of Montreal is erecting a 14-storey addition beside its dome - shaped head office which has been in use 111 years. The $10,000,000 addition is just off Place d'Armes, the district's hub.

This fall, work is to start on a 14-floor building at McGill and St. James Streets, on the edge of the financial district. Two floors will be taken by Toronto - Dominion Bank, the remainder rented.

The Prudential Assurance Company of England will move its Canadian head office into a 14-storey building near the Ville Marie project. Two blocks further east, finishing touches are being put on an eight-floor building housing the Montreal division of the federal income tax department.

Further east still, Quebec Hydro is erecting a 34-floor building that's a difference. Three of its five underground floors will house a power substation, producing 150,000 volts of electricity to serve the area. The building is to be heated and serviced by steam from the transformer. There will be no boiler room.

To that area, too, will go the $5,000 Sailing Club Place d'Arts, a project that includes a 1,100-seat concert hall, a smaller theatre and a cinematheque salon.

The city and the CBC are discussing the possibility of putting up a building that would house all of the province's broadcast operations. It and the Place des Arts would be joined by a wide, tree-lined mall.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The big question that has been perturbing the boxing faithful since Ingo Johannson's bulldozer right lowered the boom on ex-heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson is, can he do it again?

The betting mobs of Gotham and other big towns say he can't—to the tune of 7-5 odds. Others think he can, including the lone ex-champion who picked the Swede to win the first brawl, one Gene Tunney.

The Manhattan money-changers seem to think Patterson will prov!'e a defence that will nullify the "Thunderbolt of Thor," as someone has dubbed the Swede's mystery right, and reclaim the title through his boxing artistry, and a consistent offence.

Strangely enough the British sports writers and some of their Swedish counterparts, all of whom have seen Ingo in action previous to the title victory, were not impressed enough to pick the handsome Gotebogian to win.

Even his dynamite one-round knockout of Eddie Machen, the one that catapulted him into the title fight, was judged a lucky punch by some of the more cautious. Oddly enough some of them think that when Ingo picked that bale in the peep-sight gloves of Patterson and flattened him with "Thor," it was a horse of the same color.

Johannson went into the fight with all the confidence of a Khrushchev strolling into a satellite country's vodka garden. Could it be he will be over-confident the next time out? Who knows?

Patterson now knows what the Swede can do. "He tricked me," he wailed, after he lost his crown. So what? There is no assurance that the ex-champion can avoid being tricked again.

Gene Tunney, who should now be regarded as one of boxing's best authorities, issued a warning after the 21-year-old Patterson won the heavyweight crown.

"This could be a tragedy," Tunney said. "Floyd Patterson is potentially a great fighter. Yet he can only achieve it by fighting regularly in his formative years, and that's a road barred to him as champion. Because he has no experience he has lost his greatness."

Tunney was asked what his current thoughts were after Patterson had received his come-uppance from the dashing pride of Sweden.

"I realized how right I was when I saw Patterson fight for the first time," Tunney said. 'My heavens,' I told myself. 'This fellow's a novice. At the start of my career I also kept my hands high to cover my face. But after I got confidence and experience, I realized that the hands were not meant to be blocking instruments, but hitting instruments."

"Johannson knocked him out with that good old one-two punch," the ex-champion said. "I've always said that all my life, I knocked out Tommy Gibbons with it and I knocked down Jack Dempsey with it in the eighth round after he'd knocked me down in the previous round.

"When Patterson arose after his first knockdown he showed his nonchalant approach. He was game enough but he walked away with his guard down. If he'd been a seasoned professional he would have obeyed the subconscious and protected himself properly. He didn't and he'll always wear in a couple of knocks. I think Johannson will do it again in the return match. At least he looked like a fighter."

Tunney's remarks rate respect inasmuch as he had carefully analyzed both fighters, and as everyone knows, was (for) only "authority" to call the turn correctly.

Yet the American boxing "mobs" are intensely loyal to their fellow Yankee and refuse to lose faith in his ability despite his crushing defeat at the hands of a foreigner.

How about it next time? As someone remarked it's a good question. It is the answer that's so baffling.

Don Jordan Defeats Moyer To Retain Welter Crown

By MATT KRAMER

PORTLAND Ore. (AP)—Tough Don Jordan of Los Angeles defended his welterweight championship overtime Friday night, and looked today toward a middleweight Ray Robinson for his next bout.

Jordan, a punishing body puncher, rammed solid hooks into the ribs of year-old Denny Moyer, and uppercuts to the face as he scored a unanimous 15-round decision over the young Portlander in a nationally televised bout.

There were no knockdowns.

Several times Moyer appeared about to go down, but each time called on some hidden resources to stay upright. He still was dancing gamely about at the end, flicking left jabs at Jordan.

JAB MAKES WEAPON

The jab was his main weapon against the aggressive Jordan. It became apparent early that his right caused Jordan no fear. It was like a destroyer against a cruiser. Moyer was willing, but lacked the guns.

McFarlands Join All-Ontario Senior 'A' League

Whitby, Kitchener, Windsor, Chatham Make 5-Team Loop; Door Left Open to Cornwall

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

TORONTO — Southern Ontario merged its hockey forces into what was termed the strongest senior "A" league in Canada here last night.

Entered are Belleville McFarlands, Whitby Dunlops of the defunct Eastern League, and Windsor, Chatham and Kitchener of the OHA-NOHA loop.

The Whitby-Windsor motion to form the league set an August 1st entry deadline to include Cornwall and another club that can meet the requirements of the group and can furnish senior "A" competition.

Cornwall's Ray Mitron was delegated by the newly-formed league to contact Toronto hockey interests with regard to an entry from that city.

The new league unanimously endorsed a motion that in the event Cornwall cannot operate a team next season, its players will be placed on waivers to the group at the top price of $750 No action will be taken on Cornwall players until after the next meeting set for July 24.

The Belleville - Whitby teams will adopt the OHA franchise agreement in keeping with the Western Ontario member clubs of the league.

VOTE IN POOL

Whitby and Windsor sponsored a motion that the league adopt the all-star draft, Ontario system of a league pool. It carried by a 4-3 vote with Kitchener being the lone "nay."

The Dutchmen's Ernie Goman said the motion he could not vote for the motion was because of previous commitments with the Kitchener arena.

Under the arrangements ten per cent of the gate receipts will be paid to the pool by arenas. Teams will be paid 40 cents per mile one way over 100 miles and $100 per night for overnight stay—subject to the pool's availability.

The balance of the pool funds will be divided among clubs completing the schedule at the end of the season. The pool will operate in regular schedule only.

In view of the incident of the Kingston Club defaulting pool payments, the league instructed CAHA secretary-manager George Dudley to draw up an arrangement between clubs and arenas whereby pool dues will be paid within a period of five days.

KINGSTON MAY PAY

Speaking of the Kingston default, Mr. Dudley told Belleville and Whitby "Don't be surprised if you receive a pay cheque from Kingston for your pool debts in the near future". He would not elaborate on the matter.

Dudley informed the league that the new senior "A" league must sign all players to pro contracts before they can be placed on a roster. This will put an end to any Hull or Kingston players you must get them before they sign any kind of a pro form".

The Western Ontario teams did not object to the new obligations of Cornwall entered the league. They were unanimous in supporting the seaway city entry if it finds its way to enter. Manager Mitron said he will be back with a sponsor and would give an answer by Aug. 1. He said he would be willing to be left out for a year if he could get player protection. Mr. Dudley said a team cannot get a year's leave of absence and expect to hold its players.

There was discussion of potential problems including referees, salary limits, schedule, etc., but these will be held over.

HARMONY REIGNED

Nothing but harmony reigned. The western teams welcomed Cornwall and Kitchener refused to merge with eastern clubs, but in the strongest senior "A" league in Canada," said Whitby's Blair.

The new pro loop thought they would be senior hockey, but we'll show them who will be hurt. They put out a rosy picture with their new league, but this is by far a more rosy one."

"This is the best thing that ever happened," said Chatham's Johnny Horeck. "The competition will be great and should pull in the fans."

"It means new faces, good clubs and better hockey," said Windsor's Bill Butcher.

"Kitchener fans perhaps are a bit tired of seeing the same players year after year," said Manager Goman of the Kitchener Dutchmen." "Now with Belleville, Whitby and possibly Cornwall and Toronto in, it will be a change of face and pace. That's what we need."

Speaking of his olympic team, Goman said he might have to withdraw from the senior "A" league and teams might not want to give them up.

SENIOR CO-OPERATE

"They have to" said Mr. Dudley. "Kitchener cannot use them stalled" and like Belleville and Whitby. The CAHA also laid down the Canadian Olympic team must be together from the start of the season."

"Suppose the players refuse to go" he was asked.

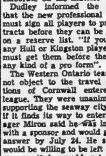
"I think, after our experience with players the past few years, Canada might better forget further international Competition" Dudley said.

The remaining teams unanimously agreed to play a best of All-Star game with the Kitchener Olympics team prior to the start of the season. It will be played in Kitchener for the benefit of the injured McMaster, of the Dutchies.

OHA President Ken McMillan chaired the meeting. Past President Lorne Cook was here and outlined the "demise" of the Eastern League. Manager Keith MacDonald and Harvey McFarland represented the McFarlands. "the" also was on hand.

Ol' Archie Ties Into Heavy Punching Bag

MONTREAL (CP) — Archie Moore knocked a heavy punching bag clean off its perch Friday and pocketed for his coming light-heavyweight title defence.



"You gonna get a Durelle!" a fan yelled as the bag thudded to the floor. Ol' Archie just grinned and shook his head.

Meanwhile, from Moncton, challenger Yvon Durelle was reported doing heavy training, working out with three sparring partners.

Promoter Eddie Quinn said ticket sales have reached $80,000 —$10,000 under the total gate at Moore's first meeting with Durelle in last June's match. A sellout would be $250,000.

TIP A CONTENDER

COPENHAGEN (CP) — The Canadian-owned yacht Vi re-mained well up front in the Scandinavia Gold Cup races by placing sixth Friday to give it fifth position in the five-race series after the first two days of the world championship. Skipper Walter Wiedemann of the Canadian Yacht Club now is only eight points behind Sweden with 4,185.

Montreal Royals Getting Closer To Top Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal's Royals—latest contender in the International League's pennant scramble—closed within three games of the top spot Friday night with a timely hit and an untimely managerial miscue.

Here's what happened:

Hitless in three games, catcher Dick Teed came up in the ninth inning with the score tied 3-3 and Jack Hamilton loaded. His sharp single off Ken Lehman gave the Royals a 3-2 victory over pace-leading Buffalo and their third victory over league-leading Buffalo and their third victory in the four-game set with the Bisons.

CRUCIAL FIRST

The crucial moment for the Bisons, however, came in the first inning after they had taken a 1-0 lead. Mickey Harrington singled home what should have been the second run as Jim Bloss had Don Lasorda on the ropes.

But Buffalo manager Kerby Farrell—who revised his line-up just before game time — had Phillips warming in the bull-pen. Under the card lacedwriter-baseball rule, Farrell said Phillips was the listed batter, not Harrington.

Umpire was ruled out. Harrington—now batting in the correct position—then lined into a double play, ending the inning and the rally.

The Bisons, however, retained a one-game hold on first place as Toronto defeated second-place Rochester 8-1. Miami edged Havana 4-3 in 11 innings and Richmond whipped Columbus 5-2.

LAYOFFS STRATEGY

Teed's single broke layoff Farrell's strategy. When Jim Koranda tripled to lead off the Montreal ninth, the Buffalo skipper ordered the next two men intentionally passed. Teed then struck out. Fred Rodriguez picked up the victory in relief and also saved Phillips' mistake for a goat.

Rodriguez came on in the ninth with the bases loaded and runners on first and second. Lasorda was due to bat for Teed allowed the tying run to cross on his passed ball.

Toronto's Al Pehanick five-hit the Red Wings and was backed by a 17-hit attack including homers by Archie Wilson and Joe Amalfitano. The Maple Leafs had 14th in 20 games for the Leafs and moved into the sixth place.

The Marlins edged within two games of the league lead as catcher Jim Barbieri singled home Woody Smith with the winning run in the 11th. Bunky Stewart went the distance to pick up the victory.

The Virginians pounded six Columbus pitchers for 16 hits as they skidded into the cellar with 12 hits—into a last place tie with Havana. Richmond wrapped up the slugfest with a four-run outburst in the second and eighth innings.

CBC Makes Final Offer of $50,000 For TV Rights

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC announced it had made a final offer for 60 more Friday night Canadian television rights for the Yvon Durelle - Archie Moore championship fight in Montreal July 20.

The corporation said its offer would cover full Canadian rights with no blackout restrictions. At last week, a corporation statement said, Montreal promoter Ed Quinn wanted $75,000 plus $50,000 plus the cost of unsold seats at the fight.

The Canadian network, with 10 times the potential audience, has purchased the United States television rights for a reported $100,000, the statement added.

Main Bout Ends 'No Decision' As Ref Ditches Whole Show

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Missing: 200 pounds of near-blind Utah beef on the hoof, one wild potato-chip bag bearing wrestler plus a white-shirted official, whose only wish was to get away from it all. He did, much to the disappointment and bewilderment of the crowd and this reporter to boot.

The trio, or foursome if you count the potato-chip bag, was last seen heading for the dressing room at Belleville Memorial Arena. Let the beef, Don Leo Jonathan by name, and the wrestler, Jack Hagerty by name, go. But please, somebody bring back the official, the referee Joe Gollob, just long enough to explain, Why? hoppen?

Just to clear matters up a bit, we will take a guess and announce that referee after last night's main bout at the weekly wrestling card. At least that is the best we can figure it.

It all happened this way. Hagerty won the first fall in the best-of-three falls affair. He did it by nearly blinding Jonathan with a potato chip bag, but we will get back to that later.

Anyway the boys came out for the second fall. Haggerty with thunder in his eye and the hate he had raised with all his fracas, and Jonathan lucky to still have his eyeball in its proper place.

TRIED TO END IT FAST

Haggerty decided to end it fast so met his Utah opponent half way through the ring with a towel which he wrapped around the big boy's neck. After a short bit of this, the handsome Don Leo ripped the towel away from Haggerty and crowned the ex-champion. He dished it out good, throwing the Saskatchewan boy around the ring like a sack of bears, belting him left and right and finally having the fall with a series of punishing knee drops.

PATERNAL RETIRES

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—Metro Prystai, a former National Hockey League player with Detroit and Chicago, said today he will not play hockey this season.

Prystai, who played with Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League, said in an interview he has accepted an offer to manage and coach Omaha Knights, of the United States International Hockey League but that all arrangements have not yet been completed.

He said a slow-healing leg injury suffered last January in WHL game will keep him from playing in the 1959-60 season.

Haggerty then picked Jonathan up and tossed him out of the ring. He kept him out with a boot to the head. After a short bit of this, the handsome Don Leo ripped the towel away from Haggerty and crowned the ex-champion. He dished it out good, throwing the Saskatchewan boy around the ring like a sack of bears, belting him left and right and finally having the fall with a series of punishing knee drops.

Willie Mays Carefree Again; Indians Hike Lead

Giants' Outfielder Produces Winning Run to Increase Lead; Minoso Leads Rallies

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Willie Mays is looking like the old, carefree Willie again and that may be bad news for the teams that are trying to topple the San Francisco Giants from their newly-won place atop the National League standings.

Up to the all-star game last week, Mays wasn't doing especially well—if you think hitting .311 isn't a good performance. Below par apparently is off on another of the late-season spurts that have marked his major league career.

It was Willie who produced the winning run Thursday as Giants moved into first place ahead of Los Angeles and Milwaukee. It was Willie again Friday night, breaking the hearts of San Francisco's 11-inning, 8-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds that increased the Giant margin to a full game.

The second game of an important three-game series with the Reds was rained out before the third inning was completed, drenching each team another half game lower.

HOMER WINS IT

Pittsburgh Pirates, in another 11-inning game marked by errors, beat Chicago Cubs 7-6 on Dick Stuart's double with the bases loaded. St. Louis Cardinals, with an eight-run, sixth - inning rally slipped Cincy, 12-8.

Mays' 15th home run of the season was the climactic blow in San Francisco's victory over Cincinnati. Earlier in the game he had hit a double and two of the stolen three bases.

Willie Mays, including five hits yielded a total of 24 hits, including three homers by each team.

Orlando Cepeda hit a Giant three-run homer in the first off Jim Bailey had two Cincinnati homers and Frank Robinson hit his 19th in the seventh.

Orlando Pena (3-7) was the loser and Sam Jones (12-5) the winner.

At Pittsburgh the Cubs scored three runs in the first half of the 21th inning to break a 3-3 deadlock. Then Dick Stuart's bases-loaded single with two on before Stuart blasted one of Don Elston's pitches over the left field wall for three more runs to end the game.

Back-to-back homers by Gene Oliver and Hal Smith highlighted Cardinal's big inning against Phillies. It cost Jim Owens (4-8) his fifth straight defeat. Vinegar Bill Mizell gave up three runs in the ninth before Lindy McDaniel fanned Harry Anderson and Carl Sawatski to end the game.

Dodgers were leading Milwaukee 1-0 after two innings when the rains came. The game was called after a wait of an hour and 24 minutes.

North Bay Trappers Offered Proposition to Join Loop

NORTH BAY (CP)—A professional team willing to supply financial aid and the nucleus of players has offered North Bay Trappers a proposition to join the newly - formed Eastern Canada Professional Hockey League as a sixth entry.

Sudbury Wolves, Ottawa - Hull Canadiens and Kingston Merchants have indicated their interest of joining the two surviving Quebec Hockey League clubs and Montreal Royals and Trois-Rivières Lions, in the new league.

It is known that league administrators are in favor of an entry from North Bay to round out the league and to establish a team near Sudbury that would make it for more economical road trips for the eastern teams.

Trapper manager Pete Palangio says he is not at liberty to disclose the name of the pro team involved. However, he indicated he would study the offer more thoroughly and go into further discussions Friday.

The pro club is reported to be willing to place about 10 players on North Bay and guarantee support at least part of a possible deficit. The major team would require that the Trappers sell about 2,000 season tickets in order to assure a measure of support.

Palangio is said to favor a plan whereby the pro club would take over complete operation of the Trappers and he would serve in the capacity of team manager.

"It sounds interesting," he said, "but I'm not in position to commit myself to anything so big until we investigate the whole thing more thoroughly. I'm open to any possibility that sounds financially reasonable, however."

Palangio said he would make a decision within the next few days as to whether he will attend the next meeting of the eastern league at Kingston July 22 when the circuit plans to make final arrangements for the coming season.

Napanee Golfer Wins 2nd Place In Bantam Class

TORONTO (CP)—Phil Brownlee who "didn't drop a putt all day" regained the Ontario Junior golf championship Friday with a 36-hole score of 146, two over par at the suburban Islington Golf Club.

Tied in the runnerup spot were 5-ft. Pansiuk of Windsor, the defending champion who defeated Mc Ilveen - old Brownlee last year, and John Kindred of Peterborough. They tallied by four strokes.

Brownlee, second last year, put together rounds of 72-74. Pansiuk was 74-76, Kindred 78-72.

Juvenile and bantam champions also were decided from the field of 102.

TOP JUVENILE

Gary Black of St. Catharines won the juvenile crown on the second hole of a playoff with Brian Wilcox of Thornhill. They tied with 154 after 36 holes.

Each parred the first hole and Black also shot par on the second.

The bantam titleholder is Dave Thrasher, 13-year-old from London Highland. Thrasher required 86 strokes over the 18 holes set for the bantams. Gary Cushing of Napanee, also 13, was second with 88.

Napanee Women Prominent in Open Golf Finals

BRANTFORD (CP)—Gail Harvey, the 1959 Ontario women's golf champion, survived the "knees were trembling" after she took the lead Friday in her final match against Kay Helleur, of Woodbridge.

But the tremble in her knees didn't show in the 16-year-old Toronto girl's shooting as she birdied the 162yd hole to take the 18-hole final 3 and 2.

TIED ON 12th

But on the 13th Miss Helleur's second shot landed in the trap and she needed two more shots to get on the green. The youngster who is also a Toronto Scarboro took a par four and the match was tied.

Miss Earvey took the lead on the 14th, was two up on the 15th and sank a three-foot putt on the 16th for her 3 and 2 victory in the round.

Margaret Hunter of Toronto won the consolation championship by defeating Kathryn Cartwright of Kingston 3 and 2.

Results of other final matches included:

Third flight: Mrs. K. Binkley, Owen Sound, defeated Mrs. R. E. Hall, Toronto Glendale, 5 and 4.

Fourth flight: Mrs. M. Macpherson, Napanee, defeated Mrs. M. A. Robinson, Toronto Ladies, 5 and 4.

Black also shot par on the second.

The bantam titleholder is Dave Thrasher, 13-year-old from London Highland. Thrasher required 86 strokes over the 18 holes set for the bantams. Gary Cushing of Napanee, also 13, was second with 88.

Trenton Hands Bobcats 11-4 Loss To Stall Leaders' Pennant Drive

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trenton Garretts came up with a surprising 11-4 upset over the Bobcats at CNRA Park last night in a game that could greatly help the Cats when the Belleville and District Softball League schedule ends in a little over a week.

The Bobcats are currently in first place, scant percentage points ahead of Point Anne, while Trenton is doomed to the cellar. But on last night's performances it could well be the other way around.

The clubs traded first-inning runs, Trenton scoring on a walk and LeRoy Wannamaker's single and Bobcats getting it back on hits by Sunke, Brown and Hayden.

Alexander and Wannamaker combined for six strikeouts from the hill.

A big five-run explosion was what put the Garretts' third win of the year in the fourth frame. Three speedy singles, one to the bunt and D. Cole, Defoose and Smith loaded the bases with Trenton leading 3-1. Another infield hit, thanks to Defoose's speed, scored Smith but McLean on first and Alexander forced a solid Defoose single to centre and a couple of errors accounted for the last pair in a 7-1 lead.

That was enough for Howard Cole, who went the route for his third win on the Trenton hill-top. He gave up ten hits, five of them coming in the last two frames, struck out five and walked one. He also belted a two-run homer to help his own cause at the plate.

Tired after the loser, while pitching six and one-third innings. He gave up nine of Trenton's runs and ten of their 11 hits while fanning five and walking four. Scot Smith finished the game, tagged for two runs of one hit. He whiffed a pair and passed one man.

Trenton added to their total with a six-run blast against Chase Green. A walk to Mitts was followed by Doolittle's single to right-centre to the right-centre field fence. Then in the eighth, Mitts walked and Howard Cole lashed his homer down the right field line to close Trenton's scoring.

Meanwhile the "Cats began to find their batting stride but it was too little and too late. They got both runs Trenton errors too, as was the case when Hull singled back to Alexander and scored later with the aid of two miscues in the eighth.

Temple's crew plated a pair in the ninth. Smrke walked and scored later on Hully's pop fly back of first base. Haydon's grounder to first chased Smrke across the plate. Glogger kept it alive with a hit but died on first base.

Thumbs Cole with a homer and single and LeRoy Wannamaker with two run-scoring singles were tops for the winners while Doug Alexander also drove in a pair with two-baggers.

Ron Smith had two singles and Howard Cole his home run. Furky McLean and Ralph Defoose completed the 11-hit attack.

Lou Smrke continued his batting streak for the 'Cats with a long triple and a single. Denny Hayden krypt pace with two doubles safeties while Bob Hull doubled and singled. "Wiener" Brown went one-for-two before being ejected by Bill Hurst in the third frame for arguing a ball at the plate. Jack Hughes, Floyd Geogan and Bert Faulkner also landed out the hit parade.

The Bobcats have an important game scheduled for CNRA Park Tuesday when they play host to Cobourg in a game postponed from June 13.

The line-ups:

Trenton	Alexander ss, lb; R. Cole p; Wannamaker c; Mitts cf; D. Cole lf; Defoose 3b; Smith 2b; McLean rf.
Bobcats	—Crowder lb; Smrke lf; Brown sf; Hull cf; Hayden 1b; Geogan lf, rf; Coupins ss; Russell 3b; Green p; Hughes; Faulkner lf; Temple (p.h. 9th).

$10,000 Stakes On Closing Card

TORONTO (CP)—Twin $10,000 added stakes, the Queen Mother Cup and the Toronto Cup on the turf, bring down the curtain at Woodbine Park on the harness sport Monday of the 42 - day summer season at the track.

Both are 1 1-16 miles. The Connaught Cup brings out the home-bred four-year-olds and up and an expected crowd of more than 20,000 will likely make Lennox Farms' Foxy Phil the favorite.

Top weight under the conditions of the Toronto Cup for three-year-olds is another Lennox horse, Anita's Son, coupled in the race with Sunday Sail.

Pat Harrington Scheduled For Greatness in Movies

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (CP)—As Guido Panzini, an Italian golf professional, he turned up sporadically and hilariously on Jack Paar's late evening NBC show for months. But now Pat Harrington Jr. seems scheduled for greater things in television under his real name.

The Panzini business started as a spur-of-the-moment gag about three years ago during a frolic some afternoon in Toots Shore's saloon. Harrington, then a television time salesman, and a pal took in a number of unsuspecting customers with Pat's fractured English and realistic spiel.

Ultimately, the Panzini bit landed him on his first Paar show in January, 1958, where the story-up-lates immediately took him to their hearts. Guido, during many appearances explained earnestly that, among other things:

1. He had learned English in the Italian submarine service—surfacing behind U.S. warships to watch recreation movies.

2. He was captured because he followed one ship right back to port watching a double feature.

3. As an international golfer he figured the most difficult hole was the third on a Tanganyika course where the green is on the other side of a pigmy village. Failure of one's two tries, he reported, means pow! —a bloerge dart in the chest.

As Guido, Harrington—who has never been near Italy—took to Italian-Americans of the viewing audience and even the U.S. immigration service, which made inquiries about a man whose name was not on their records.

He finally was unmasked, but by that time he had established himself as one of Steve Allen's madmen and picked up a spot on a panel show, Laugh Line.

During the summer he's on Pantomime Quiz and this fall he is signed for the Danny Thomas show. Gossip is that Thomas plans to move his own part into the background while pushing Harrington forward. Meantime, of course, he has quit selling TV time.

"I enjoy it," he says. "I like giving the needles—gentle needling is a good comedy premise. But dialects are just a part of it — a modus operandi, not a modus vivendi."

TV TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Although we are located in a television reception "fringe area," most of us enjoy excellent pictures and clear sound on our sets, with a number of channels to choose from.

One of the chief contributions to this high quality TV picture has been the development of the Cascade Tuner. Without going into technical details, this tuner has practically the same effect as a booster, except that, to enable your set to "pull in" stations more clearly, TV stations which were once completely out of range are now available for you to enjoy.

Make the most of the tremendous technical achievements built-in your television set! If the reception on your set isn't all it should be, don't delay any longer — call CHCLS TV SERVICE, 384 Coleman St. They'll bring back peak power to your TV at moderate cost. Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Do not try to force any issues with a higher-up in early A.M., or you get nowhere. Await the latter part of day when conditions are much favorable. Friendly attitude releases favors you covet.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Refrain from stewing about what you cannot help and do some research work, read paper, etc., so that you may be well informed and find a more remunerative outlet. Also, get out and meet the right people so that you may advance.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Rather than follow an erroneous intuitive flash in A.M., pay attention to the advice of a loyal friend. Then you will be able to get out of dull doldrums routine and advance quickly toward desired goals.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Try not to get involved in altercation between an associate and a higher-up. 11 does not concern you. Work diligently and later in the day a clever authority helps you to become recognized in your chosen path.

— Too fast action in early A.M. could lead to serious damage or accident. Slow down. You will then be able to go off with newcomers to a charming spot where you can cement better relations, form alliances, sign contracts.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) — Early arguing with anyone could easily develop into a battle royal. Use tact and charm, no matter what the provocation. During afternoon you will get precise intuitive flash what to do to gain greater success and with less effort.

If your child is born today — The dear child born today will possess much sensitivity that if you do not early teach how to control emotions, there will be much heartbreak in this chart. There is great talent and rare good practical sense here, especially in artistic or musical fields, as well as in spheres of business. Teach your child to be less self-sacrificing and more aggressive for a happy life.

LAW'S MEMORY LONG

TORONTO (CP) — The long arm of the law reached out Thursday and tapped Vic Kristopaitis of Dayton, Ohio, lineman-placement kicker with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football union, just as he stepped from the showers after his first 1939 practice session. The charge: Speeding last September at 40 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retirement Homes Blessed Indeed But Not at the Tender Age of 65

By THOMAS COLLINS

A generation that has failed to teach a 65-year-old wife anything about money has failed also to teach her much about the complexities of retirement.

So most of them do what their husbands think best. And their husbands' best thinking, many wives suspect, is not good enough.

For examples:

"My husband will retire next December. With everything lumped together we will have the income of about $360 a month, which I understand is much above the average.

"My husband is quite apprehensive about it. After so many years of having a job and a company as his crutch he seems to have a morbid fear of the insecurity that will sweep over us after he retires.

"We own our house, a small one but worth about $13,000. It is situated in a neighborhood that is declining. We have lived in it nearly 20 years. The old friends are moving away or dying, and while we still have friends they are fewer every year.

"My husband is using this situation — which I can't dispute — as an argument for selling the house. And motivated by his fear of insecurity he is insisting that we move into a home for retired people.

"He is investigating two such homes, both operated by churches. One is in New Jersey and the other in California. He argues that we can take the money from the sale of our house to pay our entrance fee into one of these homes, then use our retirement income (about $250 per month of it) for lifetime care.

"IS HE WRONG?"

"I cannot believe this is the right thing to do. But I can't tell him he is wrong, because I don't know, is he?"

We are all different in our wants and fears. Each of us must decide in our own way which way to turn. But for this wife, and for those of you who mull over similar problems, here are some points to check:

1. Retired people who live in a declining neighborhood — and an uncommon percentage of 65-year-old people do because they bought 30 years ago — often have nothing to stay on for. They would miss the familiar scenes, yet few faces. There is some logic in their moving away. They would be moving among strangers anyway. But that is what they're ready have. At least the faces would be at what they consider their own social and economic level. And this is important.

2. A reasonably healthy man with $360 a month income, who rushes off to a retirement home for security, is a bit confused. Many men with only $300 a month and arthritis are living happily with their wives in tasgerine land and thumbing their noses at security.

3. A 65-year-old couple would feel awkward in most retirement homes. The residents of such homes are usually seven to 15 years older, and often in failing health.

NO QUICK DECISIONS

4. A man who runs scared into retirement — and some do — usually runs out of breath after about three months when he learns that the retirement checks are really going to come in. No man should make a major decision about his retirement until after he has passed through the emotional binge that came with the engraved watch. Maybe six months or a year.

5. A retirement home might have furnished rooms, or in any case would not likely have one that would accommodate your own household treasures.

6. Retirement homes do not provide you upstairs rooms where your children can come for a visit, or a kitchen where the grandchildren can be bested. Also, few of them are located next door to beaches, tennis and mooses necessary where children might come on vacation.

7. Retirement homes are not intended to be fountains of inspiration that will send you out to fight monsters. Every retired man should search, at least until about 75, for a life that will inspire him to go out and fight monsters.

8. Retirement homes, in the main, are blessed indeed. All of us should learn something about them by 65, and make friends with a couple of them. Then, somewhere out in the future, when the legs won't go any more and the ticker grows weak — and we don't want to impose on our children — we should go knocking at the door. But not

Garden Notes

Rose Diseases and Their Cures

By FLORA — M. SAVELLE

No variety or species of rose is completely immune to fungus disease. Some show varying degrees of immunity but in country areas where heavy dews and humid conditions prevail every variety will be attacked sooner or later. A regular program will however keep fungus diseases under control. Black spot, mildew and rust are the main types and there are several strains of each.

Rust is seldom a serious threat in our section of the country but black spot and mildew are all too well known. These diseases may winter over in infected canes and on neighboring plant material. Stems infected with black spot are often ignored by those unfamiliar with the symptoms. Look close for small dark blisters on young canes, first of the season growth. These blisters enlarge and become purple to brown in color. Finally the bark splits and dies back. Badly infected canes should be cut out and burned. Prune to healthy wood.

Mildew appears as a white powdery growth on the leaves, stems and buds and may cause distortion of the affected parts. Rust appears as yellow to orange spots on the lower surface of the leaves. Badly infected leaves turn yellow and drop.

Spraying is the best method of control. Use a fungicide containing captan early in the spring when pruning has been completed is a good start to control of diseases spread by fungus spores. Continue to spray at two week intervals through the summer.

A mulch of damp peat moss is said to keep down the spores which cause black spot but this is no substitute for a regular spray or dusting program. Where powdery mildew is present soak the soil around the roots thoroughly once a week in dry spells. Dry soil if favorable for the spores to develop.

Worms, beetles, thrips, leaf hoppers, and borers all take their toll of the rose and the foliage. Thrips are more numerous in dry spells and their damage can be seen in late June or July. It mottles the leaves and burns the edge of petals and buds are misformed. Leaf hoppers mainly attack the undersides of the leaves leaving pale spotted areas on the upper surface.

INSECTS AND FUNGUS

An all purpose dust or wet spray solution which contains lindane and captan will keep the chewing and sucking insects and fungus diseases under control if a regular program is carried on. Two weeks between applications is usually enough. After heavy rains (to dust or residue from sprays will have been washed off and another application should be made).

Old roses which have been neglected may be infected with virus scale. A soapy spray (never use detergent) it burns the foliage) applied to the stems once a week will clear this up. Burn dead stems and apply an oily emulsion spray after the leaves have dropped.

In applying dust or wet sprays be sure to treat underside of leaves. Keep soil worked up around rose plants, cut back and keep other plants well back as aids in preventing infection.

A healthy plant resists disease and recovers quickly from infection when it does occur. To keep your roses healthy they need a balanced diet and sufficient water to dissolve it and make it available to the feeder roots.

As come of pest prevention will pay off in plants full of perfect roses.

West Will Seek Pact To Shelve Berlin Crisis

Proposes Moratorium To Run Thirty Months

GENEVA (AP)—Western foreign ministers hopefully decided to take the initiative today and seek agreement with Russia on a plan for shelving the Berlin crisis.

In a reversal of their earlier stand, Western spokesmen were reported ready to negotiate with Andrei Gromyko on the Russian's offer of a Berlin stand-still agreement.

But they want the proposed moratorium to run for at least 30 months, instead of the 18 months offered by Gromyko, and they want a pledge of Soviet respect for Western rights in Berlin.

State Secretary Christian Herter was described at a Western strategy meeting to lead the Western campaign when the Big Four conference reopens after a three-week recess. As conference chairman for the day, the American foreign affairs chief had an opportunity to speak first.

DECIDE ON STRATEGY

Western strategy was decided upon when Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France and West German Germany's Heinrich von Brentano met for three hours before the resumption of sessions with Gromyko at the Palais des Nations.

Some signs of trouble appeared in the Western camp over the termination to try to negotiate with Gromyko about freezing the Berlin situation for a fixed period.

Some West German authorities argued the United States, British and France should make one more attempt for an accord with Russia on German reunification. But American and British informants said there was no hope for a Western-Soviet agreement other than some kind of interim arrangement to ease the Berlin crisis.

Western diplomats said that in his speech Herter would offer certain inducements such as a cut in troop strength in West Berlin, but that he would call also for a clarification of a Soviet proposal to free all the Berlin situation for 18 months.

WANT TO KNOW

Western colleagues want to know whether in accepting a moratorium with a deadline they would ease the Soviet view be agreeing to give up their rights to remain in West Berlin.

If a Berlin compromise can be agreed on, a Western "package" agreement on a summit conference to be held in the next two or three months is certain.

In the first round of the conference, the Soviet delegation refused even to discuss Gromyko's proposal to maintain the status quo in Berlin for 18 months. They insisted the Russians must have immediate access to West Berlin until Germany was reunified.

NO AGREEMENT

During the conference recess the Western ministers have shed much of their differences about finding a way out of the Berlin situation. Their cautious optimism apparently grew out of Soviet denials that the Gromyko

Steel Workers Will Resume Stalled Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—The Steelworkers Union, responding to a White House request, agreed today to resume stalled steel labor negotiations at once.

The union and industry negotiators agreed to resume talks at noon in an effort to avert a strike at midnight Tuesday.

President Eisenhower this morning urged both sides to resume their meetings to try to reach a strike-saving solution.

David J. McDonald, union president, met briefly with the union's executive board and then telephoned R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, to arrange the noon resumption of bargaining talks.

The industry was already banking furnaces and slowing production to get ready for the expected strike. Steel-using and ore union sources said could be the longest in steel history.

NO EXTENSION

The steelworkers union rejection's renewed proposal by the industry that the contract be extended beyond Tuesday midnight. The industry and union had agreed earlier to a two-week extension beyond the original June 30 expiration date.

Only a dramatic change in position on the part of the industry or union could alter the situation.

The industry refused to grant any wage or other concessions unless the union agreed to give the firms leeway to make cost-cutting changes in work practices.

The union offered to engage in an industry-wide study of questioned work practices but it refused to make such trade.

NO IMMEDIATE ACTION

Word from Washington was that the White House and government agencies planned no further moves at this stage.

The union's demand for a sizable wage increase has been rebuffed by the industry, which said it could not be granted without steel prices rising, unless compensated for by cost-cutting decreases.

Steelworkers now average $2.51 an hour. The average price of steel is $150 a ton.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A gradual pressure rise over the Great Lakes area promises a slow improvement in the weather accompanied by a gradual temperature rise over the next two days. Tuesday will be mainly sunny with seasonal temperatures in all regions.

BOTH ON CRUTCHES — Both U.S. Foreign Secretary Christian Herter and Mrs. Herter were on crutches when they were greeted in Ottawa by External Affairs Minister Green and Mrs. Green. Mrs. Herter chipped a bone in her left heel while cot-taging last weekend and will be on crutches several weeks. Mr. Herter used a single light aluminum crutch which he has carried for two years because of sometimes painful arthritis of the hips. (CP Wirephoto).

Motorcycle, 'Copter and Jet Used In London to Paris Odd-Ball Race

LONDON (AP) — A British army captain travelling by motorcycle, helicopter and jet led the field today in the opening of an odd-ball race from London's Marble Arch to Paris' Place de Triomphe.

Capt. R. N. B. Walker made the 210-mile trip in a sizzling 57 minutes, 48 seconds as the 10-car contest was launched by a London newspaper to show how quickly the British Army can move on crowded roads between cities and airports.

Capt. Walker made the return trip in an hour and 15 seconds, travelling 170 m.p.h.

The worst part?

"It was hair raising on the back of the motorcycle," said Walker.

During the next 10 days contestants for the £5,000 top prize offered by The Daily Mail can make as many trips as they like. They are allowed to travel by any means across or cross the English Channel by air.

Twenty-six of the 161 competitors entered in the race, which celebrates Louis Blériot's first air channel crossing 50 years ago, were expected to start from Marble Arch today.

A navy officer used roller skates to move through the London traffic from Marble Arch to a waiting Thames-side helicopter.

Race driver Stirling Moss is reported to have made the trip in two hours, 45 minutes. Did it in the conventional way—family car to the airfield, air ferry to France, car from the ferry to Paris.

There was a £1,000 purse ($2,800) prize for the "most praiseworthy effort."

A young woman cycled from Marble Arch to Croydon Airport, took a plane to Be.uvais, changed to another plane to Molesilles and planned to jump aboard another bicycle there and ride for the Arc de Triomphe.

Twenty-five of the entries are French, four Dutch, three Belgian, one American and the rest British. Fifteen are women—three French and 12 English.

Royal Couple Enjoy Fishing, Church Service at Lodge

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip spent a weekend fishing and sunning in a relaxed and informal atmosphere at their Rocky Mountain hideaway on Pennask Lake.

Aides said Sunday night the Queen and Philip are enjoying "immensely" their first vacation since their 44-day Canadian tour began 25 days ago. They attended church service Sunday, then spent four hours on the isolated lake fishing. Each caught several rainbow trout up to a weight of one pound.

The vacation continued today. It ends at noon Tuesday when the Queen and her husband board the royal train here and leave on a whistle-stopping tour to Vancouver.

They left for Pennask Lake, 50 miles southeast of this central city, Saturday following visits in Vernon, 80 miles east of here, and in Kamloops. The weather was good both Saturday and Sunday.

Dean James C. Jolley of St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral here, who conducted a special service in the dining room of the Pennask Lodge Sunday, told reporters the service was "very relaxed and informal."

"Believe me, I know something of the starch of the Anglican Church and there was none of this evening," he said.

The entire staff of the lodge, including off - duty RCMP and

Freer Trade Between U.S., Canada Advocated by Benson

WASHINGTON (CP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson says he believes Canada and the United States must move towards freer trade between the two countries.

"It is true we have to protect farmers in each of our countries," he said in a free-ranging interview. "But generally we would be in both our interests to remove restrictions and provide freer trade."

Benson, besieged by problems arising out of a mountain of U.S. farm surpluses, said that in referring to Canada-U.S. free trade restrictive attitude by the Canadian government in some farm products, particularly turkeys.

The U.S. also was concerned over reports that the Canadian government was in the midst of

Prime Minister, Pearson Give Views on Foreign Affairs

WINNIPEG(CP) — Canada's top two political leaders say the West must stand firm in the Berlin crisis and at the same time always be ready to negotiate with the Russians.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, speaking to the All-Canada Congress of Ukrainian Canadians Saturday, said the Soviet Union is "using Berlin" to test how the West will abandon the people of West Berlin.

"Let this be clear," he said, "the Canadian government, speaking for Canadians, will not agree to the abandonment of the people of Berlin, or to the sacrifice of Western rights or to any retreat from Western responsibilities."

Lester B. Pearson, Liberal Opposition leader in the House of Commons who addressed the congress Sunday said that, in fact, there is no real alternative to negotiations with the Communist bloc.

In the absence of negotiations there would be war, which would be unthinkable, or a fencing off of the Communist bloc from the rest of the world.

The prime minister, fresh from talks in Ottawa with Christian Herter, United States secretary of state, said Canada believes it is necessary to work for gradual disarmament to remove the threat of nuclear extinction

MINISTER RUNS INTO ROAD BLOCKS OVER ESTIMATES

Hamilton Jumped On Two Points

OTTAWA (CP) — Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton is running into road blocks in getting his annual departmental spending estimates through the Commons.

Opposition members have been picking on his persistently and, as the result of a series of squabbles Saturday, he did not make expected y r a g e in putting through the appropriations.

Liberal and CCF members jumped him Saturday in two particular points:

1. He admitted that he may have been "not too precise" on information given the House earlier about gas and oil exploration in the Arctic islands.

2. He made a political faux pas in suggesting that the Conservative Ontario government had been leaking out confidential information on the federal-provincial road-to-resources program during its recent provincial campaign.

Opposition members joyfully bopped aboard both statements.

The confidential status of the resources roads program, Mr. Hamilton told the House, was by agreement between the departments and individual provinces. He could not break his written word to keep details secret, even though some provinces might be willing to disclose.

Then he said that, in the case of Ontario, he would call Premier Frost and ask him to forget the understanding so he could give the details on the information.

"The election is over," he added.

Spokesmen for the opposition, who had been clamoring to have the Commons get information apparently had their ideas changed when promptly clobbered Mr. Hamilton.

Toronto Policeman's Gun Goes Off As Motorbike Braked, Suspect Dies

TORONTO (CP) — A man resisting arrest was shot dead by a Kingston penitentiary through the royal armoury which he was guarding, a motorcycle policeman investigating a burglary.

Public and Constable John Getty, chasing a speeding auto, were holding him pinned in his hand as he drove his motorcycle and it discharged as he braked to stop.

Another man was wounded by the penitentiary man. Both were young Hungarian immigrants.

Dead is Laszlo Farkas, 20, Josef Kublik, 21, was taken to hospital with a bullet wound in the mouth, ricocheted off his jawbone and struck Farkas in the head.

SPOTTED CAR

Constable Getty and Constable John Norrie, also on a motorcycle, spotted a car with four men in it at the west-central intersection of Bathurst and Bloor streets. They attempted to stop it in connection with a fur company theft.

Constable Getty's motorcycle struck the other motorbike as the two policemen pursued the men and his gun went off when he attempted to brake.

Farkas and Horvath, 22, and Gyula Szilagyi, 21, were charged with robbery and entering in connection with the fur-theft and with car theft. A man and a woman were taken into custody from the fur company.

The two constables, stopped at an intersection to exchange a few words, received a radio description of a stolen car. Together they headed along Bloor Street toward Bathurst, where they stopped for a red light.

On the opposite side of the intersection a car answering the description of the wanted auto pulled up behind two other vehicles. The officers immediately surrounded the intersection to flank the car and the driver

2 Youths Admit $71,529 Theft At Ottawa Bank

Arrested Attempting To Cross Into Mexico

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (CP)—Recovery of more than $70,000 not even known to be missing has been reported by police who arrested two Ottawa youths trying to cross into Mexico.

Officers said Richard Boudreau, 18, carried the money away Friday from the Toronto-Dominion Bank branch in Ottawa where he worked as a teller and was jailed in his flight south by police Saturday in the town south of the same age, Gerard Leclerc.

The teen-agers later told a television audience of the theft of $71,529 and said the idea came to them two weeks ago "out of the clear blue sky."

They were arrested Sunday as they attempted to cross the border into Mexico in a battered two-bury duds bought in Texas. They were booked on suspicion of grand theft and are being held for Canadian authorities.

Police said Boudreau and Leclerc told them the money would not be missed by the bank until opened for business today.

TO ESTABLISH SELVES

D. D. Bleucher, chief of police inspectors, said the youths had no plans to establish themselves in Mexico but hoped to "become respectable again."

In a television interview over station KFMB-TV, Boudreau said "stealing the money was easy," and said he put the money in an empty suit box.

The youths smiled and seemed relaxed on the television screen. They joked about their cowboy hats. Their faces sobered, however, when the prospect of imprisonment was mentioned.

Boudreau then said he hoped they would be returned to Canada soon "and get it over with."

Officials said Boudreau gave this account:

He told fellow employees when he left at noon Friday for lunch that he was going to pick up a new suit. When he returned he was in an empty mail bag and when the time came to close for the day, he put the cash from, his teller's drawer into the box.

He walked out and Leclerc, his friend, joined him at his car and hired a man to take them across the Canadian border into New York state. They made their way to New York City and then on airplane to Los Angeles and brought western - type clothing there and continued on to San Diego.

They stayed at a hotel Saturday night and left for the border this morning. They were stopped by police for driving an under patrol, one of whose functions is to check for unescorted children attempting to cross into Tijuana.

MONEY IN BAGGAGE

When the two were unable to give evidence of their age, officers opened their baggage and found the money. They said they had changed $5,129 of it into United States currency. The rest was still in Canadian currency.

Authorities said approximately $900 was spent by the two for travel expenses.

DEPORTATION RUMOR-HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Exile socialists from behind the Iron Curtain claim the Soviet Union is preparing another mass deportation wave across eastern Europe. They said Latvia, which became part of the Soviet Union after the Second World War, appears to be the prospective victim of the deportation plans.

Two Belleville youths, Terry Kelly and Paul Rashotte, were injured about 25 feet from the scene where it skidded out of control and slammed into two trees on Trent Road. The westbound car struck tree in centre background, spun around and then crashed into another tree. Motor in foreground was ripped from vehicle.

Car Slams Into Two Trees After Going Out of Control, Two Injured, One Seriously

One 17-year-old Belleville youth is in serious condition in hospital at Kingston with a compound fracture of the skull and a second local youth is in Belleville General Hospital after their car went out of control on Trent Road and slammed broadside into two trees throwing them 25 feet onto a lawn.

The injured are Terry Kelly, 31 Fairway Ave. The youth was taken on to Kingston early today after the conclusion of his condition was noted. The other injured youth is Paul Rashotte, 14 North Front Street, whose condition was said good in Belleville hospital this morning.

The late model car was a complete wreck. It came to rest in the south ditch against a tree. The motor, ripped from the car by the force of the impact, was found in the middle of the highway.

An ambulance taking the two injured youths to hospital broke an axle as it turned the corner at Bridge and Pinnacle Street and a second ambulance had to be called to complete the trip. The accident occurred shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Eye witnesses to the accident said that the car in which the two Belleville youths were riding had been racing with another car which sped on ahead and did not stop. Then the other slammed into the tree. The speedometer of the wrecked car was jammed at 60 miles per hour.

OUT OF CONTROL

The speeding car was westbound when it skidded out of control, striking a large tree on the south side of the highway at Harold Wright's front lawn. The car then swung around, crossing the Raymond Carrigan driveway, coming to rest in the south ditch against a second tree.

Mr. Wright and an English visitor at the Carrigan home were first on the scene. They ran out when they heard the crash of the impact. A quick search of the car in the darkness failed to locate any occupants and the two youths were found seconds later lying on the lawn.

Carrigan lawn nearly 25 feet from the wrecked car.

Ronald Smith of Brighton, occupant of a westbound car which was passed by the two speeding vehicles just second before the crash said the Kelly car skidded sideways up the highway, striking the first tree broadside.

Another man emerging from OSD entrance said he had stopped before the Kelly car's right-of-way when the two speeding cars raced by.

Frol Kozlov, first deputy Soviet premier, said in New York Saturday he reckend that Russia's offer of an 18-month stopgap arrangement was still open.

The Soviet plan calls for a committee of West and East Germans to negotiate directly on German reunification. If they were unable to reach a settlement in 18 months the problem would revert to the Big Four powers.

Mayor Will Ask Minister How and When -- But Not If - Audit Is to Be Made Public

Some time this week, Mayor Gerald Hyde will get in touch with Hon. William Kenneth Warrender, Ontario's Minister of Municipal Affairs, for his deputy minister's secretary's exact what procedure will be followed in making public the results of the audit of the city's books, ordered in May when it was first learned by the Council that city funds had been spent without authorization to help finance the Belleville McFarlands, the city's Allan Cup and world hockey champions.

One point Mayor Hyde made crystal clear in an interview with The Ontario Intelligencer on the report will be made public.

What he does not know is the minister's attitude and whether the report should be released to the public immediately, or whether in fairness to those concerned the facts contained in it should not be made public prior to a public enquiry.

Mayor Hyde will act on the assumption that there will be such an enquiry — in the unlikely event that the Minister does not act at once when he receives the report, Mayor Hyde said; it would not take more than fifteen minutes to acquire the fifty signatures of Belleville taxpayers required to force an enquiry under the Ontario Municipal Act.

The order for the audit, though, must wait on the completion of the auditor's report. With all the figure work completed the work of typing could be completed, with the auditor's comments, is proceeding this week and the report is expected to be sent to the Minister of Municipal Affairs by the end of the week.

BANK MAY CARRY DEFICIT

Mayor Hyde stated that from information he has received from an official of the Department of Municipal Affairs he believed that under the Ontario Municipal Act the department can order the bank to carry the deficit at a reduced rate of interest.

Belleville's citizens have been eagerly awaiting the auditor's report for the report and there is no doubt that the report will be in the hands of the public as far as readership is concerned. In the meantime, though, it is evident that some citizens have been confusing some of the information which was contained in the auditor's report for 1958. There are, in fact, two deficits, one a deficit in connection with regular expenditures, such as will occur from time to time despite the best efforts of municipal officials to budget accurately for expenditures, the other a deficit resulting from the bank guarantees for the hockey club.

The auditor's report for 1958 showed a deficit of $106,000 in ordinary accounts. It was known that there would be a deficit when the council passed its budget for this year, but at the time it was thought that this deficit would be only $38,000. The council budgeted for this deficit of $38,000, which means that there is an additional deficit of $48,000 "for which no provision was made in this year's budget.

In addition to this $106,000 deficit in ordinary accounts, the auditor's report listed under "assets" $102,000 which the Arena Commission owed the city. This $102,000 was brought in recently, mainly $75,000 which, according to information received by Council in May, is believed to have been spent before Dec. 31 without authorization to finance the McFarlands. There are almost that the $75,000 item was spent since the beginning of the year on the McFarlands. Then, too, the Arena Commission owes the bank $30,000.

ROYAL DEFICIT $180,000

Adding the Arena Commission's debts to the unbudgeted portion of the city's ordinary deficit, there is a total deficit of at least $180,000 which will have to be met by taxes.

This, however, is not the full extent of the city's financial woes. Readers of the Ontario Intelligencer who have followed accounts of council meetings carefully will have noted that the bank removal account was heavily overdrawn this past winter. Then $29,000 was spent on the Belleville Memorial Centre building, when the budget called for a deficit in general expenditures this year.

Nor does next year's picture look too bright. With the erection of the new Moira High School, educational costs will be higher. The city's garbage collection costs will rise from about $36,000 to $55,000. It appears likely that if the city is to continue to have a bus service a subsidy will have to be paid, as is done in most Ontario centres enjoying such a service.

All in all, there appears to be no end to the drain on the city's financial affairs.

There is one bright spot — neither the city nor the Arena Commission will have any financial responsibility for the operation of the Belleville McFarlands this year. That's definite!

His father, Guy Boudreau, said Eldon left for work Friday morning, saying he was going camping with friends.

"I suppose the Boyne Johnston incident had something to do with Eldon's decision," Boudreau said.

Johnston, 23, now is serving a four-year prison term for theft of $250,000 last October from the Imperial Bank of Canada, where he was chief teller.

Police said they were having difficulty in locating the other two officials. Bank Manager Jack Rooney was believed to be holidaying in Cobourg, and assistant manager R. J. Corrigan could not be reached immediately.

Leclerc's parents were believed to be at a cottage at Foxboro for the weekend and could not be reached.

"What a horrible admission," CCF House Leader Hazen Argue shouted.

The CCF kept talking until the 6 p. m. adjournment time, precluding the passing of Mr. Hamilton's measure.

On the Arctic islands question Mr. Diefenbaker charged that there is every reason to anticipate a deficit in general expenditures this year.

Nor does next year's picture look too bright. With the erection of the new Moira High School, educational costs will be higher. New Canadian Postage Stamp

OTTAWA (CP) — The 200th anniversary of the Battle of the Plains of Abraham will be commemorated by a new Canadian postage stamp.

The post office department announced today the five-cent stamp, symbolizing the united effort of the two large language groups in the nation — the British and French fought near Quebec City, goes on sale Sept. 13.

The new stamp is to be printed in red and black. Centre-piece is a group of three stylized maple leaves. This is flanked on the left by the fleur de lis of France on either ends of a ribbon-like scroll which unfolds beneath the leaves to show the name Canada in English and French, and a small white ridge at the bottom of the stamp—which also forms the lining of the Lord's wide—appear the words Plains of Abraham—Plaines d'Abraham in Caslon type. The dates "1759-1959" are set on and against the lower left side of the stamp, balanced by a large numeral five on the lower right side.

Russia Launches, Retrieves Two Dogs From Space

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia has successfully launched and retrieved two dogs from the outer atmosphere, the Soviet news agency Tass announced today.

The news agency said the two dogs were sent up last Friday in the same type of rocket that carried the moon carried two dogs and a rabbit into the atmosphere.

The dogs and instruments aboard the rocket were parachuted back to earth.

The rocket payload weighed 2,200 kilograms (about 4,850 pounds), Tass said. The broadcast gave no details as to the weight it attained.

Information was obtained on a wide range of scientific subjects, the agency added.

This was the second time this month that Russia had rocketed dogs into the upper atmosphere.

Two dogs—Snowy and Courageous — and a rabbit were brought back to earth July 2.

Tass said Courageous was one of the dogs carried in the latest rocket flight.

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde seen addressing the large congregation of Calvary Temple as they dedicate the ground for their new church on the property where the Green Manor formerly stood on Dundas Street east.

Calvary Temple Members Hold Dedication Ceremony On Ground for New Church

A dedication service was held on Sunday afternoon at the former Green Manor property, where excavation has already been completed for construction of a much larger church for the congregation of Calvary Temple. A large crowd attended the open-air service to hear addresses by his worship, Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, and Rev. W. B. Greenwood, church district superintendent. The ceremony, conducted by the co-pastors, Rev. L. H. Price and Rev. Ivan Smith, was aired over radio station CJBQ.

In his address Mayor Hyde referred to the rapid growth and expansion of the City of Belleville. Includes construction of hundreds of beautiful homes, schools, shopping centres and commercial areas. "On all sides," he stated, "we see expansion, development and progress.

"Therefore it is gratifying for all good Christian folk to note that our religious life is meeting the need and keeping pace with this progress. I can call to mind the construction of at least fourteen new edifices, which have been erected in this city during the past few years by various denominations, and dedicated to the glory of God. In addition, most of our older churches have had additions built or alterations made as the need for more and better facilities became apparent.

"The record of the people of this city is an enviable one when considering church attendance, church giving and church work. Today, we are gathered to take part in a service which will undoubtedly lead to the erection on this site in the next few weeks of a new church for the growing congregation in this city.

LOOK FROM HEAVEN

"I am confident that your pastors, their superintendent, your board and you, the congregation of Calvary Temple, have looked from heaven to this day. Unquestionably, many hours of work and preparation and many sacrifices have been essential, and have been made, to bring you to this point in your building program. Many more sacrifices will be made before you will be able to worship God in the church which will rise on this holy ground.

"I am pleased to be ere with you on this auspicious occasion. I am glad to extend congratulations to you for your initiative and enterprise in this blessed undertaking. I pray that God's blessing will be with you in full measure as you labor and sacrifice to bring about a successful completion of this task."

The Rev.- W. B. Greenwood, superintendent of the Eastern Ontario and Quebec district of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, paid tribute to the local assembly, which, he stated, was one of the most progressive in the district.

"Mayor Hyde has mentioned the progress of our city and the new churches that have recently been built," said Mr. Greenwood. "We are happy to have a mayor such as Mr. Hyde, who has an interest in the things of the Lord. Surely a community is blessed that has Christian leaders who are concerned about the spiritual needs of the citizens".

Mr. Greenwood referred to a Scripture verse in Proverbs 29:18, "Where there is no vision the people perish: but he that keepeth the law, happy is he".

"Naturally, a nation or community that has no vision just has an existence. There is no enjoyment, no progress, no purpose. It means insecurity and ruin. A church is such a community. It has no vision, no hope to offer the multitudes who are lost in sin.

PEOPLE WITH VISION

It means empty pews, no more churches being built and worse still, churches being closed. Our nation, our city, our church, will be what we make them. It is needful that we as individuals know the Lord in a personal and real way. The whole trouble with much of the world today is simply — sin. Men and women need to be born again of the spirit of God, Proverbs 14 and verse 34 is God's warning that 'Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people'.

"Today we have an example of people who were not a vision. This new church will make room for more people in Belleville and surrounding district to come and hear the word of God. It will be an evangelistic church where pastors and congregation of the highest order will proclaim the word of God.

"This new church will be a place where men and women will be saved and taught to live true, Christian lives. They will be taught about the infilling of the Holy Ghost and that Jesus is able to heal today. They will learn that the real gospel of Jesus Christ has power in it, and that they can experience this power that will enable them to live victorious Christian lives.

"All these new class rooms will provide facilities for study and boys and girls, who will be taught by consecrated teachers to love God and help them to find their place in the community as law-abiding Christian citizens."

The prayer of dedication was given by Rev. L. H. Price. Several hymns were sung by the young people's radio choir under Mrs. E. M. Smith rendered a solo, supplying his own accompaniment. Mr. Mervyn Saunders presided at the podium and Mr. Francis Trundle was in charge of the communication system.

would have a record wheat supply of some 2,500,000,000 bushels, including a peak carryover of some 1,300,000,000. The world market for wheat was none too bright.

Benson told the Canadian Press that both Canada and the U.S. should seek to reduce wheat production. More effort had to be made to find world markets.

"I still think Canadian production is too high," he said.

Benson said he is opposed to the setting up of a world food bank, since that would mean a heavy financial commitment for the U.S. He favored rather the setting up of more storage facilities in underdeveloped countries such as India and Pakistan where more surplus wheat into that area under the food-for-peace plan.

At the same time the U.S. plans to send the wheat giveaway program for another year.

Thompson Whips Grant in Court Tourney

Wing Commander "Tommy" Thompson, a dark horse entry from R.C.A.F., emerged winner of the tennis round robin held at the Quinte club over the week-end from which eight players were chosen to meet Kingston in an inter-city series July 19 and 20th.

In the crucial match with runner-up Doug Grant, Thompson was trailing 2-4 but the R.C.A.F. wing commander who has played recommended tennis in Europe and in British Columbia rallied to win with terrific smashes at the net. Bill Mulhauser, Bata star, was only to Thompson and Grant for third place.

Bill Redquest, Tim Cook and Mike Walcott finished in a three-way tie for the fourth singles spot against Kingston but Redquest who almost upset Grant by won after leading 4-1, won out on a smaller loss column.

John Black and Mike Black, in seventh and eighth place also qualified to play doubles against Kingston.

Following is the record of the eight finishers, the disparity in number of games played being accounted for by the default of several contestants in the gruelling two day test.

Gilmour Hill Park Work Now Under Way

Around Town With Al

TRENTON — Thereis a new trend in Trenton concerning employees who are employed by the town and who live outside the town limits. The trend is one towards bringing these people and their families within the town boundaries to take up residence and to be closer at hand if they are needed in the line of their particular trade.

The move started when the town council demanded that Fire Chief Cecil Ellis move to Trenton from his home in Bayside before any would approve his permanent rank as fire chief.

On July 1 the fire chief moved to 125 Sidney Street after selling his home to a family from Wooler. A letter at the last meeting of the town council from the chief informed them that he had now taken up residence in town and the council in turn assured the chief his rank would be made permanent at the end of this year.

At a recent meeting of the Public Utilities Commission the same issue was discussed and it was revealed that several of their employees live outside the Trenton boundaries. The commission only discussed the problem briefly and decided to give it further study before taking any definite steps.

It is expected that if this policy is adopted by the town policemen then it would also extend to several of the town's policemen as well as any other town employee who may live outside the town limits regardless of whether it is one mile or 11 miles.

Asked for an opinion on a policy such as this three Trenton residents and property owners said they would certainly agree with the council if they made such a by-law. One merchant said, "Why shouldn't they live in Trenton and spend their dollars here. It is the taxpayers of the town who have to appreciate the fact they earn their wages and it is theirs to do with as they please but at the least they could do is to live in Trenton and spend their money where it may, in comparison, be only small amount but it would help to build the economy of the town and then everyone would benefit.

"I think it's a good idea and now that the council has made one of the town's employees example if they should make the rest of it also," he added.

CANADA COUNCIL COVERS WIDE FIELD

The second annual report of the Canada Council shows that during 1958-59, the Council distributed, out of its Endowment Fund reserve, a total of $2,651,000 "to individuals and organizations representing the arts, humanities and social sciences." Of this total $1,215,000 was for scholarships and fellowships, in other words aid to individuals, and $1,436,000 went for assistance to organizations.

The philosophy behind the Council's aid to organizations is clearly expressed in the report, signed by the chairman, Brooke Claxton. Unless there is a radical increase in the Council's income, says the report, the council's role will have to be confined "to giving help for the beginnings of programs of improvement." Moreover, there is a clear hint that those responsible for the Council's policies think that this, in most cases, is the proper role. "The nature and purpose of these groups (thousands of small, local orchestras, choirs, little theatres and the like) are such that the continued health of their programs depends on local support. If this support is not available, there can be little justification for their existence and none at all for help from any organization which of necessity must build its own program on broader and sturdier foundations." There may be some who will quarrel with this view; we like it. The Council evidently conceives its role as that of giving assistance where such help will do good; not of trying to force the growth of organizations which local communities do not want.

What kind of projects did the Council assist, through scholarships and fellowships to individuals and grants to organizations, during the 1958-1959? They were varied - - the list is so long that it could not be reproduced in this column and, in any event, would serve no purpose which could not be as easily achieved by a few excerpts. Eric Abbott, a St. John's, Nfld., music teacher and composer, was granted $2,285 to enable him to study at the University of Toronto; Dr. Helen Creighton received $3,000 to continue duplication of tapes of folk songs, Roger Hamelin, a blind composer, received $500 to transcribe music written in Braille into musical notation. As for grants to organizations, the largest were $60,000 to the Opera Festival of Toronto, $20,000 for a season of three operas in Toronto in the autumn of 1959, $20,000 for a western tour and $20,000 for a Maritime tour; and another grant of $60,000 to the Canadian Music Council for the establishment of the Canadian Music Centre, to build a library of scores and parts of Canadian music, this grant to be paid over three years; the smallest grant was to the Dominion Drama Festival, $200 to make a survey of amateur theatre in Canada. The list includes dozens of grants to symphony orchestras, choirs and art galleries as well as $2,000 to the Theatre du Nouveau Monde "to put the troupe on a fully professional basis". Truly a list of grants intriguing in its variety.

A TOUCH OF NOSTALGIA

We see by the advertisements, which provide much of the really interesting news, that the Bay of Quinte District High School Board has an 18-inch MacDougall lathe for sale.

We presume that this lathe has been used in the instruction of students and that now, having outlived its usefulness, it is to be replaced by another. Just reading about it produces a touch of nostalgia.

It was, we presume, symptomatic of a state of mind that on first perusal we should presume that the lathe was designed for work with iron rather than with wood, although a second reading revealed little, beyond its location in the machine shop at the BCIVS, to justify this presumption. We always have a tendency to recall the pleasant, rather than the unpleasant. The difference between a metal-working lathe and a wood-working lathe is a test of the temperament; the former is for the scientist and the latter for the artist. If all measurements are accurate, all deductions reasonable, the metal-working lathe turns out exactly what was intended; the woodworking lathe demands a certain touch. Either one, it seems to us, provides just as valuable discipline as the study of Latin or Greek, which is not to suggest that the study of these dead languages is undesirable but merely that the man who cannot accommodate himself to the ways of a machine is as lacking in a well-rounded education as the man who thinks that Cicero's only fame is as a suburb of Chicago.

I WOULD A FISHING GO

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I would a fishing go,
Away from all the haunts of men
The house of worry and of woe,
The bickering and loud tirade,
The chase for gain, the search for fame,
The malice and the envy here,
The uproar and the loud acclaim,
The city's high-geared-fine atmosphere.

I would a fishing go,
And let the world go on its way
Without my presence, I should know
No sense of loss from day to day.
I would a fishing go,
Away from all the petty things
That bring unrest
And make me feel
That I am bound
By human ties
To any wheel.

I would a fishing go,
Away from all this fight for gold
And find myself awhile
And man can be himself awhile,
And free his soul from sense of dread,
Be lost
And free his body from the clutch of style.

I would a fishing go,
And stretch myself upon some bank
Away from this play-acting show,
This strife for precedence and rank,
From all this fight for gold gain
And find myself awhile
To play,
To slip the bonds of care and pain
And be myself awhile.

Java's Kris and Alphabet

Indonesia View

A traditional daggerlike weapon called the kris is an important facet in Indonesian culture. In former days the weapon was looked upon as part of a man's dress, the absence of which gave an indication either of his disgrace or fallen dignity resulting from the commission of some tightly-woven codes of law that had to be rigidly observed.

The kris, however, was a special fascination in the romantic magical life of the old Hindu kingdoms in Indonesia. The introduction of this famous weapon has been traced to the early Hindu civilization in Java and Bali. It was not certain, however, who first the weapon had been brought down from India, the birthplace of the Hindu religion and civilization. It has now been accepted that the weapon had its own Java-Hindu traditions, unique in its method of manufacture, forms and functions.

A kris maker in the early days in Java had a high portion in the social life of his community; in fact, sometimes he was held the same as a lesser Raja or headman. A famous kris maker or a teacher of the art of kris was elevated to the rank of personal adviser to the king, bestowed with a noble title and given a distinct social position and subsidy from the royal treasury. In many cases he became the teacher or adviser to the King in the strategic art of war.

Although the kris is also found in equal usage in other parts of Indonesia, the early records of Indonesian history shows that these places had, at one time or another, been under the authority of the old Hindu Kingdoms of Singasari and Majapahit. Javanese culture, including the weaving of the kris, had been accepted in these places. Even countries outside Indonesia such as Malaya, Siam and South Philippines (Mindanao and Sulu Islands' which once became vassal states of the Majapahit Empire have also taken the kris as part of their traditional customs.

Many legends have been handed down for generations telling the stories of the origin of the early coming of the kris. Many of them are confusing and are closely interwoven with great combats among warriors and gods of the Hindu legends. One legend gives credit for the introduction of the kris to a certain Pandji who was supposed to have descended from the sky bringing with him the weapon among other orchestra and operas. Some other legends credit the weapon up to the birth of the kris with the feats and exploits of such famous Hindu gods as Brahma, Wisnu, Kala and others.

Religious functions attached to this weapon are in fact an expression of mysticism. Every Hindu origin still practised particularly in the central and eastern parts of Java and in the island of Bali. The weapon is considered to carry with it some kind of mystic strength which, according to beliefs, could influence fate and give a protection over him and his family against diseases and other external attacks, providing him with a source of strength and bravery and even a kind of personality personality over others. The kris then becomes a personal friend in every sense. Mysticism dominates the owner of this valuable weapon especially when the weapon carries with it some traditional or historical value of past times. In some cases it is a "doctor" from which the power of healing is derived when certain diseases is evoked.

Special ceremonies are performed systematically over definite periods when various offerings such as betel, betel nut and white rice broth, cocoanut, bananas, flowers and incense are prepared and brought before the kris while the reading of mystic words is intoned. Sometimes the kris is subjected to the seclusion if a distant hermitage to evoke the blessing of certain good spirits.

In the spiritual realm in some cases a kris is reverenced in the same way as a sacred object. The weapon is kept in a pocket made from a special kind of cloth called "sinjang" and is kept in a special safe.

In its earlier function the weapon is carried as part of the traditional dress in office functions, ceremonies, in the proclamation ceremony of a new sultan, and in such as wedding ceremonies and other traditional social gatherings.

In the making of weapon artificially attached to the kris, its real value is not determined, however is never disregarded. The weapon played an important part in the many bloody wars of the old days besides such weapons as the swords, scimitars, spears and shields. Even today in many places in Indonesia the kris is a personal guard to the owner.

The Javanese Alphabet

The Javanese alphabet consisting of twenty letters which represents a consonant sound followed by a vowel sound. It is said to have been invented by a Buddhist priest called Adji Saka in the year 78 A.D. The history of the Javanese alphabet was called into being — a story which has been handed down by word of mouth and in writing — goes in brief like this:

Adji Saka — together with his two servants Dora and Sembada — came to Java and settled at some place in the Kendeng mountains. It was not long after they had settled here when they heard about King Baka of Mendang Kamolan, a cruel king, who demanded that at regular intervals one of his subjects should be presented to him, to be consumed as a special dish. The people of Mendang were in distress and began looking for a powerful person who would be able to overthrow King Baka. One of their messengers reached the place where Adji Saka lived and asked him to help the common people of Mendang Kamolan. Adji Saka said: "I'll think it over. You go home please; your relatives are eagerly waiting for your return."

When the messenger had left, Adji Saka told his servants that he would go to Java and live alone for a while, as he would like to be undisturbed. The servants did as they were told.

The following morning, their master called them and said: — "Dora and Sembada, I have come to help the people of Mendang Kamolan. One of you go along with me to Mendang Kamolan." Dora, You, Sembada, have to remain here, you must look after clothes and dagger. Don't give them to anybody except myself. Defend them with your life even if you should lose your life." Adji Saka left and Dora went off — leaving Sembada alone in the village in the Kendeng mountains.

Arrived at Mendang Kamolan, Adji Saka could not proceed until Baka had eaten his ace. People grouped round him saying: "Run away, run away, see; you would be eaten up by King Baka; such a handsome young man would be too good a present for him." Adji Saka answered: "Don't worry, please let me proceed." At last the people let him go and he presented himself before King Baka. He said: — "Your Majesty, I am a servant of a magician; for your breakfast tomorrow, but in return, you must." The king answered: "You should give me now a plot of ground as soon as you arrive for a few moments. Then he said: — All right, Adji Saka, I'll grant your request." Adji Saka took off his head cloth, which covered a piece of land. And behold — it expanded and expanded until it covered the whole kingdom. Knee of Baka flew into a black temper and wanted to kill Adji Saka, but which ensued, King Baka was pacified by his opponent, and people of Mendang Kamolan were thus freed from the great menace. They proclaimed Adji Saka their new king.

Now that peace had returned — now that the people could go home in the full enjoyment of happiness — Adji Saka thought that the time had come for him to call for his servants and clothes and dagger again. And so, one of his servants, Dora, went Dora and ordered him to go to the Kendeng mountains, collect the clothes and dagger. Dora left — not remembering, unfortunately, the order given by his master to Sembada.

When he had reached the village in the Kendeng mountains, Dora said to Sembada: — "Give me the clothes and kris; this is your master's order." Sembada replied: — "I won't give you the clothes and kris, before you have been entrusted to me; I'm not allowed to give them to anybody except my master himself. You were present when he gave me the instructions, don't you remember?" Dora said: — "I do remember now. But I have been instructed to collect the clothes and kris. So, give them to me." Sembada said: — "No, sir, I won't. I have been instructed not to give the clothes and Kris to anybody except my master himself." A fight ensued and the two servants finally found their deaths in this battle.

This news reached the king a few days later. His heart was filled full of grief. He reproached himself with the fact that he had given his servants contradictory instructions. He felt at that time that he began to write down the instructions in such letters which served to keep the memory of his faithful servants ever green. The twenty letters have become the Javanese alphabet; they read: — ho, no, ho, ro, (there were two servants); do, to, so, wo, lo (carrying out instructions from their master, they fought each other); dho, tho, yo, nyo (they were both brave); mo, bo, tho, ngo (they both died). (Phonetically pronounced in ox.)

That then was the story of

"I'll be through talking for a minute . . . then you can use it."

The price for the early variety of cranberries remained steady at twenty-five cents per box. And first canning of the cherry crop is expected to start this week; however due to a light crop, most of the cherries for this year's canning will be received by canals from the Niagara district.

SERIOUS DISEASE

Rheumatic fever, not as much publicized as some other diseases, is a serious thing. The first attack may not do much damage but with each attack the first attack, the patient is many times as likely to have subsequent attacks.

Each time the damage is worse. Eventually it adds up to a damaged heart. Sometimes surgery can repair the damage to some extent, and this is a fine achievement. But nothing is as good as prevention.

To Your Good Health

ALL RHEUMATIC FEVER RESULTS FROM A STREP INFECTION

"Dear Dr. Molner: Do you think it is definitely a must to continue taking shots of penicillin to prevent rheumatic fever?

"My child had three attacks and the doctor never prescribed penicillin. He said there was no history of heart damage so it wasn't necessary.

"But the third attack caused a murmur and I changed doctors. Now I take him to the doctor every 30 days, and for a year he has been fine! Why do some doctors say it isn't necessary and others say it is a positive must?

"I have no intention of discontinuing the shots, but I'm disgusted with the jeering 'friends' who tell me it's a shame to make a child get a shot if it isn't necessary. — Mrs. B.S."

Here's answer your question as to why people do what they do. Who knows?

But I will say this: As of now I believe you'll find the medical profession in agreement that monthly administrations of penicillin of a long-lasting type is wise after a child has one rheumatic fever. I thoroughly approve of it.

This practice has come into general use only in the last few years. It could be that your doctor was ultra-conservative, or wasn't yet aware of the excellent results of this therapy.

As far as that is concerned, I've found many physicians slow about adopting new medical procedures. You're certainly aware of how many new things come along which at first blush sound wonderful, but don't stand up after the first enthusiastic claims. So my attitude, when I learned to turn from doctors before me, is to be cautious at first, and see if the procedure really looks good, move forward.

SERIOUS DISEASE

Rheumatic fever, not as much publicized as some other diseases, is a serious thing. The first attack may not do much damage but with each attack the first attack, the patient is many times as likely to have subsequent attacks.

Each time the damage is worse. Eventually it adds up to a damaged heart. Sometimes surgery can repair the damage to some extent, and this is a fine achievement. But nothing is as good as prevention.

Rheumatic fever (we don't know exactly why or how) is a sure sign of a streptococcus infection. Not all strep infections mean rheumatic fever, but all rheumatic fever results from strep.

Penicillin, while not to be given for every little ailment, (nor should it be used for every one that comes along), can prevent or minimize strep. Hence, a series of long-lasting shots (good for about six weeks, so monthly shots give a margin of safety) may prevent subsequent attacks, once the first rheumatic fever is known to have occurred.

As to "friends" who cynicism about it shots a year, I dare say they are the same people who would give a child nothing but dessert for dinner because he likes it."

The answer is "no" to all questions.

JOBS ON THE HUNT

There are far more jobs on the hunt for men than there are men to fill them. Employers are always the first effort to find the best man to fill the best job: "Boss" Ketterng, of General Motors, was forever stating that there were far more jobs than men to fill them. He could have been right. There is always a scarcity of competent workers.

Jobs are forever on the hunt! Thousands of employers can testify to this! Jobs are hunting for men! Whose names are among those hunted? Ketterng was an inspiring leader and builder of an uplifted every worker who came within his influence. He was forever on the hunt — for men to carry them out.

I look out of my office windows and note a dozen or more jobs building creeping higher into the sunlight. They all mean jobs — jobs many of which are on the hunt. Jobs for tomorrow's men, but all rheumatic fever results from strep.

"That must have been a long time back, mister."

"Yes, it was around 1920," I admitted.

"I can't get back into the haze with my three boxes. I said to the great-grandpa who sold me a quarter:

"Imagine, in our children's strawberry season, I'd have to pay a quarter to sell the fruit and be a far greater quarter than it is now. I used to pay as a girl, and the three boxes for a quarter!

"I wouldn't know," said great grandpa. "When I was a girl, you had to go out and pick 'em yourself."

YOU KNOW WHO

Cleveland Polo Club has announced that the Prince of Wales will play in the Inaugural match of the season.

THE SKIRL OF THE PIPES . . . leads off the Orange walk as the pipe band of the Frankford LOL, No. 240, start from the marshaling area at the Tweed fair grounds.

48 Lodges, Comprising 2,000 Orangemen and Associates, Gather at Tweed for 'Walk'

Around 2,000 Orangemen took part in their annual Orange walk to celebrate the battle of the Boyne as a crowd of almost 5,000 gathered in the village of Tweed on Saturday. The day presented almost as many changes in weather as there were varieties of dress and regalia of the 48 lodges present. At one point in the afternoon, just between the walk and the speeches, a light rain fell but it was soon replaced by bright, hot sunshine.

The Tweed gathering was for all the Orange lodges and their affiliated ladies and junior member units. Because of the traditional white horses led off the walk from the assembly area at the Tweed fair grounds to the main street of the village and then back to the fair grounds by a circuitous route which took almost two hours to complete. Behind the white horses came the pipe band of the Frankford LOL No. 240, with the skrill of their pipes setting the pace for the walkers.

LODGES IN PARADE

The lodges participating in the parade were in order of their appearance, Frankford LOL., No. 240, and JOL. No. 362; Tyendinaga LOL. No. 295; Trenton LOL., No. 206, JOL. Trenton Coronation Juvenile, No. 68, and Trenton Lodge, LOBA, No. 604; Point Anne LOL. No. 2599; Sunshine LOL. No. 3199 (Belleville); Wallbridge LOBA (Belleville); JOL No. 233; Lydia Lodge, No. 250; Benjamin Lodge No. 274, and Benefit JOL. No. 231 of Belleville; LOBA No. 1319 (Canniffton); Canniffton LOL No. 2230; Plainfield LOL No. 179; LOL No. 242 (Shannonville); Marmora JOL No. 34; JOL No. 376 (Beulah); Marmora LOL No. 319; JOL and LOL No. 634 of Bancroft; LOL No. 1183 (Detlor); St. Ola LOL, No. 1389, and Centre Hastings LOL.

At this point there was a break in the procession by the Havelock Pipe Band, which was later to perform for the crowd gathered for the speeches at the fair grounds. The pipers were followed by the Springbrook LOL, No. 442; Wellman's Corners' LOL, No. 172; Tanner Lodge LOL, No. 309 of the 8th Line, Rawdon township; Flinton LOL, No. 907; Eldorado LOL, No. 517; Malone LOL No. 285; Eldorado LOBA, No. 1185; Hazard's Corners LOL No. 1133; Star of the East LOBA, No. 1183, and LOL No. 180, Madoc; Queensboro LOL, No. 437; Stirling LOBA, No. 855 and LOL No. 110; LOL No. 300 of West Huntingdon; Downey LOL, No. 435 of Crookston; Elliott LOL, No. 353 of Hungerford; Sulphide LOBA, No. 1203 and Bogart LOL, No. 1135; Carleton LOL, No. 378 of Moneymore; Harlowe LOL, No. 2370, and Tyendinaga's Mohawk LOL, No. 99.

VARIETY OF DRESS

The parade was highlighted by the variety of dress presented by the various lodges with the women's and the junior bands usually being the best turned out in this respect. Many of the lodges had their own fife and drum ensemble and all, of course were preceded by an open Bible and their lodge charter.

Prior to the walk many of the lodge members present took advantage of the excellent dining arrangements provided by the host lodge, Sulphide, LOL, and catered by the Tweed Rebekah Lodge. Others met and chatted with old friends and new acquaintances whilst the odd commotion and sound of music denoted the gathering of more lodge members in preparation for the walk.

Following the speeches at the fair grounds, a tea was served headed for their suppers and others prepared for the festive activities of the evening. All seemed to have enjoyed themselves and many were already talking about the 100th anniversary of the Grand Lodge of Ontario West which is to be celebrated next year in Peterborough for lodge members in this area.

Two nonagenarians "carried the banner" for the oldest members in attendance. Mrs. Effie Leach, an honorary member of the Trenton LOBA No. 604, and Tom Webb, a member of Springbrook LOL No. 422, were the oldest persons present.

GRAND MARSHAL SPEAKER

Tracing briefly the history of the Orange Lodge which had its origin in 1690 when William III of Orange repulsed James II of England at the river Boyne, Mr. Paterson reminded fellow Orangemen the principle held by the L.O.L. today is the same principle held by L.O.L. in early days — equal rights for all people.

He noted the Order, one of the oldest in existence, was flourishing long before Confederation.

"At this time the country was looking for great leaders, and the greatest was a Kingston Orangeman, John A. Macdonald," the speaker stated.

He said the L.O.L. constitution was used as a guide in drawing up the British North America Act, and therefore, the type of government embedded in the B.N.A. Act with its municipal, provincial and federal systems, is very similar to the organization of the Loyal Orange Order.

"It is 92 years since Confederation and many have tried to cut out our freedoms from BNA Act," he stated in urging members to always be vigilant in preserving these freedoms.

The supervisor of Kingston Penitentiary, speaking directly to L.O.L. members, stated attendance at L.O.L. meetings was greater in the early days of the Order than it is today. The time has come, he said, for all members to "renew their loyalty to the order," and this could best be done by each taking a more active interest in the Protestant church.

"You can't be an Orangeman if you are not a good churchman," he said.

The speaker also advocated L.O.L. representation on public school boards and on the Ontario Public School Ratepayers' Associations, and in the political field, equal rights for all.

COMMENDED LODGE

The Grand Marshal commended Sulphide L.O.L. for organizing this year's Orangemen's celebration.

He closed by wishing Leslie Saunders of Toronto, Grand Master and Sovereign of Grand L.O.L. of North America, and wife a speedy recovery from an automobile accident a few months ago.

Mr. Paterson was introduced by Fred Bateman, Past District Master of Ontario East. In a brief address, he said he was pleased to see so many of the Juvenile L.O.L. in attendance, and expressed appreciation to Sulphide L.O.L. for organizing the event this year.

The program was M.C.'d by Archie Sinclair, County Master of Centre Hastings, who introduced other speakers, among them, Lorne Hagerman, of Harlowe, Old, Junior Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East.

Paying tribute to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Mr. Hagerman stated all brother Orangemen are proud of the Queen for undergoing the rigors of a Canadian tour because in this task she is aiding the preservation of the Order's ideals by binding Canada closer to the British Empire.

In noting many brother Orangemen have died in the past year, Mr. Hagerman urged that "remaining true and stand together now, or the Order will eventually fall apart."

He briefly mentioned controversies in which the L.O.L. has a particular interest, such as the challenge to the National Anthem, the replacing of the Union Jack with the Red Ensign as Canada's flag, and the question of teaching French in English-speaking public schools.

Brief addresses were also given by Tweed Reeve Doug. Spencer who welcomed the representatives of 60 Orange Orders to the Tweed area, and thanked all lodges participating in the annual Orangemen's Walk; Past Master of Sulphide L.O.L. Harold Vardy, who gave a brief history of Lodge 1135 and its community undertakings; Nelson Steward of Sulphide L.O.L. of 1135, general chairman of this year's commemoration ceremony, who thanked all lodges participating in the event, and also the Rebekahs who served meals on the grounds, for helping to make it a success; and Brother John Marcelle, of Belleville, County Master of South Hastings, who expressed pleasure at the large turnout. During the program the Havelock Pipe Band presented a brief musical interlude.

VARIETY IS THE SPICE OF LIFE—Certainly there was no disputing the fact that the headgear worn by Orangemen at Saturday's walk was quite varied and, in some instances, quite beyond the dreams of any woman's hat designer. A few of the headpieces may be seen in the above composite picture. Jack Paterson of Kingston, Grand Marshal of the Grand Lodges of Ontario East, who was the main speaker, can be seen in the centre inset.

Boss of Oak Lake Bass Likes Humans, Wary of Fish

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Meet Largemouth Louie, boss-man of the bass mob in Oak Lake.

Louie is single, lives in brushpile bailiwick, 15 feet under water about 150 yards from Sarles' dock, is brownish green in color and weighs between ten and twelve pounds (estimated.)

Louie could be Louise from his insatiable curiosity. He fears nothing in fins, eschews frogs and worms. Strangely enough he is not averse to human company.

In fact Louie looks forward to occasional visits of a couple of Belleville frogmen, Gary Cranston and George Woodhouse.

On their various underwater safaris Cranston and Woodhouse have built a sort of friendship with the big bass.

Louie is the Paladin of the underwater rods. He has fins — will travel, but always alone.

But he does not object to the company of the frogmen. He will let them get within six feet of him before he slowly turns away.

At one time they manoeuvred to get him between them. Louis did not mind. He swam along with them for some distance, then flipped his tail and was gone.

On another occasion Cranston played "possum" on lake bottom and waited for Louie. He came along and the frogmen almost had his hands on him. That is how he estimates his length and weight.

The big fish will hang around and watch the "huggin' during their underwater manoeuvres, and when they swim away will follow them from a respectable distance.

While the big largemouth is in a class by himself the frogmen say there are plenty of other fish in the lake.

"We have seen lots of other largemouths weighing between two and four pounds. They usually travel in threes and generally hang around the weed-beds", Cranton said.

"They fool the anglers by coming in close to shore at night. Motor driven craft scare them. We once saw a school go by us at lightning speed. Then we saw and heard an outboard whining over our heads."

The frogmen have descended to 35-foot depths in the lake. The deepest part is in the northeast corner. Here they discovered a forty-foot tunnel opening from a triangular-shaped underwater cave. Fresh cold water gushed from the spring outlet. They probed the tunnel with a rod for some forty feet.

At the entrance to the tunnel they have seen brook trout. At night they have seen them near Sarles dock but they refuse to feed. These fish are elusive and unapproachable.

Shy and wary as the pike, some of them ranging up to an estimated ten pounds. These fellows don't scare very easily but are very cautious. They allow an approach of about ten feet, before they twitch tails and disappear. They, too, hang around the weed beds.

A good thing to stay away from, says Cranston, is a Mama Muskrat when she is spawning or has spawned her young.

These horned bellicals burrow holes in the muddy lake bottom and deposit junior and Jane and their ilk in the underwater silt trenches.

Mr. Cranston once poked his goggles within an inch or two of one of these built-in nurseries, and got a sharp punch in a glass eye from a vicious mama-cat.

"Anglers think because they do not get good hauls there are no fish in Oak Lake", said Gary. "Don't you believe it. There are plenty down below, if you can get them to bite".

He suggested drift-fishing with minnows or flies at night. "That lake fairly jumps in spots some evenings when the fish surface to grab a fly supper", he commented.

BOSS OF T-4 LT

Cranston and Woodhouse are executive members of the Sportsmen Halidivers, a frogmen and school for instruction. Woodhouse is the president and Cranston the chief instructor. Miss Calla Cranston is the secretary treasurer. There are 18 at present taking instruction, two of them girls.

Woodhouse and Cranston have conducted diving excursions in other district waters. They descended to a depth of fifty feet in Opeongo Lake, Algonquin Park, in a fruitless search for the bodies of three drowning victims a short time ago.

Lavish Furs, Lush Fabrics Best for Fall

This is the word from New York designers, opening a crowded week of fall style previews for the visiting fashion press.

Lavish furs and lush fabrics are cut as casually as a schoolgirl's raincoat. Glittering brocades appear in simple shirtwaist dresses. Man - tailored suits sport fabulous furlinings or collars.

Fashion is enjoying a season of contraditions. She goes to the theatre in a gold brocade coat and a slouch hat, shows up for work in a men's-wear worsted suit bearing a fortune in furs. She wears a fedora and carries a swagger stick, but her little-boy coat is lined in sable.

NEW MOOD

Though there are no extreme changes in silhouette for fall, there is a whole new mood. Almost everything has a tailored, businesslike, subtly sophisticated look.

The new clothes are relaxed in line, easy to wear, with natural waistlines and no distortions. Nothing fits tightly and the body has room to move within its clothes.

The new suits tend to worsteds, with looser, man-tailored jackets and slender skirts often tapered at the hemline. Many suits are belted, and jackets may be anywhere from hipbone to tunic length, with some extending to a few inches below the hemline.

The drama comes in lush fur lining or great fluffy fur collars in accessories such as tall fur hats and muffs.

While mink in all its mutations is popular, dramatic use is made of the fluffy, long - haired furs such as fox and lynx this season. Black fox and silver fox reign in strong comeback as trimmings for suits and coats, and in hats and muffs.

Farewell Gifts Presented By Neighbors

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellis and Gaile left this week to take up residence in their new home at 7 Grove Street, Belleville. They will be greatly missed by their many friends here.

Mrs. Ellis was an active member of the W. I. of which she was president for three years and both Mrs. Ellis and Gaile were members of the United Church Sr. Choir.

Before they left they were much feted. On Friday evening the Wellington members of the Rebekah field held a farewell party at the home of Mrs. Eckert Pearsall for Mrs. Ellis and presented her with a Rebekah plate.

On Monday evening around 21 neighbors held a surprise party at her home to bid her farewell. Two contests were played with Mrs. B. Smith and Mrs. J. T. Ross the winners.

After the contests, Mrs. Ellis was seated in a chair while Mrs. Doris Clarke read a farewell address and Mrs. Olive Channel presented her with a lovely table lamp on behalf of the neighbors. Mrs. Ellis, completely taken by surprise, thanked her friends for the lovely gift.

A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Ida McFaul, Mrs. Channel and Mrs. Lavender.

On Saturday evening the Couples Club, to which Mr. and Mrs. Ellis belong, had a surprise wiener roast at Mr. Willard Ainsworth's cottage and there they received a lovely piece of "paint point" china to match their dishes.

Miss Gaile Ellis, was also completely surprised on Monday evening when six school friends gathered at the home of Miss Betty Faye Smith for a farewell party for her. They presented Gaile with a personal gift and a pretty gold necklace. The party was to be a wiener roast on the beach, and as the weather would not permit it, they served the wieners, buns, pop, and cake at home.

Those present were: Mary Marvin; Margaret Head; Marilyn Brimley; Carol Pearsall; Betty Fays Smith; Margaret Brimley, and of course the guest of honor, Gaile Ellis.

Wedding

MOORE — GORDON

Queensboro United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding when the Reverend John Glover, assisted by Mr. Plager, united in marriage, Doris Irene Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon, of Queensboro, and Mr. Basil Edward Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moore, of Springbrook.

The church was tastefully decorated with pink and white peonies.

Mr. Will Glover provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. R. Sager, who sang "I Love You Truly", before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over silk taffeta. The lace bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long sleeves, and the bouffant skirt of nylon tulle, edged with Chantilly lace, fell into a chapel train. Her elbow-length veil of French illusion fell from a crown of sequins and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of carnations.

The bridesmaids were Misses Margaret Reynolds and Treva Wartman, gowned in pale blue terylene, with matching picture hats, and nosegays of pink roses and white 'mums.

The flower girl, Louise Gordon, niece of the bride, wore a frock of pale and white nylon, with matching headdress and carried pink and white 'mums.

The little ring-bearer, Master Bruce Gordon, nephew of the bride, were grey flannels and navy jacket, and carried a satin cushion bearing the rings at the altar.

Mr. Laverne Moore, brother of the bridegroom, performed the duties of bestman. Ushers were, Mr. Gerald Gordon, brother of the bride and Mr. Merle Moore, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of pale yellow, with white accessories and corsage of pink 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a navy nylon dress with white hat and corsage of pink 'mums.

The bride's table was decorated in white and pink streamers and wedding bells.

The happy couple, are residing in Bellevile.

Lauren Bacall Well-Dressed Type Is Claim

ROME (AP) — Pre-opening prophecies indicate Italian fashions for fall and winter will be classic, conservative and reminiscent of 1930 styles.

A French interloper on the Roman couture circuit claims, however, that he will not conform.

"Whatever the trend is, we're against it," declared Faith-trained Patrick de Barentzen.

"We are anti-chest, anti-waist and, above all, anti any return to the past for inspiration," de Barentzen said.

The ideal well-dressed type, he added, is "American film star Lauren Bacall.

The new de Barentzen collection, which will be presented here next Thursday evening, has been described as "very revolving and very narrow."

The room behind the guarded portals of other couture houses is that normal waistline are a thing of memories, just like collars and cuffs. Skirts are said to be the longest for day wear. The short box - jacket is slimming down and growing out to full length.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

CLIFF L. — She wants me to become a girlie.

Millie J. — I want to look up to him.

Cliff L. — My girl friend and I are having a big squabble — about me.

We are both 16 and just finished our sophomore year at high school. Millie is a very good student. She gets mostly A's and a few B's. I get mostly B's and a few C's. I don't mind this but Millie does.

She claims it is embarrassing to her to go out with a guy who isn't up to her level in school. She wants me to become a grind. She says that if I don't do better next year, she's going to give me up. I think this is ridiculous.

Millie J. — It may sound ridiculous to Cliff but it's important to me. Any girl will know what I mean. A girl likes to go out with a man she can look up to. It's like wanting someone taller than you are.

I wouldn't bother Cliff about this if I weren't positive he could do it. He's got a brain, but just won't bother with it. The subjects he is not interested in. He doesn't even work hard at the ones he likes. School is just a lark to him. He's more interested in sports and music.

I'll help Cliff — if he'll let me.

The Council: All teenagers should have problems like this!

We think Cliff may have something to gain by trying to meet his girl's standards, but in all fairness we do not think she is quite justified in her demands.

Millie may be a smart girl, but she still has a lot of things to learn and one of them is that it is foolish to set rigid standards for others. It is fine to set them for ourselves, because we know or should know what we want out of life and what sacrifices we are willing to make to get them, but we can't decide this for others.

Maybe Cliff could get better marks in school, but only he can decide whether it would be worth his while to take whatever additional time may be required from the sports and music he enjoys. It is very likely that the time he now invests in these things will bring him even greater rewards in later life — in addition to the pleasure it now affords.

When a person does something purely to gratify another it rarely works out well. Cliff may later resent the sacrifice he has made. Millie may get into the habit of feeling that he and others should satisfy any whim of hers. It would make for a very bad relationship. Cliff should not attempt to do what Millie demands unless he decides that the demand is right and legitimate.

Aside from this, we think Millie is too rigid in her ideas of the way things should be. People have varied abilities and Cliff's lower school marks are no indication of inferiority. Apparently she finds him bright enough to be her companion. If she does not accept him as he is she should give him up.

We'd also like to remind Millie that although height is a big issue with teenagers, it becomes more and more trivial as time goes on. Many women deeply resent and love men who are shorter than they are. "Looking up" to someone is not based on superficial things.

Humpty Dumpty Climbs The Social Ladder

by Mary Moore

A lovely item on the buffet table at Phil Steven's wedding reception was a Chaud Froid of Eggs. It is simple to make and so effective it should belong to you and me — not just to country club chefs.

CHAUD FROID OF EGGS:

6 hard-cooked eggs, 1 1-2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 1-2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon mustard, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons finely chopped olives or pickles, 2 cups Chaud Froid Sauce (see below).

Cut hard-cooked eggs in halves lengthwise, remove yolks and mash to a paste with melted butter, mayonnaise, salt, mustard, paprika and chopped olives or pickles. Refill whites and arrange in a shallow flat dish which just accommodates them. Pour over.

CHAUD FROID SAUCE:

2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 1-4 cups boiling water, 1 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 1-2 tablespoons gelatine, 1-4 cup cold water.

Soak the gelatine in the cold water 5 minutes. Melt butter, stir in flour and salt and when blended stir in the boiling water and lemon juice until thick. Add soaked gelatine stirring until dissolved. Pour this evenly over eggs arranged symmetrically in dish in which they are to be moulded. Garnish each egg with little stars cut from ripe olives or green peppers. Carefully transfer to refrigerator to chill and set.

An inexpensive and far-reaching item that is popular and expected on a party buffet table is a potato salad. Ours is tastefully garnished with a double border of devilled eggs. The object of this is to be a filler-upper but at the same time not costly. So follow the lead of professional chefs and

POTATO SALAD WITH DEVILLED EGG GARNISH:

(For 24): 18 cups cubed cooked potatoes, 1-2 cup minced onion, 8 cups diced celery, 4 cups mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons MSG, 1-4 teaspoon Tabasco.

Combine potatoes, onion and celery; toss until thoroughly mixed. Combine mayonnaise, salt, pepper, MSG and Tabasco; add to potato mixture; toss again. Chill several hours or overnight packed in very large mixing bowl. Just before serving with care turn out, retaining bowl shape, on very large platter or large round tray. Press in lower edge to make it smooth and neat. Surround with double border of Devilled Hard-cooked Eggs, the border resting in a horizontal row, end-to-end; the outer border in a vertical row side to side. Hard-cook 12 eggs by covering with cold water, bringing slowly to boiling point, simmer 5 minutes. Drain and set once cool in cold water. Remove shells, cut in halves lengthwise, remove yolks and add 1 3-ounce package white cream cheese, 1-4 cup mayonnaise, 2 teaspoons French mustard, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon each garlic salt and cayenne pepper. Mix well. Refill whites, preferably with pastry bag and tube. Garnish with tiny black olive or pimiento "stars".

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP
YOUR TELEPHONE VOICE

Have you ever really listened to the tone of voice you use when you answer the telephone? Strange things happen to the voices of some people when they say their telephone "Hello." On other occasions their voices are pleasant, natural, most gracious in tone. But once they pick up that receiver, their voices become unpleasant, unnatural, ungracious in tone, so clipped and brusque that they seem to register resentment of the call even before the caller speaks. EXERCISE: one day soon (perhaps on a Monday!) try listening to what happens to your voice when you answer the telephone . . . "wherever you are."

SHOULD SHE SEND A WEDDING PRESENT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I receive a wedding invitation, and reply that I am not able to attend, is it necessary for me to send a wedding present and/or a telegram? — M.O.D.

There are no definite rules concerning the sending of wedding presents . . . there are only some general suggestions.

If you are invited to the ceremony only . . . the formal invitation that "requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of" . . . you are not expected to reply to this invitation, and you are not really expected to send a wedding present, unless, of course, you wish to.

But, if you receive an invitation to the reception, this generally means that you have a more personal relationship to the couple or to either family. If you send a regret to the reception invitation, you may do as you wish about sending a present. If you accept the invitation, it is more or less customary to send a present. Quite naturally, members of the family, close relatives and intimate friends do send presents. Whether or not others send presents depends, and must depend, on their own inclination.

Sending a congratulatory telegram has nothing to do with whether or not you give a wedding present . . . you send these words of good wishes if you wish to. And it's a very charming gesture for you to make.

SIGNING VACATION POST-CARDS

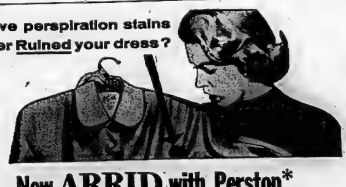
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning to go on quite an extended vacation trip in the United States, including several national parks. We both work, and we've been able to "save up" vacation-time for this trip. We'd like to keep our friends informed as to our trip, sending many post-cards. Please tell us whether we should sign these cards, "Mr. and Mrs." with our first names. — S. L.

Don't sign any of these cards "Mr. and Mrs." that's your formal name, and your signature should be your informal name, your first names. And remember: the one who signs the cards politely signs her or his name alone. For example: If you are signing the names, you sign Peter and Sue, or, to those who might need to be told the last name, Peter and Sue Lane, or, if you'd like, Greetings from the Lanes — peter and Sue.

When your husband is signing, be courteously writing your names first: Sue and Peter . . . Sue and Peter Lane . . . Greetings from the Lanes — Sue and Peter.

SHOULD SHE SHAKE OFF HER GLOVES TO SHAKE HANDS?



Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle our discussion about gloves. "A" says that a lady is not supposed to take off her gloves to shake hands. "B" says she is supposed to take off her gloves to shake hands. "C" says she is supposed to take off her gloves and, if she doesn't, she should apologize for not doing so. — A-B-C

A woman is never supposed to take off her gloves to shake hands . . . nor is she supposed to apologize for not doing so.

Montreal's Quickly Changing Skyline Getting Looks From Realtors and Traffic Experts

MONTREAL (CP)—The city's quickly changing skyline is getting some worried looks from Montreal real estate men and traffic experts.

A number of skyscrapers have been started — the most impressive along mid-town Dorchester Street—and most will be completed by 1963.

On Dorchester alone where 40- and 43-floor buildings are under way, some 2,500,000 square feet of office space still be created.

"That's a lot of space, no matter how you look at it and it's coming at a time when business is not as brisk as it was in the early 1950s," says James A. Lowden, mortgage manager of Manufacturers Life Assurance Company Ltd.

TO CREATE VACANCIES

"It's very imponderable what the consequences will be," adds David S. Read, president of the Montreal Real Estate Board. "The new buildings will create vacancies elsewhere. That's what happened when Radio City was built in New York. It created a 10-year lag. Of course times were different then."

Mr. Lowden, a vice-president of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, says there are "a limited number of types of industries that require large blocks of space in Montreal."

"There's going to be a lot of space to rent," he said. "The question is: How long will it take before the office space situation has settled out and the actual surplus determined—that is, what will the real surplus be?

"Reasonable business growth will ultimately fill it up," he said. "I'm anxious to have a couple of years of the newer under our belt to see what it will do to Montreal. If it does anything industrywise, it's bound to help the office buildings."

The builders of Place Ville Marie, notable for a 40-floor office structure on Dorchester Street, say 65 per cent of available space has been rented. This includes 300,000 square feet to the Royal Bank of Canada.

At Windsor Plaza, a 42 - storey building, the Canadian Bank of Commerce has taken several floors, but the builders decline to say how much has been rented to others.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Streets are already choked at rush hour, transportation facilities stretched to the limit. It is estimated 1,000,000 people use Montreal streets in one day.

Under city bylaws, the new office buildings are required to install parking facilities.

Montreal is on an island. It has a 700 - foot mountain separating the midtown business area from south of the suburbs. At rush hour, traffic piles up behind bridges leading off the island and on the few roads going around the mountain.

"The city," says Romeo Mondello, director of the city planning department, "needs at least an east - west expressway along the harbor and two running north-south across the island."

To help move the people who will eventually occupy the new offices, the city needs a subway, says Richard M. Binns, director of traffic studies for the Montreal Transportation Committee.

"Many of us are frightened at the prospect facing us in the next few years. With a concentration of many thousands of workers in skyscrapers along Dorchester Street, our nice new buses are not going to be very effective."

REASONS FOR BOOM

There are several reasons for Montreal's boom in big buildings.

The smaller, less pretentious ones are felt to be the result of normal business growth. The three towers planned along Dorchester Street are the result of a race for prestige among Canada's big three of banking.

The Royal Bank took space in Place Ville Marie, enabling builders to start. Almost immediately, Commerce jumped into the 42-floor tower two blocks away.

Recently, The Bank of Montreal, chipped in to get a 36-floor building started in the same area.

"What really broke it up," one real estate man said, "was the Royal Bank moving up."

Mr. Read says there is another reason for the boom:

"Don't you think it's an expression of confidence in Canada?" he asked. "Owners of older buildings are not at all frightened. It's only rarely one is offered for sale."

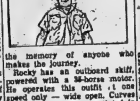
Guides Are Colorful Characters

Florida, for some reason or other, seems to attract colorful characters just as a magnet attracts steel filings. Consider the Everglades guides, for example — they beseech guides. Rarely will you find a group anywhere that is composed of such a variety of individualists. Hollis Hollenbeck, Bill Mann, Cecil Green, Bill Smith, Frankie and Jimmy Allbright — no two of them alike, yet all of them with outstanding colorful characteristics. No doubt about it, those folks make fascinating company.

Last season a new one was added to the list. Rocky Weinstein, Rocky's given name is, of all things, Maurice. Not very many people know him well enough to call him that. He does not like it. Best play safe and call him Rocky.

My son Dick was a student at the University of Miami when he first met Rocky. At that time Rocky was working in Miami. Dick met him while fishing for snook in the canal beside the Tamiami Trail, over beyond Everglades. Both boys were using fly rods and streamer flies and, quite naturally, they stopped to talk things over.

That was the beginning. For several years Dick and Rocky haunted the canals around Everglades or Marco, catching snook and having a time for themselves. Then Dick came north and we lost track of Rocky for a while.



CALL OF THE CANALS

During that time Rocky continued to work in Miami but the call of the canals and the waterways of the Ten Thousand Islands was loud in Rocky's ears. Last March, when we spent a few days at Everglades Rod and Gun Club we had a pleasant surprise — Rocky had shaken the Miami sand out of his shoes and had taken up residence in Everglades, earning his living as a professional back-country guide.

Physically Rocky commands instant attention. He stands about five feet four in his shoes but he is built like a bulldozer, with barrel chest, short powerful legs and hands and forearms like Popeye. Mr. Five-by-Five in person.

Of course we signed up with Rocky for a day in the back country. The term "back country" in South Florida means the labyrinth of islands, mangrove keys and waterways which make up the Ten Thousand Islands and the bulk of Florida Bay. Rocky took us back into Lostman's Five after snook.

Lostman's Five is the designation of one of the five "lakes" which comprise the headwaters of Lostman's River, deep in the heart of the Ten Thousand Islands. The trip into Lostman's Five with Rocky is an event which will remain firmly fixed in the memory of anyone who makes the journey.

Rocky has an outboard skiff, powered with a 56-horse motor. He operates this outfit at one speed only — wide open. Curves in the channel are negotiated in 45-degree banked turns with gunwale awash. Such things as a few fire ants inside your shirt collar, scraped from the bushes in one of the tunnels, are merely part of the course, to be taken in stride and with a minimum of comment. When Rocky goes after snook fishing, he wants to get there. Minor discomforts are unimportant.

The weather was cold the day we went with Rocky; cold enough for sweaters, flannel shirts and windbreakers. Snook are definitely warm-water fish, and low temperatures put them off the feed. But Rocky found for us some sunny, sheltered lakes and in them we found, enough snook to keep us happy.

Dick asked Rocky how in the world he managed to find his way into Lostman's Five and more important, out again. "Took about four months," said Rocky — "getting lost everyday. Twice I had to spend the night out here — took too many dead-end channels trying to find my way out. But if you keep at it, you get to know the country after a while." Just as easy as that!

As I say, Florida guides, particularly those of the out-board skiff, bonefish variety, are all colorful characters. But for my money, Rocky Weinstein is in a class by himself. If you are down that way and want to get in touch with Rocky for a day's fishing, you can reach him through the Everglades Rod and Gun Club. And if you do spend a day in his outboard skiff, depend upon it, you won't forget it in a hurry.

"It's half a pound short of the record and he-likes!"

WILD CARROT

Although wild carrot (Daucus Carota) may be a thing of beauty to city people, to the farmers of Ontario it is a real problem, states the Field Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture. In Ontario its spread has been alarming, and where only a few plants showed up in any area, very soon we find that this serious pest has taken over and can be found in abundance.

In the early stages, wild carrot resembles the garden carrot, but as it grows none of the usual characteristics of this plant persist. During the latter part of May and early June it can be found close to the ground and hidden in the grass. It grows very quickly and soon sends out stalks that grow up to two or three feet in a season. It is a biennial and is reproduced from seed. The flower cluster measures up to four inches and, being white, is a thing of beauty. At a later date it folds up and resembles a bird's nest.

The seeds are spread by wind, water and drifting snow. It can generally be found on rough land or on unworked fields and in older hay meadows and fence rows. It thrives on roadsides, and from these locations spreads to adjoining fields. It is rarely seen in cultivated land. Cutting is not the best method of control, as new flowers will be produced on very short stalks.

Spraying with 2, 4-D, using from 13 to 16 ounces of acid per acre, will give control in most areas. However, some plants resistant to this treatment are readily controlled by the same rates of brushkiller. Enough material should be used to penetrate to the young leaves hidden by the grass. After a first application in early June, a second spray can also be used in early September, when the young plants can be found at ground level. In this way the following year's crop of carrot can be destroyed. If we can keep wild carrot from setting a seed we can control this serious pest.

TIMMINS (CP)—In 1955 a new kind of trout was being caught in Ontario lakes.

Those trout fishermen weren't aware of it, they were pulling in "splakes," a hybrid produced by crossing lake and speckled trout.

Since that time splake, a good fighting fish with the speckled trout's mottled body, has been officially absent from Ontario lakes—even though some anglers insist they are still catching them.

But splake may soon reappear.

RESEARCH PROGRAM

In a long-range program at the nearby Maple, Ont. fisheries research station is considered successful, splake may start serving commercial and sports fishermen on a full-like basis around 1963, probably in Lake Huron.

Both the present program and the 1963 experimental planting of the hybrids had in mind the same thing: to discover a trout capable of surviving in deep water but with a spawning period that comes quickly enough to avoid the scourge of sea lamprey which have ravaged the lake trout population in their invasion of the Great Lakes.

At the 1963 experiment seemed to indicate and the present research proves, the splake can do this.

By cautious study and elimination through three generations of splake, the Maple researchers are arriving at a fish with the deep-swimming ability of the lake trout and the early - spawning habits of the speckled.

Ken Loftus, who directs the Maple operation for the fish division of the Ontario lands and forests research department, invokes the splake will be planted in quantity, replacing lake trout in Lake Huron by the Great Lakes International Fishery Commission in three or four years.

STARTED IN ALBERTA

Historically, the splake goes back to the early 1920s when a federal fisheries researcher at Banff, Alta., created the hybrid as an experimental basis.

Interest and experiments followed in Quebec and then in Ontario. In 1958 a total of 24,000 fingerling splake were placed in seven small Northern Ontario lakes after being produced at the Sault Ste. Marie provincial hatchery.

The initial distribution was done, says Dr. G. H. D. Clarke, assistant chief of the provincial fish and wildlife division, "just out of curiosity."

The results, however, seemed to indicate that the splakes were well worth some further attention.

Since many first-generation hybrids fail to pass along their hybrid nature to their offspring, but produce fish with their dominant parental characteristics, there are virtually no splake left in Ontario lakes.

TOUGH TEST

But at Maple, many third generation captive splake are going through a gruelling ordeal in the interests of science, enduring two-week periods in cans - shaped tanks at pressures equal to 80 feet so that the shallow swimmers can be weeded out.

"As the water is drained from the tanks, the fish with the most life-sustaining gas in their systems floats to the surface and are net aside to reproduce.

At present, two more tanks are under construction so that the station will eventually be able to produce the deep - swimming harvested trout at the great lakes.

Following the Ontario planting is 1953 a contest was held to find a new name for the "splake." It was agreed wasn't a romantic enough label, the name didn't come up with "splendid," the Indian name for a wind spirit.

It was colorful enough and could authorities readily endorsed the name. But fisherfolks refused to go along with it and the name splake stuck.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

It was quite evident at the senior "A" hockey meeting in Toronto Friday night that the CAHA, the OHA and Whitby Dunlops in particular, had no intention of letting the Ex-Kingston Merchants get away with their last-season league pool default of some $3,300.

The outspoken Wren Blair made no bones about the fact he would take legal action. "I want Belleville to do the same," he said. Belleville and Whitby were left holding the pool bag to the extent of $1,250 each. However the McFarlands' manager, Keith MacDonald, and Harvey J. Jr. had no comment on the matter.

CAHA secretary-manager George Dudley who wears his Kingston-fabbed title "prosecuting attorney" with feigned dignity, and occasional guffaws, spread all on the discussional waters with the cryptic remark, "Belleville and Whitby should not be surprised if they get a cheque from Kingston in full payment of pool deficit within the next few days or so."

That is as far as he would go. Press pressure did not elicit another word. Just an amused smile, and shake of the head. Later there was a veiled hint from some source, that National Hockey League president, Clarence Campbell had taken some action in the matter. This could not be verified, but some of the veteran hockey men present muttered something about, "He wouldn't be surprised."

There was no doubt from the time OHA president Ken McMillan rapped his gavel to open the meeting, that a league would be formed. There was no warm accustomed melding of the "ashes" of the two leagues represented prior to the actual agreement and announcement, but this was mainly reminiscences of the successes, failures and problems of past seasons.

There was no hesitation when the chairman called for the organizational motion. Whitby quickly moved and Windsor as quickly seconded the five-team nucleus of a possible 10-or-seven team circuit. It was done as quickly as that.

And if, as it was hinted in certain-Eastern press circles the western clubs would "freeze out" Cornwall because of travelling problems, nothing was farther from the truth. Windsor, Chatham and Kitchener voiced approval. "If Manager Ray Miron could see his way to enter a club.

And so was born, as Blair put it, "the strongest senior 'A' hockey club in Canada. If Kingston and Whitby had the idea of wrecking senior hockey in Ontario, they were badly mistaken. In fact four more senior 'A' clubs which have either winners of or runners-up for the Allan Cup in the past seven years, to get together in a strong circuit" he added.

There was no round-the-table criticism of the newly formed Eastern Ontario Professional League, although conversationally it was generally agreed the motive was to keep alive an important member of the Montreal Canadiens' farm system. The topic was frequently brushed aside with the consensus being "give 'em enough rope . . ."

Windsor's suggestion that Toronto hockey interests be approached with a view to entering a club met with some opposition from guess who—you're right—Owen Blair. Cornwall's Ray Miron told the meeting he had talked with the Leafs' Punch Imlach some time ago about the matter, and Imlach seemed favorable to the idea.

"The entry of a Toronto club with the accompanying Toronto press and other publicity would, I think, enhance my chances of entering a club," Miron said. "Cornwall fans would prick up their ears, and my potential sponsor also might be helped in making the right decision."

There was a decided air of optimism over success of the league. New faces and new clubs would, it was felt, go a long way in upping fan interest. With the relative strengths of the clubs being more or less equal, competition would be exceptionally keen.

It was admitted that problems remain to be ironed out but these should not cause any trouble if the mutual willingness of give-and-take and help-one-another attitude apparent at Friday's meeting can be judged a criterion.

Boston Clean-Sweeps Yankees; Giants Retain Lead

Champions Bow Four Times As Chisox Cut Tribe Lead; Elroy Face Wins 14 in Row

By Joe Reichler
Associated Press Staff Writer

The consecutive game-winning record of Rube Marquard and Carl Hubbell, which have withstood the assaults of such Goliaths of the mound as Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove, Bob Feller and Dizzy Dean, were challenged today by a modern David. He is 5-foot 7-inch Elroy Face of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Face came within five victories of equaling both marks Sunday when he won his 14th straight game this year and his 19th in a row during a two-year span. The 31-pound relief artist hasn't lost since May 30, 1958.

Marquard established a record of 19 consecutive victories with New York Giants in 1912. No other 20th-century pitcher has won more than 16 straight in one season. Hubbell, one of the six major leaguers who reached 16 in one season, holds the two-year record with 24 in a row. He set that record with the Giants in 1936-37.

WORKS BOTH GAMES

The 31-year-old Face worked in both games Sunday as Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis Cardinals 8-5 in the opener and led 5-4 in the ninth when the nightcap was halted because of the Pennsylvania curfew.

Milwaukee's Braves defeated San Francisco 4-2 to move within 1½ games of the league-leading Giants, San Francisco retained its one-game lead over Los Angeles, which bowed to Cincinnati 4-3, Chicago split with Philadelphia, the Cubs winning the first game 7-6 and the Phillies taking the second 7-1.

Saturday Los Angeles shelled Carlton Willey of the Milwaukee Braves for two doubles and a single for five runs in the first inning and went on to beat Milwaukee 7-5. The Giants, on the pitching of Johnny Antonelli, limited the hitting of Eddie Bressoud, routed Cincinnati Reds 5-3.

Chicago Cubs trimmed the Pirates 5-1 behind Dave Hillman's pitching and Philadelphia beat Philadelphia 4-3.

FIRST AID SPECIALISTS

Face rescued Harvey Haddix in the eighth inning of the first game Sunday. He yielded the tying run in the ninth, but was credited with the victory when Roberto Clemente singled with the bases full. He was called upon again in the second game to protect a 5-4 lead in the ninth. The Cards had a runner on first and none out. The little right-hander fanned one pinch - hitter George Crowe. Before Elroy could pitch again, he closed struck seven and halted proceedings.

Eddie Mathews batted in all Milwaukee's runs with a three-run homer, his 27th of the year, and a sacrifice fly. Mathews' slugging helped Lew Burdette gain his 12th triumph despite a two-run homer by Jackie Brandt.

Gus Bell's ninth-inning single scored Johnny Temple with the run that gave the Reds their first victory under their new manager, Freddy Hutchinson. Home runs by Vada Pinson, Ed Bailey and Frank Robinson backed Bob Purkey's five-hitter.

Earl Averill sparked a seven-run fourth inning for the Cubs with a three-run homer against Jack Meyer of the Phillies. Ray Semproch gave the Phils a split by hurling a four-hitter in the nightcap, Ed Bouchee's homer, his second of the day, was the decisive blow in a four-run first inning.

Look out Harmon Killebrew. Forget about Babe Ruth's home run record for the time being. The guy to watch right now is Rocky Colavito.

The Bronx - born slugger of Cleveland Indians closed within two of Killebrew's major league home run lead Sunday by banging his 28th and 29th of the year.

The pair of four-baggers, Colavito's fourth since the all-star break, helped Indians gain an up hill victory over Detroit and a split in their doubleheader, but Indians won the second game 8-4 after losing the opener 8-2.

The split left Cleveland with a one - game advantage over Chicago's White Sox, who swept a doubleheader from Kansas City 7-3 and 9-7. Baltimore's third-place Orioles defeated Washington 5-1 and Boston made it four in a row over New York with a 7-3 triumph.

NO MORE FOR-ROCKY

A Cleveland-Detroit game Saturday, delayed by rain for nearly an hour, gave Indians score two runs in the eighth for an 8-7 win. Colavito hit two homers for Cleveland.

Chicago whipped Kansas City Athletics 8-3 as Jerry Lumpe's grand slam limited Athletics to four hits after leading 3-0 early.

Killebrew clouted his 30th home run of the season to lead Washington to a 9-3 victory over Baltimore Orioles and Don Buddin's 10th home run of the season helped gave Boston Red Sox their third straight win over Yankees 8-4 in Boston's Sunday game.

A Cleveland crowd of 54,727 saw Colavito register two home runs in the second game Sunday, his second coming with two on in the big inning that overcame a 3-0 Detroit lead. Killebrew, whose 30 homer ranks Washington's all games match the pace of Ruth when he slammed his record 60 in 1927, next hitter.

Colavito has 28 in 81 games. Chicago's Ernie Banks walloped 27 of his 41 home runs after the all-star break.

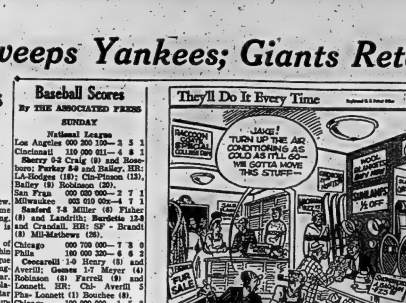
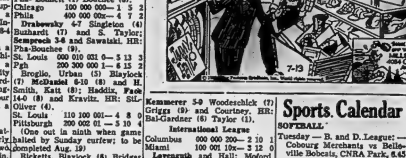
SETS WORLD RECORD

TOKYO (AP)—Satoko Tanaka, 17-year-old Japanese school girl, bettered the world record Sunday by swimming the 200-metre backstroke in 2:37.1. The old mark of 2:37.4 was set last Aug. 7 by American Chris Von Saltza at Topeka, Kan.

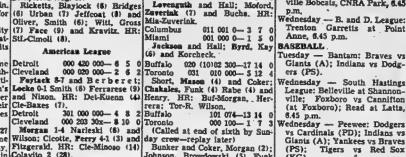
USED CAR FACTS



By Ken Pinder



FOOT PEDALS TELL TRUE MILEAGE



A good look at the rubber foot pedals and floor mats can often give you an accurate estimate of a car's mileage. Worn pedals indicate high car mileage — regardless of the figure on the speedometer or the fact that it is late model. Likewise, brand new pedal rubbers showing no signs of wear on an older model car should make you suspicious of mileage camouflage.

It is the policy of KEN PINDER LTD., 169 Front St., to honestly represent every car on the lot. Our cars are reconditioned to make them sound and safe mechanically . . . not to cover up weaknesses — to deceive the buyer. Phone WO 2-3608.

Canadians Win Medals Bulk, American Star Steals Show

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRANTFORD (CP) — Medals and trophies are the primary objective when Canada's swimmers meet here in the next two weeks.

They'll be racing for higher stakes, and all expenses-paid trip to Chicago for the Aug. 21 to Sept. 14 Pan-American Games.

About 100 young men and women, including only a handful of the country's finest aquatic stars, got in their early licks in the three-day Canadian championship which ended Saturday night.

I couldn't be called a national tournament. Many of the country's big star-class divers and swimmers who have done fairly well in British Empire and Olympic games in previous years were missing.

BEAT U.S. ENTRIES

At that, the Canadians beat a strong 60 - member contingent from the eastern United States for the final tally of first places, 15 to nine but the Americans pridedred the star of the show.

She was 14 - year - old Diedre Rhoads, a free-style specialist from the Philadelphia Vesper Boat Club, who took four individual events. She shared another first with three teammates in the 440-yard free style relay, final event of the business that was raced before empty stands.

Spectators scrambled for cover when a rainy downpour hit the open air 55-yard pool.

That was her second victory of the closing program. An hour earlier she won the 110-yard freestyle in 1:07.6, but 2.3 seconds off the Canadian record held by 18-year-old Margaret Iwaski of Vancouver.

She also hit the record books by helping Canadian open best times established by Sara Barber of Brantford in the 220 freestyle and 440 individual medley on the opening day of the championships since 1954 and an expert in the backstroke, won both sprints in this event. She captured the 220-yard final Saturday in 2:46.2, beating her own Canadian record of 2:49.8, and two nights earlier won the 110-yard back-stroke in 1:15.4, just one-tenth of a second off her old mark.

She also got another first when Omagine, Ont., team won the 440-yard medley.

The five-foot seven-inch Miss Barber, who dabbles at the piano when she isn't practising swimming or studying, is considered a certainty to make the Chicago team.

TOP PROSPECT

Another sure - fire prospect is Gretchen Greef of Hicksville, Ont., male swimmer of the meet with three firsts in individual events and one when he swam the butterfly leg on Quebec's 440-yard medley relay team Friday night.

Saturday he won the 110-yard freestyle in :58.8, equalling his own Canadian record set last year, 1:01.9 in earlier triumphs in the 110-yard butterfly and 440-yard individual medley.

Other final day winners were Ernie Meissner of Kitchener in the three-metre diving, Bob Fisher of the University of Toronto in the men's 220 - yard backstroke, Dick Mitchell of Indianapolis who established a 2:33.1 Canadian open record in the 220-yard butterfly, and Lois Wood of Toronto in the women's diving.

Allan Guthrie of Woodstock came south in the 100-yard free style heats with a time of 1:08.8 and fourth in the 220-yard butterfly heats with a time of 3:26.0.

Toronto Yachtsman Captures Dragon Class World Crown

The Danish-built Tip now will be shipped to Canada to again compete in Dragon trophy races in Toronto Aug. 1-3. Bluebottle, owned by the Duke of Edinburgh, also is entered.

Woman Claims New Record For 'Frogladies'

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Mrs. Louis Lourmais came out of the glass tank at midnight Saturday after spending 30 hours under water in a frogman's suit to reclaim a new Canadian record.

She said she could stay down 60 hours next time.

Mrs. Lourmais, wife of the Granby mayor, was trying to raise funds to help finance a trip north for herself and her husband. The pair plan to do underwater research in the Canadian Arctic.

About 750 visitors paid 50 cents a head to see her in her tank at Granby Zoo. Commissionaire Commercial Committee, which sponsored the stunt, received 35 per cent of the gate.

Mrs. Lourmais set out to break the Canadian record of 27 hours, 44 minutes set two years ago in Montreal by Lucien Plante, Montreal police skin diver.

Her husband announced he plans to break the world record of 43 hours under water set by three U.S. Navy skin divers.

He also said he is planning to swim down the middle of the Lachine Rapids off Montreal Island.

Cliff Lumsdon of Toronto, who won the 1956 swim over Park and who finished right behind the Hamiltonian in 1954, 1955 and 1958, also will be competing.

Others are Anderson Somichsen, who was the first woman to finish in 1956, Frank Kay, last year's winner of five women entered in the event.

WON CHANNEL SWIM

Ken Nielsen and Robert Lumsdon; John La Courslere of Montreal, who was first here in 1954, and newcomers Robert Cosette of Quebec; Fred Higgins of Toronto, Ont., and Phyllis Clarke of Toronto.

During the first five years of the marathon, entrants started in the ocean where the cold morning water would cut the field considerably.

This year, the swimmers will start at the Atlantic City Beach Thoroughfare at the Atlantic City State Marina. From there, they will head south through the bays behind Absecon Island.

At Longport, the swimmers will head into the ocean and swim in the surf for 10 miles. They'll return to the calmer bay waters at the northern end of the island and will finish at the starting point.

Tiger-Cats, Argonauts Move To Comfort for Work-Outs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats moved to the country during the weekend for the pre-season training drive for the Big Four football season. Montreal, Ottawa and Montreal Alouettes received another setback.

Sixty Argonaut hopefuls were at the quiet hammondy of Aurora, a few miles north of Toronto.

Coach Hamp Pool made five last-minute cuts to bring the squad down to a workable figure. Cut loose were Tom Marini, a star from University of California at Los Angeles and former Ottawa Rough Rider guard Norm Hryhn from Arkansas and homebreds Bill Oldfield, John Priest and Ivy Geller.

The squad will spend two weeks of intensive work in residence at St. Andrew's College.

IT TRY OUT

Kewaunta Lakes resort centre of Fenlon Falls for a week of pre-season training.

The team's co - coach Jim Trimble's program was a movie of last year's Grey Cup game, in which the Ticats lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Trimble said these players, especially the new ones, to keep this game important in their minds," Trimble said.

Twenty-five of this year's hopefuls are Canadians and the rest Americans, including 17 new imports.

At Montreal, Roger Siesal, a highly-rated guard from Miami, Ohio, failed to show up at Montreal Alouettes' practice Saturday. He is the sixth import to skip out from the club's training grounds in one week.

Latta Wins 13-Inning Mound Duel, City Juniors Defeat Shannonville

Wayne Gow's lead-off homer in the bottom of the 13th inning settled a tremendous pitching battle of the south-paws as they met in Latta as Belleville Juniors defeated Shannonville by a 1-0 score here Saturday night in the Latta Intermediate "B" league game.

Both hurlers blanked the opposition from this point on until Gow, first man up for Latta in the bottom of the 13th, leaned into a fast one and belted it safair. It was a great victory for Latta and a heart-breaker for Hill.

Reid gave up eight hits over the distance but issued only 15 batters and walking one. Hill was touched for 11 safeties with only strikeouts and one walk to his credit.

Wayne Gow had doubled earlier and capped it with his deciding homer to give him top batting honors for the fixture. Frank Ray, Cam Buskard and Shannonville's centrefield singles each to the Latta attack. Orly Glass, Bob Sullivan and Don Harris hit one-baggers for Belleville.

Les Reid spearheaded the Shannonville attack and doubled three singles. The others all one-base blows were shared by Bob Bennett, B. Green, Don Cherry, Dafoe and Billy Hill. Shannonville

Bisons Swamp Toronto Leafs In Twin Bill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo's Frank Herrera has been the big hit in Keep Bisons in the International League lead. But he didn't get too much help as they lost nine of 11 games prior to Sunday.

He got a lot more than enough Sunday as the Bisons came roaring back with four-homers to drub Toronto Maple Leafs 17-5 in the opener of a doubleheader and hold a 13-1 advantage when Toronto's Sunday curfew suspended play in the nightcap after six innings.

Herrera had five hits in nine trips, including a four-bagger in the uncompleted nightcap.

OTHER SCORES

Rochester and Montreal were rained out while Miami split a doubleheader with Columbus. The Marlins won the first 3-2 on George Zuverink's first home run of his professional career. Columbus took the second 3-1. Herrera had two from Rochester, 3-1 and 7-0.

Herrera, third in the batting race with a .344 average, had 10 hits in 62 at-bats this month, including four home runs. He has driven in 16 runs.

Buffalo's 10-run fourth inning in the fifth and innings of the nightcap, before the curfew intervened. The game will be finished tonight.

Zuverink, in pro baseball 13 years, won his first game in relief with his seventh — inning homer. He is 1-1 while loser Jim Hermsen is 0-1. Columbus won the nightcap with Al Worthington (7-6) getting five hits to best Harry Byrd (5-7).

GONZALEZ BURY

Tony Gonzalez drove in five runs in Havana's double victory, four in the nightcap to aid Mike Cuellar (7-7) in beating Montreal. Gonzalez' triple and Dan Morejon's single sparked a two-run sixth inning in the opener against loser Bill Stafford (6-4). Fred Wenzel (7-6) won.

Montreal swamped Rochester 12-2 Saturday, Columbus defeated Miami 4-3, Toronto came from behind for a 6-4 victory over Havana and Havana edged Richmond 3-2.

No Records Just Wins Says Mr. Face

By DAVE LEMERE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "I'm not interested in breaking records now. All I want to do is keep on winning for the team," says Elroy Face, ace relief hurler for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

And that's just what the little forkball artist is doing. He won his 14th straight of the season and his 19th in a row in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader against the St. Louis Cards.

Face entered the game in the eighth with the Pirates ahead 5-4. The bullpen baron struck out the first batter in the ninth, but then clamped down. The Pirates won the game 6-5 on Bob Clement's 10th inning base-loaded single.

Face's victory puts him only five games away from the major league record of Rube Marquard's 19 straight in one year and five behind Carl Hubell's 24 straight in two years. Marquard set his record in 1936-1937 with the same club.

"Sure I know I'm near a record," said the 31 - year - old righthander. "But when I come in from the bullpen, I concentrate only on the game at hand. Records are out of my mind. I want to pitch the Pirates into a world series. That's my main ambition now."

Face last lost on May 30, 1958. Since then he appeared in 79 games, worked 111 1-3 innings, won 19 games and saved 27 others.

"It's all in a day's work," laughed Face. But he quickly added:

"A lot of the credit goes to the guys who are getting the runs for me. Don't forget, without runs a pitcher can't win."

'Miss Detroit' Wins Big Race

DETROIT (AP) — Chuck Thompson drove his Miss Detroit to victory in the fifth annual International Trophy race for unlimited class powerboats on the St. Clair River Saturday.

Thompson averaged 86 miles per hour in the three 15 - mile heats.

Canada's Miss Superiest III was scratched from the regatta when hull repairs on damages suffered in last week's Detroit Memorial regatta were not completed in time.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the possible exception of Dan D'Amato, you'd have to say that why the Adams and Archie Moore are the fastest guys with a buck in the boxing business. Greatness will never grow under their feet.

A glance at the financial terms for Archie's July 20 defence of his world light - heavyweight crown against Yvon Durelle at Montreal could be likened to the Brinks Express robbery. The one difference is that the Kearns-Moore combination didn't use a gun.

To get a clear picture, you have to go back to last December when Moore and Durelle, the wild-swinging fisherman from Bale St. Ane, N.B., met at the Forum, Moore, a champion, was guaranteed $75,000 or 40 per cent of the gate and television rights and Durelle $12,000, with an option of 20 per cent.

HEROIC ABLE FIGHT

That was a legitimate split because Moore held the title. The fight developed into a Pier Basher and was tabbed as the most torrid battle in arty ring in 1953. Moore was on the seat of his pants four times before he knocked out the Maritimer boat-man in the 11th round.

A rematch was a natural, particularly in Montreal where the 25-year-old French - Canadian Durelle is a big drawing card. And that's when the Doc and Moore, no fledglings in financial matters, embarked on a well thought-out campaign.

After much manoeuvring, Moore early this summer signed for a guarantee of $175,000 of 40 per cent of the gate and TV—up $100,000 from his December fight. Durelle got his leftovers, $15,000 or 20 per cent, up a trifling $3,000.

Moore, of course, held all the cards. He didn't have to give Durelle a return bout. The champ and Kearns built up talk of a fight with middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson in September and purses of $500,000 and more were bandied about.

Along about this time, D'Amato was busily arranging a battle between his world champion Floyd Patterson and Sweden's ingenuous Johansson whereby D'Amato and his titleholder would make a financial killing. They did.

FIGHT FELL THROUGH

The much - ballyhooed Moore-Robinson fight fell through and Moore and Kearns were ready to talk turkey with the impatient Durelle and his trainer-manager, Chris Shaban, who operates an old-fashioned grocery store in Moncton and runs a small stable of fighters as a sideline.

Moore learned the hard way that the champion gets all the cream. H cost him, so he says, $2,200 to win the light-heavy title from Joey Maxim in 1952.

Maxim's guarantee was $100,000 and Archie got $1,200—which shouldn't make Durelle feel too badly. But Archie had borrowed $10,000 for training and other expenses and the day after the fight he woke up to find himself $8,200 in debt.

Durelle, after paying one-third of his earnings to Shaban and looking after his training expenses, should have enough left to invest in his fishing business. If he wins the title, it will be his turn to talk turkey.

CHINESE FRUITS

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—British Columbia Tree Fruits Ltd., selling agency for the Okanagan and Similkameen fruit growers, has warned that the industry is facing competition from Communist China on world markets.

Morland Beats Castator in Sudbury Golf

SUDBURY (CP)—North Bay's Bill Morland, hitting with amazing accuracy on the greens, captured the 12th annual Algiwyida invitational golf tournament concluded Saturday over Bruce Castator of Toronto, Canadian amateur champion.

Castator was three down with three holes to go but he birdied the 16th and sank a six-foot putt on the 17th before conceding on the final hole.

It marked the fourth time that Morland has won the International Nickel Company Trophy while Castator finished as runner-up for the fourth time.

Castator defeated Toronto's Gord McKenzie 3 and 4 in the semi-finals while Morland ousted Bob Lebel of Columbus, Ohio, 2 and 1.

Souchak Takes Western Open

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y., scored a brilliant 65 on the final round to win the Western open golf championship Sunday. His 72-hole total of 272 was one stroke better than that of Palmer of Lizonier, Pa.

Palmer missed a two-foot putt on the final green. Souchak started the day five strokes behind Palmer and Joe Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn.

Souchak, winning the Western for the first time, picked up $5,000 first prize. Palmer got $2,500 for second.

George Bayer of Lemont, Ill., wound up with a final 66 over the Pittsburgh Field Club course for a 274-total and third money, $2,000.

Tournament veteran Ted Kroll, Syracuse, Pa., fired a 67 for a 265 total and $1,500 for fourth.

Jerry Magee of Toronto was tied for 32nd place at 293 with three other players. He shot 72-70-73-77.

Chilian Takes Tennis Title

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Ramanathan Krishnan of India, who upset Wimbledon champion Alex Olmedo of Peru Saturday, in turn was beaten Sunday in the final of the Baastad international tennis tournament.

Luis Ayala, Chilean Davis Cup captain, defeated the Indian player in four sets with little difficulty, 6-1, 6-1, 5-7, 6-1. Olmedo had beaten both Krishnan and Ayala at Wimbledon earlier this month.

In an all - United States women's singles finale, Beverly Baker Fleitz of Long Beach, Calif., made short work of Carol Johnson of Wyandotte, Mich., winning a 40-minute match 6-4, 6-1.

Mrs. Fleitz and John Fleitz then outplayed Ayala and Ulla Rise of Denmark to capture the mixed doubles 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

VICTORIA (CP) — Jim Woods 43, whose time of 18 hours, 35 minutes set Aug. 26, 1957, in the swim across Lake Ontario still stands as a record, intends to attempt the Strait of Juan de Fuca for "laughs and larks," about July 30. Here on a holiday from his home in Orlando, Fla., the 215-pound, six-foot three-inch swimmer said he spent a week training on Lake Ontario before coming here.

AT THE PARK—"The Woman Eater" claims another beautiful victim. George Coulouris and Vera Day star in the criminal revue opening today at the Quinte Drive-In Theatre. On the same program, "The N-Man," with an all-star cast. Both features are first showings.

The third - heating favorite in a choice field of six pacers, Argyel Duke sped the mile in 2:03.4 to defeat two favored American invaders. Swan Drive, owned by Howard Bridge of Detroit, and Homegrab, driven by Dr. Armond Hoch of Oriskany Falls, N.Y., were 6-to-5 and 2-to-1 choices.

Campbell got Argyel Duke's speed the gate in top position and the gelding stayed there. Isonicagrab, was a length back in a picture finish with Futurity Chief, owned by Noah Foster of Orillia and driven by Bill Gardner. Futurity Chief closed quickly to edge Swan Drive for the show position.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, July 14

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — During early A. M. you may be puzzled over some unexpected event: either of an emotional or financial nature. Be noncommittal. Look into all phases of it, and a night's sleep will give a true picture in the morning.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Take care you meet all of your obligations to others today, including any fine print in contracts. This increases prestige and you are an inspiration to others with regard to their own affairs. Co-operation brings fine results.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — It is very likely that you act much too speedily in A. M. and will cause damage, accident or breakage. Work relaxed instead and be most considerate of others so that you are efficient and successful in all undertakings of this fine day.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) — Your desire to have fun now you may easily part with much of the hard-earned saving of some time. It would not be worth it all, so concentrate instead on economy. You will find many ways to save money if you try.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Here is a day when family ties get on your nerves, and vice versa. So, take the initiative and be especially charming and kind so that you dispel any unpleasantness which might be regretted later. Don't be an instigator!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Don't fret and fume over the unavoidable. Work constructively instead, though it may be only putting abode in good order. Good day for sales, writing letters, and very fine for study. Be thoughtful with everyone.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — While you are not pleased with the way your financial affairs are going now, this is no time to gamble with savings or present security. Go after your goals sensibly. Think.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — If you stop worrying about small matters and concentrate on what is truly important, a generous and pleasing higher-up gives you the opportunity to get a fresh start in your career, though it may cost you an emotional sacrifice.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — With a little effort you can make that outlet pay big dividends instead of sticking to limiting and frustrating present conditions. Raise your consciousness and follow the advice of happy, successful friend.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Take care you do not follow the suggestions of a flighty individual today, but follow rather the good ideas of an influential friend who knows your affairs intimately and accurately. P. M. take it easy and read.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Better rely upon your own ideas now instead of trying to follow those of an unpredictable associate or the directly opposite ones of a higher up. Your judgment is best right now. Use it and win out.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You are tempted to make some expensive and flamboyant changes at abode or place of business. This would be most unfortunate. Work constructively instead on plans formulated with good, progressive comrades.

If your child is born today — The delightful child born today is the most active type who will try to get into just about everything. Definitely a Child of Tomorrow, one who will make his or her mark in this fast-changing world. Give as fine an education as pocketbook will allow, for the contribution to society here will be a most valuable and constructive one. Teach basic Truths early, without fail, for best results.

WAGE RAISE SUGGESTED

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa (Reuter)—The executive council of the South African Federated Chamber of Industries said Friday that unskilled wages for non-white workers in some fields are too low. The council, meeting here, appealed to all employers to examine and review wages of unskilled laborers with a view to a possible increase.

Real Test of New Secretary Of State, Christian Herter, Coming in Issues With Reds

GENEVA (AP)—The real test of Christian Herter as U.S. secretary of state is just beginning. On critical issues, the policies he inherited from John Foster Dulles are running out.

In shaping new strategy for the conflict with Russia, he now is on his own.

Few men have faced a major challenge in the conduct of foreign policy under more trying conditions. The Allies are running and pulling apart. The Russians appear cocky and confident. The East-West balance of military power is changing unfavorably for the West.

UNTESTED LEADER

Events in Africa, the Middle East and Asia, as well as Europe, are moving at a pace which would have stunned the skill of a Dulles long in office. Yet Herter, going into the second session of the Geneva conference, still is a relatively unknown and untested force in foreign affairs.

He needs time to win the slowly-given confidence of President Eisenhower, whose admiration for Dulles approached hero-worship. He needs hours he cannot afford in order to shake up the staff he took over from Dulles and to review in tranquility the policies he inherited.

In his initial weeks as successor to Dulles, Herter has found his warmth and resilience great assets in getting along with Allied leaders. He offered a startling contrast to Dulles, whose self-confidence sometimes amounted to arrogance.

During pre-Geneva talks at Paris last April and in the four-power foreign ministers' conference which began at Geneva May 11, Herter quickly won the cordial comradeship of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France. He got on well with West Germany's Reichich von Brentano. He even found his relations with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko difficult but tolerable.

When the sessions finally recessed June 21 until July 13 in complete stalemate just short all possible Western concessions had been offered without once tempting the Russians to abandon their demand that the United States, Britain and France give up West Berlin.

Now in returning to the meeting with Gromyko the Western ministers have a range of new questions reaching beyond the situation which Dulles foresaw and requiring sooner or later, new Allied decisions.

Should the Western powers get tougher and begin to back up their West Berlin stand with—for example—some demonstration of military strength? Or should they connect new concessions in an effort to save the Big Four parley from collapse? Should they agree to a summit conference even if a Soviet threat continues to menace West Berlin?

Those are all potentially divisive issues in the Western camp. British Prime Minister Macmillan wants a summit parley badly. Some of the other Western powers is so eager.

Herter, curiously, seems to have resolutely closed his eyes to divergences among the Allies. He has repeatedly denied that they exist. But if the Russians, as expected, put the heat on in the final round at Geneva he will be able to do this much longer.

Herter so far has not impressed Allies who have observed him at close range as a bold imaginative thinker given to upsetting precedents or conventions. A man more unlike Dulles could hardly have been found to succeed him.

The difference between them may be summed up in this comparison: Even as head of the huge state department Dulles always operated as a lone wolf; even his closest associates were seldom sure they knew exactly what his plans were. Herter, however, is an organization man from start to finish; he functions best as a moderator or chairman of committee; he leans heavily on his staff.

Herter's modesty and gentleness have raised questions about whether he could get tough with the Russians—and if necessary with the Allies. Based on his six weeks at the Geneva conference the answer is: He can get tough with the Russians but he has shown a tendency to take a strong lead in the Western coalition.

GROMYKO RAISES NEW TALKS BARRIER

95 Convicts Hole Up With Two Hostages In Mine

Have Enough Explosives To Blow up Mountain

PETROS, Tenn. (AP)—Rebellious prisoners at Brushy Mountain state prison today released one of the three hostages they held about a mile underground in a coal mine.

Warden Hudson Llewellyn said Shirley Bunch, 62, was turned loose because he was ill. Bunch, one of the three foremen taken Monday as hostage, walked into the prison administration building shortly before mid-morning. He appeared to be all right.

"I don't know why they released me," Bunch said. "They just took a notion to do it because of my age, I guess."

92 CONVICTS INVOLVED

Llewellyn and assistant corrections commissioner Pat Patterson was talking to eight or 10 spokesmen for the 92 rebellious convicts still underground. 28 hours after they seized the hostages Monday.

Patterson appeared optimistic about the chances of ending the rebellion.

"I never say decide is come down at any time," Patterson said.

The convicts took over the mine at the start of the day shift Monday, after a brief three man armed foreman as hostages and sending the mine superintendent up as a messenger.

They threatened to dynamite the Lively mine shaft unless they were granted demands for more food and better working conditions.

HAVE DYNAMITE

One official said the men had explosives enough "to blow up the whole mountain." Possibly 200 sticks of dynamite were in the mine, but the convicts were known to have at least one weapon.

The three foremen who were being held 3,100 feet inside the mine reported to Patterson by telephone that they had not been harmed.

In explaining his decision to send the men food and water after three hours of fruitless negotiations with the convicts spokesmen, Patterson said:

"There were lots of things to consider, such as men's lives and property damage.

He recalled that after a sitdown strike at the same mine last September, the convicts set fire to the shaft before abandoning it.

'We'll Get Him' As Posse Closes On Escapee

BASHAW, Alta. (CP) — The magistrate who sentenced him on an early car-theft conviction was under guard.

The family of his cellmate was also under police protection.

Six farm families, not frightened, but uneasy, had moved into town.

These merely were precautions. Quietly, confidently, an RCMP official said: "We'll get him today."

There seemed no doubt that Robert Raymond Cook could not escape much longer. Hundreds of officers and 70 step gun-armed soldiers patrolling this central Alberta farming area.

Every road was blocked off. Police dogs prowled the thickly wooded fields. Two planes were in the hunt.

TRIANGULAR TRAP

Police felt certain that Cook was somewhere in a triangle bounded on the north by Red Deer Lake; on the east by the town of Penoka and on the southwest by the village of Bashaw.

Cook, 22, escaped from Penoka mental hospital last Friday night. He was sent there June 29 for observation after being charged with the murder in Stettler of his father, Raymond Cook, 53. A fatal slain in one of the most macabre killings in Alberta's history were young Cook's parents and the five Cook children.

Robert Cook, a record of car theft. He first was sentenced by Magistrate Fred Bigler in Stettler—and, local rumor had it, Cook had threatened to "get him."

GUARD TWO HOMES

A guard was placed on Magistrate's Bigg's home 50 miles south of here.

It was also rumored that, a relmate of Cook's in Prince Albert — since released and now working in northern Alberta—had beaten him up in penitentiary. His family never has been closely guarded by police also.

The families in an isolated farming district 10 miles north of this community of 800 left the area.

They were not afraid Cook would invade their homes, police as Bob Rutledge said: "I came into town for cigarets. The wife hasn't been able to sleep for the last couple of nights so we stayed."

HOUSE APPROVES BILL INCREASING FARMERS' LOANS

Standard Rate Of 5 Per Cent Set

OTTAWA (CP)—Moose working capital for Canadian farmers will be provided by legislation approved Monday night by the Commons.

Bigger long - term mortgage loans—at a standard five-per-cent interest rate—are set out in the bill to establish the Canadian Farm Credit Corporation, replacing the Canadian Farm Loan Board. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Supported generally by all parties, the legislation is envisaged as one means of getting more young farmers on their own farms by easing able to finance the purchase of family or other holdings.

The Commons sat an extra half hour to push through the measure.

5 P.C. INTEREST RATE

The farm mortgage loan legislation steps up maximum loans to $20,000 from $15,000. Agriculture Minister Harkness' announcement that the interest rate would be a flat five per cent brought house cheers.

Previously, it had been planned to set a rate covering government borrowing costs. Harkness said he had been persuaded to "equalize" the interest charge at a figure that would achieve the same result over a number of years.

Mortgages will be available on up to 75 per cent of a farm's value rather than the present 65 per cent. As for purchase loans, mortgages will be available up to $27,500 or 75 per cent of the appraised value of a farm for purchasers between the ages of 18 and 45 years and who have at least five years' farming experience.

One stipulation is that the farm must be economic and another is that the farm credit corporation experts will supervise operations where the mortgage loan exceeds 65 per cent of the farm's value.

Father Files Damage Suit For Son's Wound

MONTREAL (CP)—The father of a 19-year-old boy shot by a policeman during a riot is suing a $92,000 damage action against the city.

Joseph Marcoux says in the damage claim that his son Raymond was shot by Const. Louis Hains, 28, while the latter was employed a policeman not properly trained in the use of firearms and improperly instructed as to "his course of action under certain circumstances."

Principal item in the claim is $75,000 for permanent partial disability resulting from injuries to the boy's spine.

The claim said Raymond Marcoux was shot while evading arrest, and that a warning shot was fired before the shot which wounded him.

Toronto Doctor and Dentist Successfully Transfers Teeth

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto physician and dentist has claimed the first successful transfer of teeth from one person to another. It was learned here today.

Dr. Samuel W. Lesile, in a scientific paper to the International Congress on Plastic Surgery in Montreal, described two successful transplants to Harvey Eisen, 29, of Toronto and the doctor's son Peter Leslie, 24.

Eisen, the first patient, has a lower eye tooth transplanted from his sister Jill, 31, who had to lose the tooth for orthodontic treatment. The transplant took place 18 months ago and x-rays show a new root.

Eisen said in an interview: "It's like a real tooth I have. It feels a little funny at first . . . Now it is getting firm and I can bite on it and chew as hard as I like with it."

Queen, Philip Make Donation To Fishermen's Disaster Fund

FREDERICTON (CP)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have made a donation to the New Brunswick Fishermen's Disaster Fund, Lieutenant-Governor J. Leonard O'Brien announced today. Amount of the donation was not disclosed.

Rev. Paul Arsenault, parish priest of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., the home of many of the fishermen who died in the July 4 storm, told Fust knowing the Queen has given something will be a great help."

The donation is a departure from royal precedent. It is the first time the Queen has made such a donation in Canada.

15 LOST LIVES

Contributions to the fund will be used to aid families of 15 fishermen lost in the Northumberland Strait storm. The howling northeaster last swept down on the Escuminac salmon fishing fleet, left 32 widows and 63 children without means of support.

Fredericton publisher Michael Wardell, honorary secretary of the disaster fund, said today it now has risen to $173,000. This does not include the donation by Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh as it is not permissible to publish the amount of such donations."

The official of the fund said that it always has been the royal perogative that when royal gifts are made that they are "added to the total credit to "anonymous" donors.

The reason for this is that the Royal Family does not wish to be placed in a position where comparisons are made of past and future donations. However, the official said he understood the donation will be a substantial one."

A committee of the disaster fund already has made initial monthly payments of $50 for each widow and $10 for each child.

The committee is investigating needs of the stricken families and payments will be reviewed next month.

Rev. L. L. Pepperdine, Anglican minister at Chatham, N.B., and a committee member said, "It will still take a very great deal of work to prevent hardship for any length of time. There are many here people we've had no requests for aid. In fact, some don't want to even though they need it."

Premier Fleming, out of the province on vacation, sent a personal message thanking the Queen.

The Queen will meet the widows July 29, at Point du Chene, N.B., when she boards the yacht Britannia for Charlottetown. Many children also will be present.

Hoffa Denies He Attempted To Get Control of Monitors

WASHINGTON (AP)—Teamster boss President James R. Hoffa denied today he was behind a reported move to seize control of a board which has appointed a top federal court to clean up the union.

The first overtures for such a scheme, the New York Daily Mirror reported, were made by Joseph Ryan, the New York Longshoremen's president who testified Monday that attempts were made to pack the board with friendly members.

Crum told the committee that Ryan suggested at a meeting in a scheme to replace Godfrey P. Schmidt as one of the three court-appointed monitors.

The approach, Crum testified, was made through Teamsters Union President Harry Bridges, another of Bridges' fellow Louis Goldblatt. Crum added that Hoffa was behind the scheme.

But the late stand taken by Hoffa denied he approved the plan and said Crum was acting on his own times to the union's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams. Williams also said he was opposed to any such scheme.

Hoffa said that last October Crum told him he would like to resign from the board. Hoffa said he told Crum "we have a constitution and I won't go outside it." Asked by government counsel Robert F. Kennedy if he ever discussed it in the Ryan negotiation, Hoffa denied having such a discussion.

Many conflict in the stories told by Monday's witnesses caused Chairman John L. McClellan to order a transcript sent to the justice department, to U.S. District Judge F. Dickenson Letts here, who had assigned the monitors their cleanup mission, and to the monitors themselves.

Monday's sensation testimony revolved about alleged efforts by Hoffa to force Schmidt, a New York lawyer, to resign. Schmidt did resign from the board of monitors.

Schmidt has charged a series of attempted bribes were involved in an effort to replace him. He said the object of the plan was to get Hoffa's friend Ryan, whom he would vote as Hoffa wanted in the same office.

Schmidt eventually resigned and Lawrence T. Smith, 36, was named to the board. Schmidt told reporters he will seek the post of union president James R. Hoffa.

Smith formerly was associated with Schmidt's law firm in New York, but said he had severed all connection with it before taking the oath as a monitor.

The monitor, Smith, as did Schmidt, represents teamsters who brought a suit to prevent the 1957 election of Hoffa as union president.

The suit was compromised in January, 1958. Under the settlement, Hoffa was allowed to take office as union president, and a board of monitors, responsible to the court, was set up to watch over his activities.

Martin F. O'Donoghue is also a member of the board as an industry member. The third member is Daniel A. Maher, Washington lawyer, who represents the union.

Courageous Buck After Fourth Trip to Space

MOSCOW (AP) — Courageous, the white space dog, was born the fourth time Monday, Pearl, were reported frisky and silent today after a round trip to the outer atmosphere.

The Communist party organ Pravda said the dogs were returned to their names and reported with action after falling from the covered from the cone of a Soviet-ponted rocket that hurled them July 9 and parachuted them back to earth.

The paper, Dr. Leslie said the work is a pilot project and further studies in tissue and blood tests on the two patients are needed.

A former president of the College of General Practice of Canada, he said there is no relationship between his tooth transplant technique and that employed in skin grafting.

His technique uses the sac which surrounds the tooth during its growth.

Dr. Leslie said he sews the sac around the transplanted tooth and believes it is this attachment which helps the transplant "take."

Khrushchev Pays Friendship Visit to Poland

WARSAW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev arrived by air today for a 10-day "friendship" visit to Poland.

The Soviet premier headed a delegation of party, government and Communist party officials.

The visit coincides with the 15th anniversary of the establishment of the Polish People's Republic.

Polish Community party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka said in a welcoming speech that Poland wants a peaceful settlement with Germany in which both East and West Germany should participate.

Gomulka added: "The brotherly cooperation with the Soviet Union is one of the sources of our freedom and a secure basis of our independence. It is paramount, from our point of view, to the security of our frontiers."

Khrushchev said in reply that "Our peoples are bound together by the common cause of building socialism and communism, the building of a better and peaceful future for everybody."

'DAMNABLE LIE' TERM USED BY DEPUTY REEVE

Denies He Invited Bribes at Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — The terms "damnable lie" and "damnable lie" rang repeatedly through a crowded inquiry room Monday as the second of two York Township deputy reeves denied allegations he had invited bribes.

Deputy Reeve Fred Howard used the terms while witness at the Toronto real estate dealer Arthur Porter was read during an inquiry into the township's land and financial dealings.

Mr. Porter had accused the deputy reeve of demanding $750 to facilitate a building permit for builder Jan Rodin, a client of Mr. Porter's.

A similar allegation concerning bribe money made by Mr. Porter against Deputy Reeve William Allen was denied by Mr. Graham in testimony Friday.

"BLACK-HEARTED LIAR"

Mr. Howard, a deputy reeve since 1955 and a council member since 1952, said Mr. Porter was "nothing but an unscrupulous black-hearted liar."

The deputy reeve said he first knew of Mr. Porter's interest in the building permit under questioning by Rodin's lawyer. He came to him and said he had a buyer for some property but would be unable to accept it because of a deal.

Mr. Howard said he introduced the matter at council Oct. 9, 1956, and a permit was approved provided the plans met works department approval. The works department reported the plans contravened two bylaws and he voted against the permit when it came up in council again, he said.

After this, he said, Mr. Porter came to his house and said he was in trouble because he had advised the property owner to buy another piece of property and the money he was getting from the sale of the first property to Mr. Rodin.

OFFERED HALF

"Mr. Porter offered me half the commission and I turned him down," said Mr. Howard.

"He cried and cried with tears running down his cheeks," said Mr. Howard, and told of an 80-year-old woman who was going to lose her life savings if the deal didn't go through.

"I thought the human element" involved, said the deputy reeve, and recommended the request for the permit and it was passed by council.

Demand Germans Attend Secret Meets Assailed

But Conciliatory Line Noted in Red's Address

GENEVA (AP) — The Western ministers accused Andrei A. Gromyko today of obstructionist tactics with his demand that German representatives be included in secret Big Four talks. They said he was throwing down negotiations for a Berlin agreement.

The foreign ministers of Britain, the United States, France and West Germany met this morning at State Secretary Christian Herter's headquarters on the Western side "in preparation for the conference", a U.S. spokesman announced.

Their chief immediate problem is what to do about Gromyko's unexpected bid late Monday to win new Western recognition for East Germany.

NO ACTION TAKEN YET

Andrew H. Berding, assistant U.S. secretary of state, said "no initiative has yet been taken by the West on that subject." He added that the Western foreign ministers has made an effort to get the Soviet foreign ministers to talk about Germany.

U.S. officials said the problem will be solved by dropping secret talks at even loosely organized gatherings. Instead there would be a series of dinners, luncheons or teas that would bring the four foreign ministers together without German advisers present.

Whether that would be agreeable to Gromyko was not certain.

As a result of the procedural dispute, a secret session Herter proposed for today was not scheduled. There is no indication when the ministers will get down to bargaining on the Berlin issue. A semi-public session was called for Wednesday.

WON'T GRANT STATUS

American officials said they have decided not to give East Communist East Germans any mese status. Britain, the United States, France and West Germany do not recognize the East German regime as a legitimate government. The West agreed at a meeting in Paris to let both East Germans sit at plenary sessions as advisers, but that was all.

Soviet officials said they are sure Gromyko will back down from his new demands rather than tie up the conference more than 24 of 48 hours. American officials were less sure.

Despite Gromyko's procedural obstructionism, he proposed that an interim Berlin agreement and a summit meeting was sent to the Soviet Union's speech Monday.

PREPARE AGREEMENT

"If the Soviet government had only in mind unilateral actions with regard to the West Berlin," Gromyko said, "then it could resort to them now. However, we have in mind to put propose jointly to work out a temporary status for West Berlin. We prefer to solve the question on an agreed basis."

The Western ministers were reported deeply interested in this conciliatory line. But Western officials said Gromyko's proposal still fell short.

R. L. Dunsmore May Become CBC Chairman

OTTAWA (CP) — Recent, but temporary, changes in top CBC jobs may become part of a permanent shuffle in the next few weeks, it was reported Monday.

The changes would not involve new personalities at the top of the CBC, only a redistribution of what to do about Gromyko's unexpected bid late Monday to win new Western recognition for East Germany.

Four Airmen Hijack Plane, Land in Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Four airmen hijacked an ammunition plane and flew it here Monday with 17 persons aboard Monday and forced the pilot to land them at Miami.

The aircraft was held for a hearing after they claimed political asylum in the name of Castro's revolutionary government.

Immigration officials said they also Baldrich Gonzales, Ezequiel Pauia Vlamontes, Silvio Aquila Gonzales and Honorio Hernandez Perasa, all members of the Cuban Air Force.

The hijackers used pistols to enforce their demands for a flight to Miami.

Charles Ahrens, chief immigration director, said the four told him they were fleeing Castro's dictatorship because they were opposed to communism.

The four-engined C-47 was delivering a load of ammunition from Havana to Camaguey in central Cuba when the four airmen took over.

In recent months a growing number of fugitives from Cuba under Castro have trickled into Florida, most of them stealing across the Florida straits in small motor boats.

Despite Trouble Club Members Get Silverware

Six members of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club participated at the sports car races held at Connor Circuit, near St. Eugene, Ontario, this past weekend. Success was split evenly between the members of the Scuderia Hysteria, the three members who got their cars operating properly all managed to acquire some of the silverware —the other three were plagued with mechanical difficulties.

The first day of practice saw a regrettable accident to the very successful Canada Class vehicle of Vic Yachuk. Due to the hard work of his pit crew during the interim between practice and the races the car was readied for competition, although the aluminum body appeared wrinkled in some places. The car consented and was able to "limp home" with two first in class and one a third overall award in the Formula Libre event.

Homer Trotter, a Scuderia member whose car suffered a serious crash in one of the earlier races at the Harewood Circuit this season, reappeared with a new Swedish Saab for this weekend's racing and placed second in class for sedans.

H. A. Lamont, who recently completed the construction of a sports car utilizing an Austin engine and a Devin fibreglass body, ran with some success in his class, picking up a third-in-class award. James McCaw, who was experiencing considerable difficulty with keeping head gaskets in his Alta-Minor sedan, managed to keep things together long enough to place fourth in his class trophy.

TROUBLE BESET MEMBERS

Troubles beset two other members of the Scuderia Hysteria. By and all, who recently acquired an Elva racing car, powered with a Coventry Climax engine, and the local club's most potential winner, found there to be improper mounting of the independent rear axle the car had to be returned for proper handling on the corners. It was noted that the (driver) Dier of Toronto, three straights was quite rapid however.

Dr. Richard Wall, the remaining competitor of the Scuderia Hysteria, could not prescribe a remedy for his Alta-Minor sedan illness in time for it to enter the lists. The next event which local sports car buffs will be entering is the Six-Hour Grand Prix of Endurance being held at Harewood Circuit near the end of the month. This is the first continuous six-hour endurance race to be held in Canada with a portion of it being run after sunset and should prove a most interesting experiment in the Canadian motorsport field.

Rotarians Hear Convention Story From Bill Hurst

Members of the Rotary Club of Belleville were treated to a very full and colorful description of Rotary International's fiftieth convention, held recently in New York City, by one of the club's delegates, vice-president Bill Hurst. The convention saw 15,483 Rotarians and guests from 72 countries in attendance.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in speaking to this assembly described the Rotary International as "advancing the highest ideals of mankind" and expressed his belief that Rotary could "do much to promote the cause of peace in the world." Other distinguished persons who addressed the Rotary convention included Pearl S. Buck, noted author, and Dag Hammarskjold, secretary of the United Nations.

Induction of the work to be performed by top-level Rotarians was given by Bill Hurst, who noted that retiring Rotary International president, Clifford Brandt, had travelled 90,000 miles to 31 countries in five continents in the course of Rotary business over the past year. The incoming president is Harold T. Thomas of Auckland, New Zealand, who attributes Rotary's success to its ideals of service, of friendship in vocational, club, and community service — being extended to the principle of similar bridges of friendship between Rotarians regardless of race, creed, colors, different creeds, and different cultures.

Mr. Hurst concluded on the note that the convention really was a success as indicated by the true meaning and scope of Rotary. International and when the Rotary Club of Madison Square Garden broke up one realized that "this year, 15,483 people left away to the east side, the west side, and all across the earth."

Ernie Gurnett introduced the club's "Man of the Week" for Feeling Fit Jr. "Harry" Moorman. Mr. Moorman was exceedingly active in organizing the annual minstrel shows which the local Rotary Club puts on, and is also active in music the "Man of the Week" was a member of the first Belleville Boy Scout Band organized in Canada.

Also active with the Belleville Band for eight years, Mr. Moorman managed the band when they won the first prize at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1946.

SHOULD ORGANIZE REVUE

Mr. Moorman responded to the club's honor by offering to organize a Rotary revue in honor of those men, who founded the Rotary Club of Belleville. Mr. Moorman suggested humorous incidents from the club's experiences which he has had in the music world.

Steve Tripp, who introduced the main guest of the day spoke briefly concerning the Merrywood Camp for Crippled Children. He noted that last year had been over 100 applications for the 72 vacancies at the regular camp and that perhaps the club members might take note that the camp could use help in the expansion of its facilities. He noted that daily 20th would be "Open House" for local Rotary members at the camp.

Art Francis introduced the club's guests and visiting Rotarian Wilbur Cressman, a former member of the local club, was honored as being the furthest travelled Rotarian present, who is in Hanover, Ontario. Birthdays were celebrated by Lee Smith and honorary members Joe Hills and Archie Cameron. In the absence of the latter two members, it was suggested that they be mailed and cakes presented to them. Rotarian Enos David volunteered to do this.

The meeting's singsong was led by Bill Gault with Ernie Burnham at the piano. Fred Wilson, club president, was chairman of the meeting and O. A. Pickston offered grace.

Painter Narrowly Escapes Serious Burns in Flash Fire

A young painter, Norm Morse, of R. R. 2, Odessa, narrowly escaped serious burns or possible death, when he was caught in the midst of a flash fire while painting the inside of a ventilation shaft on the new Federal Building project at the Station and Pinnacle Streets. The fire was noticed by Fire Chief Gerald Vance as he was driving west on Station Street at about 10 o'clock and he arrived at the scene just as workmen were tumbling out of the building to call the fire department.

Mr. Morse was about sixty feet from the nearest exit from the area in which he was working when the fire, presumed to have started by a static spark from his electric light extension in igniting paint fumes, erupted burning his working area into a tunnel of flames. The workman was able to get out of the tunnel before the heavy black smoke could overcome him. Taken to the Belleville General Hospital by the fire department's emergency truck, it was reported that Mr. Morse suffered a temporary collapse, apparently due to the smoke fumes, on the way.

About six other workmen who were working on the penthouse into which the shaft ran, were able to scramble to safety without too much difficulty although one man suffered a winded blow when he lost a shoe in the exodus.

The alarm, which had been alerted by Chief Vance, brought five pieces of equipment from Fire Halls One and Two. An inch hose which was used to cut two holes into the shaft, which were located in the open on the roof of the building, in order to get water to the fire. Extinguished in the shaft was completely scorched and the two-by-six plank that Morse was working on was burnt to a crisp. The fire did not spread to other parts of the ventilating system.

IN MEMORIAM

Bandmaster David Wardle, conducting The Salvation Army Band, on the Municipal steps, in the City of Kingston, on the occasion of the visit of the King and Queen in May, 1939.

Ford to Carry Current Model Into September

WINDSOR (CP)—All but one of Canada's four car manufacturers will begin winding up their 1959 model runs in July, Ward's automotive Reports said Monday.

The exception is Ford, whose Oakville assembly plant will operate on single shift production into August, a few weeks later than General Motors, in Oshawa, Chrysler Corporation in Windsor and Studebaker-Packard in Hamilton.

Ward's, a statistical publication, said tentative 1960 model start-up points are early September for Chrysler and Studebaker, mid-September for General Motors and late September for Ford.

Production of GM's small car, the Chevy II, is expected to reach full steam in November, after the Oshawa complex adds a second to its Oshawa assembly works.

According to Ward's, Canadian car output thus far in 1959 holds an impressive lead over last year. Auto makers turned out 199,953 units through the end of June, nearly 10 per cent more than in the first six months of 1958, 182,507).

Company breakdowns of cars produced through June of this year were: GM, 108,250; Ford 59,- 305; Chrysler 22,819; Studebaker 6,411.

This put GM four per cent ahead of last year (102,109), Ford 16 per cent (50,983), Chrysler five per cent (27,424), and S-P 121 per cent (1,1991).

Girls Charged With $18,250 Theft From Bank

CALGARY (CP) — Marina Landysheff, 30, and Anne Orchinell, 31, were charged Monday with stealing $18,250 from a downtown branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, where they were employed.

Police began looking for the women soon after it was discovered they did not return from a coffee break Friday. Later in the day, an empty money box was discovered.

Bank officials said the theft might have gone unnoticed until Monday had the box been closed. Police then learned the ladies had left Calgary for Edmonton by taxi. Miss Landysheff was arrested Saturday at Edmonton's municipal airport while trying to buy a ticket to Toronto.

Miss O'Donnell was arrested later in a downtown hotel.

Police said the money was recovered.

M. Harradence, counsel for Miss O'Donnell; asked Monday for a police commissioners investigation into methods used to question the women after they were returned to Calgary Sunday.

"I was mahandled by detectives in order that my client be held incommunicado and questioned behind closed doors," he said.

Ex-Wife Charges Boxer Assaulted Her With Auto

Everyone agrees on that. From there on, the stories differ.

Aragon's former wife, Georgia, says the prizefighter became angry when she refused to let him play visit with their three children. She said he got out of his sports car, knocked her down and then got back in the car and tried to run over her.

Mrs. Aragon, 30, signed a complaint charging her ex-husband assault with a deadl weapon—the car.

Aragon, 31, surrendered to police Monday sporting neck stitches and a torn shirt he said were mementos of the melee on the front lawn of his former wife's home.

Aragon, free on $1,000 bail, faces arraignment July 27.

Aragon's companion, Miss Barbara Sharp, said the welterweight's ex-wife was screaming when they drove up but that Aragon remained calm in the face of perfect gentleman.

Mrs. Aragon divorced the onetime welterweight contender last Jan. 5 on testimony that he beat her and once attacked her with a knife. She received custody of the children.

Furnaces Cool As Steel Strike Seems Certain

NEW YORK (AP)—The steel industry, saying it was sticking a finger in the dike against inflation, announced almost a total strike at midnight tonight.

Furnaces already were cooling and mill operations slowed down in anticipation of a walkout by more than 500,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America, which says the industry can afford to pay its men more money out of profits.

The 500 industry stuck firmly to its position that any wage and other concessions would be made voluntary and contrary to the national interest.

President Eisenhower for many months has been urging steel negotiators to be moderate. The steel industry said its position was built on the president's position.

David J. McDonald, president of the Steelworkers Union, said pyramiding industry profits could pay for substantial pay and other contract gains without increasing inflation.

In a hastily arranged Monday night, McDonald said the union was willing to settle for a package increase in pay and benefits worth 15 cents an hour in each year of a three-year contract.

Steelworkers now average $3.10 an hour and McDonald contained that his members are entitled to further substantial increases.

The union said the steel industry's total wage bill, despite concessions to individual workers, actually is lower now than it was in 1958 or 1957 even though production is higher—making unit costs lower.

AWARD FOR CNR

MONTREAL (CP)—The CNR announced Monday it has won one of 18 annual public safety activities awards presented by North American railways by the National Safety Council in the United States. The CNR won similar awards in 1954 and 1958.

FRENCH WITHOUT TEARS

We see from a Canadian Press write-up that the introduction of the teaching of French to students in the elementary schools (at the Grade Four level) of Greater Winnipeg has had an enthusiastic reception amongst both students and parents. Since 1956, when this program was started, it has been catching on with the various boards of education in that area and now the program appears to be hampered only by a lack of teachers with suitable background and experience with the language.

One school, which just got started with this program last year, sent out enquiries to its pupils' parents to find what the acceptance would be. Gratifyingly the result was almost 100 per cent in favor of the project as far as the parents were concerned.

We have felt for some time that the teaching of French in our public schools should be Dominion-wide. Let the students are at an age where they are best adapted to pick up the fundamentals of a "foreign" language according to psychological fact -- if French could ever be considered "foreign" to Canada.

Another reason for our support of this view is that French is recognized as an official language in Canada, together with English. It seems rather foolish then that it should be left off the curriculum of our elementary schools, especially in predominantly English-speaking areas where there is little or no chance of picking up a working knowledge of conversational French.

It has always made us feel embarrassed to encounter French-Canadian, especially in some out-of-the-way spot in Quebec where there is no English-speaking influence, and especially when the person concerned has seriously had little formal education, who can speak English, broken though it be, when we are unable to conduct even the most elementary conversation in a native tongue. Our French, to say the least, is fractured beyond any hope of recognition even though we did have a few years of it in high school.

Perhaps it might be an inferiority complex on our part, but we always feel that the person who can hold his own in conversation in both French and English languages to be a better Canadian than ourselves.

AVOIDING BOREDOM

"To avoid colds, avoid people," advises a physician. That," quips a contemporary, "is also a good way to avoid boredom."

What a revealing remark! Revealing not only with respect to the person who wrote it, but also by reason of the varied reception it will receive from those who read it.

There are, we suppose, those who find people boring. It is more difficult to suggest what kind of persons they are than to determine several kinds which they are not. They are not bores; for bores need people to exist. People to be interested in.

Introversy, though they might be interested in certain areas, their own. They might find things, especially the things of Nature, of absorbing interest, but this interest would be limited by reason of their failure to include one of Nature's most interesting phenomena, man.

Similarly, persons who do not find people boring say fall into one of several classes. They may like people in the mass, sensing the excitement which is an inherent part of a crowd, realizing that with so many individual wills assembled in such a small place, something unusual could happen at any moment. Such a person who likes people may prefer them one at a time, so that the individuality of each can be sampled, its opinions tested, his emotions explored.

But those persons who find the presence of people essential if boredom is to be avoided, like those who find only failure interesting, have their interest limited by reason of a failure to enlarge its scope. Absence of people is essential, occasionally, in order that one may not only consider the interesting possibilities of things, but of oneself and one's thoughts.

For most of us, though, avoiding people is not a good way to avoid boredom.

"I remember telling the Commonwealth Chief of Naval Staff at a conference two years ago that if there was an earthquake tomorrow in any part of the world the British Navy would be there within twenty-four hours, to help. Next day there was an earthquake in Chile. Minor: the day after, we had a ship there; and then I told them this of course they all thought I'd laid on the earthquake on purpose." -- Lord Mountbatten.

TIME TO MAKE FRIENDS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

You do not make a friend
When you're battling hard for fame,
For a friendless man you'll end;
Friends with money never came.

Many gather riches vast
In a cold, unfriendly way,
Too late you'll find at last
That from friends you've gone astray.

Now's the time to be a friend,
Not the day you reach success;
For the gold you have to spend
Will be all that you possess.

Friends are made from day to day,
Not next year, or later on;
When you need them down the way
You will find that they are gone.

Pearl Divers of Shima

By Basil Takeshita in UNESCO Feature

Not far from the Pacific coast, in the middle of the long island of Honshu, the Island of Japan's four main islands, stands the Ise Peninsula. It is one of the most ancient and probably the most beautiful Shintoist sanctuary in the country. It stands in the middle of a deep forest, a temple where Shinto, the faith hardly changed since it was built in the sixth century, still lives. It is the earthly home of the Sun goddess, our common ancestor, according to the belief of every Japanese wishes to make a pilgrimage to this sacred spot at least once in his lifetime.

About twenty miles south of the shrine, on the coast, stands a picturesque small town, Shima. Shima is famed in the same manner as the peninsula on which it is located. When you visit Shima at a summer resort, its winding streets are crowded with girls and women, all wearing white cotton tunics and straw sandals, their heads covered with a white cloth to protect them from the sun, and each of them is carrying a kind of big wooden pail. Down by the beach, you see them in groups bathing or resting on the black rocks. And in the distance, dozens of tiny figures are seen diving and floating, disappearing and reappearing again like white buoyant corpses against the background of the blue sea.

These female nymphs' are the famous divers of Shima. The whole town lives by their work which can be traced back almost as far in history as the shrine of Ise itself. In the fourth century, according to the legend, the keeper of the shrine, Princess Yamato, saw the divers at work and ordered them to bring a part of their harvest to the Sun goddess. Since then the setting and the nature of the work has scarcely changed.

There are two sorts of divers -- the kachido, or 'strollers', and the funado, or 'boat people'. The latter work from a boat. The first work near the coast, in groups of three to five, diving into the sea from the rocks to depths up to thirty feet. Each of them carries a wooden pail which she fills with shellfish and seaweed.

The second group, the funado, operate from boats and, consequently, go much further afield. They generally work on their own, with the help of a male assistant -- often their husband or a brother -- who remains in the boat to attend to the rope attached to the diver. With the aid of weights, the girl divers reach fantastic depths under water, sometimes deep as 120 feet. At such depths they can only remain a few seconds under water. Directly they feel their strength is leaving them, they tug on the rope and their companion in the boat quickly hauls them to the surface. There, they divers rests for a moment, breathing deeply. Then she is soon off again down into the silent world of the ocean deep. This work goes on all day long during the summer season.

But it is not all work and no play for the girl divers of Shima. The first day of the sixth month according to the old lunar calendar (which is still used quite often in the Japanese countryside) all the divers gather on the shore in front of the shrine of Kinoijima, patron of the town, to offer up fish and shellfish to the divinity. Then they return to the sea, splashing water at each other. This is the start of a month of fun, when freed from the daily worries they swim and dive not for work but for joy.

Since the end of the last century, the girl divers of Shima have acquired international fame. It was in October, 1893, that the first attempt was made to produce cultured pearls by inserting with tremendous success. It takes from seven to five years to obtain good cultured pearls, and the divers are involved in all stages of the operation. It is they who fetch the young oysters from the bottom of the sea. The shells are pried open and a tiny grain of sand -- the nucleus around which the pearl forms -- is inserted in each oyster. The divers return the oysters to the sea bed. Within a few years the miracle is accomplished and out of the sea the divers bring up from the ocean floor, for the second time contains a pearl.

Today Shima Bay is one of the chief centres of this new industry which plays an important part in the economy of the town. But the girl divers still continue to gather their shellfish from the sea. Japan, modern ways or no, go hand in hand with tradition.

Just One of Those Days

Brockville Recorder and Times

Last week we had "one of those days"; one of those days which happen to all of us at one time or another. A brief itinerary of the "highlights" of the day follows:

1. Upon awakening received severe shock from portable radio.

2. Cut face in three places while shaving.

3. Tripped over sleeping dog in living room and barked shins on coffee table.

4. Duly proceeded to breakfast and was greeted by two extremely hard "soft" boiled eggs.

5. On way to office on Number One Highway narrowly avoided two head-on collisions with adults in motorized vehicles.

6. At office found that personal morning newspaper had been commandeered by office boy for his own use.

7. Had telephone call from irate man threatening suit if name used in newspaper.

8. Had telephone call from irate woman threatening cancellation of subscription if name not used in newspaper.

9. Informed that carefully prepared editorial copy for following day had been lost by office boy (same one who had morning newspaper).

10. Went out to lunch and was served hot tea-tea in restaurant.

11. Returned to office to find larger pile of bills in afternoon mail. Daughter gone on berserk buying spree.

12. Sat down to begin afternoon's work and ripped seat of pants on loose nail in office chair.

13. Following working day repaired to golf course for slight respite and was met by thunderous downpour of rain.

14. Attempted to get home via Number One and almost collided with automobile in front of boarding teen-aged sport car artist.

15. Arrived home and found new piece of mail from township official. Message in bold type: "Your Dog Tax is overdue."

17. Contemplated suicide but decided against same. Too tired.

TV Does Not See, Tell All

Montreal Gazette

The free world has enjoyed some pretty lively debates, in the last few years, about introducing the public directly to parliaments at work.

The argument for televising proceedures is that the public has a right to see and hear what are debated, that if the public saw more of parliamentary affairs, it might become more conscious of its own responsibility and take more interest and a larger part in its own government.

The opposition declares that parliaments are not theatre stages, that legislators might consider it necessary to put on a performance rather than carry on the business of state, that much of parliament would be undermined, if not seriously damaged.

This latter attitude is given considerable support in the book "Joe McCarthy", Richard H. Rovere's book about the very remarkable man who terrified Wisconsin who, for four years, kept his name in headlines and his face on TV screens across the United States.

In this book the public saw a man in righteous rage who could not control himself in the folly of an investigation's procedure and walked out on it.

Richard Rovere, who was usually in the press section, also has a finding and he finds that the public saw more of parliamentary affairs, it might become more conscious of its own responsibility and take more interest and a larger part in its own government.

Strength for The Day

IT CAN BE CURED

Have you ever run into a series of circumstances which opened up to you the experience of hurt feelings? If you have, you may have been in some doubt as to whether you should laugh or become angry or weep. People with thin cuticle can cause more trouble in the world than typhoid carriers. There are some folks who have an absolutely perverse genius for creating families, offices, fraternities, sororities, and clubs almost because their presence hurts their. "Dear me, I am so sensitive. I am just crushed when people slight me or fail to take me into confidence, or pass me by, or fail to invite me to their party. Dear, dear."

Well, what can one do with people like that? There appears to be no remedy which will make them grow thicker skins. Some of us who have rhinoceros hides use our pallisades with such people. And yet, should we? They may need our friendship and its convenience, but when one realizes how much such people suffer because of their continuous and selfish folly, then indeed they are much more to be pitied than condemned.

The only relief for this sinned people is for them to grow a new skin to mesh their thin skin of unselfish kindness and consideration for others. Not even the balm of Gilead will heal their thin skin or make it any thicker. But a little unselfishness will heal their hurt and give glorious relief to emotions.

The only thing that will get us out of our feelings is a heart that grows bigger every year and a mind that grows broader.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C.

The original name of this city, lying a few miles east of Vancouver, was Queensborough. One hundred years ago it was renamed by Queen Victoria as "New Westminster" although local history fails to indicate the reason for choosing this particular name to honor the sovereign.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The letter T is quietly retiring from the English language in favor of the letter D. It is far too hard, brittle, uncompromising a sound to suit this luxurious era which is dedicated to comfort.

On both radio and TV, a widespread custom is to consider one of whose jobs is to sell an article or commodity should be cured, refers to it quite clearly as "ninety-eight cents."

He is not alone. Walk through a department store, and you will hear eight out of ten clerks say "a dollar ninety-eight." Or several times a day, you get the airline pilot on the singing commercial calling upon us to "live a bedder electricle-lee!".

Even some of our statesmen and civil servants, including a few of the words government and parliament, employing instead a queer blunted N sound, a kind of nasal grunt such as is to be heard on every local in the pronunciation of such place names as Hamilton, Boston, Montreal, Moncton. It goes Hamil'n, Bos'n, Mun'real, Mone'n, the apostrophe in each case being the nasal cluck of the tongue pressing up on the N.

In fact, as T grows in disfavor, N increases, so that quite frequently now we hear representatives of our southern neighbors in Congress as the "United Sta'es." But, there being too many T's there, they prefer to use America.

To Your Good Health

WRITING ABOUT HYPNOTISM IS LIKE TIGHT ROPE

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am interested in hypnotism for medical help and would like your opinion. -- L. R."

Here we go; and I'm walking a tight rope again. Hypnotism has had a great deal of publicity in the last two or three years. There's even an association which publishes its own magazine and not long ago it was browsing through a copy.

Frankly, I was rather pleased to notice that some of the articles in the magazine went to some pains to discuss the limitations of this technique, to point out that it can be useful with some people and totally without use to others, and to protest against the idea that there is any "magic" in it.

Hypnotism is a psychological or emotional, a psychiatric method of focusing a person's thoughts on a given subject, or in a given way, and then (once the person is in the accepting state) suggesting he can, or should, do something.

One of the old standbys of the hypnotic technique is to put a person on the stage to remain perfectly rigid, after which he is held with his shoulders on one chair and his feet on another.

He believes he can do it, so he does. Physically, the body is much that is supported as it perfectly able to do this if the mind is willing to relax totally and put it to it. But it is something we have no occasion to do, as a rule, so we don't realize we can do it.

There are any number of things we can do but we don't realize we can do. In wars (and in emergencies) we observe acts of great heroism. Under stress of fear, love, excitement or other emotional spur, we do things we didn't think we could.

INSPIRATIONAL LEADERS

Most of us, if we are lucky, have known (or have known about) the inspirational leaders -- parents, teachers, athletic coach or other leader who can bring people to the best performances, lead them to "play over their heads," or work more skillfully than they thought they could.

Generally speaking, these "inspirational leaders" not only have the gift for leadership, whatever that is or was, but are masters of the field in which they are doing the leading.

I doubt if there is any great difference, basically, between this "gift of leadership" and "hypnotism." Indeed, I should say that hypnotism is the ability to understand the basis of such inspired leadership and reduce it to a scientific matter.

But it is still far beyond us, if it ever becomes "fully understood," whatever we take that phrase to mean, I don't think it will be in our time. The wonders of the human mind and emotions, the strengths and weaknesses, are too subtle and too complex.

I asked the head of the psychiatric division of an important hospital what his practical opinion was. His reply was, "I can truthfully say I do not know a single psychiatrist whom I consider first class in my city who uses hypnosis."

No tricks on a stage -- yes. For serious problems, I would resort to hypnosis only under the guidance of a trained psychiatrist.

I am in favor of a continued and serious study of hypnosis, but I certainly cannot urge my friends and readers to go dashing off in that direction. I do know it can help and I do know metabolism, undernutrition, and other.

Many Robins One-Legged

Fort William Times-Journal

One-legged robins must be no novelty to the people of Regina. The Humane Society there reports receiving so fewer than 40 single-legged robins so far this season.

Humane Society inspector Jack Studholme says the robins get to be very touchy about the loss of one of their nests -- their long spindly legs sometimes become entangled, break and have to be amputated.

That must be a real handicap when a robin gets hold of a big juicy worm, firmly imbedded in the ground and has to pull him out with only a single leg to balance on and use for purchase.

FILLING STATIONS

I am interested in the thousands of filling stations that edge the way of our great highways. I judge these stations as I travel in my car. There are little things that I learn from those eager to have my business. The idea also comes to me, of how everyone who stops at one of these filling stations leaves happy and reassured for the rest of his, or her, journey.

The filling Stations work like knowledge does when you fill up with it from one or many books. Books are mental filling Stations. They cannot fill you with gas in too many of these books. The tourist fills his automobile with gas and we who love books and scenery fill up with them, both stimulating our mind to active mentality.

We can learn something useful from anyone we meet, or about whom we read. Man is perhaps our greatest study. A dog analyzed. We are often bad imitators of intelligent animals. Theirs is the intelligence which we can call it instinct. Many of our well-known inventions got their idea originally from some of first Life's things that we learn about may well be the answer to many problems, so keep filling that mind of yours.

Make of your mind a filling Station for others to use. Knowledge will never run out, or disappear. You will be happier and healthier by gathering new knowledge every day of your life. It's one way to conserve your youth, perpetual youth. Benjamin Burritt learned 40 languages while he worked at the forge. They called him "The Learned Blacksmith."

Peddlers Selling 'Bad Batch' of Heroin -- Witness

TORONTO (CP) — A self-admitted prostitute and drug addict told an inquiry Monday that dope peddlers in Toronto are selling a "bad batch" of heroin.

The 23-year-old blonde told the Metropolitan Toronto Licensing Commission that "there is something in it now that makes all the girls break out."

She said she had been off the dope for four of five weeks because it was causing abscesses.

The testimony came at the fourth day of a commission inquiry into vice in midtown Toronto.

The commission is considering revoking the licences of two restaurants and is hearing evidence on the type of customers frequenting them.

Photographers were requested not to take pictures of the girls because police said revenge attacks might follow.

SICK STAY RICH

A 28 - year - old self-confessed drug addict criticized Monday the law of trafficking and specialists prisons for curing addiction as she said "you go in sick, you stay sick."

The woman told the commission that in Toronto addicts are information or "we talk drugs, drugs, drugs, all the time until we get out and start all over again."

She said she became a prostitute to pay for drugs and served as many as eight capsules a day.

Her criticisms met agreement from Metropolitan Toronto Chairman Allan Lamport, a member of the two-man board conducting the inquiry.

ARREST MAN

Police Monday night arrested a 27-year-old man who had served capsules of white powder in his possession and are holding him on suspicion of illegal possession of narcotics. Two others were arrested last week after the licensing commission announced a war on vice.

Another of the five women who testified yesterday said heroin could be obtained from contacts made inside Yonge Street restaurants in addition those in the area bounded by Jarvis, Dundas, Sherbourne and Gerrard streets. She said she knew several persons who sell drugs to addicts.

She said no one would squeal on the "pushers."

Fishing Vessel Runs Aground

HALIFAX (CP) — RCAF search and rescue headquarters today reported the 46-foot fishing vessel Zany has run aground at Cape George on Newfoundland's west coast and is being abandoned by her crew.

An air force spokesman said the plight of the 34-ton Nova Scotia built craft was first learned through a radio report relayed by the motor vessel Marie Yvonne to the Magdalen Islands. It was not immediately known if the Marie Yvonne was standing by.

The number of crew members the Zany carries was not available. The vessel is registered in St. John's, Nfld.

To Hand Over Boys to Ottawa Police at Border

OTTAWA (CP) — A pair of teen-agers wanted for a $73,264 bank theft will be handed over to Ottawa police at the United States border, the police department said today.

U.S. immigration authorities in Washington state Monday night will conduct the youths, Richard Boudreau and Gerald Leclerc, both 19, from San Diego to the Canadian-American border. The escort plan came at the time of transfer to Canadian authorities has not yet been finalized.

Earlier, Ottawa police had said they would send two men to California to bring the youths, who were arrested by an American border patrol Sunday when they tried to cross into Mexico by taxi. San Diego police said they found $71,390 in the suspects' luggage.

Boudreau, a teller at a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, was quoted as saying in a San Diego television interview that he had put the money in an empty suit box and walked out with it at closing time Friday. He gave $12,264 to a friend.

Bank officials, unaware of any theft until told that San Diego police had arrested the youths, suspicion of grand larceny, checked their vault Monday and found $73,264 missing.

Leclerc, an electrician's helper who has been employed for two years, is alleged to have been the driver of the car in which the two left Ottawa. Boudreau had told his parents that he was going camping with friends.

The car was ditched in Smiths Falls, 30 miles southwest of Ottawa. The boys said that then they hitch-hiked into New York state, paying one unidentified motorist $100 to smuggle them across the Canada-U.S. border in the trunk of his car.

They caught a plane for San Diego, and, after checking in at a fashionable hotel there, attempted to cross the border.

SAFELY ON THE GROUND — Spectators and emergency equipment mass around the big transatlantic jet airliner after the craft, with 112 aboard, was brought in a successful emergency landing at Idlewild Airport, New York, Sunday. The plane, landing gear damaged on takeoff for London, circled the airport for four hours while emergency crews spread a fire-quenching foam covering on a runway. (AP Wirephoto).

Joey Smallwood Rebuffs Federal Peace Overture

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Liberal Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, apparently unimpressed by peace overtures from Ottawa, stood fast today on his charges that the federal government is betraying his province.

Reacting to an announcement by federal Finance Minister Fleming that Newfoundland will get special consideration in federal-provincial relations, the fiery Mr. Smallwood said:

"I never thought I would live to see the day when the government of Canada would brutally violate the solemn constitutional contract without which none of us would have signed the terms of Confederation.

"It is a sad day for all Newfoundlanders."

The premier announced the legislature will be called back in emergency session, probably early next week, to consider Term 29 of the province's Confederation agreements with Canada.

The House finished its business eight days ago but adjourned instead of proroguing to prepare for an eventuality of "unfavorable legislation" from Ottawa.

WANTS MP's TO RESIGN

Mr. Smallwood called on the province's two Conservative members in the House of Commons, W. J. Browne, minister without portfolio who represents St. John's West, and J. A. McGrath, member for St. John's East, to resign and return to Newfoundland, "in whose betrayal they are participating."

Mr. Fleming introduced a bill in the Commons Monday authorizing special Confederation payments totalling $36,500,000 up to 1962. He said the province's financial situation will be studied further at the end of that period.

Mr. Smallwood, in an interview the legislation intends to do exactly what it says. "The special rights created for Newfoundland, in Term 29, if Mr. Diefenbaker gets his way, will come to an end that year (in 1962)."

Saw Defendant Leaving Area Say Witnesses

GODERICH (CP) — Preliminary hearing of a murder charge against Steven Truscott, 14, of Clinton RCAF station continues today. A defence motion for adjournment was denied Monday by Huron County magistrate Dudley Holmes.

Defence counsel Frank Donnelly asked for the adjournment after H. John Funk, a biologist in the attorney-general's department, told the court his analysis of 12-year-old Lynne Harper's stomach contents would not be completed for another week.

HEAR 15 WITNESSES

The Crown called 15 witnesses Monday.

Dr. J. L. Penistan, provincial pathologist, established the time of death by means of a cursory examination of undigested food in the dead girl's stomach. He said she died about 7:30 p.m. two days before the autopsy.

Two witnesses testified they saw the defendant leaving the area of the RCAF station's public school with Lynne about 7 p.m. June 8.

Warren Heatherall, 12, said he saw Steven and Lynne head in the direction of the river and then saw Steven returning alone about 30 minutes later.

"As he got close to the field I called to him. I said 'What happened to Harper? Did you feed her to the fish?' He said no," Warren told the court.

TWICE QUESTIONED

Provincial constable H. D. Hobbs said he had questioned Steven twice. The second time the boy gave a license number of a car he had seen in the area after giving Lynne a ride on her bicycle to the intersection.

He said the car had been traced and the owner was able to prove he had been using his car in Toronto on the day of the murder.

Two doctors who examined the defendant the day after the girl's body was found said in their testimony they found Steven "disinterested, apathetic, and a little too co-operative."

7 Agreements With NATO Allies Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The joint congressional atomic energy committee in effect approved Monday seven agreements with U.S. NATO partners involving exchange of nuclear information or parts.

It did so by reporting unfavorably seven resolutions introduced in the House of Representatives disapproving the pacts. The agreements must lie before Congress 60 days before they become effective. They could be killed during that period by a vote of both branches.

The pacts with Britain and France become effective July 18, those with Canada, West Germany, the Netherlands and Turkey July 25, and the one with Greece July 28.

Several organizations urged the committee in public hearings to disapprove the agreement, arguing they would spread the danger of world-wide nuclear war.

The state and defence departments defended them as essential to the security of the nation.

Under the agreement with Britain, the United States would transfer non-nuclear parts of nuclear weapons and weapons systems, and uranium-235 to that country.

France would receive uranium fuel for use in a land-based prototype of a French-designed nuclear submarine reactor.

The other five agreements would permit the United States to transfer non-nuclear parts of weapons systems for use in training, and to furnish information for use in development of defence plans and for training personnel in employment of the defence against atomic weapons.

WEDDINGS

THOMPSON — McQUAID

Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, formed a lovely setting on Saturday, July 11, at 3.00 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when the pastor, the Reverend Harry M. Davis, assisted by the Reverend A. M. Lavery, Padre of Queen's University, Kingston, united in marriage, Linda Ann McQuaid, of Guelph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo McQuaid of Belleville, to Edward Norman Thompson, of Guelph, son of Mr. Stanley Thompson, and the late Mrs. Thompson. Pink, yellow and white gladioli, mingled with white poms adorned the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Helen Cook, in her rendition of the "Wedding Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her waist-length bridal gown of pure white silk organzas, appliqued with Alencon lace. The bateau neckline and short sleeves featured a boat neckline and short sleeves. She wore an imported French style bandeau of wired illusion net petals trimmed with seed and teardrop pearls, with triple-tiered veil of illusion net in shoulder length, and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis, mingled with pink garnets and trailing ivy.

Miss Suzanne Young, Guelph, was maid of honor, and Miss Phyllis Wolfond, also of Guelph, was bridesmaid. The maid of honor and the bridesmaid were charmingly gowned in pink and white pure silk in sheath style, accented by three-quarter length organza overskirts, fitted bodices having large white organdy collars, and short, full skirts. They wore matching headdresses of entwined net and pink velvet, and carried Colonial bouquets of pink carnations surrounded by white Pinocchio poms.

The little flower girl, Miss Alice McQuaid of Belleville, sister of the bride, wore a full-skirted frock in pink organdy with floral headdress, and carried a basket of pink sweetpeas and white poms with white bows and streamers.

Mr. John Rennie of Guelph, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Don Plumley and Mr. Kent Plumley, of Cornwall, were the ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride, which was adorned with roses for the occasion. The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by an all-white, three-tier wedding cake, flanked by tall pink candles in crystal holders. The bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a white brocaded silk sheath gown with a seed pearl studded midriff; lime green accessories, and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in a brown linen ensemble trimmed with white with white accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

For the wedding trip to Pennsylvania, the bride travelled in a white blue linen sheath with matching duster, in three-quarter length, with white accessories, and corsage of white gardenias. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside at 311-5 Erb Street, Waterloo, Ontario.

Guests were present from Guelph, Oakville, Toronto, Montreal, Sarnia, Kingston, Bloomfield, Picton and Clarkson.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at showers, with Miss Suzanne Young and Miss Phyllis Wolfond as hostesses.

Women in Alaska, the 49th state of the United States, have had the vote since its establishment as a U.S. territory in 1912.

RING — MUIRHEAD

KINNAIRD — Kinnaird United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding when the Rev. T. M. Karpoff united in marriage, Donna Lorraine Muirhead, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Muirhead of Kinnaird and Lorne Franklin Sine, son of Mrs. Lee Sine and the late Mr. Sine of Bellleville, Ont.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her wedding gown, in traditional white, was of floor length net over wide hoops with a three-tiered net skirt with lace uniting the points on each tier. The dress featured short sleeves and a Sweetheart neckline edged with lace. She wore an iridescent head crown with illusion veil falling in soft folds to the waist, elbow length mittens and carried a bouquet of red carnations in small gold circle pendant centered by a single pearl, the gift of the bridegroom, completed her ensemble.

Matron of honor, Mrs. W. Anderson, wife of Dr. W. Anderson of Trail was in a cocktail-length gown of pale yellow taffeta styled in princess lines, with sash of fine ribbon falling gracefully from the low cut back line. She wore a velvet and net head bandeau of white, short white gloves and carried a nosegay of small white chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Koefoed of Penticton, and Miss Dale Ferguson, cousin of the bride, from Trail. Their gowns were similar to the matron of honor's, one being in turquoise and the other in pale, yellow. They both carried nosegays of small 'mums. The attendants all wore white necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride.

Miss Joan Rourke, of Kinnaird, was flower girl. She wore a short dress of soft pale pink brocaded nylon with a full gathered skirt and short puffed sleeves and a little pink and white bonnet on the side of her chin with a wide pink bow. She also wore a pendant of a silver heart, a gift of the bride, and carried a nosegay of white 'mums.

Mr. David Betts of Penticton, was best man and ushers were Messrs. Keith Muirhead, brother of the bride, and Lorne Grummett of Brilliant.

Mrs. J. E. Wallace of Castlegar, played the organ.

The bride's mother wore a pale mint green sheath trimmed with matching guipure lace, white hat, gloves and shoes and a corsage of white carnations.

The reception was held at the Kinnaird Improvement Society hall where the guests were received by the parents of the bride and the groom, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Ferguson of Vancouver. One hundred and thirty guests sat down to a turkey dinner served by the women of the Kinnaird Improvement Society.

A. Schiavon of Kinnaird acted as toast master and the toast to the bride was proposed by H. P. Patterson of Vancouver, uncle of the bride. The bridegroom replied and proposed the toast to the bridesmaids, to which Mr. Betts replied and read the telegrams.

A feature was a three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom set within a heart-shaped frame. It was decorated by Mrs. B. Ball.

For going away the bride changed into a mint green sheath dress, the bodice trimmed with white guipure lace. She wore a white tailored coat, green hat and gloves and white shoes.

After a honeymoon trip to Calgary and Banff, the couple will return to Vancouver where they will make their home.

Out-of-town guests were from Vancouver; Penticton; Trail; Nelson, and Procter.

Penal Reform Topic at Canniffon WMS

On Thursday afternoon Canniffon Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Doug Brenton, the president.

After a warm welcome was extended to visitors and members, the meeting was opened with prayer.

The business was conducted in the usual manner and a most informative letter read from Miss Constance Wager, concerning the mission field in Trinidad. She especially wished to thank the group for sending unused Sunday School papers which is the only source of supply they have and asked that the WMS would continue to remember the work in this respect.

Another letter, read from Beulah Bourne, of Severance, Korea, informed the society of the progress made in a mission-ary hospital should help each member to realize just how much is accomplished by missions, both at home and abroad.

Mrs. Fred Furmidge was appointed stewardship secretary, formerly held by Mrs. McCrea.

Mrs. Furmidge favored with a solo.

The Scripture, taken from the 103rd Psalm was read by Mrs. W. Brenton.

PROGRAM

The program for the afternoon was on "Penal Reform," a subject, not discussed or dealt on too often. It is felt the lack of concern among church groups could be the limited knowledge most possess on this subject. The need for reform is great. Until recently we have been satisfied to punish the offenders only, but not to reform them. The cost of probation is far less and eighty per cent more effective. Women prisoners are more difficult to reform than men due to the fact most women offenders have little education, few skills or any training. Ex-prisoners and those on probation should be given a chance to earn an honest living. It is not surprising that people should turn to crime if they are refused jobs or fired when their record becomes known.

"Punishment alone is not enough, but plans now underway are expected to provide institutions to help reform and rehabilitate those who break the law."

After the meeting ended a bait-hour of fellowship followed.

Mother's Helper

FOR FATHER'S DAY, how about surprising that your children send a set of cards, each good for one particular service to be performed for him by the child who signs it? Ideas might be: "I'll bring your slippers," "I'll mow the lawn," "I'll fill your pipe," etc., according to the age of the youngsters, and their ability.

Baby-Doll Playsuit

By TRACY ADRIAN

If you are planning a holiday at the beach or in the country here's an outfit that is a real asset.

It is a charming playsuit of white-frosted gingham checks in red, black or blue. The sleeveless top hangs coolly away from the body and the slick Bermuda shorts rise high at the waist. A three-inch wide trim of scallop-edged, daisy embroidery decorates both pants and shirt.

Expect Men To Whistle at New Fashions

That was the consensus of 200 visiting fashion editors viewing the opening fall showings of the couture group of the New York Dress Institute. Sighs of relief and enthusiastic applause greeted the first collections, drawn by designers Jane Derby, Donald Brooks, Yves Saint-Laurent and Robert Knox.

The new clothes have waistlines in the middle, wider shoulders, easy fit and a choice of full or slim skirts.

Jane Derby's collection is notable for luxurious fabrics and feminine styling.

Brooks presented fashions in two moods—full - skirted, draped swirled, or military and precise.

The Dior New York collection, designed by Saint-Laurent, was most dramatic in the late - day and evening fashions, which looked wicked, French and exciting.

Knox, designer for the house of Ben Gershel, shows a feminine collection of basic suits and coats —the kind that will see a working girl smartly through any daytime occasion, and still-confidently through several sessions without looking dated.

Weekly Baths For Eskimo Kids Popular

EDMONTON (CP)—Friday has become bath night for Eskimo children in the Canwoodall Island community of Resolute Bay, 1,700 miles north of Winnipeg.

Mrs. Carl Baker initiated the idea when she and her teacher husband moved to Resolute Bay from Kingston, Ont. in September, 1958.

The couple are spending the summer here, where Mr. Baker is taking a linguistics course at the University of Alberta, before returning to the Arctic.

On arrival at the outpost, said Mrs. Baker, she found few of the Eskimo shack homes had provisions for bathing. So she decided the 20 school children should have weekly baths at her home.

TWO IN A TUB

Every Friday night they line up and are popped two at a time into Mrs. Baker's tub and shower.

The baths have been such a success that Eskimo children have come bearing notes from their parents inviting them to chores and requesting a bath for the kiddies.

Mrs. Baker makes her home in one end of a department of transport mess hall. The school occupies the other half.

She is the only white woman in the community, centred around RCAF and department of transport stations. Mail comes by plane every two weeks, an excellent service by Arctic standards, but food is brought in only once a year, by boat.

DIET MONOTONY

"After a while everything tastes the same," said Mrs. Baker, who must make up menus repeatedly from canned weiners, canned meatballs and canned steak.

Mrs. Baker found the Eskimo children have little variety in their diet. The only staple sent in for the lunch served at the school is oatmeal. Mrs. Baker often takes canned soup from her own food supply to give the children a treat.

Many surprises awaited the Bakers when they first arrived in Resolute. They found the Eskimos lived in electrically-wired frame shacks, not igloos. "I've yet to see an igloo," Mrs. Baker said.

The Eskimos have a number of material possessions she did not expect to find — record players, cameras and sewing machines are common to most households.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Roseknase

HONOR MUST BE PAID TO FIANCE'S DECEASED MOTHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On daughter is planning to be married in a few months. We would like your advice as to how to word the names of her fiance's parents; first, in the newspaper announcement of the engagement, and later in the formal invitations to the wedding.

The fiance's own mother passed away several years ago, and his father has since remarried. Would it be correct to say, for example, "son of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson"? Or would it be correct to say only "Mr. Peter Robinson," omitting "the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson" altogether?

Would it be correct, when we send to the newspapers the photograph to accompany the engagement announcement, to suggest the following information with the photograph: "Miss Carol Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Smith, is engaged to Mr. Peter Robinson, son of Mr. John Robinson and the late Mrs. Robinson"? Or should we present Mrs. Robinson, the stepmother, be offended? — M. J.

First, as to the engagement announcement: you have suggested it that his son's mother is the name of the fiance's parents . . . "son of Mr. John Robinson and the late Mrs. Robinson." . . . and the present Mrs. Robinson should have sense enough to know, and of course accept, the correct and customary form. (If necessary, the fiance's father should take over the responsibility of seeing to it that his son's mother is given the honor that was and is hers.)

The announcement you send to the newspapers with the photograph may correctly read: "Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Smith of (give address) announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Carol Smith, to Mr. Peter Robinson, son of Mr. John Robinson, of (address) and the late Mrs. Robinson." In the newspaper announcement of the marriage the same form should be used for the bridegroom's parents: "son of Mr. John Robinson and the late Mrs. Robinson."

As to the formal, engraved invitations to the wedding, correctly these are issued in the names of the parents of the bride, who are the hosts of the wedding. It is not correct to include the names of the bridegroom's parents.

SHOULD MATURE BRIDE BE GIVEN IN MARRIAGE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, in my late forties, soon to be married to a widower in his late fifties. We are to have a small, simple, informal wedding in the chapel of the church to which we both belong. In my first wedding, a large one, I was given away by my father as he came in marriage. Should I plan this same procedure at this second wedding? I'm inclined to think not. — G. L.

And I'm inclined to agree with you. Usually a mature bride is not given in marriage . . . but you may plan to have this procedure if you particularly wish to.

QUEST CRITICIZES KIND RELATIVE-HOSTESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were recently invited to a relative's house to dinner. She knows that I am on a salt-free diet, and at the dinner-table she handed me a plate already prepared with two slices of meat and two vegetables, telling me, "This is for you, Anne — without salt." I was made to feel very conspicuous by being served a special plate in front of the other guests at the table. Don't you really think that, under the circumstances, it would have been better for the hostess to have left all the food unsalted, letting each guest salt his or her own food to their individual taste? — Reader

What a particularly kind and considerate hostess she is! Her thoughtful relative, of yours, who had the problem to prepare your food as you must have it. A woman of such kindness could not possibly be a tactless fiend of embarrassing you. She simply neglected to inform you, received you, about the salt-free preparation of your foods. And she of course knew that her other guests, the majority, would relish the food cooked with salt, as they m-turally expected it to be.

You'd better be a good girl, a grateful guest, and refrain from criticism in your thoughts . . . or the chances are you'll be eating your salt-free foods only in your own home!

Beauty in Print

By VERA WINSTON

The brilliant tulip pattern of this dress is typical of the gay, colorful and beautifully handled garden of prints that grows for us this spring. The colors are subtle tones of orange and puce with accents of green. The wellcut bodice is all draped over a high bust-line. Dark green velvet ribbon with two bows defines an Empire waistline. The line, in general, is that of a sheath but not one that is rigidly shaped.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Laura S. — Mother resents our attention.

Mrs. M. L.—I don't want sympathy from anyone.

Laura S.—I am having a hard time understanding my mother's behavior.

She was recently widowed after a happy marriage of 30 years. My sister and I wanted her to come to stay with one of us, but she refused. I can understand her wanting to be independent, but I can't understand her avoiding us and other close relatives and friends.

We aren't trying to force my mother to be gay and social. We just want to be near her — at least as much as we were in the past. She seems to resent any ordinary attentions we give her.

* * *

Mrs. M. L. — One thing I don't want is people feeling sorry for me. I am not afraid of being alone. I have a part-time job and am looking for new interests. I can get along by myself.

I want to make a whole new circle of friends — widows like myself or other single women. I don't want people inviting me just to be kind.

I don't want any sympathy from even my own daughters. When they call me several times a day, to find out how I am, it only annoys me. When I visit them they make a production about driving me home. My husband and I always took the bus.

The Council: Mrs. M. L. appears to be overstraining in her attempt to be courageous.

Her fixed idea that everyone is acting purely out of sympathy for her is a little off the beam and is probably rooted in her own fear that she will be left alone and forgotten. Her family and friends are undoubtedly sympathetic, but it is more than likely that they are also fond of her company and want it just as much now that he is a widow as when she had her husband.

Widowhood represents a new phase of life to any individual, but that doesn't mean that there should be no carry-over from the past. It is possible to find new interests and friends gradually as one changes and as circumstances allow. The only kind of attention in life that calls for a complete break with the past is one in which an individual has been involved in an unhealthy, immoral setup.

Mrs. M. L. seems to feel that her position as a widow makes a social outcast of her. She wants to associate only with others in this outcast group, fearing to expose herself in the ordinary social stream.

We don't think the daughters should force too many attentions on their mother while she is not in the mood to accept them in the right spirit. But we think that Mrs. M. L. should also avoid forcing herself to do things that are beyond her emotional reach at the moment. If she consults her innermost feelings she will find she wants warm contact with her old friends and other relatives. This contact will strengthen her for the next steps — new friends and interests and a more independent life.

Maple Wilt Apt To Bypass Tree That Is Vigorous

Landscaping kept fit and in good growing vigor is likely to take the starch out of maple wilt, deadly tree enemy. The halest trees seemingly have the best immunity against this fungus scourge that infects sapwood.

This disease is not difficult to identify, says J. D. Riddle, general manager of the Davey Tree Expert Co. Sudden foliage "collapse" on one side of the tree is one of the earliest symptoms. This wilting frequently involves leaves of individual branches, usually one over another. Most significant sign, however, is a distinct green discoloration of the sapwood.

The disease organism, a soil-borne fungus, clogs up the water conducting tissues and pours toxins into the sap stream. There is considerable speculation about the spread of the disease. Authorities have been unable to track down the agents —insects or infected pruning tools.

One thing is fairly certain. Good tree practices not only help woody pets fight off the infection, but actually help recovery of evidently doomed maple wilt victims. Pruning diseased branches is necessary to contain the malady. Feeding is invariably recommended, as well. In many cases, recovery is almost phenomenal after the vitamins are made available. In others, feeding fails to stem the fungus tide.

Amateur tree docs doing their own surgery should carefully sterilize saws, pruners or bits in a standard disinfectant. Felled maple wilt victims should be replaced by other kinds of trees. The disease-producing organisms still may lurk in the ground to infect maple transplants.

Kozlov Acted Like Politican After Votes in U.S. Tour

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For the second time within seven months the United States has been "stumped" by a Russian first deputy premier acting for all the world like a politician after votes.

Frol Romanovich Kozlov, who left for Moscow today after a coast-to-coast tour, used the gimmicks of the politician but at the same time managed to hammer on the Communist line repeatedly and with force.

The man who is said to be second in power in the Kremlin only to Premier Khrushchev was full of boisterous greetings and beefy handshakes for merit-cans.

He signed hundreds of autographs with a show of pleasure and was a photographer's delight. He posted with beauty queens and in fatherly huys with small boys. He wore a six-shooter and waved a cowboy hat over his head in the traditional way.

'UKEWARM RESPONSE

But reports from across the country indicate that the public response to Kozlov — apart from curiosity — was apathetic. Somehow people just didn't believe the picture of the Kremlin bigwig as a good-natured tourist seeking friendship with everybody.

Kozlov was more cautious than Anastas Mikoyan, the other first deputy premier who visited the U.S. in January. He was more leery of reporters. But he also seemed determined to stage the kind of free-wheeling campaign that their shrillest boss, Khrushchev, would attempt if he came to the country.

Kozlov's official reason for his visit was to open a big trade exhibition at the New York Coliseum. The arrival was filled with pomp when he swept in for a landing at New York's Idlewild Airport aboard a huge TU-114 airliner after a record non - stop flight from Moscow.

During the 12-day tour, it was noted wryly from time to time, Mikoyan before him — repeatedly sought conversations with top capitalists while at the same time professing to be interested primarily in the workers and humble folk.

Kozlov was thus seen as a sort of super-salesman, seeking more U.S.-Russian trade in conversations with elite business and financial groups in New York, San Francisco, Detroit and Chicago.

Another purpose, of course, was to study the U.S. and its people. It is thought that he had considerably more success in this than in trade, particularly since he was following a line already explored by Mikoyan.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Don't look now, but the way things are shaping up in the Belleville District Softball League, there could be a dog-eat-dog rodent race before the loop crown adjusts itself to the noggin' of the winner.

We do not know if the wintry gentlemen of the top three clubs have been selling this Trenton club short, but the decisive shellacking handed to the Bobcats last Friday night would seem to indicate the guys from the town to the west could be a force to be reckoned with in the playoffs. They could toss a monkey wrench into somebody's championship aspirations.

The way the standing looks at present—and the upcoming battles, scheduled, and postponed, almost anything can happen.

It is not known if Bill Shaw and Phil Loft have been "dieting" the Ox Pointers on a menu of firecrackers and chili-con-carne, but for the past couple of weeks, the ex-mess crew has been busier than a Hades holiday with six straight victories to their credit.

And a word of warning to the rest. If this Ox Point "local" gets its clutches on that top rung, it will take something a little short of an earth tremor to shake 'em loose.

And the immediate past performance of their closest challengers, the Bobcats and Stones, indicate they will have to hike their softball britches and do something about it if they want to keep the Long-Shawmen off their top perch.

Chief Tabby Temple's bobbing Bobcats scabbarded their claws about five games ago, and withdrew them but once in a record of one win, three defeats and a tie. The Pointers closed the Dawn on Cobourg, laughed off the "Chatterbox" at Trenton, and whipped the lakeshoremen in their last two starts.

The Cats' hold on the top run is a precarious one at the moment. They tangle with third-place Cobourg tonight at the CNRA Park at 6:45 in a tussle which could have a direct bearing on the standing. A defeat for the Tabbies will piggy-back the idle Pointers plumb into the top spot, and create a second-place tie with Cobourg, a half-game behind the Shawmen.

And if you glance over the what's-to-come list, futurities do not favor the Cats to finish any better than third, unless they snap out of their slump and regain the form that kept them on top of the heap all season.

Actually the Bobcats blew their big chance to cling to the top spot when they skunked the league leaders from Trenton the other night. A victory then would have given them a full two-game margin over the Pointers instead of the half-game they now enjoy.

They needed that game, for upcoming in their final four games, not counting tonight, are two tussles with Cobourg and a pair with the Pointers. They couldn't pick anything tougher.

In any event it should be a tight race plumb down to the wire with the Pointers dashing with the Cats twice, Cobourg and Trenton. These games include the three postponed tilts. The Trenton squad finishes its schedule this week, meeting Point Anne at the Point Wednesday night, and guests of Cobourg on Thursday evening.

The playoffs bring together the first and fourth, and second and third squads in best-of-seven series.

There could be trouble here, especially if the Trenton squad shows that their clobbering of the Cats last Friday was no flash in the pan—and they are a chips-down team. They could make it reasonably tough for any of the "big three", which finishes atop the heap in the standing.

In any way you look at it, the other semi-finals bracket between the Point, Cobourg and Cats should be a knock-em-down, drag-'em-out affair.

As was mentioned before the Ox Pointers are hotter than a tin roof in July; the Cobourg Merchants, smarting from two straight defeats, are in no mood to trifle, and the Trenton Tabbies have been gridadating their claws for the stretch shead. That means tonight's tilt between the Cats and Cobourg should be a whizzer with no holds barred and civil take the kindness.

Boston Massacre Over; Braves Return To Warpath

Bosox Slaughter Champions In Fifth-Game 13-3 Frolic; Spahn, Mathews Zero Giants

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The San Francisco Giants' latest buildup in the battle for the National League pennant is a shambles, torn down once more by Milwaukee's three - man wrecking crew—Burdette, Spahn and Mathews.

Just two days ago, the Giants had a 1½-game hold on first place and Milwaukee was third, 3½ games back. Now the Braves are second, just .002 percentage points behind after a two-game sweep pui away by the pitching of Lew Burdette and Warren Spahn and Ed Mathews' slugging.

Mathews' home run and sacrifice fly, good for four runs batted in, backed Burdette for a 4-3 victory Sunday. And Monday night, Mathews two-run homer backed Spahn's six-hit pitching for a 5-0 decision over the Giants, although the Braves managed only four hits.

DODGERS SLIP

That leap-frogged the Braves over Los Angeles into second as the Dodgers slipped to third with a 13-5 defeat at Cincinnati in the only other National League game scheduled.

The Braves picked up three of their hits off Sam Jones (12-9), who had won four straight and three of the Giants' last four. Mathews, the National League's home run leader, bagged it with his 27th home run in the third inning after Jones had given up one of his three walks.

Mathews also scored the final Milwaukee run, on Frank Torre's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning after Eli Miller, Hank Aaron had two of Milwaukee's hits.

Spahn, now 11-9, gave up nothing but singles, walked none and struck out four. He was in trouble only in the fifth inning.

REDS SWEEP TWO

Frank Robinson twice powered the Reds into the lead with homers as Cincinnati pulled off a two-game sweep over the Dodgers. Gus Bell also homered for the Reds, and drove in four runs, as reliefer Brooks Lawrence (4-6) gained his first victory in two months.

After the Dodgers had tied the score with three runs in the third that chased starter Joe Nuxhall, Robinson socked a two-run homer for a 5-3 lead against Danny McDevitt in the third. Then he broke a 5-5 tie and handed the loss to Clem Labine (3-6) with his 22nd homer, a bases-empty shot in the fifth.

Lawrence, who had lost eight in a row since beating Milwaukee May 8, gave up six hits, walked two and struck out six in his 6 2-3 innings of relief.

Age Not Reason For Retirement Say Ted, Stan

NEW YORK (AP) — If Ted Williams and Stan Musial, two of the greatest hitters in baseball history, decide to retire at the end of the 1959 season, it will not be because they feel they no longer can hit big league pitching.

The two future hall of famers made it plain in recent interviews that they are far from washed up, as has been indicated in some quarters. Both acknowledge that age is creeping up on them but they feel, barring injury or illness, they can still hit at a respectable clip for several years.

The 40-year-old Williams relates his subsider to the theory of slowed reflexes, lost timing and inability to cope with the new crop of fine young pitchers in the American League.

BLAMES NECK TROUBLES

"Don't believe that bogwash," the Boston Red Sox star said. "It's not the pitchers at all who are responsible for my failure to hit. And it's not my age either. It's that neck of mine."

Handicapped by a neck condition which forced him to the sidelines for the first month of the season, Ted got off to the worst start of his career. He is hitting about .250.

Musial, 38-year-old outfielder with St. Louis Cardinals, laughs at reports that he is through as a top-flight hitter.

"Honestly, I feel better now than I have during the last three years. I can't explain my .320 batting mark, though. If I could, I'd probably be hitting 1.000."

"I think I can reach .300 before the end of the season."

Canada's Cliff Lumsden Wins Atlantic City Swim

By ANDREW MESZELS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)— A decisive burst of speed put Canada's Cliff Lumsden ahead of his arch rival, Tom Park, Monday and brought him victory in the sixth annual Atlantic City professional world distance swim.

Lumsden, of New Toronto, swam the 25 miles around Absecon Island in 10 hours, 54 minutes and five seconds to regain the crown he won in 1956.

For a time it appeared the 28-year-old Lumsden and Park, a 25-year-old Bellflower, Calif., ace from Hamilton, were going to repeat their 1956 performance, which saw it over Park that by only a stroke.

Their friendly opponents—Park stopped at one point to help Lumsden over a jetty — were neck-and-neck only a mile or so from the finish line at the Atlantic City Electric Marina (boat club).

Then Lumsden took off.

HINDERED BY CURRENT

For a split second, the 25-year-old Park was stymied by an unfavorable ocean current. Before he could recover, Lumsden had sprinted 110 yards ahead.

He swam up to the finish line to dozens of yachts moored at the marina let go with their foghorns and a band on the dock struck up O Canada.

The more than 1,000 spectators on the dock went wild when the bulking Canadian lifted himself out of the water.

Parks received an equally enthusiastic ovation when he emerged from the water a little more than six minutes after Lumsden.

Park made the distance in 11 hours and 15 seconds.

The pair have monopolized the swim since it was inaugurated five years ago. Park won in 1954, 1955 and last year, Lumsden finishing second each time.

HOW FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

The two opponents clasped hands at the end of the race and posed for pictures with their arms around each other.

Lumsden won a total of $5,300 in prize money for coming in first, while Park came away with a total of $1,800.

The third swimmer—and the first woman—to finish was former Danish champion Greta Andersen Sonnichsen, now of Long Beach, Calif. She collected $2,300 in prize money.

The swimmers left the water when the race was over, including Fred Higgins of Preston, Ont., and Phyllis Clarke of Kingston. Miss Clarke, 27, was pulled from the water in great pain after seven hours. Doctors at Atlantic City Hospital said she had apparently strained a muscle.

TO HAVE CHECKUP TODAY

The swimmer was released from the hospital after X-rays were taken and was to return for a checkup today.

The swimmers started their day-long ordeal at 9:32 a.m.

The 11 who finished swam through 15 miles of bay and inlet and 10 miles of choppy ocean in cloudy and sometimes rainy weather. The ocean temperature ranged from 70 to 72 degrees.

Lion Refuses To Leave Lair

DETROIT (AP) — Veteran tackle Bob Miller has thrown a block into Detroit Lions' plans to trade him to Philadelphia Eagles. He says he won't go and would rather retire than leave Detroit.

The Lions announced Monday that Miller had been traded to the Eagles in exchange for a future choice in the National Football League player draft.

Miller, 29, 6-2 and 250 pounds, said he has a good job in a Detroit firm. 3

Royals Climb, Whip Wings In Twin Bill

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The seventh-place memories of late May and June are a thing of the past for Montreal Royals and their supporters. A five-game winning streak and are in fourth place, three games away from the Intgernational League lead.

The Royals went about their climb in a very quiet manner, fitfally sounding a trumpet Monday night with 9-2 and 7-6 victories over the third - place Rochester Red Wings. The double win gave the Royals a 48-45 record for .516 percentage. On June 6 they were 20-26, a .432 average. In the past 30 days they have a 20-11, or .645 marx.

In other games, Buffalo completed its suspended Sunday rout of Toronto, 13-4, but lost the rescheduled game 7-6 in 11 innings. Columbus defeated Miami 3-2, and Richmond knocked over Havana 4-1.

ROMBERS BUSY

Sandy Amoros and Bob Bowman each socked a pair of home runs as the Royals banged out 25 hits. Amoros has whacked 12 of them runs in the Royals' splurge, and has batted in 26 in gaining a .317 average. The homers were No. 17 and 18 for Amoros while Lennon hit Nos. 12 and 20.

Lennon's second homer was the climaxer in the nightcap as Ed Rakow (9-7) bested Bob Keegan (10-3).

Bill Hunt (8-6) won the first game over Bob Miller (8-9). Billy Harrell hit his 11th homer for the Wings, Dick Stanilaus hit No. 5 in the nightcap for the losers.

TIM FOR TIM

Tim Thompson's eighth homer with one out in the last of the 11th, his second of the game, put Toronto's victory for newcomer Dick Hyndman (2-0) in relief. The Leafs tied it with three runs in the bottom of the ninth on Joe Amalfitano's two-run triple and Lary Raines' tie-making single. Max Surkont (1-4), lost in relief of Warren Hacker.

Tony Bartirome's single broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth for Columbus' victory, and also broke Jim Archer's five-game winning string. He is 8-5 for the season, after having had his runless streak of 31 innings broken in the fourth by the Jets. Dave Jiminez (4-2) was the winner.

Richmond scored three uncearned runs in the sixth inning to down Hal Woodeshick (8-6) a three-hit victory, Consecutive errors by first baseman Borrego Alvarez and catcher Hank Izquierdo with the bases loaded gave the Vees the unearned runs. Walt Craddock (7-5) lost.

Gets Big Tuna At Wedgeport

Frye landed the fish after a 1¼-hour battle.

Because of the apparent scarcity of tuna in the area, the Nova Scotia government decided to cancel this year's tournament.

Latta Defeats Foxboro 7-3

Latta built an early 7-0 lead and then cut short a last-stand rally by Foxboro to take a 7-3 victory in a South Hastings baseball league fixture at Foxboro.

Two runs in the first frame got Latta away to a fast start and they added four in the second and a final marker in the third. Foxboro came up with all their runs in the sixth and final frame but could not overcome the deficit.

Howard Meeks hurled the win although Lorne Cronkwright came on in the middle of the sixth to strike out the last Foxboro batter. Meeks gave up five hits, fanned six and walked one.

Morris Chumley started on the losing mound with Gerry Mann taking over in the third. They yielded nine hits. Lorne Chumley fanned six and walked four while Mann had three whiffs to his credit.

Wayne Gow and Frank Ray had three singles each to spark the Latta victors. Ray's kicked in a pair with one each for Bob Sullivan and Don Harris.

Brian Skinner had two of Foxboro's hits with one each for Glen Reynolds, Jerry Mann and Roy Belanger.

Smile When You Say, Podner Pirates Not Pennant-Bound

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates have a right to claim to having the most interesting team in major league baseball.

The fans, starving to talk pennant, have plenty of ammunition to back up their argument:

1. Roy Face, little right-handed relief pitcher, now has 19 consecutive victories without defeat—14 this season.

2. The Pirates have won 12 of 13 extra inning games in which they have participated. (Their only loss came after Harvey Haddix pitched 12 innings of perfect ball against Milwaukee).

3. Of their 46 victories 29 have been accomplished as the Pirates came from behind in the eighth inning or later. Twenty-one of the 46 wins have been by a one-run margin.

4. The fourth - place Bucs have won seven of their last eight games and are leading in a suspended game which will be completed next month.

Buoyed by domination with St. Louis Cardinals was typical. Relief specialist Face came in during the eighth inning with the Pirates ahead one run. He gave up a run and the game went into the 10th inning. Face then shut the scoring door and the Pirates rallied in the last of the 10th for a 5-5 victory.

In the second game the Pirates began to fight the 7 p.m. Sunday curfew. They took a 5-3 lead into the top of the ninth. Don Gross, who had relieved starter George Witt, gave up a homer to Gino Cimoli and a single to Stan Musial. Face came to the mound and struck out George Crowe. That's the point where the game will resume Aug. 13.

Jackie Jensen Is Sparking Revived Bosox

BOSTON (AP) — Jackie Jensen, hitting the ball at a .343 clip since Billy Jurges took over as Boston manager, has helped the revived Red Sox to five straight victories over New York Yankees.

That's not just me, the whole team is hot," Jensen said Monday. "It's contagious."

Ted Williams, riding one of the worst slumps of his long career, came to life about the time Jurges replaced Mike Higgins as the Red Sox manager July 4. Since then Williams has hit .476. Sammy White has hit .423 under Jurges and Don Buddin, who has only 2 runs batted in for the season, has 10 of them in the last nine games.

In nine games under Jurges, Jensen has 19 hits in 54 times at bat, scored 12 times and driven in 18 runs.

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP)—The coach of the world's best free-style swimmer said Monday that Jon Konrads of Australia is probably headed for an Ameican university — but not until after the 1960 Olympics.

Konrads set seven world records in freestyle swimming last year. He holds the marks for 200 yards, 400 metres, 800 metres, 500 yards, 1,500 metres and 1,650 yards.

Coach Don Talbert, here to study Konrads' swimming styles, said, "I plan to visit several American universities and compile some information that will help Jon make a choice."

District Soccer Leagues Results

Northern Electric took a four-point victory over Belleville Wilson's by a score of 4-1 Saturday in an Eastern Ontario Soccer League match played at the Fair grounds here.

Woodling Eyes Batting Lead; Hank Still Tops

NEW YORK (AP) — A .563 performance since the All-Star game that has enabled him to boost his batting average has enabled Gene Woodling of Baltimore into the thick of the American League batting race.

The veteran outfielder collected nine hits in 16 tries and lifted his average from .315 to .331 including games of Sunday. The hits left him in fifth place but moved him to within only seven points of Pete Runnels, in second place, and only three points of pace-setting Harvey Kuenn of Detroit.

Kuenn dropped four points since Tuesday's all-star classic in Pittsburgh. He had seven hits in 23 at bats and showed a .332 average through Sunday's games. Boston's Runnels climbed five points to .338 with four hits in eight tries.

Al Kaline of Detroit dropped to third place at .333 with five safeties in 22 times at bat.

Rocky Colavito of Cleveland gained ground on Washington's Harmon Killebrew in both the home run and runs batted in departments. Colavito hit four homers and had 10 RBI while the Senators' 1st baseman hammered a pair of home runs and drove in five runs. This put Killebrew's totals at 20 homers and 73 RBI's are, Colavito's at 28 circuit blows and 67 RBI's.

In the National League, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee held a 24-point batting lead after Sunday's action. Although he slumped five points to .365 last week, Aaron's closest pursuers did not score ground.

Junior Gilliam of Los Angeles tallied off eight points to .341 and Bill White of St. Louis lost nine points to .340. Gilliam had three safeties in 15 attempts and White had a 5-for-27 performance.

Ed Mathews of Milwaukee hit one homer and retained his lead in this category at 26, just two more than Chicago's Ernie Banks, who also had one home run. Banks is the RBI leader with 62.

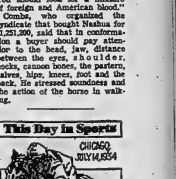
Biggest Gamble in Racing Is Purchase of Yearlings

NEW YORK (AP) — Ask a horseman to name the biggest gamble in racing, and he'll tell you He's at the yearling sales ring—and at the part-mutuel windows.

The highest price ever paid for a thoroughbred at the auction ring was the $917,000 Mr. M. E. Lenn gave for Nine 'n Shine at the Saratoga Springs, N.Y., yearling sales three summers ago. The colt won only four races and $16,965.

Mrs. Josephine Bay Paul paid $63,000 for Idun, a record for a yearling filly, at the Keeneland Sales, Lexington, Ky., the same year. Idun was voted champion two-year-old filly of 1957, and best three-year-old filly last season. She has won $303,607.

Mrs. Adele L. Rand got Clem at the 1955 Keeneland Sales for $8,200, and the bargain buy has earned $535,505. On the other hand, the late William G. Helis, Sr., went to $63,000 for Pericles —and never won race.



$7B FOR BE BOLD

With the Keeneland Sales set for July 27-29 and the Saratoga Sales Aug. 10-14, prospective buyers are fingering their bankrolls and hoping for the best. A total of 315 yearlings will go on the block at Keeneland, with 258 scheduled to be sold at Saratoga.

Leslie B. Combs II, owner of Spendthrift Farms, Lexington, and leading Keeneland sales buyer 10 years, advises what to look for at the sales.

"There are four important considerations," he said. "They are breeding, soundness, conformation and action."

"You should carefully check the breeding of the yearling and be sure you are getting the best. If you don't know pedigrees, consult somebody who does. Your best bet are yearlings from fam-

Larks Dicker For Doucette

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes Monday announced the release, on waivers, of end Buddy Cruze, a freshman import to the Big Four Football Union.

Cruze, an alumnus of the University of Tennessee who played briefly with Chicago Bears of the National League, came to Alouettes after two years in the United States army.

The Alouettes, who have been having trouble keeping some of their first - string Americans in camp, now have 27. Two more are to report shortly when their military service ends.

Montreal is also dickering with Toronto Argonauts for the services of Canadian quarterback Gerry Doucette.

They had hoped to obtain him in a trade for defensive half Don Lanchia. But Lanchia dislocated his shoulder while practising with Argos.

To add to Montreal's woes fullback Veryl Switzer, obtained from Calgary Stampeders, pulled a leg muscle in weekend practice and is out indefinitely.

Summer's Here Channel Swims Bob up Again

LONDON (AP) — The English Channel swimming season opened today. It was enough to make Captain Matthews Webb turn in his grave.

Webb's pioneer swim of 1875 it took 21 hours and 15 minutes and took in about 50 miles—was an epic. It ranked with the greatest achievements of men.

Now, 84 years later, crossing the channel has a circus flavor about it.

About 110 people have swum the channel, on foot and in all sorts of mass races. But somehow, swimming the tricky 22-mile stretch of water dividing France and England still makes news.

RECORDS

Record for the France-England swim, the easier one of the two, is 10 hours, 50 minutes set in 1950 by Egyptian Hassan Abdel Rehim. Commander Forsberg of England holds the record for the tough England - France crossing with 13 hours, 20 minutes.

Denis Pearson, a 26-year-old Rhodesian army sergeant, said he would be the first to attempt the swim this year. He aimed to dive into the water off Cap Gris Nez, France, early today.

A Danish girl, Elna Anderssen will try to make the crossing Wednesday from England to France. It will be her eighth attempt.

EAGLES SIGN TACKLE

HORSE SETS RECORD

FORT ERIE (CP)—Top Tourn, ridden expertly by Hugo Dittfach, set a new record of 1:18 4-5 Monday in winning the $7,500 Fort Erie Stakes as the Fort Erie Jockey Club's 42-day summer meeting opened. Top Tourn lopped one fifth of a second from the mark established by Nearctic Aug. 19, 1957.

TAKES 17TH LEG

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Charly Gaul of Luxembourg won Monday's 17th leg of the Tour de France bicycle race from Saint Etienne, 122 miles away. Federico Bahamontes of Spain, who came in a close second, took the yellow jersey of overall leadership and increased his chances of winning the 2,706-mile tour ending in Paris Saturday.

Sam the Shaggy Dog Not Spoiled by Recent Success

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—You'll be pleased to know that success hasn't spoiled Sam the shaggy dog.

Few animals have caught the public fancy as fast as the latest and livest on the long list of screen animal stars. He's the big (85 pounds) bear of an English sheepdog that romped through the runaway hit, The Shaggy Dog.

"Sam hasn't changed a bit since he became a star," reports his trainer, Bill Koehler.

Sam was resting at his Rialto, Calif., home between engagements, but Koehler filled me in on how the dog has taken to his new-found fame. Here are the vital statistics of his career:

BOUGHT FOR $500

Born to Norval Pride King and Hilfred Lindy Lou on Oct. 21, 1956, at Denver, Colo. Bought for $500 by Mrs. Addie Anderson of Rialto. Discovered by Koehler in his obedience school in San Bernardino. Signed by Disney Studios to an exclusive contract.

All kinds of things have been happening to Sam since the movie hit. He acted in a Gala Storm TV show. He was a guest with Laurence Welk. He appeared at the Disneyland opening at the Coliseum fireworks show.

"The great factor about Sam is his emotional stability and resilience," Koehler added. "That's the most important thing about training a dog, especially in movies. They've got to remember what they're supposed to do despite all kinds of distractions.

"Intelligence is not as important in a dog as stability. I'd rather spend time than longer training a dog if I knew that he would be able to perform the trick no matter what was going on around him. Sam is that way. He goes along with it."

City Commercial Softball League

Pitcher Jack Reid smashed the ball out of the park with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning to climax a eight-run rally and give Bishop Seeds a 13-14 win over Texaco Chiefs last night in City Softball.

Texaco led 14-13 at the time and had only one out when Reid smashed his "homer" which officially goes as a double, driving in the tying and winning runs across the plate. The Chiefs held an 11-3 lead at one time.

Ken Hall came to relief of Andy Knott in the fourth frame to hurl the victory. He struck out five batters. Knott whiffed two and walked two. Texaco had ten hits.

McLean stayed all the way in defeat, bombarded for 23 safeties. He struck out three and passed a pair.

Rusty Logue with four hits, Tom Schrieber with three doubles, Roger Counyea and Bob McMullen with three hits apiece led the winners. Rutsy Garvin, R. Nobes, Reid and Doug Bunnett had three apiece with fed Aikens and Jack Garvin getting single-tons.

Coates had a trio for Texaco, Moe Benoit, Sine and Gary each getting two and Atkins one.

All-Star Team To Be Named By Managers

MONTREAL (CP)—The managers this year will select the International League all-star team to meet the National League Pittsburgh Pirates in the fourth annual mid-season classic at Columbus Aug. 27, it was announced Monday.

League president Frank Shaughnessy said the managers will vote for a 10-man team—including first- and right - handed pitchers. They may vote for players of any team except their own.

To round out the IL squad, 15 additional players would be chosen by the all-star manager, as yet un-named. The manager would also pick two managers to assist him as coaches.

Last year fans in the league cities voted for the all-stars in a weighted ballot.

The IL all-stars were losers in the three previous games against major league clubs.

This will be the first all-star game played in the United States. Toronto and Montreal were sites of the earlier games.

Jim McCaffrey May Prexy New Pro Loop

OTTAWA (CP) — Sportscaster Tom Foley of CFRA said Monday night the presidency of the new Ontario - Eastern Professional Hockey League has been offered to Jim McCaffrey, now general manager of Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League.

Foley said McCaffrey is considering the offer and may accept it if he can combine the post with his government job as communications trade marks. In this event he would resign as general manager of the football club.

McCaffrey was not available for comment.

Comprising the new league are the Cornwall Royals and Trois Rivieres Lions from the QHL, and Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, Kingston Merchants and Sudbury from the OHA.

Signal-Stealing By Television To Be Stopped

BOSTON (AP) — Television blamed for many of baseball's problems, has had a new fault added at its doorstep.

It threatened to offer a new angle to the old game of stealing a catcher's signals.

During a telecast of the New York Yankee - Boston Red Sox game last night, an Athletics fan was mounted in the centre field stands and carried the catchers' signals from the dugout room.

There were suggestions that such a device could be used to steal the signals and warn the batter.

Just why it got started after the weekend games, no one seems to know. Ed Hurley, director of sports for NBC, said the cameras had been used for about eight games before the Yankee-Red Sox affair.

Hurley said Monday the use of the camera will be discontinued at the request of baseball commissioner Ford Frick. He said Frick suggested the possibility of a television TV receiver in a dugout and getting a code as what pitches would be thrown.

The Yanks and Red Sox, along with some other baseball men, didn't think much of the idea.

"It's just about the same as having a camera on second," Yankee catcher Yogi Berra said. "I don't think it would have much value. The catcher can change his signals, his series or system of signals, all the time."

Archie Moore To Train 'In Secret'

MONTREAL (CP) — Archie Moore is to work out in near privacy the next four days in preparation for his light-heavyweight championship fight with Yvon Durelle July 29.

Moore's manager Jack Kearns announced his decision to bar all spectators, including the press, after Archie had a full day of running and sparring with Junior Washington.

Kearns gave no reason for his decision.

The Moore camp at St. John de Baptist gym is expecting two more sparring partners Wednesday. Both are light-heavyweights. Durelle, expected back in Montreal Wednesday, is also conditioning at St. Anne de Bellevue.

Moore is training at Ste. Adele.

Rocky Marciano is expected to make an appearances at both camps.

Salt Lake Tabernacle Choir Celebrates 30th Anniversary

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—In the parlance of broadcasting's high mortality rate, it is refreshing to report that next Sunday one group of performers will celebrate its 30th anniversary on the air. It is the Salt Lake Tabernacle Choir, composed of 375 Mormon volunteers.

Actually, the choir is 112 years old. It was started when the first Mormons reached Utah and now is the largest permanent choir in the world. By a long shot, it is the oldest network musical program around, radio or TV.

Some members of the choir have sung with the group for more than 40 years; each family has three generations of members among the singers. All serve without pay and the program is a real community effort.

NEED CHARACTER

Membership is based, of course, on vocal and musical ability but also on exemplary character and willingness to attend all rehearsals and performances.

The choir, which sings old and new hymns in eight-part harmony, has a repertoire of 1,000 songs. It has sung all through Europe, performed twice at the White House and won a Peabody Award.

The anniversary show will be heard on CBS radio, July 19, from 11:30 a.m. to noon EDT.

Golfer Drives 282 Yards For One-Holer

What's so unusual about a hole - in - one these days? Slater's came on Clear Lake's No. 8 par-four hole—a distance of 282 yards.

His three companions in the foursome and a couple just leaving the green witnessed the fabulous shot.

Becerra Has Pulled Muscle

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Doctors said today that Jose Becerra, new world bantamweight boxing champion, is suffering from a pulled muscle in his right thigh.

His manager, Pancho Rosales, said this "will keep us from complying with the contract clause for a return match in Spain with ex-champ Alphonse Halimi of France.

Real Detective Thinks Most TV Private Eyes Range From The Boring to the Absurd

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jack Ryten hardly ever wears a hat, carries a gun or punches anyone in the jaw. What's more, he has never had to pry loose from a shapely blonde to dash off and solve a murder before the cops find the body.

As even the most casual fan of television detective thrillers can tell you, this is more than any self-respecting TV private eye would admit.

But Ryrten is a real-life, in-the-flesh private eye. And he blandly confesses, "I've been in this business a long time and I've never solved any murders at all."

If Peter Gunn, Stuart Bailey and Mike Hammer would sneer at such an admission, that's all right with Ryrten, Widely respected by law enforcement officials as a dependable investigator, interesting writer and eloquent police academy lecturer, he thinks most TV private eyes range from boring to absurd.

KNOWS ONLY ONE

"I know of only one actor who behaves like a real detective," says Ryrten. "That's James Chandler on The Tracers. He dresses and talks like one, and he regards what he's doing as a legitimate business."

What about Peter Gunn?

"A recognizable type, but I don't think you'd ever find such a man operating as an individual. He's the well-groomed, athletic but not particularly imaginative man, a smoothie who'd be at home as a security officer in a Park Avenue hotel."

Mike Hammer?

"Mickey Spillane's detective is a paranoiac. In Baltimore he'd last about 24 hours. Then the police would throw him out of town only injured.

Like most of his TV counterparts, the 42-year-old Ryrten is fairly big. But unlike the hero of Sunset Strip, he is neither a Ph.D. nor a Phi Beta Kappa.

THEY AGREED

"You might say my education was a series of agreeable departures from a number of private schools," he explains. "The headmaster always agreed to stay and I agreed to leave."

He edged into the private-eye business in 1935.

"Up to now, with very few exception, I seem to have encountered only middle-aged puffins who live in suburbia and who, for real or neurotic reasons, are suspicious of certain activities of their husbands or sons. They usually have hawk-sharp eyes and hold on to their purses with a tenacity that would shame a Scrooge. They hardly create an aura of romance."

Ryrten is also scornful of the gunplay, brawling and the abundance of corpses which clutter up the lives of picture-tube sleuths.

"In my 13 years as an investigator, only two cadavers figured in my cases, and they were buried—the victims of automobile accidents—before I was called in.

LIVES UP TO NAME

DONNYBROOK, South Africa (Reuters) — This community is living up to its name. Police reinforcements rushed in Friday to halt a wild feud between two sections of the Mamela tribe which began more than 50 years ago. Feuding tribesmen Thursday night burned down 11 huts. One African was stabbed and seriously injured.

Complaints Made About Kemsley Stock Increases

LONDON (CP) — Leaders of the London Stock Exchange met Monday to consider complaints of inspired buying of shares, in the Kemsley newspaper empire.

The shares rose last week by some 80 per cent. The rise preceded a Kemsley announcement Friday that the company was conducting negotiations with Canadian publisher Roy Thomson. A further announcement on the negotiations is expected Thursday.

Speculation here is that the Thomson bid would involve taking over all the Kemsley properties, including The Sunday Times, one of three national Sunday papers owned by septuagenarian publisher Viscount Kemsley.

The complaint about "inspired buying" was made formally by three stock exchange jobbers. They said the buying of shares must have been done by persons with advance knowledge of the Thomson-Kemsley negotiations.

SHARES JUMP

Last Tuesday, Kemsley shares closed at 41s 9d, jumped 12s Wednesday, went up 15s Thursday and jumped a further 8s Friday.

The News Chronicle, discussing today's inquiry by the stock exchange council, says there is much prejudice, suspicion and political venom wrapped up in the issue of inspired buying that the "at policy would be to let "full light of publicity" fall on the Kemsley-Thomson deal.

The Kemsley group includes three national Sunday papers, The Sunday Times, Sunday Graphic and Empire News; The Sunday Sun, published in Newcastle but not nationally distributed; four provincial dailies and seven provincial evening papers. Its Manchester printing plant is one of the world's largest.

Variety of Strikes in B.C. Draining Province's Economy

VANCOUVER (CP)—A variety of strikes in British Columbia drained more than $22,000,000 from the province's economy during the last week. Economists say the big pinch has yet to be felt.

The lieups have placed 29,000 men on strike. Another 11,000 contemplate strike action and 4,000 have been put out of work as a direct result of disputes.

The largest and most costly strike is the walkout of 27,000 woodworkers which has closed the $400,000,000 coastal forest industry for a week.

NO DISCUSSIONS

There is no sign of new talks in the dispute between the members of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) and Forest Industrial Relations, which represents about 125 companies.

The workers seek a 20-per-cent increase in the basic $1.72 an hour wage.

More than 9500 members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamet lal Iron Workers (CLC) have tied up projects valued at $90,000,000.

The steelworkers quit in objection to employer demands for a cut in worker travel-time allowance and the right to import 50 per cent of its labor force. The workers also seek a 68-cent-an-hour increase in their basic rate of $2.30.

MASONS ON STRIKE

More than 230 cement masons have halted work on $6,000,000 in construction in Vancouver. Members of the Operative Plasterers' and Cement Masons' International Association (CLC) seek to have jurisdiction of their work written into contracts. Also involved is a demand for a 35-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The employers have offered a 24-cent hourly increase over the present $2.50 during the next two years and no change in agreements.

A strike by members of the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC) began with demands for a 20-per-cent increase in the basic rate of $350 monthly.

It broke into a jurisdictional dispute when the CLC-expelled Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) attempted to take over N.A.M.E. jobs with Northland Navigation Company.

The strike tied up Northland's 11 ships and halted regular freight service to more than 100 coastal communities.

Talks between Northland and N.A.M.E. were to resume today.

Set to strike today were 550 auto mechanics in nine major garages here. Their dispute centres around retroactive pay claims and Saturday work.

Preparing to strike for a seven-hour day and no loss in pay are 1,100 electricians. The men have rejected an offer of a 10-cent-an-hour increase over two years.

About 19,000 members of the leftist United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) also contemplate strike action. They are asking higher fish prices.

Buffalo Lured Back With Bread, Grain

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) Zookeepers and police spread grain and bread on the ground Tuesday night, successfully luring a 1,600-pound bull buffalo back into his enclosure at Roger Williams Park.

The four-year-old animal, one of seven, pushed through the wire fence and was leisurely nibbling foliage when discovered.

He eluded all capture efforts until the bread and grain were spread.

Scotland Yard Hunts Canadian As Bobbie Slain

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard men today questioned ex-convicts, known gang leaders and shady London underworld characters in their search for the armed killer of a policeman.

Police said they knew who they were after—and identified the suspect as a Canadian. They had one major clue, a diary with names and addresses and telephone numbers which the gunman dropped as he was being chased by Detective Sergeant Raymond Purdy Monday.

Purdy was shot in the head after the gunman was cornered by Purdy and a fellow detective.

They were answering a call that a man was stalking offensive telephone calls to a woman from a pay telephone and the first shots was fired from point-blank range when the other detective went to call the caller.

CMP HELPS

The RCMP Tuesday sent Scotland Yard a picture and fingerprints of the suspect, believed to have come to Britain from Canada about three months ago.

Police still did not disclose his name. To something of detectives he was known simply as "George."

Squads of police were carefully carry only batons beneath their jackets went armed today and a police guard was stationed at the Kensington apartment where the woman the gunman telephoned was staying.

The woman, Mrs. Verne Schiffman, an attractive 30-year-old model, was robbed recently of jewelry, jackets and other belongings. Police believe the gunman had phoned to get her to pay for the return of the goods.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A ridge of high pressure over the Great Lakes is giving clear, cool nights and warm sunny days in Ontario. This ideal holiday weather will continue over most of the province today and Thursday with some thunderstorms moving into northern regions.

OTTAWA (CP)—CBC spending soared to $87,314,553 in the 1958-59 fiscal year ended March 31, exceeding by $105,353 a budget already heavily-fattened by public funds.

The over-spending was made up by the federal treasury which kicked in a total of $31,596,565 in parliamentary grants and a special market loan, to by $10,400,000 from 1957-58.

The size of the budget included record gross commercial revenues of $52,985,353 received from program sponsors and $1,101,611 in other forms of income.

RECORDS REPRESENTATIVE

Depreciation allowance of $2,323,468 is included in the record expenditures, more than half of which went into the production of radio and television programs.

The figures were given in the publicly-owned corporation's annual report tabled today in the Commons. Unlike reports of past years, they showed no drawn-out spending on radio and TV.

However, it is understood that CBC radio services cost more than $4,000,000 a year, which would leave about $77,000,000 for television last year.

The CBC financial statement reflects the financing changes brought about by the new Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Act came into effect Nov. 10.

Under the new act, as detailed in the report is a statement of proprietor's equity account that gives a net worth of $31,071,221.

CAPITAL INVESTMENT

A CBC official said this represents the corporation's capital investment in the corporation, or the CBC's actual physical worth.

Under the new financial setup, the CBC's indebtedness on borrowings from the government, totalling $26,878,891 last Nov. 10, was wiped out after payment of certain sums from the corporation's working capital.

The legislation adopted at the last session of Parliament stipulated that all corporation capital in excess of $6,000,000 should be turned over to the federal treasury in acquittal of CBC debts.

The corporation estimated this excess at $4,079,786.

Last year's expenditures of some $87,314,000 compare with $73,280,000 in 1957-58.

Programming costs, the main item of expenditures, rose to $47,120,861 from $42,491,864. All other costs rose, too, with administrative expenditures which declined slightly to $2,306,577 from $2,760,411.

Coffee Break One of Issues In Steel Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—The coffee break—that widespread custom in offices and factories—could be one of the disputed issues that led to the steel strike, the union president said.

David J. McDonald told reporters Tuesday that the steelworkers union "definitely wanted to tighten up on the practice."

He said it was "simply inconceivable" that such an issue was included in the talks that broke down which the companies want more control.

There was no immediate comment from the industry.

West Side Tennis Club Governors Oust President, Will Accept Bunche

NEW YORK (AP)—The governors of the fashionable West Side Tennis Club say they would give courteous and unanimous support to a membership application by Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, or his 15-year-old son, Ralph Jr.

The governors have accepted the resignation of Dr. Bunche's president, who told Bunche that he and his son would be welcomed as members because they are Negroes.

A statement by the governors Tuesday also said "it is the policy of the club to encourage and accept members without regard to race, creed or color."

Bunche, a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, said Tuesday night that there seemed to be no immediate likelihood that he or his son would accept membership.

Bunche, United Nations undersecretary for special political affairs, announced recently that he

KILLER SUSPECT CAPTURED AFTER TENSE MANHUNT

Walks Out Unarmed, Exhausted From Barn

BASHAW, Alta. (CP) — A 23-year-old suspected killer, exhausted and unarmed, walked out from behind a barn and surrendered to police Tuesday, bringing Alberta's greatest manhunt to a climax in cool, cold.

As many as 200 troops and police, using planes, jeeps and tracking dogs, had hunted Robert Raymond Cook for four tense days. The unexpected capture came as officers were checking a homestead where Cook had been seen near this district about 70 miles south of Edmonton.

While police talked to a farmer about the sighting, Cook walked into the open. Officers took him into custody without even drawing their guns.

PERSONAL STAIN

Cook escaped from Ponoka Mental Hospital last Friday, less than a week after his observation after his father, step-mother and the couple's five children were found bludgeoned to death June 30 near Rimbey. Others charged with his father's slaying.

Cook's escape spread fear through the farming areas. Some men had maintained a watch on their homesteads as Cook clawed his way through the hospital's wire-mesh windows. Others moved their families out of town.

The stocky youth still wore the pyjamas he had on when he escaped Friday. Prouty covered his escape he stole a car and drove to Wetaskiwin, southwest, where he pursued by a police cruiser, he overshot a curve and wrecked the car. When he fled from the accident had spotted the fugitive was nowhere in sight. He stole another car which later was recovered near here.

Police believed Cook's greatest desire was to get to Stettler, 25 miles southeast of here, to "get" certain people.

One of the people, police believed, was Magistrate Fred Riggs, who had committed Cook to Ponoka Hospital.

The deaths of Cook's family came six days after he had been released from Prince Albert Penitentiary after serving a three-year term for car theft.

Boy, 14, Committed to Trial For Murder of 13-Year-Old

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Steven Truscott, 14, was committed for trial Tuesday on a charge of murder in the June 9 sex-slaying of 13-year-old Lynne Harper.

The trial, for which no date has been set, will be held in camera because of the boy's age.

This is stipulated by section 477 of the Criminal Code which says:

"Where an accused is or appears to be under the age of 16 years, his trial shall take place unofficially and the time of it charged alone or jointly with another person."

Magistrate Dudley Holmes committed Truscott to trial in the death of the girl whose body was found in a woodlot battered and strangled with a leather shoelace around her neck. She and Truscott lived on the RCAF station at Clinton, Ont.

The boy was first charged June 16 as a juvenile. Magistrate Holmes ruled that the case should be taken out of juvenile court, where proceedings are held in private, and his ruling was upheld by the Ontario Court of Appeal July 10 after an appeal by Truscott's lawyers.

Testimony was heard Tuesday, the final day of the two-day public preliminary hearing from several children.

Jocelyne Gaudet, 13, told the court Truscott had made a date for June 9 to meet him in the woodlot where Lynne Harper's body was found three days later.

She testified that he suggested they meet at 6 p.m. and warned her not to tell anyone of the rendezvous. On the night of June 9, the boy came to call for her and she told him she was unable to go.

Medical evidence introduced during the hearing placed the time of the Harper girl's death as about 7:30 p.m. June 9.

Royal Tour Pace Steps Up As Heartland of BC Reached

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—A swirl of big-city ceremonies marked the arrival of Queen and Prince Philip today as their Royal Tour carried them into Canada's heartland, Canada's westernmost province.

The day in New Westminster and environs was a whirlwind because a third of British Columbia's population lives here—and the visitors to be fast paced and jammed with public appearances.

It was a marked contrast to the almost leisurely schedule Monday and Tuesday when they lazy six days ago.

Police and security visits to two separate parks crowded with children and their parents, a visit to a hospital, a civic reception and a formal dinner were on tap. Then there was to be followed by a brief visits tonight to an outdoor musical variety presentation and an indoor classical concert before the Queen and Prince board a train to continue across the overnight trip to Vancouver Island.

The royal pair had a comparatively easy time Tuesday. There were only four stops and friendly crowds. The day wound up with 50-mile car journey through the Queen Fraser Valley—the lush food bin for the populous lower mainland of B.C.

The valley was so cool, in fact, that the Queen slipped on a Canadian mink stole against the chill of the night air.

To compensate, there was the warmth of the welcome from an estimated 15,000 spectators along the route as the royal car drove some six miles out of Chilliwack, B.C., and then back to the city and then back.

Then the train carried the royal couple to a siding near here where they spent the night.

It began with a 50-mile flight to Kamloops, where the royal couple were whisked by car in 90-minute stops at the communities of Chemainus, Duncan's Bridge, Lytton, Boston Bar, Hope and Chilliwack.

At each stop there was an eager crowd surrounding the station platform. The royal couple chatted freely with spectators about anything that interested them—from fishing, to children, farming, to the royal visit of the King George VI in 1939.

At Kamloops, they met Sam Eberts, 69-year-old former lumberjack to the late King, who recalled how the then Princess Elizabeth would climb into the car and ask to "toot the toot" the car's horn.

Western Powers Are Divided On Price for Berlin Accord

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four conference on Berlin was badly marred today by disagreement not only between Russia and the West but also among the Western powers themselves.

The Western foreign ministers are convinced that the Soviets intend to be negotiated with the Soviet Union. But they are deeply concerned out in secret sessions. But their proposal to resume secret talks has been rejected by the Soviet time being by Communist insistence including German representatives.

The key problem dividing the Allies is the price to be paid for the Berlin agreement, which would continue to a large the crisis created by the Russians' threat to give the East German Communist regime control of the traffic with their garrisons in West Berlin.

The Russians have proposed that they continue their present traffic control for 18 months while a committee of East and West Germans negotiates a permanent Russian recognition and a peace settlement. If they did not agree in 18 months, the problem would go back to the Big Four.

The Western powers—the U.S. and Foreign Ministers' Lloyd and Couve de Murville of France—have rejected the Soviet proposal as a kind of an all-German group. The French argue such an arrangement would give the Communists an opportunity to interfere in West German affairs.

Six of Family Poisoned by Shortcake

SUDBURY (CP) — Strawberry shortcake believed to have been responsible in the poisoning of six members of a suburban Nelson Township family Sunday has been sent to a provincial laboratory in Toronto for inspection today.

Four members of the afflicted family were still in hospital today in the absence of any condition.

Mrs. R. J. Martel and her youngest child, two - year - old Donna, were released after treatment. Still remaining in hospital are Mrs. Martel, 28, Rollande, 15, Lynda, 11, and Doras, 6.

Strike Likely To Affect Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal locals of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) said today that since Canada imports about 25 per cent of its steel requirements, mostly from the United States, a steel strike in that country will have some effect upon manufacturing and consumption in Canada.

They said the northern Quebec and Labrador mines of the Iron Ore Company of Canada and Quebec North Corp. west of Lake Superior, will not be able to deliver iron ore to their U.S. customers and Canadian steel mills using U.S. ore will have their supply cut off.

I. was added, however, that Canadian mines can still produce enough iron ore that Canadian mills can accept Canadian ore throughout the strike.

FINANCIAL AID TO NFLD. GETS JAMMED IN MILL

Angry Diefenbaker Gets Into Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite Prime Minister Diefenbaker's personal and vehement intervention, federal legislation for special financial aid to Newfoundland got jammed in the Commons legislative mill Tuesday.

Sharp, protracted political infighting prevented the controversial bill from receiving second reading—approval in principle—with the Liberals contending the government was guilty of a breach of faith and the Conservatives replying that their opponents were making exaggerated, unfair statements.

The bill was before the House again today with a fair chance of some progress towards passage since the members are gunning for a Saturday prorogation of the parliamentary session.

Under the bill, the government proposes to give Newfoundland $30,000,000 up to March 31, 1962, including $15,000,000 in the current year.

This would be in addition to $30,000,000 up to March 31, 1962, including $15,000,000 in the current year.

This would be in addition to $30,000,000 annually "in her earlier," which Diefenbaker says it was never intended the payments should be for perpetuity.

Opposition Leader Pearson charged the legislation represents a repudiation of the 1949 terms of Newfoundland's union with Canada and that it will stand in force until repealed or rescinded.

It is a breach of faith with the people of Newfoundland," he said. It was an "arrogant imposition" on a settlement with a province by Ottawa with no consultation. It is a bad precedent, an example of centralization in our federal structure.

Seemingly angry, Mr. Diefenbaker replied that Liberal claims that the federal government is breaking terms of the 1949 Confederation agreement are "unwarranted, unfair and unjust."

He accused the Liberals of grandstanding in saying that the present government had done more for Newfoundland than the

Montreal Will Hold Elections On Sunday

MONTREAL (CP)—City council decided Tuesday to hold future municipal elections on Sundays or holidays. Some councillors dissented.

But the motion by council leader Marcel Lafaille was approved. It was pointed out that European countries Sunday elections drew more voters.

Mayor Dr. Gerard Archambault was among those against the move. He pointed to the profanation of the Lord's Day.

Councillor Dr. Albert Guibault replied voting is a family relations act since it is to select representatives of the community.

Pierre DesMarais, former chairman of the executive committee, said religious authorities have been approached before to determine their feelings on Sunday elections. He said they had indicated they would not disapprove.

Committee Report on CBC Said 'Hostile' by Opposition Member

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF Commons member Douglas Fisher said today the Commons broadcasting committee is preparing its report on the CBC, has been "hostile" to the publicly-owned corporation.

He told a reporter today that he walked out of Tuesday's closed meeting of the committee because some of the Progressive Conservative majority were trying to do "a hatchet job" on the CBC.

The meeting was called to prepare the committee report following extensive inquiries into CBC operations.

"There are three items in the report that I can't go for," said Mr. Fisher. "First, it says Fred Rose, "I got fed up with the whole attitude of the committee in camera, I felt I was hostile to the CBC."

Mr. Fisher said it wouldn't be fair to disclose, before the report is made public, what sections he disagrees with.

He said "I got fed up and left" when the committee decided to hold its meetings after it had been agreed on. In order to let a Soviet Trade Commissioner

Steel Industry Rolls To Halt In Grip Of Strike

Negotiations Continue On President's Advice

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The vast basic steel industry stopped production today in the grip of its strike, major strike shutdown in the United States since the Second World War.

There was no sign of when it might get rolling again as 500,000 steelworkers, heeding the call of union leaders, walked out after the midnight deadline in negotiations that got nowhere.

The union proposed that the industry and union agree to the fact-finding procedure to sift the facts involved in a strike issues.

THREE-MAN BOARD

The union proposed that the board should be composed of a man named by the union, another by the industry and an impartial member to be named by Warren.

McDonald's letter to industry negotiators:

The union proposes that such fact-finding board be empowered to conduct hearings on all issues in dispute between the parties and to make recommendations for a fair and equitable settlement of these issues.

"While the recommendations of such a board would not be binding, we are confident that they would provide a basis for negotiation and facilitate quick settlement by the parties."

NEW YORK (AP)—The steelworkers union today proposed the industry agree to submit strike issues to a fact-finding board to be headed by a neutral person selected by Chief Justice Warren of the United States.

David J. McDonald, steelworkers union president, made the proposal in a letter to the industry's four-man negotiating team.

McDonald proposed that the industry and union agree to the fact-finding procedure to sift the facts involved in a strike issues.

Company Denies Deal Will Be Permanent One

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Bailey, president and general manager of the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association, said Tuesday that Imperial Oil Limited has turned its dealers in Quebec into commission agents and is planning to do the same in Ontario.

Speaking to an emergency meeting of the association executive, Mr. Bailey said the oil company has "virtually eliminated free enterprise among service dealers operating Imperial Oil and is holding "secret dealer meetings" with a view to setting up a similar operation here.

An Imperial Oil spokesman denied the company is trying to make its dealers permanent commission agents. He said such a move would be made only for the preservation of a dealer's rights.

As a commission agent, a dealer retails gasoline at the price the company has arranged for it and then is paid by the company. It was reported he pocketed a fraction of the Lord's Day.

Councillor Dr. Albert Guibault replied voting is a family relations act since it is to select representatives of the community.

Pierre DesMarais, former chairman of the executive committee, said religious authorities have been approached before to determine their feelings on Sunday elections. He said they had indicated they would not disapprove.

Steel Strike Issues

NEW YORK (AP) — These are the key issues in the steel strike:

Wages and Benefits—

Union: Seeks 13 cents an hour raise in pay and three in fare benefits each year of any new contract as additional dollar to annual gains realized in expiring contracts.

Industry: Says a flat "no" to any further labor cost increases on ground they would spur inflation.

Work practices—

Union: Refuses to agree to industry plea for more leeway in contracts

Old-Time Prospector Recalls How He Missed Huge Fortune

The Porcupine gold mining district celebrated its golden anniversary the first week of this month. The Toronto Daily Star, on June 27, carried a report on a prospector who missed a half-million dollar treasure chest. He is Reuben D'Algie of Scarboro, and his story, Mrs. J. (Mary) Duffy, lives at 264 Victoria Ave. Mrs. Duffy drew our attention to the article, which follows. The Editor.

While the Porcupine gold mining district is warming up to celebrate its golden anniversary next week, the forgotten man of long-ago pioneer days sits peacefully in his Scarboro home and thinks of mining's past and future.

He is Reuben D'Algie, prospector and a living legend. He prospected over most of the camps such as Chibougamau and Labrador decades ago. He searched Porcupine for gold where the great Hollinger mine now stands but missed the $500,000,000 treasure chest, just a year before its eventual discovery, by Hollinger and Alex Gillies.

Now almost 83, the veteran prospector looks back to the Klondike gold rush, from which he returned to his native New Brunswick with a fortune.

KEPT SIRS GOING

This money kept him going for decades, prospecting endlessly across Canada tirelessly, vesturing along Lake Superior's shoreline, across Quebec's Matagami Lake region, examining vast areas long before the Porcupine community was on its feet.

Thinking it over, he says: "I would not do anything else different. I certainly enjoyed it. He adds with a smile: "I have not retired yet."

In 1901, when northern Ontario was more unknown than the Arctic is today, Mr. D'Algie started his search for gold. His journey from frontier town Sudbury he led his party north into Hudson Bay watershed along the Mattagami river towards the "white rock country."

This silent forested area, so called by Indians and fur traders because of numerous outcroppings of quartz rock, has been recently surveyed and its few prospectors had scratched the surface of the land.

TERRIFIED TIMMINS

The D'Algie party prospected along the Hudson Bay Co. trail of lakes and portages leading eastward to Porcupine, Night Hawk and Abitibi Lakes, through what is now the city of Timmins and a $1.3 billion mining camp.

"There was quartz all over the place, but no more gold in it than you'd find in a marble quarry," Mr. D'Algie recalls.

He returned next year, in 1902, with a full crew and a big dog an exploration pit on the best-looking showing between Night Hawk and Abitibi. The best showed $3.80 worth of gold to the ton. Newspapers in Toronto got about, but claims were staked.

He made no great effort in Sudbury to record any claims. I didn't record—the recorder said I wouldn't go to Haileybury. I was in a puzzle then. I'll go," he says.

GET TICKET

For then the Gowganda silver rush began, and Mr. D'Algie was off to get both and—well, he had much gold and silver "richy"—so Mr. D'Algie postponed his return to the white rock country.

"I was away down the Marten River and Montreal River when I heard (next summer) they found gold in some of the portages.

"I said, oh well . . . I didn't pay much attention to gold after there."

Hollinger and Gillies had found D'Algie's pit and what had missed. I never went back through it. Hollinger got rich and which D'Algie and his men had crossed almost daily in their work.

NOT ENOUGH SAMPLES

Why did he miss it? Mr. D'Algie thinks now that he didn't take enough samples since his experience then had been in panning Yukon river gravel-beds for gold.

"I believed there was gold there but I couldn't find more than a trace . . . I couldn't get excited over $2.90," he says.

Mr. D'Algie's endless pursuit of a mine took him all over northern Ontario and Quebec. "I was quite independent then. I worked hard at prospecting, from daylight to dark — never an excursioner. It was work."

He looked for gold in Labrador's bougamau before World War I. The chase carried him in a Quebec City jewelry store of a gold sample left by an Indian lured Mr. D'Algie to Labrador in 1914.

For years he combed the barren empire, the first prospector there, and finally decided to take some of the rich iron showing he kept finding.

SAW IRON AGE

He interested American and Canadian financiers in the ore, but the 1929 crash depleted most of his own resources caused him to relinquish his claims.

It was like "owning a mine in the moon because you can't get anything with it," he said then. It was the U.S. shortage of iron ore that brought the American money into Labrador after World War II.

Miss R. Sisler Given Honor As Sculptress

Signal honor has been paid to Miss Rebecca Sisler of Toronto, daughter of Mrs. B. C. Sisler and the late Mr. Sisler, formerly of this city.

Miss Sisler who is rapidly becoming a well-known figure in the world of art as a sculptress, has received a $2,000 commission from the Art Gallery of Toronto through a Canada Council grant, to create a sculpture for the gallery's permanent collection.

As soon as the Toronto gallery received the grant it appointed a special committee before whom five Canadian sculptors appeared with small models of the work they proposed to execute.

Miss Sisler's model was chosen.

Her academic training included scholarships at the Ontario College of Art and later at Dennis' Royal Academy, as well as previous works she has exhibited were considered in awarding her the commission.

Miss Sisler's father was well known here as he was the manager of the Dominion Bank, a member of the Rotary Club and a former commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry. Jim Sisler of Belleville is a brother.

County Council Holds Session On Courthouse

County Council met in special session on the morning at Shire Hall. All members were present with the exception of the request of the finance committee in order to fully discuss the cost of courthouse repairs at the Court House.

Jack Brown, Warden of Hastings County, commented that this year seemed to be a very good year for the county with the lumber industry, prior to the session.

In calling the special meeting the finance committee offered the explanation that time had encountered several difficulties concerning the court house repairs which could have left each member would want to fully discuss the matter so pick them up.

County Clerk Erle Denyes felt that the caucus would probably last all day.

Car Missed Him But Spitz Dog Did Not

BALTIMORE (AP) — Marcel Cottingham, 10, was walking in a narrow alley near his home when he had to back up against a wire fence to avoid a car.

The car missed him, but a white Spitz dog on the other side of the fence did not. The boy was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a bite on the right hip and released.

Reflecting on this huge industrial development, which he visualized long ago, Mr. D'Algie commented: "I was there a hundred lot too soon."

"There's one thing about prospecting," he says, "You can never say you didn't have a chance."

Pleads Guilty To Possession Of Stolen Goods

TRENTON — Richard Chouinard, 31, River Road, Trenton, was remanded one week for sentencing when he appeared in magistrate's court yesterday on a charge of having possession of stolen goods valued at $1,200.

Constable T. Y. Wills told the accused he would be sent to jail but he would delay sentencing for one week to determine which jail to send him to.

John A. Pringle represented the crown and Rod Campbell of Trenton appeared for the accused, who entered a plea of guilty after electing to be tried by a magistrate.

Constable Sid Vickers gave evidence for the crown and told the court that on July 6th at 2.30 p.m. he had received a call from Lester Alfred Rutherford to go to Zigman's junk yard and investigate two brass rails which had been stolen from Hlade and Dauch paper mill. They were found and he found the brass rails on one of Mr. Zigman's trucks and that he had been presented with a receipt which showed the rails had been sold for the sum of $26.25 from a Richard Chouinard.

The constable said that further investigation revealed the brass rails were about 10 feet long and weighed about 200 pounds each. There were two of them and they had been stored outside at the paper mill but still in use. They were then stolen.

Clarence Gillan of the paper mill also testified and told the court the brass rails were still in use at the paper mill and were made in the U.S.A. and there was only one other paper mill in the province of Ontario which could use this type of roller. He said the paper mill employed roll and were 133 inches long.

Constable Vickers also told the court that when the accused was questioned he told the police he had found the two brass rolls on the bushes on the west side of the Trent river and had put them in a car and taken to the junk yard.

Old Building, Fishing Shanty Kept Dept. Busy

TRENTON — Firemen in Trenton were called out on a five alarm yesterday which turned into a doubleheader and both of them were quickly and efficiently quenched.

The first call came in at about 3.40 p.m. when fire broke out in an old building behind Garrett and Lundy appliance store on Dundas Street West. The building was a mass of flames on the inside when the trucks arrived and the firemen laid one line of hose as well as used the two booster lines on the trucks.

The building was not being used at the present time and contained only a few items of junk and old furniture. The outside walls were of cement and the roof was metal. There were no other buildings close to the building and was easily accessible to the firemen.

A car belonging to Mike Garner was parked next to the old building and was close to being damaged by flames shooting out of one of the windows. However, it was driven to safety.

Constable Sid Vickers was one of the first on the scene and secured a hose for the firemen until the volunteers arrived.

The fire was under control soon after and the firemen were "mopping up" when a small fishing shanty across Quinte St. from the first fire and near the Mohawk Road was discovered in flames. The firemen made a hasty dash to the scene. The outside and remove the danger from the warehouse, which is reported to be filled with paper.

Huge columns of smoke from the fire brought many spectators to the fires.

Traffic was not a problem for the firemen on the way to the fire when they were required to cross busy Dundas Street West at Division Street. The swing bridge was open at the time and the cars were backed up well past the railway tracks and were not moving. This gave the trucks a clear, unobstructed path across the busy main street.

The 1,251 men at the mine and seven more at the company's docks at Picton, 30 miles east, where ore is shipped to Lackawanna, N. Y., are affected by the strike order.

Where the golden gates unfold,
We'll be found in the land of glory,
Where the streets are paved with sky,
Oh and some day we'll meet you,
Where no dear one loved by all,
Will be found missed at roll call.
Before we know it, he was asleep;
In heart, a sweet memory.
To part with one we loved so dear;
Is hard to bear and harder still,
To think we never shall see him here.
We so often sit and think of you,
And picture you there in your chair,
And wonder why you had to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye;
Into the light that shines so fair,
Where angels dwell in golden air.
Sadly missed
Resting those hands that did their best,
Those dear Father, sune to rest.
Nor life nor death can part us ever,
There are links dear Father.
Forever and ever.
Remembered by wife Ethel, daughters and sons.

Farm Youth Killed as Team On Hay Mower Runs Away

BANCROFT (Special) — An 18-year-old farm youth received his death behind runaway team near Bird's Creek, yesterday afternoon.

The mangled body of Albert Edward Westcott was found in the machinery of a hay mower after the implement had been dragged 100 yards by the runaway-galloping horses.

The death-scene was halted when the horses and mower crashed into a telegraph pole on the farm of Stanley Parks, three miles north of this village. Young Westcott had been mowing hay.

It is believed the horses, a runaway team of four-year-olds became frightened. They dashed for a nearby woodlot, raced through it and headed for the barn. Westcott was thrown into the whirring machinery of the mower.

The horses and mower struck the gatepost with the horses breaking free and racing for the barn.

Mrs. Parks noticed the horses crossed something was wrong and found the wrecked mower and body. She immediately notified provincial police here.

Det.-Corporal J. A. Williams, who investigated the tragedy, said Westcott was dead when he arrived at the scene. He found the body tangled in the mower machinery.

Dr. O. W. Anderson, local coroner, also investigated and said an inquest was necessary.

The dead youth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Westcott of Bird's Creek. He was born in Bancroft 18 years ago.

He is survived by his parents and sisters.

Quinte Mohawks First Band With Right to Spend Funds

The Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte have become the first band in Canada to earn the right to spend their own revenue, says the Indian News, official publication of the government's Indian Affairs Branch.

The 1,850 members of the Tyendinaga band are now writing cheques on their own bank account to cover spending from band funds.

Application was made to the Superintendent - General of Indian Affairs, the Hon. Ellen Fairclough, who recommended to the governor - in - council that it be passed.

The Walpole Island band near Wallaceburg has now applied for permission to assume financial control of its annual budget. And talks have just started with a third band, the Bloods in Alberta.

The Tyendinaga band made its bid under Section 68 of the 1951 Indian Act. The council drew up an annual budget, similar to any other non-Indian municipality, and submitted it to Mrs. Fairclough for approval to principle. She, in turn, signed its own detailed expenditures within the bounds of this budget.

Report by CBC Does Not Use Word 'Culture'

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC's annual report plays down that word "culture," usually associated by critics with the publicly-owned corporation's programs.

In fact, the word, which may have different meanings to different people, isn't even mentioned in the report's section on programming. And the CBC admits: "The main period of television rare on both English and French networks is geared to the popular taste, and programs with 'pure entertainment' value certainly are an important part of TV. It might be hard to get audiences without them."

But the report is quick to add that "this need not mean solely a 'formula' approach to programming or the so-called 'mass' tastes."

Referring to "ratings" as an expression of a program's popularity, the report tabled today in the commons said CBC should "give little useful indication of the relative importance of a program to Canada as a whole."

For example, the CBC's top-rated Canadian program, Front Page Challenge, might have a rating five times higher than Citizen's Forum.

"We do not interpret this as meaning that CBC should terminate Citizen's Forum, or confine our programming to shows with the popularity of Front Page Challenge . . . One is successful in serving relatively few in a great many Canadians; the other in reaching an equally interested, although smaller group . . . In only a limited sense can this be regarded as a "minority."

President Shows Colored Slides Of Convention

Members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club were treated to colored slides of the Kiwanis International convention held recently in Dallas, Texas, during their weekly noon meeting at the Kiwanis Centre Tuesday.

Chief "projectionist and commentator" was president Gerry Wishart who recently returned from the international assembly.

The slides, taken by Lieutenant-Governor Charlie Smith showed many convention activities, both official and social functions, including an outdoor barbecue Western-style at which some 8,000 attended. Pictures of a rodeo held in the city at the same time as the convention, and the amateur panning of gold by anyone wishing to invest 50 cents for a try, both non-convention activities, were shown. Included in the slides were exterior and interior views of the Dallas Memorial Auditorium with its 12,000 seating capacity (which also houses the Kiwanis Theatre House where the convention was held) and the new Kiwanis International headquarters in Chicago (which the Lieut.-Governor visited on his return). Other pictures were of Kiwanis officials, including past president Don Lobsed, massed choirs, and a trio of pretty "row-girls" whose duty it was to escort the new Kiwanis International officers to the platform.

The colored slides were a substitute for one of the convention which were promised but did not arrive from an Ottawa club. The tapes will be heard at one of the August meetings.

President Wishart announced next week 10 to 15 local high school students who will return this weekend from an exchange visit with French-Canadian students in Roberval, Quebec, along with their French-Canadian hosts who will spend one week in Belleville will be guests of the Kiwanis Club. Arranging the meeting they will be taken on a tour of the Entomological Building.

Long-distance visitor to the club this week was Arthur Paul, from Lingfield, Surrey, England a guest of president Wishart.

Safety Awards Won by C.N.R.

MONTREAL — Canadian National Railways, for the second consecutive year, has been named a winner of the annual Public Safety Activities Award, presented by the National Safety Council of the United States.

The CNR is one of only 19 railroads in North America to be awarded the honor.

The National Safety Council is a national and inter-national clearing house for the gathering and distribution of information on causes of accidents and ways to prevent them.

Awards are given annually to encourage industry to support the safety effort. This is the fifth year in which public safety activities awards have been presented.

The CNR's extensive program to promote public safety is carried out by one of the foremost safety staffs in Canadian industry.

Facilities include a theatre on wheels travelling from coast to coast in which meetings are held and films are shown to the company's employees. Public meetings are held wherever possible and safety films are shown to school children throughout Canada.

With the co-operation of the editor of the monthly employee magazine "Canadian Trains," the CNR endeavours to promote safety through articles which appear periodically during the year. The magazine is sent to all employees of the company.

A library of safety films is maintained in Montreal. These films are in constant use throughout the CNR system and are also available to safety organizations and other industries.

The Canadian National Railways won similar awards in 1954 and 1958.

Committee Probing Hoffa And Teamsters Closes Shop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Senator John McClellan of Arkansas said today it is crystal clear that James R. Hoffa never will clean up corruption in his Teamsters Union.

The senate rackets committee McClellan heads wound up Tuesday a 2½-year investigation of Teamster President Hoffa and scandals in the union.

As a parting shot, committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy denounced Hoffa by his face as the ler of payoffs from employers.

"I'll tell you that's a lie," Hoffa flared back.

Kennedy said he has no plan for further questioning of Hoffa and investigating the union.

In hopeful tones, Kennedy told reporters the board of monitors appointed by a federal district court to help police the Teamsters would "mark the problem academic" by removing Hoffa.

McClellan agreed and said that where it had started, Hoffa made lengthy replies to every question the committee asked but they contained little information.

He testified — will move — "in due course" — to deal with charges that gangsters, racketeers, extortionists and narcotics pedlars have risen to power as his aides in important union offices.

McClellan said the final hearing dramatized one of the big problems of the whole investigation — getting real answers to questions.

Hoffa partial demands that he help disclose the source of $1,000 in $50 bills which had figured in the testimony.

"Ask Brennan," Hoffa suggested to the committee, pointing to Owen Bert Brennan the big right hand man in Michigan Teamster affairs.

Brennan, president of Detroit Local 337, refused to answer, involving constitutional protection against self-incrimination.

Committee counsel Kennedy said the $10,000 was traced from Brennan to lawyers for Bernard Spindel, co-defendant with Hoffa in a 1957 wiretap conspiracy trial in which both were acquitted.

Three Escapees Still at Large

GUELPH (CP) — Ontario reformatory officials here said today that no trace has been found of Jack Knight, 19, Herbert Perry, 20, and Ronald Brittain, 21, who escaped Tuesday.

The trio escaped from a 10-man haying party working in a reformatory field under the supervision of a single guard.

Knight was serving 12 months for auto theft in Toronto, Perry nine months for pointing fire-arms and breaking and entering at Cobourg, Ont., and Brittain 12 months for breaking and entering at Owen Sound.

Suitor Abducts Detroit Girl

DETROIT (AP)—A 17-year-old suburban Highland Park girl was abducted at gunpoint today by a spurned suitor, a state-wide police alarm was broadcast for 22-year-old Jerry Thompson.

Police said Thompson dragged blonde Ann Piri down the stairway of her home and took members of her family away by firing-rifle shot in their direction.

Relatives said Miss Piri had gone out with Thompson only a few times and did not want to see him any more.

THE BRAIN WHICH WILL KNOW EVERYTHING

"You think you know everything!"

How often one hears that retort. Yet, we suppose, there never was any sane person who believed that he was all-knowing. One would have to know very little, indeed, to believe that it was possible to achieve perfection in all the fields of knowledge which man's minds have explored — let alone all the wilderness of facts yet uncharted.

Soon, though, there will be a "brain" which will have memorized all the recorded knowledge of all the men and women who have ever walked on the face of the earth. The contents of the British Museum, the Bibliotheque Nationale, the Library of Congress, the Lenin Library, all these and much, much more, will be learned and noted.

The "brain," of course, will not be a human one. It will be a computer, the sort of machine of which specialists who attended the International Conference on Information Processing in Paris during June are now dreaming.

The experts have even decided how all knowledge can be memorized - - and preserved. They will use a piece of glass the size of a photographic plate. Electric circuits will be stencilled on the glass by putting a diagrammatic mask over it and depositing a fine film of metal. The film will serve as a pattern of electric wires. This spider's web will be frozen at about 270 degrees below zero, using liquid helium as a refrigerant. At that temperature certain metals become super-conductors of electricity, allowing electric currents to flow indefinitely without any loss. Thus the facts the "brain" memorized will be preserved indefinitely, in a deep-freeze.

Yet this "brain" will still be unable to do much that even the brain of a five-year-old does automatically. It may be able to recognize a face and remember the name that goes with it - - but it will not know the thrill of recognizing a friend. It may know a loon's call - - but will be unable to reproduce the nameless wonder of a lonely lake. Perhaps the "brain" will know where it is kissed, but it will be incapable of that response which turns the touch of flesh into a message of love. It may be able to recite the vital statistics of every woman who has ever had them typed on a card - - but will never know the pulse of desire. The wind will carry no messages by day nor by night; clouds will sail across the moon with no more meaning to it than the shutting off of a faint light. Sunshine will just be heat and the dew will be merely wet and the brain will be as dead, during its long, long years in the deep-freeze, as soon will be the men who now dream of devising it - - just as dead and with never a dream of its own, even a dream of another "brain" which could some day know all the unrecordable facts of man's long sojourn on earth.

CALLOUS CROWD

Somebody, we forget who but the remark has a Shavian touch, once declared that "the poor, in a lump, are bad."

The only trouble with that remark is that it is not inclusive enough. Too often we get evidence that all classes of people, in a lump, are terrible.

Latest example of the callous behavior of crowds was provided at the New York Idlewild airport on Sunday, when a mob of 50,000 thrill seekers jeopardized the lives of 113 persons in a circling airliner.

The plane had dropped part of its landing gear just after takeoff at London, England. We do not know when the passengers were informed of this fact. If they were told immediately, they must have had uncomfortable hours anticipating the coming ordeal during the flight across the Atlantic. In any event they were eventually informed that the plane would try an emergency landing after most of the fuel was used up. Then came what must have seemed four interminable hours, as the plane circled the airport. Finally Capt. Edward Sommers brought the big jet down - - but the passengers' ordeal, and that of the crew, were not over. With 4,000 people lining the runway he was forced to delay landing. Finally he did set the plane down, in a shower of anticipated sparks; fortunately the plane did not ignite for rescue equipment could not have reached the plane quickly if needed. Capt. Sommers also said that there was danger that the big ship would go off the runway, killing hundreds of spectators. It would have been no more than they deserved.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright 1958, Edgar A. Guest)

THE LATE DINERS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

It matters not how rich the man,
Nor what his share of fame,
The club or hotel waiter-clan
Will treat 'em all the same
As any common dub, if he Should o'er his dinner sit
And entertain his company
When it's their time to quit.

They'll fling the windows open wide
And try to freeze him out;
They'll rattle every dish outside
And bang the chairs about;
They'll strip the neighboring tables bare
And drop a loaded tray
By tripping just behind his chair
To frighten him away.

No one is quite so scorned as he
Who, dining, lingers late.
The last man there, who'er he be,
Wins every waiter's hate.
They'll mutter caustic speeches filled with ire
And spurn him to his feet;
I think they'd even start a fire
To make him quit the place.

Anatomy of a Miracle

By Shell Takashian in UNESCO Features

The big conference on Information Processing organized by Unesco from 15 to 20 June has brought computing machines into the international limelight. Two thousand specialists from 33 countries congregated in Paris for this meeting, and an international exhibition of electronic equipment at the Grand Palais showed in graphic illustration of the main themes discussed at the conference.

And enormous amount has been written about the application of these miracle-machines which can produce the results of the most complicated series of calculations in less time than you need to tot up the grocer's bill. But the fundamental principles on which these machines operate are much less widely known to the general public.

First of all, when considering an electronic machine, in particular a computer, it is how to rid yourself of the idea that a glance at its mechanism will look inside the machine, can provide the key to its workings. This relies on the fallacy of considering "brain" as essential in traditional engineering terms. In another age — it is useless in electronics.

To understand how a steam engine works is nothing is more effective than watching the cylinders, pistons and valves in full action, in other words, "seeing how the machine works". But to "see" how a radio set works with a radio set, to say nothing of an electronic computer whose system of circuits and cables is so complicated that it may involve miles of wires! Impossible.

Here, the working parts of the machine — its circuits, pulses, intensity ratios, differences of voltage — are neither visible nor audible. Even the thickness of wires offers no indication as to their capacities. And when you are looking at the inside of an electronic machine you may be tempted to put your hands in despair and say: "It just doesn't make sense." If you get that too despondent, even a specialist couldn't understand if he confined himself to a visual examination.

To grasp how the machine works, you have to start with the basic principles. All arithmetical operations can be reduced to simple additions. Thus everyone is familiar with the famous trick of subtraction by addition, the "complement on a nine" method used by Blaise Pascal in the first calculating machine which he built in 1640. Take, for example, a simple subtraction: 65 from 100 = 35. The machine automatically gives the "complement" of 37 — i.e. 63 — the difference between 37 and 100: 73. All that need then be done is to add 73 to 62; you get 135. The machine automatically disregards the first figure and you get 35 — leaving 35, the correct answer.

As for multiplication, every schoolboy knows that it is simply a sequence of additions; while division is the sequence of subtractions. In other words, to calculate, all you have to do is to add.

Addition, moreover, is a very simple operation. To understand how easy it is, imagine that the simplest of all calculating machines is an ordinary pair of scales. Our problem is to add 127 and 254: you count out 127 counters and put them on the scales; then you count another 254; you weigh the whole lot together and get 381 as the result. Obviously, to simplify matters, you could count out one and count for 10, and even bigger ones which count for 100.

In the case of machines, we think in terms of electrical impulses and the physical calculating machine in which, for example, each pulse turns a wheel with cogs by one degree.

But the decimal system with its ten digits is not really suited to the enormous calculations being built. It is well-adapted to a mechanism which uses cogs and gears — such as an electronic or gas meter — but not to electronic techniques. The tremendous strides in information processing in recent years are due to the adoption of the binary system instead of the decimal system.

In all know that the decimal system of notation has ten symbols — digits, and that in the standard unit is expressed by tens, hundreds, thousands, tens of thousands, etc., each illustration of the main themes discussed at the conference.

In the binary system there are only two symbols — 0 and 1 — whatever number has to be expressed in terms of pairs, pairs of pairs, etc., in other words, in units using the base two. Two units of any given (order equal one of the higher order and so on. Thus, in binary notation, 0 is represented by 0, 1 as 1, but there the similarity with the decimal system ceases. The decimal 2 is written in binary notation, and 3 is written 11; while the decimal 4 is 100 in binary language, 5 is 101, and so on. . .

A simple demonstration may help to illustrate the difference between the two systems. First the decimal system, taking as a basis our 10 fingers: we count on the alternative of "ending" again. With ten fingers and when there are no more fingers to be unit, the binary system, the basis is no longer ten ten fingers, but only two hands. But of them forming one unit.

The binary system is obviously admirably suited to electrical techniques where there are only two alternatives: current is present or is either off, in which case the value is 0, or it is on, in which effect is 1. In fact, it has been said that electricity expresses itself in two hands. But the unit of the binary system, the basis is no longer ten ten fingers, but only two hands. But of them forming one unit.

The binary system is obviously admirably suited to electrical techniques where there are only two alternatives: current is present or is either off, in which case the value is 0, or it is on, in which effect is 1. In fact, it has been said that electricity expresses itself in two hands. But the unit of the binary system, the basis is no longer ten ten fingers, but only two hands. But of them forming one unit.

Once you grasp this, you begin to understand how it is possible to cuts a machine can take in relays, that is to say, electrical operations. All it has to do is to add, and to add in the binary system! But it can be seen that we must stand up to the machine's method of restricting it. Instead of getting tangled in the intermingle-le sequences of noughts and ones, we can proceed over literally miles of paper. But the machine has no brain of its own; it can see and it operates at lightning speed, receiving millions of pulses per second.

Thus the operation of an electronic computer can be reduced to a series of simple operations basically different from those of the calculating machine. To get into its programming for the solution of a specific problem is based on a prearranged plan drawn up according to rules of mathematics and logic that can only be devised by man.

T. S. Eliot's Humility

Ottawa Journal

Mr. T. S. Eliot is a man of such elaborate and calculated modesty as to be, of another age, perhaps another world. He once wrote a book about the difficulties towards the Definition of Culture. Here was a volume of some 200 pages which was so precisely tentative that Mr. Eliot could not bring himself to describe his work as anything more than "notes towards a definition."

Surely at least a master's thesis might be written on a phrase like that — a ring sentence: "whether, and if at all to what degree, the sum produced from my study of Dante, is for others a 'definition.'"

Dante, City Commissioner, even of Florence, has never received so careful and delicate a communication?

'I'll have a table for you in just one minute, Mr. Winterbottom.'

"WALKING PNEUMONIA" DESCRIBES DEGREE OF SEVERITY

"Dear Dr. Molner: I wrote you some time ago, asking if there is such a thing as 'walking pneumonia.' I have watched the paper carefully for a reply, but so far there has been none. — R. H."

Well, yes. But you'll have to let me down easily by stressing such topics as seem to have more general interest. It is, as a matter of fact, rather rare that I ever use a letter without having in my mind's eye other questions similar to it, or referred to it in some way.

Since your other inquiry, I have noted others along the same line, and many of these other letters will find answers included in my answers to you.

Yes, there's such a thing as "walking pneumonia," but it wouldn't want to put that it is some special type of pneumonia. It is a phrase used to describe the degree of the disease.

What, after all, is pneumonia? It is an inflammation of the lungs. It is caused by germs, reasonably say that we might just as well have some special term meaning "walking colds" since the sorness might come because of infection from any number of causes: bacteria, or viruses, setting up infection; excess inhaling of dust; some chemical irritant, etc.

There are several types and varieties of pneumonia which, if they get a chance, can cause "pneumonia." Some are those which are inhaled can cause pneumonia. Again, weaknesses from some other sickness or disease may set the stage — or extreme old age.

In any case, we lump the resulting inflammation of the lungs under the broad term of "pneumonia." Lobar pneumonia means the lobe of a lung is the site. The other lung may (or may not) be affected. Bronchial pneumonia means both lungs are involved. There are all sorts of variations which we may or may not have special names.

"Walking pneumonia" is a term which has been used for a long time, and probably is gradually losing its popularity because it isn't very exact.

It means, briefly, that the patient has pneumonia but is still on his feet, walking around. The patient may be in bed, but the patient doesn't notice any symptoms. He may have some of the symptoms but ignores them.

A person with "walking pneumonia" is recovering, still on his feet, or his attack may become worse. He may have to take to bed enough to go to bed, or to be put to bed. I suppose you'd say that that is the point where "pneumonia" becomes "pneumonia" at that moment.

The same applies to some other disease. "Walking consumption" is a term that has been used for a victim of TB who was not known to be sick at all. "Walking typhoid" refers to a carrier of the disease who is not actually ill. The psychiatrists use the term "walking schizophrenic" for a person who still manages to get along in society in spite of the mental illness, or some abnormality. And, of course, in any of these, the sooner the patient gets treatment, the better.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please give your opinion about bathing, showering and shampooing the hair during a menstrual period. — Miss A. B."

Thank goodness for a question I can answer briefly and completely. My advice is to bathe the same as at any other time, including washing your hair.

Note to V. T. M.: I do not know of any preparation which will "improve the bust line," but improvement of posture and increase of weight often improves appearance.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading my booklet "The Way To Stop Constipation." For a copy write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Gets Banana By a Miracle

Fort William Times-Journal

Now we are reluctant to believe in miracles but strange things happen to all of us now and then that make it hard not to believe. Yesterday, July 14, was Saturday morning.

Since we are early and get to work before 8 am., lunchtime seems a long way off when we breakfast in our room before the wife daily furnishes us with a banana and a cup of a-thermos of hot coffee and a ripe banana. This does it of variation that we have when we sail through to 12.30 and lunch.

But Saturday morning brought a small crisis. We had the coffee but the banana was missing had raided the cupboard. The stores were not open, Sunday, we came to work at 7.30 am.

We were still muttering as we walked into the Times-Journal when lo and behold, something in our path on the sidewalk was a nice fresh banana. Fresh rain spots were on it, but otherwise it had obviously it had not been there very long, probably fallen from another- person's lunch bag. Slowly and in wonderment we munched that banana. Call us, marvelling at this miracle — for what else could it be called but a miracle of sorts?

And so, we are reluctant to let them disbelieve that there it was. Such strange things do come to those to some of us and they seem to be more than mere coincidence. Oh yes, that banana and enjoyed every bite.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

FREDERICTON, N. B.

The first settlers of the capital of New Brunswick were British Loyalists who arrived during the Revolutionary War. From the beginning the site was chosen to be the capital of the province, because of its location, even before the province officially came into being. Thomas Carleton, organizer and first governor of the province, chose the site as the seat of government and called it "Frederic's Town," as a mark of respect to H.R.H. the Duke of York, second son of King George III." In succeeding years the name was changed to one word in its present form.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KEEP COMING BACK

The thing I like about baseball is that there always seems to be two or three players on each club who are never defeated. Always they are the ones who "Can Run Boys." They are forever creating surprises. These are the ones who keep the game exciting and full of the gospel of winning. Time and again I have watched a team that seemed defeated, with the writers one of these never-defeated chaps come back with a hard "outburst" in the words of the poet Henley. No matter how difficult the situation, there are those who keep coming back, demonstrating their superb inheritance and God-given will of heart. How are you going to defeat a man or team that is "Never Down"?

Every day there are men and women who keep coming back that have achieved success by disappointment, unafraid and full of vision, no matter how steep the path or how many times they have to travel with those who are never defeated.

The famous Dr. Osler suggested that we arrange to adopt "the leap hard idea" of living for the day only — live in day-tight compartments." This is a suggestion to us all to make it a rule of life. Once this habit is put into practice, it becomes the cornerstone to the grand structure of character.

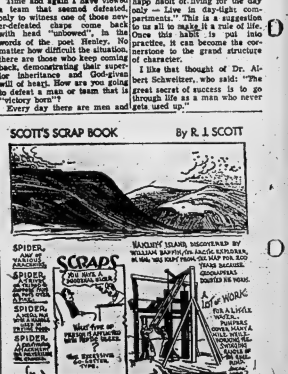
I like that thought of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who said: "The great secret of success is to go through life as a man who never gets used up."

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BEING SET APART

"For their sakes I sanctified myself."



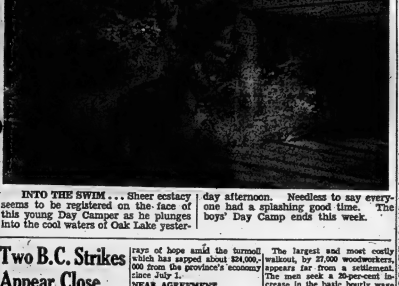
The word "sanctified" comes from the Latin word "sanctus" which means "holy" or "apart." Jesus uttered these words, and what He meant was that He segregated Himself from many things that He might establish a spiritual service to His fellow-men. The Greek word for "church" is "ekklesia," which means a group of people set apart. The Church is holy, set apart. People who take a stand on things religious must be set apart. If they are just like the people who are not set apart — their professions are futile.

It costs something to be a Christian. A sincere Christian does not lie, nor plan mischief in which to involve others. A sincere Christian pays his bills. He keeps his speech clean and his thoughts pure. He is the kind of people who are really and sincerely Christian refuse to take part in the questionable practices which others enter into as a matter of course. They don't have to be told the religious affiliations of the men and women in your office: you know the worth of their religious pretensions by the very conduct themselves. You know the truly religious people in your business for the men are the only church members.

But stop speculating about the other person. Where do you stand? How sincere is the religion modern life have so much time to spending on their hands they begin invading other people's lives. Parents that have no time for their children wives want to live their husband's lives, men want to live their employees' lives, everybody wants to live somebody else's life in addition to his own. A well-to-do congregation is not really a congregation at all. It is a church full of ministers, male and female. They don't feel they have to pray. They feel a head there. "Don't you?" I asked.

"I did when they were a young struggling congregation," he said. "But I don't need them now that they are full of the authority of security. They no longer perceive I am speaking to them. They think I am speaking to somebody else."

When he becomes a salesman, I am prepared to buy whatever he sells.



QUIET . . . ARTISTS AT WORK . . . Certainly one of the more quiet spots at the YMCA's Oak Lake Day Camp is the handicrafts table as a group of young lads concentrate on the embellishment of their papier-mache bowls. Originality was the keynote of the various designs and finishes, which ranged from solid colors to infinite variations of shade and contrast.

OUT YOU GO . . . When swim period ends many of the "Y" Day Campers seem reluctant to leave the water. Here one can see several of the camp counsellors herding a few of the tardy swimmers to the shore. For those boys who cannot swim a special session is held each morning and several lads have successfully completed their basic swimming tests.

A FROG HE WOULD A WOOING GO . . . and it certainly seems that he has charmed these young nature lore learners. The beaming faces are no doubt due to the song Mr. Frog was delivering upon being stroked under the chin by one of his admirers.

INTO THE SWIM . . . Sheer ecstacy seems to be registered on the face of this young Day Camper as he plunges into the cool waters of Oak Lake yesterday afternoon. Needless to say everyone had a splashing good time. The boys' Day Camp ends this week.

'Y' Day Camp at Oak Lake Very Popular With Boys

For sixty lucky Belleville boys the city's heat and scorching pavement mean little or nothing during the first two weeks of July. They are boys who journey by bus each morning to the cool, wooded location of the YMCA Day Camp at Oak Lake. Here, under the guidance and instruction of capable camp counsellors and YMCA staff, they enjoy the wonders of nature lore, and learn the intricacies of campcraft and various handicrafts. The boys are split up into groups of ten and are under the direct supervision of a camp counsellor.

On visiting the camp one may see a group struggling with the everlasting mystery of how to pitch a tent with no effort. From another nook of the woods come the cries of a younger age group in the frenzy of excitement pursuant to the hunt — after bullfrogs. Over in a clearing may be seen an industrious group engaged in building a camping site complete with lean-to, table, fireplace, chairs, and cooking aids, built of sticks, ferns and wood which has been gathered from the area.

In one of the buildings on the grounds a group are engaged in making up a book on their adventures and experiences at camp. The skills of map drawing, spatter painting, identification of trees and plants and others, all of which were learned at camp, are utilized in this effort. In another but can be seen a progress chart with each camper's name on it. Opposite are stars to denote his proficiency in things learned the various facts and aptitudes concerning camping and how to conduct himself in the woods.

From the time the day's program begins in the morning, with the raising of the flag and a brief period devoted to a Bible reading or a story with a moral to it, to the close of the day's activities, with the lowering of the flag in the late afternoon, every action of the camper is planned and supervised. Besides the nature lore and various crafts there is, of course, swimming. In the morning a special session is held for the non-swimmers and several at this camp have qualified for their beginner's certificate. In the afternoon near the end of the day's activities there is a general swim period for all the swimmers.

TRAVEL BY BUS

The boys travel to and from the camp by bus, leaving the local "Y" at about 9:00 o'clock in the morning and returning to the city in the latter part of the afternoon. They bring their lunch with them with milk being supplied at the camp. On occasion, as a part of their training program, they will have a cook-out, where each boy is required to cook or assist in the preparation of his meal. Parents who visit the camp on Thursday evening will have a chance to see the culinary achievements of their sons — but will not have the opportunity of tasting the final product, the boys are supposed to take care of that.

This is the second season that the YMCA Day Camp has been in operation. Last year the total enrolment was shy a few persons of its capacity. This year it was well oversubscribed. It is proves popular enough to the boys and girls of Belleville the present arrangement for two weeks each for a boys' and a girls' camp will probably be extended. This is, of course in keeping with the general policy of the YMCA to provide will facilities which the community requires of it — to the best of its ability and resources. Next week the girls' Day Camp begins for sixty fortunate young females.

Witness Offers To Take Lie Detector Test

TORONTO (CP)—Real estate agent Arthur Porter, called a liar by several witnesses at a suburban York Township land inquiry, offered today to take a lie detector test.

"I spoke the truth," said Porter in an interview. "I have nothing to fear." He said he is willing to go to Buffalo, N.Y., the nearest point where a lie detector is available, and repeat his statements there.

He has claimed during the inquiry that Deputy Reeve Fred Howard quoted him the rates councillors were paid for obtaining building permits and also that Mr. Howard said he had been paid off by three construction firms.

WANTED BUILDING PERMIT

Mr. Porter also has testified that he took $100 to Deputy Reeve William Graham to help builder Ray Zucchiatti get a building permit.

But builder John Rolin, Mr. Howard and Mr. Graham have all denied Mr. Porter's charges.

Tuesday, councillor Harold Linden told the inquiry that a private investigation he made in 1956 did not uncover anything irregular or illegal.

He told the inquiry, conducted by Judge Joseph Sweet, that he did not believe there were any irregularities now.

Mr. Linden, a lawyer, said he had made the investigation after first being elected to council in 1956. He had sought the aid of Toronto newspaper man Michael Sleers.

He said that aside from a list of properties believed sold in an irregular manner, the only information he had gathered were rumors.

He disagreed with testimony given earlier by Mr. Sleers that he had evidence of irregularities with councillors and had mentioned bribery in conversation with the reporter.

Inquiry counsel T. Kelso Creighton read into the record evidence by Mr. Sleers that Mr. Linden was "terrified" of a leak.

POLITICAL VIOLENCE

YAOUNDE, French Cameroons (AP)—Fifty-three persons were reported under arrest today as the result of political violence in this French-administered territory. In the last few weeks at least 15 people have been killed. The government blamed the violence on the Union of Cameroons people, outlawed as a result of bloodshed accompanying the 1956 elections.

Two B.C. Strikes Appear Close To Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress has sent one of its chief trouble-shooters into British Columbia in an attempt to restore order in the province's strife-torn labor field.

William Dodge, executive vice-president, said on his arrival Tuesday night from Ottawa he will look into the various disputes and help arrange settlements if possible.

More than 45,000 men are on strike, threatening to strike or out of work as a direct result of walkouts in B.C. There were two strikes of major importance which has sapped about $24,000,000 from the province's economy since July 1.

NEAR AGREEMENT

Marathon negotiations between Northland Navigation Company and the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC) were reported close to agreement. The engineers struck June 26 in support of a 25-per-cent wage increase over their basic rate of $330 a month.

Settlement also drew nearer in a dispute involving 500 ironworkers which tied up $90,000,000 in construction projects in the province.

Norman Edinon, business agent for a Vancouver ironworkers' local said Tuesday night that talks will resume Thursday. He was "confident that a settlement will be reached by the weekend."

The largest and most costly walkout, by 37,000 woodworkers, appears far from a settlement. The men seek a 25-per-cent increase in the basic hourly wage of $1.72 an hour. More than 120 coastal lumber operations have been closed by the strike, which has drained $23,000,000 in sales days from the provincial economy.

The province's second largest industry the $90,000,000 salmon trade also is in danger of being struck. More than 18,000 workers and fishermen seek higher wages. All are members of the leftist United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.).

Wedding

RANKIN — TWIDDY

On July 4th a quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at Hawdon United Church parsonage, Stirling, when Laura Joan, fern daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Twiddy, Harold, was united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony to Alvin Leslie, son of Mrs. Ray Sommerville.

The Rev. W. G. Fletcher officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a two-piece dress suit of white lace over taffeta, with white hat and accessories and corsage of red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Shirley Broadworth, wore an ice blue nylon chiffon with white hat and accessories with a corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Elmer Rankin of Belleville.

A reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside in Stirling.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

This middle week of July has so far been perfect summer weather, the type by which to judge other days. Only today I heard a woman say "If we just have this weather next week when I have my holidays." Naturally, everyone wants perfect weather for holidays, but most will come out on the wrong end of the storm.

This will be a good week for sampling fresh local vegetables and fruits. Last week there were a few local field tomatoes on the market, but the quantities will increase this week.

The first sweet corn of the season from Essex County is due this week and we wonder when local corn will be available. As much as 40 per cent of the sugar content of corn can be lost if corn is kept at normal temperatures for 24 hours. To remove the field heat, the cobs should be immersed in an ice bath for fifteen to twenty minutes, which stops changes affecting the sugar content. Consumers should keep corn under constant refrigeration until used.

Both red and blue raspberries are now for sale and the quality looks very good. It is a pleasure to anticipate the flavor of fresh raspberries, raspberry pie, shortcake and ice cream. Currants, both red and black, are in and since the season is short, those who use these fruits in jams and jellies will have to get busy. Last year's gooseberry crop was poor, but this year promises to be fairly good. All these fruits make tasty treats for jaded appetites next winter. Sweet cherries by the basket have made their appearance and are ready to table use and treats between meals. Some varieties of sour cherries are on the market but we are told the local crop will be below normal. These sour brands are unsurpassed for pies, preserving and freezing.

Watching our own particular rabbit population increase by normal means and by the approaching bulldozer and construction equipment driving them eastward, makes one think of the problem they created in other countries. One usually thinks of Australia in this connection, but we just read that New Zealand had the same difficulty. When the rabbits were at their worst in N.Z., the ravages cost the country from ten to twenty million pounds of sterling a year in lowered production. Today, there is a Rabbit Destruction Council and other rabbit boards throughout the country which have gone a long way towards eliminating the rabbit and his hungry relations. Even so, rabbit destruction is still costing New Zealand one and a quarter million pounds a year and the Council says it will not be happy until the last rabbit has been destroyed.

But enough of rabbits! We were interested to learn that New Zealand has a national hymn which was written in the 1870's by Thomas Bracken. It was not until 1940 that this hymn gained official recognition, at which time the N.Z. government purchased the copyright. New Zealand's official National Anthem is 'God Save The Queen'. Here are the words of their National Hymn:

God of nations at Thy feet
In the bonds of love we meet.
Hear our voices we entreat,
God defend our free land.

Guard Pacific's triple star
From the shafts of strife and war.
Make her praises heard afar,
God defend New Zealand.

Men of ev'ry creed and race
Gather here before Thy face,
Asking Thee to bless this place,
God defend our free land.

From dissension, envy, hate
And corruption guard our state.
Make our country good and great
God defend New Zealand.

May our mountains ever be
Freedom's ramparts on the sea,
Make us faithful unto Thee,
God defend our free land.

Guide her in the nations' van,
Preaching love and truth to man,
Working out Thy glorious plan,
God defend New Zealand.

Matching Separates

Dyed-to-match separates go on and on — indispensable, apparently to the well-rounded or slim wardrobe. The latest idea is the sweater styled to have something of the jacket about it, as does this one. Of jacket weight, it is fashioned of lambs' wool and fur blend, with a softly rolled collar. The flyfront skirt, in a blending tone, is made of leather. Good for the fall, for travel, for out-of-town wear, it is a real find for the college girl.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Evelyn K. — Jack should take my part against his mother.

Jack K. — I can't stand bickering.

Evelyn K. — My husband and I have been married eight years and have three children. We'd be perfectly happy if it weren't for my mother-in-law.

My husband is the favorite among her four children. She has always acted as though I'm not good enough for him and has often mentioned the beautiful, wealthy, talented girls he could have married.

I have made up my mind that I will never fight back on her level. No disrespectful word has ever passed my lips, but I do feel that my husband ought to take my part just once. He has never said anything to his mother when she talks like that.

* * *

Jack K. — Half the time I don't even know when Evelyn is being hurt or insulted. She tells me about it afterward and I don't even hear the thing she's talking about.

After a visit from or to my mother, Evelyn is grouchy for days and she sometimes has crying fits. As a result we've cut down on the visits. I once asked my mother to be nice to Evelyn and she flew up in the air and insisted she is always nice.

I can't stand bickering, and I don't want to start a fuss. That is what would happen if I started shooting my mouth off. I think it best just to ignore any nasty talk.

The Council: Evelyn has set herself the right rule in her decision to never speak a disrespectful word to her mother-in-law. She should stick to it. She is wrong when she wants her husband to speak the disrespectful words for her.

This young woman should recognize that her problems is with herself and not her mother-in-law. If Evelyn felt confident of herself, if she were sure she was worthy of her husband's love, she wouldn't give her mother-in-law's foolish words a second thought. She would accept them for what they are — bitter jeb-berings of an unhappy woman.

Nothing that either Evelyn or Jack says indicates in any way that he is dissatisfied with his choice as a wife. When his mother presumes to speak for him, saying he could have done better, she is merely giving vent to her bitterness that he ever left her.

Unfortunately, Evelyn is an easy target for any woman who wants to take pot shots at her. When she squirms her mother-in-law has the gloomy satisfaction of knowing she has drawn blood from a hated rival.

Since Evelyn is so much in need of reassurance and has suffered so much under her mother-in-law's attacks, we think it would be wor hurt for Jack to sometime announce to his mother, "I have found the best wife in all the world and wouldn't exchange her for any millionairess glamor girl."

Evelyn should be aware, however, that even this may not influence her mother-in-law or build up her own ego. She should try to do the rest of the job for herself by a logical recognition that her husband's love any loyalty and her happy marriage are the things that count. She needs no further proof of her worthiness as a wife.

BOY SHOULD BRING HIS OWN GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been invited to the Sweet Sixteen birthday party to be given for a girl friend of mine, and I was asked to bring a boy friend. I have invited a boy who doesn't know her. I have already bought the gift I'm giving her, and now I'm wondering if I should write the boy's name with mine on the birthday card to be enclosed with the gift?

— Teenage Reader

If the boy knows his way around socially, has been brought up to know that when he goes to a birthday party he is supposed to bring a gift to the hostess (even though he doesn't know her, then he will suggest bringing his own gift. This may be a small and inexpensive gift, even just a "merry trifle" from the five-and-dime store. But if he's the kind who doesn't at all mind letting others take over his responsibility, you will have to settle for adding his name under yours on the card to be enclosed.

Don't Eat The Box!

by Mary Moore

In the interest of infant nutrition this Nana samples more mush than she cares for and that's the understatement of the week.

Arriving in Germany full of the latest theories on infant feeding and resolves to put them into practice and feed my two grandsons "the perfect diet." I planned to serve them fruit and hot cereals for breakfasts; egg, whole wheat toast, salad and fruit for lunches; meat, potatoes, vegetables and fruits for dinner; each meal followed by milk.

But Not to sleep — don't jump to conclusions. They have to bang their heads in unison until they fall asleep of exhaustion. Then I can breathe a restful sigh and wait until 9 a.m. until Herbie returns from Aerichon, 30 miles distant, after his nightly visit to Marianne and Sue. He relates every detail of their conversation and news, for as I told you last week mothers are not allowed in this strict British Military Hospital.

So the days go — meals and snacks interspersed with walks and naps. By the time you read this Marianne and her precious baby girl will be home and Problem Number Three will be added to the din.

I'm glad to have the experience of this baby-tending refresher course. I'm writing this message directly to the mothers of very little ones who read this column: They will know that I remember and understand their harassment when they write to me on blue-smeared letter paper, or at 5.30 a.m. before their Problems awaken.

Don't misunderstand me. I'm thankful I have this privilege and the strength to run after them and cope with them. When at 6.15 a.m. they both call "Grammas" in chorus my heart does a little extra beat as I climb out of bed and go to their room for my first molat but heavenly double hug and kiss of the day.

But my two tyrants had other ideas. Never say "helpless infants". Say "helpless parents". One morning 20-month-old Davey slipped out of my sight while I quickly splashed my face with cold water. I found him standing in front of the refrigerator keeping the door open with his head (Gary had obligingly opened it), the box of cottage cheese in his hand, scooping it into his face by the fistful. That, and a few bites from the box, were his breakfast that morning. By 10 o'clock they were both calling for apples. By 11.30 they were both cross and wanted "vegebul" soup. After their nap Gary suggested a tea party which consisted of apple juice and a graham wafer. By 4 p.m. they wanted "orag" at 5.30 p.m. bedlam prevailed as I tried to cook potatoes and tiny beefsteaks for them. The baby food fruit dessert was a godsend after that.

After bath time at 7.30 p.m. they decide that I am a push-over for another tea party, so we have pinesapple juice and a big prune-cake — Grandma's being pushed into her mouth by force. Then, merciful heavens

New Pastor Welcomed at Picnic Supper

A combined 'welcome' and 'farewell' picnic supper was held on the evening of July 10 on the parsonage lawn by the parishioners of the Amelisburg Massassaga, Rosemary, and Mountain View charge, when the new minister, the Rev. Leroy G. Farrow and family, who were leaving for Maynooth, were presented with farewell gifts.

Following the supper, a ball game was enjoyed by the young people, and later several farewell presentations of money with addresses were made to Mr. and Mrs. Farrow by Mrs. Reddick, with presentation by Mrs. Frank Belnap, of Rosemore; by Mrs. Jose, of Massassaga W.A. who made both the presentation and the address by Mrs. Frank Roblin with presentation by Mrs. Harry Way, of the Massassaga community; and by Mr. Stanley Barber of Mountain View, who also gave the address and made the presentation.

MORTGAGE BURNED

One of the highlights of the afternoon was the burning of the mortgage and dedication of the parsonage, by Harry Blades, of Amelisburg, which followed the reading of the treasurer's report.

The Rev. W. E. G. Dovey, who presided as chairman, gave the thanksgiving and dedication prayer, while Mr. Farrow gave the invocation.

A hymn, "Bless This House," was given by the Rev. H. H. Hillis, of Bellerille, and the presentation of the parsonage keys to Mr. Neddow by Mr. Clifford Barber. The Rev. F. Whitely, chairman of the Bellerille Presbytery, extended a welcome to Mr. Neddow, who replied. Mr. Clifford Barber also extended, on behalf of the ladies, a hearty welcome to the new pastor.

FURTHER PRESENTATIONS

On Sunday, June 21st, a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Farrow took place following the church service at Amelisburg when Mr. John Wanamaker, on behalf of the community, presented a purse of money, also a

English Have Never Learned To Make Skirt Says Author

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — A couple of arts toeratic Englishwomen, equally versed in fashion and literature, are at odds over skirts.

Nancy Mitford, baronet's daughter, best-selling author and expert on French culture, says the English have never learned to make a skirt.

Lady Pamela Berry, elegant wife of a Fleet Street editor, replies that this just isn't true. She volunteers to find Miss Mitford a good English skirt if she will attend London's "fashion week" starting July 21.

RAPS ENGLISH FASHIONS

The dispute about dress started when Miss Mitford, in a rare interview published by The Daily Express, issued an indictment of English fashion from her lovely home on the Rue Monsieur in Paris.

"If I had to cut down on clothes," she said in the racy Mitford style, "I would get one suit every year from a good Paris dressmaker.

"It is a myth that English suits and jackets are superior to French ones; they have never learned to make a skirt.

"Last time I was in London I saw a suit the jacket of which delighted me, but the skirt was quite impossible."

RESPECTED AUTHOR

Miss Mitford's words usually win respect. She is the author of Love in a Cold Climate and Pursuit of Love. The love theme, neatly blended with solid research, weaves a romantic thread through her books on Madame de Pompadour and Voltaire.

Miss Mitford's impressive credentials apparently made little difference to Lady Pamela, president of the Incorporated Society of London Fashion Designers. After noting that the haute couture of Paris is backed by French textile firms and by the government, Lady Pamela asked Miss Mitford to visit the London collections this month.

"She will see four collections a day and they will impress her," Lady Pamela wrote to The Daily Express. "We might even find her a skirt that is not 'quite impossible.'"

Miss Mitford cabled her regrets, saying she would be in Venice during fashion week. She was sorry, she said, because she enjoyed Lady Pamela's company even "under grim circumstances." It wasn't her fault if British couturiers ("what an affected foreign word!") were not subsidized.

Lady Pamela is the wife of Michael Berry, editor-in-chief of The Daily Telegraph. In a recent book on former prime minister Sir Anthony Eden, Randolph Churchill discusses rumors that criticisms of Sir Anthony published by the newspaper shortly before the Suez crisis were inspired by differences between Lady Pamela and Eden's wife, Lady Clarissa.

Women's Institutes

BETHEL - ZION W.I.

BETHEL - ZION — The regular meeting of Bethel-Zion Women's Institute was held at the church hall with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. Don Sills, presided and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Ralph Sills was nominated for the flower committee, and $10 was donated to the Salvation Army. It was decided to buy some of the souvenir spoons. A short course will be held in September. It was also planned to have an Institute picnic on August 23.

Mrs. Elmer Tufts gave a report of the district annual which was held at Empey Hill. The topic, "Better to Build a Home Than a Fortune," was given by Mrs. Earle Ray.

At this point community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Roy Sills as leader and Mrs. Percy Ray at the piano.

Miss Kay Homan arrived and showed the slides which she had taken while overseas. These were lovely and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

At the close Mrs. Ralph Sills thanked Miss Homan and after the meeting closed a social half hour followed.

WMS Holds Yearly Party For Mission and Baby Bands

RAWDON — Over 50 women and children gathered at Mount Pleasant Church Hall last Wednesday afternoon for the annual July party, when the W. M. S. entertained the Mission and Baby Bands, their leaders and leaders.

Mrs. Barbara Williams officiated at the piano and gave a musical prelude as an opening. Mrs. Herbert Smith, president of the Women's Missionary Society, gave a brief address and welcomed the guest speaker and the children.

The roll call showed 13 W.M.S. members in attendance. The treasurer reported $88 received by Belleville Presbyterial treasurer.

The August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Thrasher. The new study on "Africa" was introduced by Mrs. Percy MacMullen.

Barbara Hoard and Judy McAdam gathered the offering which was dedicated with a prayer. There were numerous parcels for sale after the meeting and the sale of these and the goose collection amounted to $55. After expenses were met each band had $500 for their treasury

Mrs Harry McAdam, leader of The Mission Band, spoke briefly, after which the president Kelvin Sharp presided.

All sang the theme song "Little Sunbeams" and repeated in unison The "Mission Band Purpose." Kenneth Smith read the Bible lesson and Brenda Williams read the prayer. Diane, Fred, and Betty McAdam sang "The Old Rugged Cross" with guitar accompaniment. All sang "Listen While We Sing" followed by prayer. Mary Ellen David gave her report. Approximately 30 Mission Band members answered roll call.

HOLD GRADUATION

A graduation exercise followed in charge of the Baby Band leader Mrs. Raymond McConnell and all sang "Praise Him." Assistant Baby Band leader Mrs. Harvey Couch read "The Story of the Gift Boxes," telling of Jesus and His Love for children around the world. The gifts in the miteboxes help to spread the Gospel news.

Mrs. Douglas Campbell represented Baby Band mothers. Five children graduating were Janet Spencer, Lorraine Jeffs, Bonnie Williams, Kenneth Couch and Deqois Hubble.

The Mission Band members and their leader and several visiting children had a part in welcoming these five children into their ranks.

Judy and Sally McAdam played a piano duet. Brenda Campbell read a poem from "World Friends." "All Alike You See", Joyce and Judy Cooney and Shirley Potts sang "Sweet Hour of Prayer", with Mrs. Carleton Scott as accompanist. Jim and Ian Scott sang "I Love Him" with Miss Gail Scott as accompanist.

Mrs. Eric Summers introduced the guest speaker, Miss Doris Dunham, a former teacher at the Williams School. Doris has completed a two-year course at The Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. She has another year to complete and then she hopes to go to India as a Missionary.

Doris chose as her theme "He hath set before me an open door and no man can close it."

She gave a descriptive account of the Bible Institute which was the first one established in the United States and now there are 200 in operation. During the years over 4,000 have graduated as missionaries. There are 3,000 students yearly from 30 different church denominations.

OUTLINES DAILY ACTIVITIES

The speaker gave a summary of the various departments at the college where a good deal of work is carried on. She also outlined a day's activities from early morning to the hours of homework in the evening which includes the writing of several lengthy essays.

Doris then told of the work accomplished in Bible clubs, teenage organizations, hospital visiting, work among alcoholics and drug addicts. All this training is needed to serve others in far-away lands.

In closing she told of the wonderful future for missionaries and urged mothers to be willing to give their children to Jesus and to let them go wherever they are called because the "harvest is great and the laborers are few."

Mrs. H. McAdam expressed thanks to the speaker and Jill McAdam made the presentation of a small gift as a memento of the occasion.

The bands then presented a short playlet under the direction of the leaders and assisted by Mrs. Frank Spencer.

Miss Linda Summers thanked the ladies of the W.M.S. for the party, and the service closed with "Holy Spirit Hear Us" and the benediction.

Refreshments were served. The lemonade committee was composed of Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Miss Eleanor Smith.

Several visiting children were in attendance form Boards, Carmel and Belleville.

Smart Coat

By VERA WINSTON

Despite all the novelties, the good classics go on year after year, and in point is this useful and attractive coat of basket-weave woolen in bone white, beige or pale blue. It is prettied up with matching grosgrain ribbon and a streamered bow. The trim is repeated at the buttoned-down slit pockets which are worked into the seaming. The curved seaming gives a slight shape to the front of the coat.

SUBJECT OF STUDY — Four Arctic scientists have been assigned to a two-month study of little-known Axel Heiberg Island, 500 miles from the North Pole.

They will chart and study the hilly, rocky land mass — about the size of Nova Scotia — but will spend a major part of their time selecting the site of a base camp for a more extensive investigation in 1960 and 1961.

Dr. George Jacobsen, a member of the group, said there is another aim: "If we don't take possession of it soon, somebody else will and we lose it by absentee failure."

The island was purchased by Canada from Norway in 1911 for $67,000 and is believed to contain vast oil reserves.

Steel Stockpiles Good in Canada, United States

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials have their fingers crossed that the United States steel strike won't be a long one. The opinion here today was that there will be no serious repercussions in Canada unless the strike goes beyond a month or six weeks.

Government experts said steel stockpiles are good in both Canada and the United States. Canadian steel mills, some of whom depend on ore from the U.S., have made arrangements to get ore supplies in Canada.

Canadian importers can turn to suppliers in Europe and Japan where steel is cheaper, one expert said.

Canada must depend on imports for certain types of steel, especially wide-flange beams used in construction and certain types of automotive steels.

But officials said they expect no serious difficulties for Canada's auto plants. Production was almost finished on 1959 models and there was plenty of time before steel would be needed in quantity for the new 1960 models.

Earlier this year delays in Great Lakes shipping caused slowness in building up ore stockpiles at Canadian mills, but officials said that has since been overcome.

Child Crushed Beneath Truck

ORILLIA (CP) — Robert Charles Turner, 3, was crushed to death Tuesday beneath the wheels of a three-ton dump truck driven by his step-brother Robert H. Turner, 34.

The child is thought to have run behind the truck when his step-brother, who lives with the family, was reversing the vehicle. The truck driver heard a bump and found the boy crushed beneath a rear dual wheel.

FAN NICKS FABIAN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An excited fan smashed the window of a car and gave rock 'n' roll singer Fabian a slight cut over his right eye Monday night, police reported. The 16-year-old Philadelphia singer climbed into the car after getting off a plane at International airport. Several hundred youngsters surrounded the auto and officers said one of them broke the window.

Union Officials Receive No Pay While Strike On

NEW YORK (AP)—It may be some time before the 500,000 steelworkers out on strike feel the economic pinch. Steel union officials may feel it sooner.

Salaries of union officials, including that of union President David J. McDonald, who makes $50,000 a year, stop as soon as a strike starts.

Steelworkers are paid on a delayed two-week basis. They have two weeks pay coming, with an additional two weeks of vacation pay, which at the average of $125 a week comes to about $500.

Also, they can usually get credit in the steel towns for food and most other everyday necessities.

The union does not pay strike benefits but union funds are paid out to meet emergency needs of strikers and their families.

Convicts Will Get Chance to Air Complaints

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — Convicts who gave up Tuesday after holding out for 32 hours in a damp Tennessee coal mine were offered a chance to air their complaints today to a state official.

Pat Patterson, assistant corrections commissioner, remained overnight at Brushy Mountain prison to listen to individual grievances. He had refused to go further until the 94 rebel convicts left the mine and released three captive mine foremen.

Eight men Patterson called ringleaders in the rebellion were shipped Tuesday night to the maximum-security section of the state penitentiary at Nashville, 100 miles to the west. The remainder, he said, will be punished here, possibly through loss of privileges.

The convicts started the rebellion at the start of the Monday day shift. They seized foremen Shirley Bunch, 63; Ben Davis, 37, and Earl Hensley, 37, and retreated deep into the mine shaft that runs more than a mile back into the Cumberland Mountains.

Armed with 200 sticks of dynamite supplied for the day's work, the group demanded a series of changes at the prison, ranging from more pay and better food to changes in handling censored mail.

They surrendered Tuesday afternoon. Patterson said the surrender came after prison officials issued an ultimatum. He would not elaborate. He also said he had granted the prisoners two minor concessions:

They will not lose their good conduct time and they will not be punished with a leather strap.

The hostages said they were treated kindly by the convicts.

Senate Approves Resources Act

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate natural resources committee Tuesday approved an amendment to the National Energy Board Act aimed at removing any danger of encroachment on provincial jurisdiction.

It then unanimously approved the act, already passed by the Commons, and sent it back to the Senate for third reading.

The amendment, approved by Trade Minister Churchill and drafted by senior officials of his department, expands the definition of "international power line" as contained in the preamble to the act.

Trade department officials said the amendment makes clear that only those power lines specifically designed for exporting power will be controlled by the energy board.

Kingston Senator Describes Published Obscenity Control As 'High-Handed Action'

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed controls for published obscenity were described as "high-handed dictatorial action" Tuesday night by Senator W. Rupert Davies.

The author, editor and publisher was given no chance to defend themselves before a seizure order is made by a judge, the Ontario Liberal senator and newspaper publisher told the senate banking committee.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario), a former Ontario attorney-general, backed him by proposing an amendment to the obscenity section in the government bill amending the Criminal Code.

But the amendment — which would have allowed author, editor or publisher to appear before a judge to show why the publications should not be seized—was defeated by a vote of 9 to 3.

The bill finally was approved with one minor technical change sanctioned by the government.

COMMENDS MOTIVE

Senator Davies, president of the Kingston Whig - Standard Company Limited, said he thinks Justice Minister Fulton is merely trying to clear a lot of rubbish off our newsstands.

But Mr. Fulton's method was objectionable, arbitrary and a "complete negation of British justice." A judge was given absolute power based perhaps only on a complaint supplied by one individual.

"The only consideration given all to an author, an editor or publisher is that he shall appear before the judge in response to a summons to show cause why the issue of the judge's warrant to show cause why the matter which has existed should not be forfeited to her majesty," Senator Davies complained.

As defined by the bill, a publication would be deemed obscene if any dominant characteristic of it was the undue exploitation of sex or of one of any one or more of the subjects of crime, horror, cruelty and violence.

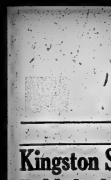
STATES AIMS

David Henry, with the justice department criminal law section, told Senator Davies the obscenity section isn't aimed at responsible daily newspapers. The target was cheap tabloids and magazines, most of them imported.

These tended to be on newsstands for some time, allowing time to be taken against them. Newspapers sold in such a short time that no action seemed possible.

Mr. Henry said that if newspapers are to fall under the obscenity section, they would have to illustrate undue exploitation of sex or crime as a dominant characteristic.

"In this newspaper) would have to go beyond what is normally tolerated by society," he said. "It is unlikely that any Canadian newspaper would do so. A paper might fall under the amendment but because its main story for several days dealt with sex or crime."



Senate Calls for Measures To End Fear of Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate finance committee called Tuesday for measures to end the widespread fear of inflation.

The committee, in a report tabled in the upper house, said this fear has been displayed in the "marked reluctance" of the public to buy bonds. Investors had suffered a real loss.

"It is a matter of vital concern that this inflation psychology be overcome and that confidence in the future value of money be made secure," the report said.

Zulu Princess Gets Spanking From Mother

LONDON (AP)—A Zulu princess got a spanking Tuesday night for showering water on bowler - hatted city businessmen.

Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Agaht Dinizulu is six years old and Tuesday Her Royal Highness was bored.

Then she looked out the window of her second-storey apartment in Jermyn Street and saw someone water a window box.

The princess decided to do the same. But her window sill held only a solitary plant in a solitary pot.

So Elizabeth watered the people passing below.

With cups of water she started a five-hour siege. Businessmen, as it got dark, got drenched, looked - up, encountered a melon-slice grin, hurried on.

Elizabeth was delighted. She paused only to look at the maid.

By lunchtime a crowd of 30 had gathered—on the other side of the street.

Two policemen arrived. They hammered on the door. They pleaded with Her Royal Highness to desist.

But the cup kept emptying and filling.

Finally someone remembered Elizabeth's weakness — a spanking.

Princess Alexandra Asantewa firmly! Elizabeth will get a little spanking."

Mr. Henry also attempted to reassure Senator W. Ross Macdonald, opposition leader in the Senate, who said he thinks another section of the proposed bill was aimed at newspaper's understanding of when it is permissible to report court confessions.

Mr. Henry said the section blocks the reporting of a confession introduced at a preliminary hearing. The blackout section is designed to avoid the [illegible] completed or the defendant committed.

However, confessions accepted as permissible evidence by trial judges can be reported. Mr. Henry said, although it cannot be mentioned in reporting the trial that the confession was introduced at the preliminary hearing.

He said the idea is to prevent the public from getting jurors approaching cases with a preconceived view about them.

He told Senator Davies he is not aware of any representations from the press on the matter by daily newspapers.

These would report to joint North American Air Defence headquarters in Colorado and the three communications [illegible] via: across Canada.

He said the main part of the communication system would comprise existing commercial facilities in Canada, which would be leased to the U.S.

Royal Couple Return Safely To B.C. Lodge

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Before the search party sent out Monday on Lake Pennask for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, it was learned Tuesday.

Press officer Esmond Butler said some newspapermen became worried when the royal couple, out alone in a motorboat, failed to return after dark on the [illegible] during a fishing trip.

Before the search party could be sent out, Prince Philip brought the boat safely to the dock.

The RCMP officers feared Prince Philip might have encountered trouble with the 15-horsepower motor.

CAIRO (Reuters)—Russian experts who came here in connection with the projected Aswan high dam Tuesday night held a final 25-minute conference with Egyptian Premier Nasser. They told reporters the first stage of the dam operations will start in December.

No Suggestion For Ending 'Heat' On Vice Jungle

TORONTO (CP) — A senior police officer says there never has been any suggestion of slating the heat off Toronto's vice jungle.

Inspector Harold Adamson testified Tuesday before the Metropolitan Toronto licensing commission after a parade of confessed prostitutes and drug addicts described a bustling heroin trade in the midtown Jarvis-Dundas streets district.

Several said they had "not too much trouble" in picking up heroin at $6 a capsule.

ASKED ABOUT POLICY

Insp. Adamson was asked by John Gordon, lawyer for the proprietors of two restaurants in the district, whether it was policy to avoid the kind of police pressure that would drive the illicit traffic underground where it would be harder to control.

"No one has ever told me that," the inspector said. "I know of no such suggestion. Police have always tried to look at it."

"If you don't keep the heat on there things get right out of hand," he said at another point.

The commission is considering whether the two restaurants have become hangouts for prostitutes and drug "pushers" to the point where their licences should not be renewed. Several days of its hearings have amounted to a full-scale crime inquiry.

Tourist Fined For Climbing Down Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) A tourist who climbed down the Niagara gorge only 30 feet away from the American Falls Monday night was arrested by Niagara Falls state park police.

"One slip and he would have been a goner," said patrolman Jay Hoffman.

The man, Martin J. Donohue Jr., 25, of New York City, told police he was looking for "some unusual camera angles."

Police charged him with disorderly conduct and released him on $10 bail.

They said he climbed over a railing at Prospect Point and started down the 10-degree slope where a rockslide took away part of the point in 1954.

Pearkes Tables Exchange Notes

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes said Tuesday tabled in the Commons an exchange of notes between Canada and the United States providing for an integrated communication system for the defence of eventual missile detection screen.

Mr. Pearkes said that to enable detection and interception of missiles, the U.S. planned to build additional radar units "external to Canada."

FRIENDLY HUSKY IS FAMILY PET — Mrs. Jean Lavoie, seen with her 70-pound husky Muktuk, says her dog "has made a liar of all those people who say huskies are fierce." Mrs. Lavoie and her husband Gerry, who teaches school at Fort Smith, N.W.T., got the dog when she was one year old. Her first litter of pups were born in a closet and the second are being used in a Disney movie being filmed in Alberta. Muktuk enjoys hauling a sled in winter and the neighbor's children ride on her back. Northern residents distrust the dogs which sometimes turn vicious during their hard life as Eskimo sled dogs. Several deaths in the Northwest Territories have been attributed to them. (CP Photo).

Muktuk, Malemute Husky, More of Pet Than Lap Dog

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Muktuk is 70 pounds of muscle-wrapped bone packaged in rough gray hair streaked with black.

The jaws of the Malemute husky are broad. Her reddish eyes are oblique and they add a hint of the wolf to her face.

But despite her Arctic - tough end iname, Muktuk is more of a pet than many a lap dog.

"Muk's the friendliest dog you could imagine," says Mrs. Jean Lavoie, whose husband Gerry teaches at the federal school here. "Muktuk has made a liar of all those people who say huskies are fierce."

SOME FEAR BREED

Many residents of the North west Territories have reason to distrust the dogs, which sometimes turn vicious during their hard life as Eskimo sled dogs. Several deaths have been attributed to huskies in the Territories.

The neighbor's kids ride on Muktuk's back. Her first litter was born in a bedroom closet and raised under a bed.

Her second litter of three pups is busy making a movie called Nomads of the North, a Walt Disney production now being filmed at Seebe, Alta., west of Calgary on the Banff Highway.

Muktuk's name means skin of the white whale, an Eskimo delicacy. She was born three years ago in an igloo on Victoria Island. When one year old, she was given to the Lavoies.

Gerry and Jean, both 25, came here as newlyweds in September, 1956. Gerry was born in Ile-a-la-Crosse and Jean in Meadow Lake, both Northern Saskatchewan communities.

"Our first home here was a log cabin and we loved it," says Jean. The Lavoies have left the Territories only once in three years, that time for a vacation in Ireland.

They now live in an attractive frame house, one of many built by the federal government for civil servants in this territorial administration centre sometimes called Little Ottawa by the 1,200 residents.

"We have more modern conveniences than you would find in many provincial towns," says Jean, whose house has running water, a shower, plenty of electrical appliances and indoor toilet facilities.

In September, the family moves to Saskatoon where Gerry will study at the University of Saskatchewan. They hope to return here.

Muktuk, who hauls Jean and Gerry on errands in winter and seems to enjoy being harnessed to a sled, will go along.

Her chilling howl will probably lend a touch of the wild to Saskatoon.

BOMB THREAT

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A North Central Airlines DC-9 enroute from Houghton, Mich., to Detroit with 11 passengers was stopped at Lansing Tuesday night after an anonymous phone caller said a bomb had been planted on the plane. State police and FBI agents searched the plane for 45 minutes. No bomb was discovered.

Govt. Foiled In Short Cut To Prorogation

OTTAWA (CP) — The government attempted a bit of a short-cut to prorogation in the Commons Tuesday, but the opposition foiled the try with a constitutional point.

The situation arose when Finance Minister Fleming put forward a motion accepting a Senate amendment to the Income Tax Act but emphasizing this was not to be taken as a precedent.

The Commons earlier had approved government changes to the act including one affecting the official status of foreign companies. The Senate then amended the legislation.

Both Opposition Leader Pearson and CCF House Leader Hazen Argue pointed out that the Senate, under the constitution, must accept or reject legislation affecting government income or spending. It could not initiate such legislation nor alter it.

CITES RULE

Speaker Roland Michener cited Commons precedent that money bills "are the sole gift of the House of Commons" and must begin in the Commons. They "are not alterable by the Senate," the rule says.

At one point Mr. Argue said that if the Senate—made up of appointed members—continued in future in "this very regrettable way" to amend legislation which members are elected by the people should consider it to be a usurpation and that its rights over money legislation are not usurped by the upper house.

Both Mr. Fleming and Prime Minister Diefenbaker argued that the Senate amendment could be accepted by unanimous consent of the Commons. They pointed out a couple of past occasions on which similar Senate amendments had been accepted in such a way.

Mr. Pearson declined to give the necessary unanimous consent that would have allowed the government to slip through the Senate change without prior notice.

Second Reading Given by Senate To Bridges Bills

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate Tuesday gave second reading—approval in principle — to two government bills authorizing construction of international bridges, one connecting with Minnesota and the other with New York.

The bills would authorize the Ontario government to sign an agreement with Minnesota to build a bridge across Pigeon River at Pigeon River, at the west end of Lake Superior. It would be a toll-free bridge replacing one built in the same location in 1930.

The second bill would empower Ontario to enter into an agreement to construct a toll bridge across the Niagara River from Queenston to Lewiston, N.Y. The bridge would replace one built in 1899.

Senator Welter Aseltine, government leader, said the Niagara River bridge would be rent by the board of transport commissioners with the cost over the size or cost of either bridge.

Private Television Stations In Major Cities Next Year Likely Policy of Cabinet

By BERNARD DUPERREAU
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Second television stations owned by private interests are likely to be in operation next year in the major cities now served by the CBC only.

As early announcement of a change in government licensing policy is expected before the end of the month, thus ending the monopoly position of CBC and private stations now enjoyed under the single-service policy.

Informants said the cabinet has reached no formal decision on whether to abandon the policy of licensing only one station in any given area, but it is learned that the cabinet considers the time is rapidly approaching when this policy must be abandoned and competition allowed, at least in the large cities.

One factor likely to make the holding for a second TV licence specially fierce is the limitation resulting from the allocation, under agreement with the U.S., of available channels now permissible in Canada.

WOULD NEED FOUR MONTHS

Should the government announce before the end of July a change in policy which would permit the transport department to accept applications for second stations, it likely will take four months, or until the end of November, before the board of governors will start public hearings to deal with them.

Informants said that once the policy is announced by the cabinet, and stations, the Board of Broadcast Governors likely will set a date—possibly two months later—for the filing of applications. This would give all interested applicants an equal chance to bid.

It likely would be early in the new year before second stations are licensed and on the air. Four months, possibly to mid - 1960, before they will be operating.

Informants said that the board is planning to hold public hearings on the second TV applications in cities concerned, possibly starting with Winnipeg and Vancouver. Hearings would follow in Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, and possibly in other cities as the need arises.

Body Found Floating in River

DUNDEE, Que. (CP) — The body of Raymond Robinson, 35, of Cornwall, missing with a companion since Wednesday night, was found Tuesday floating in the St. Lawrence River near the place he was last seen alive.

Still missing is Felix Michaud, 37, who was returning to Cornwall with Robinson after getting their school reports Monday, pupils of grade nine. The two, both girls, Christa Bruckschlegal and Christa Westermeier, had been upset about their grades.

Rival Factions In Parish Council Come to Blows

LITTLE DEWCHURCH, England (Reuters)—Civil war broke out Tuesday night in this peaceful village of 245 persons over the parish council.

In the tiny village schoolroom, rival factions, each claiming to be the official parish council, clashed.

Five rebel councillors met to discuss legal action to make the parish clerk give up the minute books.

One rebel grabbed the books and threw them to his associates.

A councillor got them back and a general free-for-all broke out.

When it ended, one councillor had a cut eye and a torn shirt and a spectator was flat on his back between school desks.

Score of Persons Hurt as Bus Turns on Side

ALEXANDRIA, Minn. (AP)— More than a score of persons were injured when a Winnipeg-Chicago bus went off the west out of control and tipped over on its side near here during a heavy rainstorm Tuesday night.

At least 36 persons, many of them Canadians, were treated in hospitals here. None was believed severely hurt.

Erick Gravlet, the bus driver, refused to discuss the accident. He was not hurt.

Trooper Mechelet, 36, of Toronto said he was riding in the front of the upper deck of the highway cruiser when suddenly it began to swerve from side to side.

"I was doing when the rocking of the bus woke me up," Mechelet said. "Before I could gather my senses, the bus tipped over and I was thrown out, either through a window or the skylight, I don't know which."

He was treated for minor injuries at Mercy Hospital and released.

Police said there were five or six other cases among the injured, mostly with back injuries.

Four girls, all 14 girls, Christa Bruckschlegal and Christa Westermeier, had been upset about their grades.

World Waiting for Showdown Between Kassem and Reds

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The first-anniversary of Iraq's bloody coup which toppled the monarchy finds the world waiting for a showdown between Premier Abdul Karim Kassem and the Iraqi Communist party.

The honeymoon apparently is over. During the last 12 months the premier several times relied heavily on Communist support to maintain his regime.

Six months ago many Western observers saw the Communists in Iraq off as a Soviet satellite. Now they are beginning to see falling firm steps to force the Communists to fall into line behind his leadership.

ARMY KEY

It has also become clear that in the immediate future the survival of the Kassem regime will depend largely on the loyalty and effectiveness of the armed forces.

A spectacular show of military hardware was staged during the Baghdad parade in honor of the July 14 celebrations which will be by representatives of many countries, including strong delegations from Communist states.

The show was officially described as a rehearsal. But it is significant that it coincided with the issuing of two decrees aimed at whittling still more power of the Communists.

The first was an order to the Red - dominated people's resistance forces—a peasants' militia and urban trainee unit—all after the week - long anniversary festivities. The second decree warned that unauthorized carrying arms without permission would be arrested.

Before this the premier rebuffed the Communist demands over the Mosul revolt in March and at the time the Communists mutinied.

GENUINELY NEUTRAL?

Some observers say Kassem now appears to be doing what his associates said he had intended doing all along. He is playing the Communists off, having got rid of the first threat to his supremacy by the pro-Nasser nationalist element.

The objective of his policy of neutrality as a remorseless and irresistible pressure on all shades of political opinion until, under his leadership, the nation has accepted the concept of a genuinely free and wholly independent Iraq.

But his ban on party politics hits the Communists the hardest. The Iraqi party is the only Communist party in the area with any real strength.

It is admitted to be the last stronghold of the Reds in the Middle East until the ban is lifted in the knowledge of this that may induce the Communists to make a desperate bid for power in the cabinet in the near future.

STEEL INDUSTRY

Fairless works near Morrisville, Pa., Tuesday night.

McDonald had proposed a one-, two- or three-year contract granting a 15-cent-hourly package pay increase annually. This was the settlement in a three-year pact in 1956 that ended a strike lasting 34 days.

The industry sought continuation of present wages and benefits, plus changes to give the industry more leeway in promoting economies.

The basic wage in the steel industry is $2.10 an hour but the union said steelworkers rarely are employed steadily for a full year.

Promptly at midnight—and in some instances before—workers streamed in orderly fashion from mills across the country. Picket lines were set up quickly. The union was prepared.

Major steelmaking facilities had been halted in anticipation of the strike and the final shutdowns came without incident.

MIXED EMOTIONS

Men at the mills greeted the strike with mixed emotions. Some left their jobs reluctantly; some militantly.

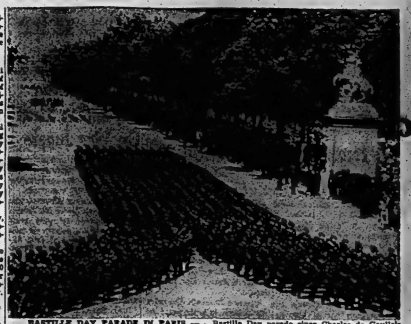
"We don't figure to give up what we've fought 20 years for," said Elmer Getty, a machinist at the Pittsburgh works of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Eisenhower expressed hope for a quick settlement.

"I am confident that with goodwill on both sides of the bargaining table, agreement can be reached without undue delay," he said.

AFFECTS OTHERS

Effects of the strike were felt immediately in other segments of the economy. Many thousands of workers, mostly in the coal, railway, ore mining and Great Lakes shipping industries, have been laid off or will be soon.



It's not expected that steel users, who have been stockpiling supplies for months, will feel any shortage immediately. But industry sources say the booming demand for steel has cut deeply into stockpiling plans. There is less steel available than many users would need to carry through a strike of major duration.

However, the auto industry, steel's biggest customer, is in position to go 60 days or more without particular difficulty.

Value of production lost by the strike in the steel industry alone is estimated at some $300,000,000 a week. Loss in wages and other benefits to steelworkers is calculated at about $70,000,000 weekly.

Castro Scoffs at Charges By Air Chief That He's Red

HAVANA (AP)—What is the truth about Communist infiltration in Cuba's revolutionary regime?

The former chief of Cuba's air force told a U.S. Senate committee in Washington that Premier Fidel Castro is himself a Communist and heads a Red dictatorship.

Cuban officials from Castro down angrily scoffed at this testimony. They called Maj. Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz a liar and a deserter and traitor who sold out to interests opposing Cuba's revolutionary program.

Castro admits there are Communists in, his rebel army. He says that at the time he was fighting dictator Fulgencio Batista he didn't stop to examine a man's politics if he wanted to help.

NO MAJOR PART

Castro denies emphatically, however, that Communists are playing a major part in Cuba's political life.

"Ours is not a Communist revolution," he says, "it is a Cuban revolution. If is not a Red revolution; it is olive green," a reference to the color of his forces' uniforms.

There are many Cubans high in business and the professions who agree in part with what Diaz Lanz told the Senate committee. They are the persons most likely to be hurt by Castro's plans to change the old order.

They point to Argentine-born Maj. Ernesto (Che) Guevara, No. 2 man in Castro's government, who long has been linked with Communists. There are reports that Castro, who sent Guevara on a long tour of the Middle and Far East, plans to find another assignment abroad for him.

CASTRO'S BROTHERS, TOO?

Critics also claim Castro's brother and heir apparent, Raul, commander-in-chief of the armed forces, is at least friendly to the Communists.

There also have been complaints that a special commission rewriting the textbooks for Cuba's schools is Communist tinged and that its political beliefs are reflected in the new texts.

The regime's defenders have a ready answer for most of this criticism. Their program is progressive, they assert, not Communist. Much of what Castro is doing, they say, merely puts into effect old programs which never were implemented by former governments.

FINANCIAL AID

Liberals had when they were in office.

With a vow that the Liberals would fight the bill "as strongly as we can," Mr. Pearson promised that when his party returns to power "we shall remove this injustice."

In other Commons activity Tuesday:

1. Mr. Pearson refused to give necessary unanimous consent for Finance Minister Fleming's request that the Commons approve a Senate change in a government money bill. Mr. Pearson said such changes are a right of the Commons alone and suggested the government make the change on its own responsibility.

2. Ratification was given the new International Wheat Agreement and an international agreement giving married women a citizenship status independent of their husbands, a condition that Canada has provided for years.

Before the Commons started its sitting, Premier Smallwood, in a St. John's interview, called for the resignation from the Commons of Newfoundland's two Progressive Conservative MPs—William J. Browne, minister without portfolio and member for St. John's West, and James McGrath, St. John's East. Neither paid any heed.

In fact Mr. Browne, who went into politics after Mr. Smallwood got him dropped from a Newfoundland county judgeship, entered the Commons debate to attack the premier's record in government, saying he has driven the province deep into debt.

Newfoundland, said Mr. Browne, has received more money from the present federal government in two years than it ever got from the Liberals.

J. W. Pickersgill, Liberal MP for the Newfoundland riding of Bonavista - Twillingate, accused the government of "ratting" on its obligations to Canada's newest province.

Believe London Officer Killed By Canadian

LONDON (CP) — A Scotland Yard spokesman said today police are "more or less satisfied" that the killer of Detective Sergeant Raymond Purdy is a Canadian.

Purdy, 43 - year - old father of three, was shot Monday through the heart in Kensington's fashionable Onslow Square by a man wearing a raincoat and tinted sunglasses. An intensive manhunt was launched.

The spokesman said police authorities in Ottawa have been asked for any information they may have on the gunman.

Reports circulated in London newspaper circles that the killer came to this country from Canada three months ago. Scotland Yard discounted the idea that this much was known.

GRAVE OFFENCES

The shooting of a policeman is one of the gravest offences in British law. Purdy was the third British policeman killed in the London area in the last seven years.

Purdy died seven minutes after a shot, fired at close range from a Leger pistol, tore through his body.

The shooting took place just inside an apartment building. Purdy, accompanied by Detective Sergeant Peter Sandford, took a man into custody near a telephone booth after police received a report that a man had been making offensive telephone calls to a woman in the neighborhood.

The three entered the apartment building and Sandford went to telephone. He looked round just as the man took a pistol from his pocket and fired at Purdy.

Some 20,000 police were thrown into London's largest manhunt in years. The death penalty, revealed for some crimes, will apply in this case if the gunman is convicted of murder.

The killer was described as in his 30s, with an American or continental accent.

Iraq Celebrates Anniversary by Cabinet Shift

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters) — The judges' questioning of Iraq Tuesday celebrated the first anniversary of her revolution with a shift of cabinet posts and a flexing of military muscles.

Premier Abdel Karim Kassem, the army major-general who led the swift revolt that overthrew the pro-Western monarchy, Monday night abolished the economics ministry and appointed four new cabinet ministers.

The man at the head of the economics ministry, Ibrahim Kubbe, remains in the cabinet in charge of agrarian reform and petroleum affairs—two key posts in this oil-rich but agriculturally underdeveloped land. Kubbe set up new trade and aid deals with Russia.

The 7,000,000 people of Iraq—a pivotal Middle East nation in a triangular struggle among West, West and neutralist Arab sentiment—opened a week of celebrations to recall the sudden coup of July 14, 1958.

Young King Faisal and veteran premier Nuri el Said lost their lives in the uprising. The revolt sparked a crisis that sent United States troops into Lebanon and British paratroops into neighboring Jordan.

Here in the capital, hundreds of thousands cheered wildly today as the Iraqi Army staged a display of strength in a parade. Soviet armaments mingled with U.S. and British weapons. Soviet MIG-fighter planes joined British Vampire jets in a fly-past.

'Happy' Lashes Ford Frick And Major Leagues Baseball

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. A. "B. Happy" Chandler took roundhouse wallop at big league baseball and some of its leading figures Tuesday.

Commissioner Ford Frick, National League president Warren C. Giles, and minor league chief George M. Trautman all drew critical comment from the Kentucky executive on his 61st birthday and the eighth anniversary of his retirement as baseball commissioner. He served from 1945 to 1951.

"So far as leadership is concerned, baseball is bankrupt," Chandler said. "Baseball liquidated the office of commissioner when it refused to renew my contract, and got just what the owners wanted when they named pliable Frick."

"KNOWS NOTHING"

Chandler said: "Frick knows nothing of baseball. . . . He and Trautman are more interested in holding their jobs and pleasing the major league owners, than in helping baseball, the players and the fans.

"Frick and Trautman and Giles are just time-servers, all working for big salaries and big expense accounts, and accomplishing nothing."

. . . The players have so little support from . . . and so little confidence in Frick that they had to get their own representatives to fight for them. That lack of confidence on the part of the players would have caused me to resign — but Frick is interested only in the owners."

Chandler said the calibre of major league baseball has slipped 25 per cent in the last few years, and predicted it will continue to deteriorate as the minor league training empire dwindles.

DISCUSSES THIRD LEAGUE

On the third major league plan which is being studied, Chandler observed:

"If baseball is to survive — and I think it's headed for destruction — you must have local rivalries. Who cares whether the Phils beat Los Angeles or San Francisco? You can't find out until the next day anyway, if they play on the coast.

"The three-league answer is to set up one circuit on the east coast, one in the mid-west and one in the far west. It would cut travelling expenses and set up rivalries which do not now exist."

Pirates Starry Elroy Face Could Be Another Marquard

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Elroy Face's dramatic assault on Rube Marquard's consecutive game winning record has focused attention once more on the sterling southpaw who amazed the baseball world in 1912 by captioning 19 straight victories for New York Giants.

The little Pittsburgh relief artist, with 14 straight victories under his belt, is the first pitcher since Ewell Blackwell won 16 in a row for Cincinnati in 1947 to challenge Marquard's mark.

Marquard teamed up with the immortal Christy Mathewson to help bring three successive pennants to John McGraw's Giants in 1911, 1912 and 1913. Next to Carl Hubbell, he ranks as the greatest left-hander in the Giants' history.

He was only 19 in the fall of 1908, when the Giants gave the Indianapolis club $11,000 for him — an enormous expenditure for that period. Against the advice of manager McGraw, owner John T. Brush ordered that Marquard pitch the game in which the Giants lost the pennant to the Chicago Cubs in a playoff.

It was a sad debut for the long slim kid. He hit the first big league batter to face him and walked the next two. Hans Lobert, the cleanup hitter, crashed a grand slam homer, and McGraw didn't use Rube any more that year.

Marquard really began to collect abuse in 1909 when he lost 13 while winning five. Rube was 4-4 the next year.

In 1911, Marquard won 24, in 1912 he won 26 and in 1913 he reached 23. His career run averages in those three years were 2.25, 2.57 and 2.50.

His 19-game record streak started opening day, 1912, with a ten-skied victory over Brooklyn. From that April 11 he was unbeaten until July 8 in Chicago. The opposing pitcher was Jimmy Lavender, who held the Giants to five hits and struck out seven as the Cubs won 7-2 to end the longest winning streak in modern times.

Olmedo, McKay Cause Upset At Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Two players —Alex Olmedo and Barry MacKay—who did not appear during the first two days of the national clay courts tennis tournament have caused more excitement than those who did.

The matches Monday and Tuesday were fairly routine. Only 750 spectators watched at River Forest Tennis Club and, with tournament officials, awaited the delayed arrival of Olmedo and MacKay.

They were scheduled to appear early Tuesday after European tournaments, but MacKay phoned to say he could not arrive until evening, so his first round match was moved to today.

C. P. Hennessy, tournament chairman, said officials telephoned Olmedo in New York and that he refused to accept the call.

Then Alex appeared at the gate to the River Forest club in mid-afternoon and was refused admittance because nobody recognized him.

DELAYS MATCH

Officials rushed to the gate upon hearing of his plight, but they were in for a surprise. Alex, 23-year-old hero of the victorious United States Davis Cup team and newly crowned Wimbledon champion, told them he was on his way to meet with Perry Jones, Davis Cup team captain, and would not compete until the next day.

Hennessy and the rest of a surprised tournament staff said Olmedo and MacKay probably will have to play three or four matches today to move up to date in singles and doubles play.

Seeded players who advanced to the men's round of 16 included defending champion Bernard Tut Bartzen, Dallas and Earl Buchholz Jr., St. Louis.

Only Susan Butt of Montreal among ranking women's entries had any trouble winning a first round singles match. She lost her first set to Marilyn Montgomery, San Antonio, Texas, 6-6, then recovered 6-1, 6-3.

Royals Edge Buffalo 2-1; Leafs Nip Wings

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Buffalo Bisons, who have beaten back previous attempts by Rochester and Richmond to gain first place in the International League have a new pretender to deal with today — Miami Marlins.

The Marlins, 2-0 victors over Richmond Tuesday night, are only a game out as Buffalo lost to the Montreal Royals, 2-1. It was the Bisons 11th loss in 15 within two games of first place, games and pushed the Royals to Columbus Jets defeated Havana Sugar Kings 2-1 and Toronto Maple Leafs beat Rochester Red Wings 4-2.

TWO-HIT PITCHING

The Marlins, who have won 10 of 11 games with Richmond, got two-hit pitching from winner John Anderson 11-3 and reliever Art Kay. Each gave up one single, with Anderson forced to retire in the seventh on an undisclosed injury. Chuck Oertel's two-run homer in the first inning off loser Bill Bethel 0-1 did it for Miami.

The Bisons fell victim to Sandy Amoros for the second straight night as the Montreal outfielder belted his 19th homer in the sixth inning to break a 1-1 tie. He had two on Monday as the Royals won a doubleheader. The loser came off loser Ken Lehman 4-8 victim of an unearned run in the second inning that gave Montreal a 1-0 lead. Buffalo tied it in the fifth on Jim Coker's double and Ruben Amaro's single. Rene Valdes 6-4 was the winning pitcher.

BOTH GIVE UP FIVE

Curt Raydon 3-0 outpitched Havana's Raoul Sanches 7-3 as Columbus scored two runs in the fourth inning on Bob Thorpe's single, Nino Escalara's triple and Joe Christopher's sacrifice fly. Jesse Gonder' homer — his fifth —got Havana's run in the bottom of the inning. Both pitchers gave only five hits.

First inning home runs by Archie Wilson and Larry Raines gave Al Pehanick 4-3 the push he needed after Rochester scored twice in the top of the inning on Gene Green's two-run double. Pehanick made only his fourth starting assignment for Toronto to hand Rochester into fourth place, 2½ games out of first. The homers were Wilson's 12th and Raines' first.

NEW YORK (AP)—When Joe squawks from annoyed citizens who claim that their names were given to unsavory characters.

Some writers say some editors, says Stockton Helffrich of NBC's continuity acceptance department, use a system of taking common given names and combining them with a place name—a lot of towns have handles that do nicely as numbers—so that complaints can be handled neatly.

Kurp is new York-born, 56, with a strong face and whitening hair parted just off-centre. His talk is easy and persuasive, punctuated with courtroom gestures. His sole contact with the artistic life in his youth was playing in a band.

He works a Spartan schedule at the studio—from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nor does he quit then; he makes notes on his bedside table during the night. He eats little breakfast and no lunch, taking noontime for a work out and nap.

"Dogs eat only one meal a day," he reasons, "and they never go see doctors."

City Commercial Softball League

Mead - Sportsmen tightened their grip on second place in the City Commercial softball league last night by whipping Plane's Construction 12-3.

Bruno McCurdy pitched six-hit ball for the winners, fanning nine and walking three. Larry Hull started for Plane's with Glen Craig taking over in the second. They gave up seven hits, whiffed three and walked ten.

"Huck" Brown blasted a three-run homer for Mead - Sportsmen in the second inning. Bill Muirhead and Elgin Moyres had a double and single apiece. Larry Lougheed and McCurdy had single.

Talenti slammed a bases-empty round - tripper for the losers in the seventh frame. George Trumpour claimed a brace of singles with one each for Hull, Craig and Ross Empey.

Bobcat Juveniles scored two runs in the last of the seventh to edge Corbin Lock 6-5 in another Commercial ill played last evening.

The Juveniles plated their tying and winning runs on a couple of Corbin errors. Pug Kozier's bunt single and Dick Clapp's base knock to centre field.

Sonny Holloway was the winning hurler, coming on in relief of Ken McLaren in the fifth frame. They gave up six hits, fanned two and walked 11.

Jerry Generoux went the route in defeat, allowing seven safeties. He whiffed two and passed three.

Pug Keller with a two - run triple and a single paced the Bobcats while Pete Weston hit a bases - empty homer in the second inning. McLaren doubled with singles going to Clapp, Stu. Muirhead and Bucky Zinkl. Harold Redquest and Jake Nelson had two hits apiece for Corbin Lock. Thompson and Generoux contributed one each.

Brampton goals were scored by Jack Madgett with three, Clark Pulford, Russell and Gord Thompson with two each, and Revis Bennett, Murray Roberts-son, Len Carney, John Ford, Larry Kendall and Bill Wanless had one each.

Success Story of Jack Karp Has Not Been Constant Climb

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Thirty years ago today, a young New York lawyer left a promising practice to join the legal staff of Paramount pictures.

Now Jack Karp is the new production chief of Paramount Studios. And has his success story been a constant climb?

No, he admits. He entered the film at $100 a week just before the 1929 crash. Later, he found himself doing the work six men had done before—and his salary was cut twice to $85.

But he stuck it out, and now he's head man at the studio. He's the symbol of the new kind of movie boss, following in the footsteps of the fast-fading pioneers who founded the industry. He appears able to pull Paramount out of its recent lethargy "overnight."

Its secret is a prime factor for the best movie makers, and Karp seems to have it.

"This is still a great business," he says. "The difference is that there is no movie business as such any more. People no longer go out to see a movie; they go to see shows. Our problem is to provide shows that people want to see. To do that, we've got to have showmen, and we plan to get them both from the proven names and from new talent we'll develop ourselves."

Karp admitted that Paramount offered a grave love with the deals of Hollywood's No. 1 showman, Cecil B. Demille. (Latest rumors are that Demille's agreements' earnings: $50,000,000+.

"Demille was the master in giving the public what they wanted," the studio chief said. "We must develop others who can do the same thing."

Fred MacMurray
New Suspense Drama
"FACE OF A FUGITIVE"

There have been many surprises in the screen career of Fred MacMurray, one of the leading to something of greater importance. Most people think of him as an amiable light comedy but Fred, as a hunted man in Columbia Pictures' "Face of A Fugitive," in Eastman Color, at the Park Theatre for its first city showings starting Thursday, proves once again he is a top-notch dramatic actor.

Fred was born in Kankakee, Ill. His father was a concert violinist and Fred received a musical education at an early age.

He joined the California Collegians as a combination vocalist, saxophonist and comedian, appearing with the group on Broadway in "Roberta." "Three's A Crowd," the "Third Little Show" and other musical productions and becoming a personality in his own right.

It was while appearing in "Roberta" that he was signed to a Hollywood contract, and given a chance to play opposite Claudette Colbert in "Gilded Lily." His first picture made Fred a star overnight, and he has since co-starred with other top-ranking actresses than almost any other man in pictures.

Second Feature

"THE 7th VOYAGE OF SINBAD"

Dynamation, newest of the movie-making processes, and easily the most spectacular, is used for the first time in Columbia Pictures' Technicolor entertainment "The 7th Voyage of Sinbad," which opens Thursday at the Park Theatre. In the Arabian Nights adventure stars Kerwin Mathews and Kathryn Grant and co-stars Richard Eyer as the Genie. Torin Thatcher heads the supporting cast. A Morningside Production, "The 7th Voyage of Sinbad" was written for the screen by Kenneth Kolb, Nathan Juran directed and Charles H. Schneer produced. "The 7th Voyage of Sinbad" with its visual effects created by Ray Harryhausen.

A GRAND GUY!

Call Him "Herbie," "Ted" or this column-dubbed "Ole Clocker," the slim guy with the infectious smile, and the friendly personality rates a niche in the city's softball hall of fame—if it had one.

With the exception of the past few years, Ted Henn has lived, breathed and dreamed softball. He was kept busy in his latter seasons coaching, until the Clucker ticker started kicking up and forced his retirement from active participation.

Down through the years since those merry halcyon days of the champion Percivals when big "Hawky" loomed over first base like a giant oak, second basemen have come and gone. Some may differ, but it will take long and forceful argument to convince this observer that better second-sackers than the perennial Herbie, have shown their stuff here.

There could have been, but you won't need any extra fingers on your hand to count them.

Herbie understood plays, players and the game he loved and still loves so much. This was apparent in his coaching and managerial days. The Ole Clocker had a lot more softball between his ears than not a few gave him credit for. Moreover he made what he thought was right, stick, and never lost any friends in the doing.

He was a great competitor, with a fierce desire to win. But he always won the right way. He could take defeat without a whimper, knowing himself only too well the glory of victory. He never, so to speak, "kicked a fallen foeman." He was generous in his attitude toward the defeated, but fiercely critical of his own club if "boners" played a part in loss.

The Clucker was deservedly popular. In the parlance of the sport he could "take it as well as dish it out." Many an umpire has felt the verbal wrath of Ted's tonsils. Right or wrong, he was a tremendous battler for his club. He felt it was part and parcel of the game.

Now the Ole Clucker is playing in the grimmest game of his life. He is in Kingston General Hospital with a recurred condition of a disability that has forced him to the sidelines on more than one occasion. This time it is deadly serious.

Last week he underwent an operation and physicians said he had a very rare heart condition, something which surgery they doubt, can help. However, Herbie is cheery, but lonesome. He sits up in a chair for brief periods.

This department has been informed the Belleville Umpires' Association is planning a "Herbie Henn Night." The Association is to be commended. Nothing could be finer. Softball can well afford to do so little for a man who has done so much for it.

We understand Al Kelleher and "Shud" Ethier are spearheading the project. Tentative plans call for a game between the Point Anne Cementmen and Bob Temple's Bobcats, with both clubs being augmented with stars from the Cobourg Merchants and Trenton Garretts.

We do not doubt for a moment that the teams and players involved will have no objections. No date has been set as yet for the proposed exhibition tilt.

We also have no doubt as to the success of the venture. For the popularity Herbie enjoyed was not confined to his softball activities and associations. The genial cuss with the ever-ready smile and cheery greeting, a grand sense of humor and the ability and willingness to "argue" on any sports subject, was well-liked in other circles in which he moved.

We first met the Clucker some 18 or 20 years ago when he was playing on a team, we forget which. However, he objected to something that had appeared in the paper, and he made no bones about telling us about it. He waggled a forefinger under the reportorial nose until he nearly shook it off, and the newspaper schnozzle backed up until it almost sprouted on the back of the neck midway between the ears.

A crowd of spectators enjoyed Herbie's supposed tirade, and this reporter's discomfiture. Then his face broke out in a wide grin. He reached over, patted us on the back and started to make noises like a biddy that had just laid a triple-yolker. Then and there was born the name "The Ole Clucker," and a long and lasting friendship.

It won't be necessary to ask the softball faithful, past and present, to patronize "Herbie Henn Night." Of that we are sure.

Meanwhile, we join the hundreds of softball fans of the city and district in wishing the Ole Clucker a speedy return to health, and may that well-known voice echo from softball bleachers for more years than we can count.

Bucs Tighten National Race; Yankees Blank Tribe

Law Man Beats Dodgers 9-1 As Cubs Tomahawk Braves; Indians Share Top With Sox

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

When your two aces have won only four games and have lost 16 by the middle of July, there oughta be a law. For Pittsburgh, there is — Vern Law.

A year ago, the Pirates finished a sudden second in the National League race, with Bob Friend a 22-game winner and young George Witt winning his last seven in a row.

At the moment, Friend has a 4-10 record, Witt is 0-6. Yet the Bucs are fourth, just 2½ games shy of first, and it has been Law's job as a starting pitcher, plus Roy Face's magnificent relief performance that has put them there.

WINS FIVE OF SIX

Law won his 10th, a total bettered only by Face's 34 on the Pittsburgh staff, with a seven-hitter that beat Los Angeles 9-1 Tuesday night. It was the big right-hander's fifth success in six decisions and it pushed the Pirates within one percentage of the third-place Dodgers.

First-place San Francisco gained a four-game lead although rained out at Philadelphia. Second-place Milwaukee lost its tilt to the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis ended Don Newcombe's winning streak at eight by beating Cincinnati 8-5 in 11 innings.

Law 10-5 lost his shutout in the sixth when Charlie Neal doubled and Wally Moon singled. But he was home free from the start when seven consecutive hits gave the Bucs five first-inning runs against Johnny Podres 8-5 and Clem Labine.

DRAVES' ERRORS HURT

Three Milwaukee errors gave the Cubs four unearned runs, three of them scoring in a four-run, tie-breaking seventh inning caped by a two-run single from winning reliefer Bill Henry 6-4. Lee Walls and Earl Averill homered for the Cubs, Hank Aaron hit his 30th home run for Milwaukee.

The Cardinals rapped Newcombe 9-5 for 17 hits, Don Blasingame and Joe Cunningham after Stan Musial's eighth home run had tied it 5-5 in the sixth. Cincinnati chased starter Larry Jackson in a four-run third, triggered by Frank Robinson's three-run, 23rd homer, his fifth in five days. Reliefer Lindy McDaniel was the winner.

Harness Racing

MONTREAL (CP) — Philip Frost, a Montreal-owned trotter, has been selected as Canada's entry in the $50,000 international trot at Roosevelt Raceway, Yonkers, N.Y., Aug. 1.

Alden Gray, the track's racing director, made five scouting trips to Canadian trotting parks before announcing Tuesday night the selection of the five-year-old horse owned by Jean Levesque as an entry in the international field which includes trotters from five European countries.

Philip Frost is trained and driven by Jim Weisner.

TORONTO (CP) — Wilbert Hopkins, veteran trainer-driver from Port Elgin, came up with his fifth victory as an independent operator at Old Woodbine Park Tuesday night.

Hopkins, who drove for the Owen Sound stable of Harry Lumley and Tommy Burlington last season, decided to train a string on his own for various owners this year, and climbed into third place on the driving list Tuesday night.

He drove a four-year-old gelding, Mighty Tod, owned by M. Macdonald of Strathroy, to his third straight victory, although only two of them count on Hopkins' record, since the first was a qualifying race to establish that Mighty Tod belongred at Old Woodbine Park.

Lady Harness Driver Former Brighton Girl

TORONTO (CP) — After driving in two trotting races at Old Woodbine Raceway Retta Harrington says about men:

"You gotta watch 'em during the race."

She should know. She's the first girl to compete in a regular race at the raceway.

Although this is the third season she has been driving harness horses it's the first time she's brought her stable to an extended mutuel meeting.

Retta was introduced to the sport as a youngster in her hometown of Brighton.

"I'm not sure how many winners I've driven", says Retta. "Maybe seven or eight. But there will be more."

As trainer of the Roy Mitchell Stable, Retta is the only fulltime feminine trainer at Woodbine.

Braves 'Red' Says He'll Play; Doc Says 'No'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Second baseman Red Schoendienst — making rapid progress after a bout with tuberculosis — said Tuesday he'll begin his "spring practice" late in August and rejoin Milwaukee Braves in September.

"Right now I feel I can play nine innings," the 36-year-old Schoendienst told the Globe-Democrat.

However, Schoendienst's personal physician, Dr. William Werner, said that's it's unlikely the redhead will be able to play every day in September.

"But I don't expect any restrictions on what he can do next year," Wr. Werner added.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian swimmers may do okay in the Pan-American Games at Chicago next August but Canada never will produce world champions unless a lot of changes are made, says Tommy Walker, long-time coach of international teams.

"Our athletes have been left behind badly since the Second World War," Walker said in an interview during the Canadian amateur swimming championships at Brantford, Ont., last week. "This doesn't apply only to swimming—it's the same in every other amateur sport."

Walker should know what he's talking about. A great swimmer himself he held 17 Canadian titles in the 1920s, he has been teaching young Canadians to stay afloat for more than 30 years.

TRAINING BIG FACTOR

"Europe, and particularly Australia, has shown us what dedicated athletes can do", he said. "They train to exhaustion and they do it because they want to be the best in the world.

"Our kids haven't this natural spirit, at least not to the point where an athlete in world and Olympic competition is saying he has to die. That's the kind of athletes have it too soft.

"The toughness required to be a world champion is rare in our Canadian kids".

And Walker, who has coached five Olympic, British Empire Games and Pan-American Games swimming teams since 1932, takes a dig at his own profession. "Our coaches—and that includes myself—don't pull together.

"There are too many publicity seekers, fellows who are wrapped up in their own particular pres-

Lge. They are protecting the athlete, and the coaches are getting publicity and prestige for virtually nothing. They aren't beating anybody of top - flight calibre and that could leave the wrong impression with people who don't know too much about the sport."

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

Walker believes that Canadian swimmers have improved in the last 15 years, "but certainly not at the pace that are other countries are improving." He mentioned particularly Scotland, England, Germany, Australia, Holland and the United States.

"Athletes in those countries are much more disciplined than our kids, who take it too soft. They simply don't get out and train to the point where they can get mentally and physically tough—and that's the stuff that makes world champions."

Walker gaid particular tribute to Beth Whitiall of Montreal, a member of Canada's team at the 1955 Pan-American Games.

"That girl had the greatest potential and possibly the least ability of any swimmer on that team, and she won two gold medals. She won the butterfly and 10 minutes later jumped in the pool again to win a free-style event. She thought like a champion and she had the intestinal fortitude to be a champion."

Miss Whittall, a graduate in pharmacy at Purdue University, retired shortly after the Pan-American Games.

"We have the potential, probably as much as any other country, but at this rate we're going I don't think we'll produce world champion swimmers."

FAMOUS FIST — Archie Moore shows a group of admiring Little Leaguers of Montreal one of the power-packed fists that carried him to the world light-heavyweight championship.

'Hardboiled', Don Leo Meet In Rematch

Don Leo Jonathan and Hardboiled Haggerty will meet head on again this Friday night in the Memorial Arena weekly wrestling cards' main bout.

This time it should be a fight to a finish. Last Friday after a wild two-fall affair referee Joe Golob announced that it was all over. No explanation. Maybe the wrestlers themselves decided that.

Anyway should there be danger of such a thing happening again this Friday the matter will be solved right quickly. Two referees have been assigned to the bout and one of them is the popular young wrestler Don Jardine. Just who the other gentleman in white will be has not been disclosed.

The faithful can be assured of one thing for sure. With two of the game's ruggest individuals clashing, and another of the same handling part of the official duties, there will be plenty of action.

Jardine himself will help open the show against nasty Jan Golob. In the semi - final Jan Gardiber and Jack Laskin will provide the action in what should be a nice affair.

Action gets under way at nine o'clock.

Moore Drops 'Curtain' on Training Grind

MONTREAL (CP) — The "leather curtain" has descended on ex-bouts of Archie Moore but is to open today at nearby Ste. Anne de Bellevue for Yvon Durelle.

Jack Doc Kearns, Moore's manager, using the term "leather curtain", gave no reason for holding Moore's workouts in secret but did mention that "people from the Durelle camp" had been snooping around.

The mystery training which began Monday and ends Saturday, Moore defends his light-heavyweight title against Durelle July 23.

Durelle is scheduled to arrive here today from Moncton, and the Baie Ste. Anne, N.B. fighter is expected to resume training almost immediately.

Durelle worked out in Moncton Tuesday with veteran trainer Charley Goldman who coached former heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano, yelling advice.

Goldman said he was preparing for a "tough 15-rounder" but thought Durelle would take care of the aging Archie before the fight went the distance.

Moore made a public appearance here Tuesday and provided the cats for more than 100 youngsters at the Negro community centre. It was his own idea, a member of his entourage said.

Billy Jurges replaced Mike Higgins as manager and that it has blasted its way out of the American League cellar.

In those 10 games Red Sox bats have exploded for 78 runs, an average of nearly eight a game.

The biggest blasters have been Jackie Jensen, last year's most valuable player, and the 40-year-old Ted Williams. Going into Tuesday night's game with Chicago—which the Red Sox lost 7-3 Jensen has ripped enemy pitching for a .343 average since Jurges took over. He has batted in 16 runs. Williams, who was batting .203 when Higgins quit, has hit at a .479 pace since then to boost his average to .244.

Is it the hitting or is Jurges the reason? The former scrappy National League shortstop, in his first managerial effort, has his men hustling.

Jurges showed he was boss the first day he took over by yanking the slumping Williams from his customary third spot in the batting order and shoving him down to sixth.

Bobby Green Out-Duels Campbell In Bobcats' 3-1 Win Over Cobourg

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Temple's Bobcats clung to their top perch in the Belleville and District Softball League standing last night before a good crowd at CNRA Park when they turned back one of their big threats, the Cobourg Merchants, by a 3-1 score.

The important victory, Bobcats' third over Cobourg, left them in first place with a nine won-four lost record, plus one tie game. Second place Point Anne is nine and five while Cobourg is third with seven wins, six setbacks and one deadlock.

Lefthander Bobby Green came through with a topnotch performance for the win. But he had to be good as his mound opponent, Rolly Campbell, duelled him right down to the wire.

Green started when Bobby Krull did not show up for his regular turn and for a while he was headed for a no-hitter. He let the Merchants down without a hit for the first 4⅔ innings before Dick Turpin broke the string with two out in the seventh.

Temple's ace southpaw was at his best with men on base, six of which he put on through walks in the opening five frames. He ended up with a five-hitter with five strikeouts to his credit. He walked the sacks full in the fourth but pulled out unharmed.

Rolly Campbell also tossed five-hit ball in hurling his fourth straight game for the Merchants. He claimed three on strikes while passing another trio.

Belleville built up a 3-0 lead with single markers in the second, fourth and fifth frames. After that they did not touch Campbell and it was up to Green to hold the Merchants at bay.

Cobourg threatened to erupt in the eighth when they scored their lone run. Back to back doubles to centre field by Burke Clarey and Campbell made it 2-1 before Green set the next three batters down in order. Again in the ninth the visitors came close as McIvor singled and Harnden beat out a bunt down the first base line. Once more Green came through to strand both runners, Cobourg's tenth and eleventh men left on base.

Bert Faulkner took over the league lead in home runs and gave the Cats a 1-0 lead when he blasted his fourth to centre field in the second. A misunderstanding as to who was to take his foul popup seconds earlier gave Faulkner a second chance and he made no mistake.

Geegan made it 2-0 when he walked, took second on a passed ball and raced home on Earl Cousins' single through the centre in the fourth frame.

Smrke and Brown combined to make it 3-0 in the next inning. Smrke singled, stole second base, went to third on a wild pitch and scored after Brown hit a long fly to left field.

Earl Cousins snapped his batting slump with two singles in as many official trips, to lead the winners at the plate. Faulkner had his circuit blast, Floyd Crawford a double and Lou Smrke a long single.

Clarey and Campbell doubled with Turpin, Chub McIvor and Clarke Harnden hitting one-baggers.

The line-up:

Bobcats — Turpin ss, 2b; O'Brien 3b; Clarey rf; Campbell p; McSporran lf; McCahan 2b; J. Hart lb; McIvor c; Harnden cf; Church ss.

Bobcats — Crawford 2b; Smrke rf; Brown ss; Hayden 3b; Faulkner lf; Geegan cf; Cousins c; Lamirande 3b; Green p.

Umpires — "Shud" Ethier (p) and Don Thomas. Time: 1:31.

Minor Baseball

The Giants scored five runs in the fifth frame to break up a tight 3-1 game and defeat the Braves 7-1 in a bantam baseball fixture at the Alemite Field last evening.

Braves took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first with the Giants tying it in their half of the inning. The Braves took a 3-1 lead in the second then sewed it up in the fifth.

Ron Werden relieved starter Jim McGuire in the fourth frame and toured no-hit ball over the remainder for the Giants. McGuire allowed two safeties.

Woodcock went the distance for the Braves, also allowing just two hits.

Stamps, Eskys Test Strength In Exhibition

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos, keen rivals, take their first faltering steps in search of the Grey Cup today.

In an exhibition game, each club will dress more than 40 players, many of whom will be around when the Western Interprovincial Football Union season opens Aug. 13.

It will be one of the earliest games ever played. The Stamps started training only 10 days ago and neither Calgary coach Olis Douglas nor Eagle Keys of Edmonton have seen enough of their players to even hint at a first-string lineup.

Most notable absentee in the Calgary lineup will be Jim Bakhtiar, Iranian-born fullback who sparked the Stamps last year but who has returned to medical studies at the University of California.

Edmonton will be without fullback Normie Kwong. Kwong did not sign after the Eskimos turned down his request to be traded to Vancouver. Lashuk is recovering from a minor injury.

Meanwhile, at Regina, Gordon Helms, quarterback who played college football at Valparaiso, Ind., has arrived to try out with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Helms was given honorable mention in the little all-American selections of 1956 and 1957. He attended the rookie quarterback camp of Cleveland Browns this season and was recommended to Riders by that club.

GAYNOR ON BROADWAY

Automakers Can Survive Strike For Ninety Days

DETROIT (AP)—Auto manufacturers will be able to survive a steel strike lasting 60 to 90 days with no particular strain, it is at least one of them can go on longer than that.

U.S. auto industry normally absorbs about 15 to 20 per cent of the total steel production.

All of the automakers have vast steel stockpiles, plus about 1,000,000 1958 models already built.

Long-range plans call for all but one Corporation production of 1959 models to end by early August as for General Motors flooded production to end during August. Ford division plans to run until early September with other Ford Motor Company production shutting down in August.

Ford will be the least hit by the strike since it normally makes about 50 per cent of its steel at its Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn. Workers in the Ford steel operation, all members of the United Auto Workers union, were not affected by the strike.

The other automakers have accumulated enough steel for their big initial runs of 1960 models.

FREEDOM FOR THOUSANDS

ROME (Reuters)—Prison doors erected today for thousands of Italian prisoners as a result of an amnesty aimed at wiping out a judicial backlog of political cases. The number affected by the amnesty may go as high as 200,000. Most of the cases re-sulted from the days when Italians fought each other on opposing sides in the final stages of the war.

POLICE WIN CHASE

TORONTO (CP) — Two men were arrested early Sunday after a frantic chase through downtown streets that reached speeds up to 95 miles an hour and involved six police cars. A 200-pound safe from a King Street West restaurant was recovered from the back seat of the car. Police said Stanley Smith, 38, and Edward Scott, 36, were charged with breaking and entering.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, July 16

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You may run up against some snag in the performance of your work or with a fellow worker this bright morning. The afternoon is infinitely better, however, and you can make excellent contacts with those of power and charming personality.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — You feel tied down and distraught this A. M. because you cannot take beauty treatments and then dash out for a rollicking good time. This must await a better day. Devote day to family, security, all obligations that are pressing.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Steer clear of that argument about to start with family tie. Have a meeting with associates and work out a better plan of operation that will meet with increasing success, whether mercantile or artistic. Be co-operative.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — It is best to pay no attention to item of gossip or downright meanness, and devote your time and energy to increasing present security. You are capable of commanding a bigger stipend or doubling present profits.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — A bill or other commitment could really trouble you in early A.M. Handle as best you can and do not worry over it. Later, seek out the brilliant person and put forward that wonderful idea you have. Backing will be yours. Be gay.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Best way to alleviate own troubles is to be of service to others. Unruffle the feathers of disturbed family tie by being very understanding yet firm. P. M. be happy at a little social gathering at own residence. Have fun.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Busting and fussing over a serious problem only ruins your health and mind, so work constructively instead and all will clear up nicely soon. P. M. get together with associates or family for happy powwow.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Comrade of real character will really mow you down today if you try any cute tricks. Be big and devoted instead. A good chance is then yours to impress favorably one of great power and gain considerable support you need.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Get those bills paid as early as possible this morning. Also, be sure you do not irritate higher-ups. Afternoon is then fine for stepping out and acquiring much knowledge you require in certain subjects. Be alert.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Don't play hookey today and run after that seemingly tempting dish. This is the ideal day to cement better relations with those who are important in your life and work out a better modus operandi. Think and you succeed.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Morning problem would really set you on a spin if you did not calm down and treat it objectively. Avoid arguments. Later, confer with associate after a wise friend gives you fine suggestions on matters of policy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you fail to control your temper with associate or competitor in A. M. your day will be ruined. Take it easy. Then after lunch you can accomplish a very great deal and you will gain much prestige and respect. P. M. fix abode.

If your child is born today . . . highly sensitive and rather delicate child born today will require much rest and care during adolescence or the nature may become a bitter one early in life.

There is a wonderful quality of directness in this makeup, so give a fine academic education. Excellent chart for business or immortal art here.

Elliot Lake Chamber Asks Diefenbaker See Eisenhower About Purchase of Uranium

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker was urged yesterday to hold "top-level" talks with President Eisenhower in an effort to persuade United States to continue buying Canadian uranium in quantity after 1962.

The proposal was placed before Trade Minister Churchill by the Elliot Lake Chamber of Commerce, representing businessmen in Canada's richest uranium-producing region.

The brief urged that such a conference be held before the end of the year.

It said the Canadian uranium industry was developed partly at the request and with the assistance of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. As a result the U.S. became Canada's main customer and had some responsibility in the future of the industry.

EXPIRE IN 1962

Current contracts between Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited and the American commission expire in 1962. The federal government has been attempting to obtain assurance that they will be renewed but the commission is unsure from domestic producers not to import other than token quantities of uranium from Canada after 1962.

The chamber said the government should aim for renewal of the contracts until 1966.

The chamber proposed that Canada's first commercial nuclear power plant be located on the north shore of Lake Huron between Thessalon and Massey, Ont.

Trade Minister Churchill told the Commons last week that the 200,000 kilowatt power plant would be located on the Great Lakes at a site to be chosen by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The chamber urged the government to enter into agreements with all provinces for the construction of nuclear power plants, to develop small power plants for the north and to institute an intensive sales program for the export sale of Canadian power plants.

This would create new markets for the Canadian uranium industry.

Call Goes Out to Govt. Public to Fight Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — A call to government authorities and the public actively to fight inflation was sounded Tuesday by the Senate finance committee.

"Inflation is not inevitable," the committee said in a report tabled in the Senate following its six-week study.

It declared that "reasonable stability of prices" is compatible with—and also essential to—the attainment of economic progress and high levels of employment.

"Tools to contain inflation are available. What is necessary is the will and determination of the people and the authorities to use them."

ABSENT AT PRESENT

The committee, which in its meetings heard representations from major organizations in the economy, said there was virtually unanimous agreement among witnesses that there is no actual inflation at present.

But the report said "there is a widespread fear of inflation" and the greatest danger of such a fear is the possibility it could in itself bring about inflation.

"It is a matter of vital concern that this inflation psychology be overcome and that confidence in the future value of money be made secure.

"However, this task cannot be accomplished by sole legerdemain or empty exhortation.

POSITIVE ACTION

"There must be, not only a clear statement of purpose, but above all there must be a positive demonstration by the authorities in day-to-day policies that inflationary actions will be avoided.

"This means the exercise, when necessary, of the required restraint in monetary and credit policies. It means restraint in the growth of government expenditures and the avoidance of deficits, especially when these are inflationary in their effects.

"However, these restraints cannot work smoothly unless there is also restraint in the pressures which can be exerted by labor, business and other groups. If these pressures are too great either politically or economically can frustrate the efforts of the authorities and result in unemployment and stagnation."

Revolts Against Capitalist Rule Welcome--Nikita

Will Never Launch War But Hopes for Uprisings

SOSNOWIEC, Poland (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev said today Russia "never, never, never" will launch a war, but he added he would welcome an uprising by any nation against capitalist "robbers."

The Soviet premi . was speaking to an international "peace" congress during the third day of his 3-day visit to Poland.

In an hour's speech to the Congress, Khrushchev said: "Brothers, we give you our sincere promise that never, never, never shall we launch any war against anybody."

WORKING CLASSES

Khrushchev later made several references to the w rking classes of non-Communist countries and their international struggle against capitalism.

"I am sure that capitalist journalists will say that Khrushchev was calling on you to make an uprising," he told the 3,000 delegates.

"Not at all.

"But if a nation rises it will rise in the struggle for its interests founded on the class position in because it will fight for its own cause, for its own interests and for the freedom of the workers and for the freedom of utilizing their own forces. What is more lofty than to fight against capitalism?

Addressing the world's capitalists, Khrushchev said:

"You do not believe in God. If there were a God, and if he existed, he would take a harrow and sweep you out."

The 150 delegates, mainly from Communist-led unio . s in about 20 countries, applauded as Khrushchev added:

"Well, if people condemn us for our revolutionary activities, I would . quote the Bible and say when the money changers started doing business in the temple, Jesus Christ expelled them from the temple."

DEFENDS PACT WITH HITLER

Khrushchev defended Stalin's 1939 non-aggression pact with Hitler.

He said that if Britain and France had signed a pact with Russ a there would have been no war. The pact was made for fear to be directed against the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev cancelled a scheduled trip to the site of the former Nazi death factory of Auschwitz in Poland. The Germans exterminated millions there during the war.

The Soviet leader also made a speech Wednesday at the railway station in Katowice. His audience was faltering a.d at times incoherent to many listeners.

His stuttering and babbling aroused laughter a ong the well-dressed crowd, and some of the dignitaries cover d their faces to hide their mirth.

DISAPPEARED, TIRED

No official reason was given for Khrushchev's sudden change of plans not to visit the Auschwitz concentration camp, but persons following his 95-hour visit of the premier on his friendship tour of Poland believe he was tired.

He said he had visited Polish towns Wednesday. He sat quietly at a banquet in honor at Katowice after a brief exchange of toasts in white wine. The dy-

The jets forced the airliner to land at Budapest airport, a city where it was held for nearly four hours before going on to Vienna.

NFLD. WILL GET $36,500,000 OVER 5-YEAR PERIOD

Liberals Bitterly Oppose Enactment

OTTAWA (CP) — Whatever is behind the controversy, lately swirling about Newfoundland's place in Confederation, Harold Winch says that newest of Canadian provinces never had it so good.

"I want to say that the matter is very confusing," the CCF member for Vancouver East said Wednesday as the Commons finally gave official approval to a bill providing federal grants totalling $36,500,000 for Newfoundland, over a five-year period ending in 1962.

"Newfoundland has never had it so good even though its standards of security and income are not the lowest in Canada," said Mr. Winch.

He said he could not conceive of any federal government "not carrying on assistance to Newfoundland" and he can see that eventually that province at least "reaches the average standard of all Canada."

LIBERALS FIGHT HIM

The most bitterly opposition to the bill centered around the single word "thereafter" in recommendation of the Duncan royal commission which reviewed Newfoundland's financial position in the 10 years after joining up with Canada in 1949.

The commission recommended $36,500,000 in special federal payments over the five years ending in 1957 through 1962 and "thereafter, if and when necessary."

Finance Minister Fleming and Prime Minister Diefenbaker both said Newfoundland's needs after 1962 will be given every consideration. They argued that terms of 29 of Newfoundland's Confederation contract with Canada make no commitments for federal aid after 1962.

Special payments under that term were intended to allow Newfoundland to continue public services at the level reached in the post - Confederation decade without a rise in taxes above those in the other Atlantic Provinces.

The Liberals proposed three separate amendments. But, all were ruled out of order and eventually final reading was given without a formal division, oral indication of opposition without a formal vote. The bill now goes to the Senate.

THREE AMENDMENTS

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) contended that a special review be made before 1962 to determine if federal aid Newfoundland might need to maintain public services at 1957 levels. Liberal Eigher taxes than in the other Atlantic Provinces. Scottish Conservative, Hiis Adams moved an amendment of similar intent. Finally, Newfoundlander Harry W. Carter (L — Burin-Burgeo) sought to amend the bill to provide Newfoundland would get $8,000,000 annually after 1962.

First Victim of Radiation Faces 91st Operation in 64 Painful Years

CHICAGO (AP)—He lay there —a wreck of a man after 64 years and his 91st operation—one of the first victims of radiation.

He spoke from only half a mouth, and his words were spaced times later. The operations also have claimed his left hand, most of his nose, his upper lips and parts of his left jaw.

He asks, "Why should I, an innocent individual, have to suffer like this?" For 64 years I have asked that question.

The white-haired man is Dr. Emil H. Grubbe, 83, credited as medical science with being the first to apply radiation in an attempt to cure cancer.

He is scheduled to undergo Friday his 92nd operation for radiation burns and cancer resulting from his pioneering experiments. Doctors say they probably will have to remove two fingers from his left hand Friday.

CBC "Weak", Needs Review States Commons Committee; Would Limit Financial Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — A limit on federal treasury support of the CBC was proposed today by the Commons broadcasting committee.

The committee, in its report tabled in the Commons, also said the corporation's structure of operations — the publicly - owned corporation — is weak and in need of a thorough review.

But on one of the most explosive issues the committee studied during its 33 hearings—allegations that "undesirable political interference" was to blame for removal of the radio program Preview - Commentary—the committee said it "found no evidence to support the charge."

The committee's report followed by a few months the Diefenbaker - Lesage report by the CBC showing the corporation received $61,000,000 from the federal treasury in the fiscal year ended March 31. This covered about two-thirds of its total expenditure of $97,514,533, up about $12,000,000 from the previous year.

The committee said it "noted with concern" the recent steep rises in CBC costs, and said it was "unable to ascertain that there is any intelligible formula or principle that has been followed in the annual budget of the CBC."

It recommended that parliament do adopted whereby limits may be set on the annual contribution of the federal government to the corporation. Further . . . it should be possible to make studies to ensure the emergence of vigorous commercial policies."

It expressed concern over the low proportion of the cost of sponsored programs contributed—only 25 per cent is covered by advertiser payments and the indebtedness of the "method" of . s ting the charges to the sponsor.

It acknowledged the CBC has difficulties in getting sponsors to cover the entire cost of some types of programs, but said "despite this, there is a suggestion of inequity in the disparity between the charges to different sponsors."

The CBC board of directors should make an immediate study to find a practicable formula and policy for determining a return from sponsored programs."

The committee's six-page report did only two sentences of praise for the CBC.

It said the committee "affirms its support of the basic aims and objectives of the CBC. We commend the officers of the corporation for their efforts to further these aims and objectives."

But it followed that statement with its criticism . t . the present Diefenbaker administration "weak and in need of a thorough revision."

It said there is a lack of clear definition of authority, a multiplicity of authority in some places and a divided authority in others. There is apparent lack of effective liaison between top-level management and those responsible for program production.

"This has caused confusion and frustration among the CBC employees, which are factors to which the committee is of the opinion may be largely attributable."

Decentralization of management "may well have gone too far," it said. "The CBC executive should give immediate consideration to a reorganization of responsibility to CBC headquarters in Ottawa.

The CBC board of directors should assume full responsibility for policy and . t . the chairman should hold no other executive office in the CBC."

Reds Aim to Make Germany Communist State Showpiece

GENEVA (AP)—Russia's main political aim in Europe appears to be to establish East Germany as a showpiece Communist state and Moscow's strongest Continental ally.

The Russians seem determined to stick with their present policy providing Germany indefinitely or reuniting the country but making it neutral.

That apparently is the significance of Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's proposal that the all-German Council be established six months while a commitee of West and East Germans negotiates reunification.

It is the Kremlin view that Soviet Russia is the leader of the East German military and economic power in an effort to offset the West German Republic and to equip West German forces with nuclear weapons and the Communist and power of the booming West German economy.

One big problem the Reds have been unable so far to solve is the possibility of an anti-Communist uprising similar to the 17,000,000 East Germans. Ever - haunting is the spectre of time being on the current Soviet effort to squeeze the Allies out of West Berlin.

Gromyko's proposal is designed to have reached these conclusions by the end of the year on a strategy and plans at the foreign ministers talks here and Soviet acceptance.

Gromyko seldom if ever has let his cards show through. He repeated the claims of East Germany's government for wider recognition.

When East German Party Secretary Walter Ulbricht and Premier Otto Grotewohl visited Moscow last month, they were given a resounding diplomatic reception by the Russians as any other foreign dignitary since their visit, including Prime Minister Nehru of India or Mao Tse-tung, the Communist Chinese chief.

Drew Urges Free Society State Educational Concepts

OXFORD, England (CP) — A free society must set forth the "ethical and practical concepts" of education in a free society Governor General Vincent Massey said last night in a speech by George Drew, Canada's high commissioner in London.

Drew spoke at the opening session of the Commonwealth Education Conference, largest of its kind in 30 years.

He said the real division between totalitarian and free nations lies in the field of moral and spiritual values.

"In the cold war . . . the most decisive weapon in our armory may well be a clear concept of education in our free society. Russia is committed to a form of education, highly effective in its technical aspects, to its ends and cruel as the educational system of Nazi Germany was cruel to the end by its own severity.

"The absence of ethical and standards in Russian education could be the Achilles' heel of their whole system."

Some 150 delegates from a dozen Commonwealth countries and the United Kingdom dependencies gathered at Oxford University for the week-long session of the two-week conference, which one British newspaper said is "the most interesting point in Commonwealth history."

Fear Typhoid In Boys' Camp

IJMUIDEN, Holland (Reuters) A camp of 200 Canadian boys near this Dutch port was isolated today by medical authorities, who feared a dramatic outbreak of typhoid fever has broken out in the camp.

The boys are children of Canadian servicemen stationed in Western Germany.

Wednesday night four boys complained of severe abdominal pains and their number had grown to 16 by noon today.

Although the disease has not yet definitely been determined as typhoid fever, medical authorities have decided to isolate the camp pending an investigation.

In nearby Haarlem Wednesday, authorities issued a warning to the population to cook all food carefully in view of an outbreak of typhoid fever in Amsterdam and Heemstede. The number of affected people is related to run into several thousands.

OTTAWA (CP) — Keith Connolly, 20, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Don Cormack of Moncton, N.B., was drowned Wednesday while swimming with his parents in the Ottawa River.

NO INDICATION OF EARLY BREAK IN STEEL STRIKE

Unemployment Seen In Other Industries

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Union and management negotiators marked time today as the basic steel industry strike in the United States entered its growing unemployment in other areas of the economy.

There was no indication of any early break in the strike of 500,000 members of the United Steelworkers that began Tuesday midnight—the sixth major shutdown since the war.

EFFECT SPREADS

Patches of unemployment have sprung up and will grow daily in such allied industries as rail, coal, truck, inland water shipping, iron ore mining and processing.

Roughly 20,000 or more workers in these industries have been made idle.

Joseph Finnegan, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, summed up the deadlocked situation Wednesday when he stated:

"I don't think it's susceptible to easy or early solution."

NO PEACE MOVES YET

At the direction of President Eisenhower, Finnegan had met with industry and union men in New York to explore their positions. He said afterward he has no plans to call them together until Monday.

Earlier, the union proposed—and the industry rejected—a plan to submit disputed issues to a fact-finding board. The industry said the facts already are well known.

Basically, the union seeks increased wages and fringe benefits, while management, contending the steel industry can afford it. The industry says that to grant the demands would be inflationary; it must hold the line on product price costs and also have more leeway in effecting operating economies.

NO TAFT-HARTLEY YET

The president said Wednesday night that a government board of inquiry is not in order at this time. He said there is no prospect emergency which would justify government intervention under the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Once again he urged both sides to exercise statesmanship and responsibility to get the strike settled quickly.

The strike has brought to a standstill nearly 90 per cent of the steelmaking capacity of the nation.

System-wide layoffs went into effect today by the Pennsylvania Railroad employees.

Contracting Firm Held Responsible For Gas Blast

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judgment Wednesday ruled the contracting firm of G. D. Lindal Ltd. responsible for a natural gas explosion that destroyed a three-storey house in suburban Scarborough early last year.

Mr. Justice Gale, who rendered that a Supreme Court master decide how much damages the firm should pay Mr. and Mrs. David McTaggart, owners of the property.

The McTaggarts, who were not in the house when the explosion occurred, had sued both the construction firm and Consumers' Gas Company. They also sued the hospital but said a transfusion was against their beliefs as Jehovah's Witnesses.

Hospital officials insisted the operation was necessary to save the life and got authority for it from Mrs. Lloyd S. Hartzler in Superior Court.

Spanish Dancers Capture Eyes Of Royal Couple at Concert

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip made their last stop in Vancouver a memorable one Wednesday as extravagant dress-up concert Wednesday night in the newly named Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

To entertain the royal couple and an almost capacity audience of about 2,700 in the city's new $6,000,000 auditorium, there was a massive mixed choir, full concert orchestra with two conductors and two of Canada's most prominent classical performers.

There was also a five-member Spanish flamenco dancers. This group captured the royal attention.

The Queen and prince leaned forward intently as members of the Ximenes-Vargas dance troupe rose slowly from a sunken pit on one of the orchestra's two elevated stages. There was a conspicuous lack of castanets but there was a guitar and a tenor singing plaintively of Spain.

As the dark - haired couple watched with interest, members of the troupe launched into foot-stamping flamenco and sang.

For the remainder of the half-hour show, Sir Ernest MacMillan of Toronto, violinist Betty-Jean Hagen of Edmonton and the 65-piece orchestra played a Handel sonata, while soprano Lois Marshall of Toronto joined the orchestra under Nicholas Goldschmidt of Vancouver and a choir of more than 120 voices in Gloria by Antonio Vivaldi.

Continue Geneva Secret Talks As Social Functions

Russians Will Attend Though Germans Barred

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union has eased up on its demands that East and West Germany sit in "go-secret talks at the Big Four foreign ministers said today.

Informants said the Russians indicated a readiness to take part with the British, French and U.S. foreign ministers at social functions from which the Germans would be barred.

The outlines of the compromise emerged after a dinner conference Wednesday night at which Jakob Malik, Soviet ambassador to London, met with Sir Patrick Reilly, British ambassador to Moscow.

The conference still remained snarled, however, over a solution to the Berlin crisis—the basic issue that drew the four powers to Geneva.

STANDING FIRM

The West stood fast against any Soviet move formula for Berlin granting new power and prestige to the East German government.

Western leaders said they would not budge from their stand not to obtain a Berlin deal recognizing the East German Communist regime as political equals.

The West at Wednesday's session of the foreign ministers conference rejected the Soviet proposal for a six-month round-table talk on Russia's demand that the two Germanys form a confederation.

The Allies now must come up with a counter-proposal to preserve big power responsibility for bringing about German unification and a peace settlement without giving new recognition for East Germany.

A likely Western proposal is for almost continuous Big Four conferences at the level of the foreign ministers.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has given no indication the Soviet government would accept such a plan.

The Allies seems to be to use the Soviet threat to West Berlin to put pressure on the Russians to force a true unification negotiations over to the Germans, with the East German government recognized as having the same power and position as Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's regime.

The West contends Adenauer's government is fully representative, but that the government in East Germany is a Soviet puppet imposed by the Russian army.

Police Capture Suspect in London Killing

LONDON (AP)—A man who had been the object of a nation-wide manhunt by police seeking the killer of a London detective was arrested today.

The arrested man is 30-year-old Gordon Frederick Ingram, a member of the Nazi Hitler youth in Germany before the war, who committed to Canada in 1955. He was deported in 1958 after a number of convictions for theft and housebreaking.

Police had been searching all over the country for Podola since the fatal shooting Monday night of Detective - Sergeant Raymond Goslett.

Podola was picked up a few hours after his picture was flown in from Ottawa. The picture, along with a list of his fingerprints; was sent by the RCMP.

Podola was also in the layer of a Chelsea apartment building while trying to detain a man suspected of passing counterfeit to Joan Schifferman, 30-year-old nurse.

Detectives were put on Podola's trail by a dairy driver who said he saw a man suspect just before the man pulled a gun and shot his captor through the heart.

With them will be an identical number of Quebec high school students, who will be visiting in Belleville for two weeks at the homes of the returning students.

County Council Decides to Build New Court House

Following a lengthy caucus meeting yesterday, Hastings County Council passed the first and second readings of a borrowing by-law, which provides for financing $500,000 for the erection of a new county court house, registry office, and county offices. The architect of the new courthouse is to be named and he will be instructed to call for tenders once again. The council also decided that the new buildings are to be built on the site of the present court house and offices.

About 47 to 48 per cent of the cost of the court house and registry office will be jointly borne by the City of Belleville and the Town of Trenton. The cost of the new county offices will, of course, be borne by the county alone. County Clerk Eric Denyes has stated that the county will not have to borrow its entire share of the costs of the new buildings inasmuch as the county treasury now shows a surplus.

The borrowing by-law now goes to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval before the county can borrow the funds necessary for the project.

The decision of the county council to reverse their decision re building a new court house and offices, apparently stems from the fact that the finance committee found that the cost of renovations to existing buildings was going to be quite high.

Bancroft Hydro Office to Move To New Building

BANCROFT — Squeezed by the district's mining and tourist development, Ontario Hydro will move from its Rural Operations Area office here to new and larger quarters July 20.

Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, Ontario Hydro Commissioner, will officially open the combined office and service building on Highway 28 near Bancroft's western outskirts.

The one-storey cement block building has a floor area of some 8,600 square feet — almost eight times that of the old office on downtown Hastings Street North.

It will be headquarters for nine office workers, a field staff of 30 and about 50 construction workers — a team that looks after the district needs of 2,500 customers in an area of approximately 1,800 square miles.

Mining activity and resort developments on lakes in the area have resulted in the steady load increase from 1,560 customers at the beginning of 1958. In the fall of 1949, the first rural line was strung for less than a mile. Now there are more than 450 miles of rural line.

The rural operating area extends from Wilberforce and Gilmour region to Lake St. Peter and Combermere, and from McArthur's Mills almost to Wilberforce on the west.

Bowling Notes

The mixed doubles tournament sponsored by the Sports Centre Ltd. on the Trenton greens on Wednesday afternoon was one of the best ever staged in this district. Firstly the greens chairman, Austin Watkins and timekeeper Charlie Mathews had the greens in perfect condition and secondly Bruce Miller, one of the better bowlers in the club and part owner of the Sports Centre Ltd. Bob Bland, came up with the best prizes given in the district in some time. Mr. Miller instituted this tournament this year and it is one that is eagerly looked forward to each year.

Despite the fact that entries at tournaments in the district are dropping off at an alarming rate, there was a full entry for the tourney and which included Kingston, Belleville, Brighton, Campbellford and Stirling. There were no entries from Trenton, which is considered unusual for the Belleville bowlers always put in a strong team to run by that club. The greens as said before were in excellent condition and lighting was such it took the bowlers some time to find their weight.

Belleville bowlers carried off the major prizes, the top three teams being from the Belleville club. Gordon Watkin and his wife, Joan, were presented with the winning the Sports Centre trophies and the accompanying prizes. Gordon got a complete spinning outfit, tackle box and lures, while Mrs. Watkin received a sweater. Wally Lavergne and Mrs. Reta Lloyd were in second place while Austin Watkin and his mother, Mrs. George Watkin were third. The two-game high was taken by William Percy and Mrs. D. M. Orens of Kingston, while the one-game high went to Ed Dennison and Mrs. B. Coppins also of the Kingston Club. Percy Graham, president of the club, welcomed the visitors and he with the sponsor, Bruce Miller, conducted the draw. It was a splendid tournament

The second play-downs for the women's section will get under way on Saturday at the Trenton greens with Trenton, Stirling and Belleville competing. Games will be played in trebles, doubles and singles and the winners will go into the Kingston play-downs at Kingston on August 8th. The winner of this from the local club will be Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon, Mrs. Millie Smith and Mrs. Jean Wallace as skip, Mrs. Betty Vince and Mrs. Carrie Mott will compete in the doubles and Mrs. Elsie Humphreys, president of the women's section in the singles. The trebles rink as now constituted won the district championship two years ago and are out to repeat that performance and fully good luck to them and all the competitors.

Gordon McInroy Appointed New Supt. of Works

Hot weather has not slowed down the activities of the Public Works crews about the city. On the west side of the city the crews are now in a good state of preparation and a final oiling for dust control purposes will be applied during the next few days.

City engineer Malcolm Turnbull reports that the roads in this area are in very good condition and that this is most probably due to the ditching program, which was recently completed. Less maintenance is now being required to keep these roads in first rate condition. The ditching program on Sidney Street will resume next Monday and continue to the northwest area. Other ditching work will be starting in the Quinte Heights area.

Preparatory work for the laying of an asphalt and crushed rock road surface by the McFarland firm is now underway. Grading operations on the road building firm will be starting next week.

The department's weed control program has been proceeding very satisfactorily with the co-operation of the citizens in spraying with the poisons which have been very good indeed, according to Mr. Turnbull. Only 130 notices have had to be issued to date.

These buildings have kept the department's sewer crews quite busy with new connections around the city. In several of the subdivisions supervisory staff have been checking where their streets are accepted by the city. In one place public works crews are engaged in the actual preparation work.

Two new appointments have been made within the ranks of the Public Works department. Gordon McInroy has been placed over the position of superintendent of the west end, Mac Millan has been appointed general foreman. Both men have been with the department for a number of years.

Consider Dams To Keep Stoco Lake Level Up

A dream of many years' standing, a system of dams which will maintain a higher level in Stoco Lake during the summer months, for the benefit of cottagers and other recreationists, may yet prove feasible.

When the proposal was first made by the Stoco, Tweed and the township of Hungerford, back about 1931, investigation showed that the only method by which it would be possible to dam the lake waters in the summer and yet avoid an increased flood hazard in the spring would involve a heavy expenditure for hydraulic gates. The proposal was dropped because of cost. Now however, it has been suggested that the water level might be maintained during the summer by the use of temporary dams, such as are in use in some other areas. Most of these other dams are constructed by the executive of the Moira River Conservation Authority, meeting at the Authority's office at Canniffton recently, therefore decided to ask Mr. A. R. Langford, senior conservation engineer of the Department of Planning and Development, to study the feasibility of the practicality of installing such temporary dams. It is expected that an engineer of the department will inspect the outlet of the lake within the next week or so.

FINANCIAL REPORT

The meeting heard a financial report which showed that a total of $1,344.73 has been spent to date of the reforestation budget, leaving unexpended a balance of $7,005.89, including the small amount carried over from 1958. At Col. Deacon Conservation Area Conservation Area the sum of $5,143.97 has been spent to date for fencing, brushing, right-of-way clearance, tree planting and road construction. The total spent of this amount will be repaid to the Authority as part of the 1959 Dominion-provincial winter works program. A further $2,518.14 was spent on building operations at the mile of road, providing 36 picnic tables, fencing, hardware and seeding trees.

The report on the general conservation activities showed that a total expended to date of $5,555.45 consisting of administration of reforestation $213.40; vehicle — $257.52; public education — $136.36; general administration and public relations — $1,705.62; conservation areas — $1,024.12; and water conservation — nil; water control — $1,724.83. The unspent amount — $555.50

The expended balances available in both accounts will depend on whether or not the Authority receives all payments from the province. Should maximum grants be obtained in all cases funds will be available as follows — labor at Col. Vandervaart Area $643.31; capital development at Vandervaart Area — $1,241.31; general conservation activities — $5,074.97.

The secretary-treasurer noted that there were grants due from the province totalling $6,960.37 but that all municipalities had paid their 1959 levies.

The secretary-treasurer was authorized to continue to employ Mr. Mac Sarles as necessary to carry out various laboring jobs.

Attempt to Swim To Shore Proves Fatal for Farmer

PICTON (Special) — A fifty-three-year-old Big Island farmer boasted to a party of five fishing friends he could swim 200 feet to shore Wednesday afternoon.

He couldn't. He drowned in the attempt.

Ivan Tuuling, an Estonian, went on a cruising trip with two Belleville friends and visitors from New York and Rochester in the Bay of Quinte off the island.

Tuuling said, it is stated, in a joking manner he could swim the distance to shore. It is not known what happened but he disappeared from the water and started swimming. He never reached the shoreline.

The drowned man came to Canada from his native country in 1948. He had lived on Big Island for the past four years.

He was married with no children.

Picton Provincial Police investigated the tragedy.

Town Officials to Inspect Second-Hand Street Sweeper

TRENTON — The town's engineering office has received word that a street sweeper is available in Toronto and that it is expected that Councillor Lloyd Weese, chairman of the Public Works Committee and Town Engineer Eric Aldersey will go to examine the machine the first of next week.

At a recent meeting of the town council the purchase of such a second-hand machine was approved and since that time the Public Works Committee have awaited word that one of the several machines available in the Queen city was ready.

If the town officials, who will be examining the machine are satisfied it will be bought and brought to Trenton.

Another machine, known as a distributor, which has been purchased from Toronto has not been delivered as yet but the city officials and the town of Trenton agreed upon it would remain in Belleville until the new one had been ordered and arrived.

This machine is used for the spraying of asphaltic oil on the paving work in its main capacity but it can be used, too, as a limited way, as a flusher and for spreading oil on dirt roads to keep dust down.

A third machine, which has been purchased for the town, has been put into operation is a painting machine for lines at crosswalks and stop lines within town boundaries.

It was used quite recently to paint crosswalks in the main business section of town during the day but was found to be hindering traffic as the fresh paint is inclined to stick to tires and this causes a one-lane traffic problem.

TO PAINT AT NIGHT

To overcome this Town Engineer Eric Aldersey has decided to put the machine to use during the night hours and the first trial of this will be done tonight. If it proves successful the remaining miles of streets will be done in this manner.

The painting machine was received by the town about a month ago and the purchase had been approved at the time the budget was drawn up last spring.

In other work carried out by the Public Works Department two gangs of town men are being kept busy patching streets. This work goes on all during the summer and costs the town about $10,000 for asphalt alone. However, to resurface the road entirely it would cost about $2,000 to the average block-long section of street.

A new men have been hired by the Public Works Department but these men are used to replace regulars, which are on their holidays and the new men will stay until the holiday season is over. They are persons who are on town relief when not working.

Mr. Aldersey reports that the 84-inch pipe is now at the water's edge where the Trenton Yacht club will construct a causeway from the mainland to the small islands just off shore and near the Trenton Memorial Park. Some of the fill has already been bulldozed into the water and the pipe will be used to let the river current to pass under the causeway and help to flush out the bay through the yacht basin.

COMPLETE FIRST BLOCK

Work on the Lightfoot Construction company on Ogden Street where it has been awarded the contract to build the first block of Ontario Street and College Street is now complete.

Mr. Aldersey also reports that the work on the government docks and on Fraser Park Drive has now been completed as far as the installation of sewers, manholes and storm sewers is concerned and cleaning up operations have begun. This work is being done by the Lightfoot Construction Company of Belleville and once the earth has settled the will proceed with the repected this will be done next fall. In the meantime the town street crew will keep it oiled to settle the dust.

With the installation of the storm sewer and once the street is properly graded it will eliminate the past habit of this area being flooded during and after every rain storm in the spring when the snow melts.

Bryon Hadley, Age 4½, Killed When Hit by Tourist's Auto

TRENTON — Four-and-one-half-year-old Bryon Hadley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hadley, First Avenue, Trenton, died in the arms of a doctor while being rushed to the hospital after the boy had been hit by a car on No. 2 Highway, near Fourth Ave., yesterday afternoon.

Driver of the car was John C. Goater, 13 Middle Street, Orono, Maine. Mr. Goater was on holidays in Canada with his wife and three-year-old daughter and the family was on the way to Guelph to visit friends there.

According to police reports the young boy and his seven-year-old brother were walking along the north side of the highway when all of a sudden the younger boy darted out onto the highway and into the path of the car.

Dr. J. D. Beecroft, whose house is on the corner of the intersection where the mishap occurred, was immediately on the scene and picked the lad up and moved him to the side of the road. When the Trenton police cruiser, driven by Constable George French, arrived seconds later the doctor carried the lad into the back of the cruiser but he died on the way to the Trenton Memorial Hospital. A fractured skull was given as the cause of death.

There were three eyewitnesses to the accident and one told this reporter at the scene that the two boys were walking along half-yeard apart when the younger one, Bryon ran without trying to pull away from his brother. When he did so he ran into the road and in front of the vehicle.

The witness said the car was not going very fast and the boy just stumbled and fell in front of the car after being hit. He was not dragged along the road nor did the car pass over the boy.

The driver of the car, who lives in Visibly shaken, told police he did not have a chance to avoid hitting the boy, although he braked and tried to swerve away. He said he was going slowly at the time.

Police also reported that according to the statements of eyewitnesses it would appear that the boy may have had his arms out when the car hit him and was fatally injured when his head struck the pavement.

The accident occurred about 2.20 p.m. yesterday afternoon and was investigated by the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

It was the second son the Bradley's have lost through accident. An older boy drowned in a swimming pool in Medicine Hat some time ago when the family was visiting there.

An inquest into the death will be held and the driver of the car and his family stayed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Jackson, 4 Orchard View, last night.

Three Escapees From Guelph Are Captured

TRENTON — Three escapees from the Ontario Reformatory in Guelph, Ontario, were recaptured in nearby Brighton early yesterday morning, about 15 hours after they had escaped from the jail.

They were captured by Cpl. L. Lyle of the Brighton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police and Constable H. C. Page, a clump of bull-rushes near one of the escapee's home in Brighton.

The men were Herbert Perry, 21, of Brighton, who was serving nine months for pointing a firearm and three charges of breaking, entering and theft; Jack Knight, 20 of Downsview, serving 12 months for car theft in Toronto, and Don Brittain, 21, of Owen Sound, serving 12 months for breaking and entry in Owen Sound.

The police report they had found a car hidden in an orchard near Brighton and upon checking on it the constables found it was stolen from Toronto. They put the pieces together, on knowing of the escape of Perry and his friends, and made a trip to his (Perry's) mother's home.

On leaving the home after not finding anyone there the police were about to leave when they noticed tracks leading into a bunch of bull-rushes.

The two policemen split up and Cpl. Lyle, following the tracks, came across one of the prison clothes. He continued on into the bull-rushes and suddenly met the three escapees crouching behind a thick clump of the rushes. He handcuffed them out and took them back to the police cruiser on the road where they were handcuffed and taken to the jail in Cobourg, where they will be awaiting deportation back to the reformatory.

The prisoners had escaped at 5 p.m. Tuesday while working on a haying party at the reformatory under the supervision of a guard. All three men were considered dangerous.

Police Probing Theft of Peanuts From Rail Car

TRENTON — Two police officials from the Canadian National Railways in Belleville were in Trenton yesterday to investigate the theft of 20 pounds of peanuts from a railway car here on Monday.

The seal on the car had been broken and all but a lot of the peanuts, which were in bulk packages, had been scattered around the car which indicated some had been eaten on the scene, and some had been taken when the culprits left the car.

The theft had been reported to the Trenton Police Department at the time and yesterday Inspector Bob Rutherford said some of the stolen peanuts had been recovered and were found hidden in the yard of the Beaver Lumber Company.

Officials feel that the nature of the theft would indicate it was children who had committed the crime, They said there were other items also in the box car which were more valuable, but these were not touched and only the peanuts taken.

Both railway and Trenton policemen are continuing the investigation.

Members Given Chance to View Filtration Plant

TRENTON — The regular meeting of the Public Utilities Commission will be held at the filtration plant this afternoon it was announced yesterday.

The chairman of the commission, Cliff Baker, said he decided to hold the meeting there to give the commission members and the press an opportunity to see the new addition to the plant in operation. The new filtration beds have been supplying water to the town for the past week.

The official opening of the plant, which is expected to be in August, will also be a topic of discussion at today's meeting.

For the past week the filtration plant, with its new addition has been supplying an average of 2,000,000 gallons of water per day and with some days going over that amount. Jim Page, PUC manager, said yesterday.

During June of this year the filtration plant pumped 27,885,- 400 gallons of water in comparison with 20,206,000 gallons during June in 1958.

Last month town wells supplied 24,230,000 gallons compared with 59,851,000 gallons during the same month in 1958.

The increase of water consumption in Trenton is attributed to the growth of the town as well as the lifting of restrictions.

However, PUC authorities feel that July will be the month to really tell whether or not during this month water consumption is at its peak. Last year during July the filtration plant supplied the town with 24,319,000 gallons and the wells pumped 39,410,000 for a total of over 3,000,000 gallons per day. During this month that year restrictions were in force and it was also the first month that the new swimming factory was operating and using about 300,000 gallons of water per day. This year the factory is closed down.

GOOD RESULTS

FARM SAFETY WEEK

Farming is a hazardous occupation - - and the statisticians can prove it.

An estimated 1,200 farm people are killed in accidents every year in Canada, and 100,000 are injured, says the Ontario Safety League, which is sponsoring the observance in this province of Farm Safety Week. The period set aside for stressing the need of safety measures on farms in both Canada and the U.S. is July 19 to 25, but as the Safety League says the success of the Week will not be measured by what happens during those seven days, but can only be judged properly by its effect on the next 51 weeks, and the years beyond that.

One reason why the occupational hazards in farming appear so high is that farming is a 24-hour occupation and the statisticians deal with it in that manner. Accidents in the farm home, or to the farmer or members of his family on the highways, are included in the total, while for the city worker they would not be considered in any summary of accidents while at work.

Where an accident occurs, though, is not important to its victim. A broken leg which results from a fall out of bed is just as painful as a broken leg from a fall from a second storey window. And the fact is that the farm family, besides the normal accident hazards in the home and on the highway, has these risks increased. For instance, there is the hazard of entering highways from public roads and driveways which restrict visibility. Around the farmyard, there is likely to be more occasion to climb ladders. Open wells and cisterns are common hazards in rural areas which are not duplicated in most urban centres.

To these dangers are added the truly occupational dangers of farming. The increase in the use of machinery, far from reducing these dangers, has increased them. Of the hundreds of fatal accidents on farmsteads and around service buildings in the U.S. show that 34.11 per cent were caused by machinery and only 4.90 per cent by animals. That does not mean, though, that an angry bull or a frightened horse is not dangerous. - - Even smaller farm animals can inflict serious injuries.

Carelessness or incompetence are the two factors which add to the toll by machinery and animals alike. Keeping small children away from animals at all times is an obvious safety measure but even older children should not be entrusted with the operation of the farm's most dangerous machine, the tractor. Each year more fatal tractor accidents occur in the 10 to 14 age group than in any other age category. If Farm Safety Week accomplishes nothing else but impressing on parents that young people not adequately qualified should not be permitted to handle tractors, it will have made a highly useful purpose.

TOMAYTOES AND TOMAHTOES

One of the pet peeves of linolype operators at the Intell concerns words which can be correctly spelled more than one way. Their annoyance is understandable. Newspapers have a "style." Even though a word is spelled correctly, the proofreader may alter it because the spelling used does not follow the paper's "style." This means more work for the operator.

Now this, of course, is humbug. We have a feeling that any spelling which is recognized as correct should be permissible, except for such obvious monstrosities as "have gotten" for "have not" and "thru" for "through."

This may be no more than a sign of inability to make up our mind, of a certain emotional instability. This suspicion is heightened the other day when ordering in a restaurant. So help us, we asked for "tomayto juice and fried tomahtoes - - ," all in the same breath. Perhaps we do that kind of thing all the time, using alternative pronunciation without rhyme or reason. We wouldn't know, because we are apparently not only tone deaf, but also deaf to the pronunciation for "when," "where" and "why" than that given in dictionaries published on this side of the Atlantic. We wonder how many people have peculiarities of speech regarding which they are totally unaware.

THE MEN OF THE DAY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

In times like these, or any times
That might occur, it seems to me
The kind of men we really need
Are not the men whose names we see
Emblazoned in the public press,
Whose photographs are daily shown.
But men who plod from day to day
And mind no business but their own.

Let heroes come and heroes go;
The warriors on land or sea,
They serve their country well. I know
But where, I ask, would heroes be
If here at home there did not toil
The nation's stone, thigh and bone,
The patient, honest, plodding soil
Who mind no business but their own.

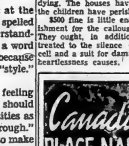
Let others sing a song of praise
To those that in the limelight stand;
I'd rather chose along their ways
The humble workers of the land.
Who'er they be, where'er they be
I praise the Army of Unknown,
The men who plod along through life
And mind no business but their own.

Hopes to Save Wild Horses

New York Herald Tribune

In a great stretch of continental United States, running from the Mississippi virtually to the Pacific, a whole culture was built around two animals: the bison and the horse. The Indian nations of the Plains developed their economic existence and even their ceremonial of a harsh environment when the horses imported by the Spaniards from Europe were stolen from the southern settlements and the hardy horses of mixed blood that could carry the warrior or the hunter, or draw the travois on which the Indian family's lodge and its slender stock of possessions were drawn from hunting ground to hunting ground.

Many of the Indian horses were bred in their own herds. Raids on other tribes or on the settlers and immigrant trains accounted for more. But the basic Indian economy, modified on the good grazing lands of the Western plains, depended on the supply one of the most characteristic features of the Old West. Through this man, for the Indian life they had made plausible, there was developed a durable than the vast herds of bison that came almost to the vanishing point in the 19th century. The beginning of the century and have slowly building up a very small scale — relative to their earlier teeming numbers — since. In 1959 70,000 wild horses, now has only 5,000.



Now, the wild horse's best friend, but the mustang is a unique by-product of the settling of America. Rep. Walter S. Baring, of Nevada, hopes to preserve this unique institution and to secure humane treatment for the animal. Both are worthy objectives. Mr. Baring's purposes deserves full support. The word "Mustang" are as traditional to the West as the six-gun."

Plans to Fine Phone Hogs

Wisconsin State Journal

It is difficult to believe, but the telephone company actually has to pass to prove that there are such inhumane creatures as will not hang up the receiver when another breaks in, pleading that a house is burning, a baby dying. The houses have burned, the children have perished.

$500 fine is little enough punishment for the callous yakkers. The company, in addition, to be treated to the silence of a jail cell until a suit for damages their heartlessness causes."

RIDEAU RIVER, ONT.

This historic waterway between Ottawa and Kingston, made navigable by building a series of locks, was named by Champlain. He wrote: There is an island in the Sweetsea, covered with trees like the rest of the land on both sides, and the water slips down with such impetuosity that it makes an arch of four hundred paces; the fish, passing feed beath it without getting wet, except from the water precipitated by the fall. So, the "lace curtain" of spray became Le Rideau."

BE CAREFUL

What is wrong with gambling anyway?

At first sight it would seem that there is not much the matter with it. Everybody likes to take a chance. One can afford to lose, why not?

These are the arguments we generally hear. But they are not valid. In the first place, nobody has enough money to stand the strain of gambling if it really becomes great. In the second place gambling is an attempt to get something for nothing. In the third place, gambling is like a narcotic — the hunger for it grows until it becomes an addiction. It is said by those who have had considerable experience with gambling that their characters at last become completely ruined. The fascination of the "game" becomes so great that they can think of nothing else. Give them a million dollars and they would risk it all on the turn of the card dice or one hand of poker.

What is more, they find that state — and any one can who gambles long enough — he is a thoroughly sick person. He is not only unable to handle other people's money; he is unfit to handle his own money. Amazing as it seems, the time comes in the case of every confirmed gambler when he would gamble off his family if he had a chance to do it.

Gambling is a real curse. The best way to avoid it is never to start even the smallest petty gambling. All big gambling started with little gambling. Let it alone.

King Hal's Castle Found

St. Thomas Times-Journal

For many years British archaeologists have been searching for traces of Nonsuch Palace which was built by Henry VIII between 1538 and 1547. It was built near Cheam in the county of Surrey. Henry loved to build or enlarge palaces, the best known being Hampton Palace, which was a gift from Cardinal Wolsey. It was there Anne Whitehall and Greenwich, all of which are steeped in history and are in use today. Nonsuch Palace, but Nonsuch was the largest and greatest of them all. It was so-called because there was "none-such" like it anywhere else.

The site has now been found in the course of excavations very showing some discoloration of the ground. Ancient prints made many years ago helped archaeologists to approximately determine the exact spot where it was like. Part of the ground is now Epsom Downs on which the English Derby is run. A part of the area is still known as Nonsuch.

Henry VIII died before it was completed. His daughter, Elizabeth I, gave the Palace to Nonsuch from 1559, until 1670 when it fell into decay.

It was then owned successively by the wives of James I and Charles I. Nonsuch was sold by Parliament during the Cromwellian era, but returned afterward to the crown. Finally Charles II gave it to his artistocratic but apparently indigent mistress, Barbara Villiers, Duchess of Cleveland, who demolished the building about 1675 to sell the materials.

Man May Fly By Own Power

Montreal Gazette

It is the aviation industry's proud and justifiable boast that when the first flights were made a half-century ago, man had achieved an age-old dream. While millions of people around the world will long pay this its tribute, there remain some scientific minds in dispute it. Man's original dream — about which sometimes is experienced in dreams — was that he may himself, under his own power, not be propelled through the air by an engine, piston, jet or rocket. And this he has not yet achieved.

These purists do not demand that man should learn to do achieves this end, but that he depend on his own power, at last. This seems now a distant and fantoniat demands which can never be met. But scientists on both sides of the Atlantic say it can be met with today's new, light, materials, plastics and metal alloys, and man's growing knowledge of the finer points of aero engineering.

Aero engineers say that Leonardo da Vinci's design for man-powered flight was practical — except that the materials available to him were not. Another scientific journal, "Nature." He says that the fine metal materials available today could create a human-powered machine aloft under his own power (soaring is accomplished without any power at all, of course), but it has to be lifted aloft by some power source, like a kite.

What would science accomplish if such a project were successful? Not much, except that a little less than man accomplishes in other fields. Perhaps "just because it was there." This challenge "is there" and science doesn't like to leave challenges unanswered.

A Miracle In Vietnam

New York Times

Five years ago Ngo Dinh Diem took over as chief of state of the Republic of Vietnam. He seemed to be a 'shy, retiring sort of person with a scholarly and his background and deeply religious by conviction. Even his enemies admit to his honesty and integration, but the fact that he can't eat strawberries or something.

Furthermore, to many a person a glass of milk may be more refreshing than an ice cohobic beverage.

But you can't "compare" alcohol and milk.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I believe it was your column that mentioned a crutch for smokers to help them taper off. Please let me have the information. — H. L."

And I don't think it was my column. The only things I've recommended have been (1) realizing that smoking is really a matter of plain habit — like any habit and (2) strengthening by repeating it 20 to 40 times a day — and not to "addict" to any real extent; (3) learning to take several deep breaths of air when you have an urge to reach for a smoke, since it has been noted that smokers are usually shallow breathers; (4) lighting the wrong end of filter cigarets.

Note to Mrs. J. K.: Your doctor told the truth. (Doctor generally do.) We don't know why but we do know that some women have the same experience you have. Hair sometimes does not grow back after the birth of a baby. But in a matter of a few months the hair becomes normal again.

Count your calories the easy way! Dr. Molner has a booklet, pamphlet, "The Calorie Chart," write to me in care of The Ontario in Sq. Time Newspapers, Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and be in coin to cover handling.

Young Brides Seek Divorce

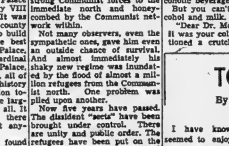
St. Thomas Times-Journal

Some people are in favor of early marriages; others take the opposite stand. Those in favor believe in the marriage of flaming youth; those opposed feel that they should take time to look around the field and ponder important steps they decide. Perhaps a survey made by the United States Children's Bureau Reference Bureau shows results worth studying. More girls are married at the early age than at any other age. In 45 states 20 per cent married under 18 marry for the first time; among men — or boys rather that's as far as I go. Between that age. Average age for marriage is around 20 for women, and 23 for men.

But the 18-year-old brides have the highest rate for divorce statistics. The teen-age brides also average in the less than any divorces as those who marry after 21.

In fact many of the teenagers are still at High School or Junior College in the establishments of youths. The city of Halifax, N.S., reports that whereas only six years ago the number of married students in secondary schools was 59, this year they number 450. Twelve were in Junior High and nine in Elementary schools.

Based on these figures, which come from some of the United States, it would appear that the old saw about marrying in haste and repenting at leisure has solid foundation.



TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BE YOUR BEST SELF

I have known people who seemed to enjoy demonstrating their worst self. They are the influential, whereas those who are forever trying to show their best self. Growing others down to their standard. They keep gathering friends. They are the leaders. They are the ones who make us think that we can continually be our best and live our best. We need to know ourself so as to influence others in so doing we enlarge life itself. We find that the dominant and free draw others to them wherever they make a stand.

By being your best self all the time you help to light up a world! You have a living personality. You are what you are advertising the fact that this world of yours is a good one. Lots of room, you more than to conquer a world!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my closest friends and greatest pals is a kind of man who, at bedtime, goes to the bathroom to set them in the slippers off into the dark interior. Then, next morning, when I have my slippers, it is a wonderful to hear him swearing and groaning while he cannot find them trying to find the slippers.

It is fifty years or more since I first explained to him that the secret of finding your slippers in the morning is to set them in the closet neat and tidy; like this. And I would then set him the virtuous example. And there in the morning were my slippers, neat as day, right where I left them.

In the fifty years, I have rebearse to him this counsel and this example a hundred or more times. But he is just as bad in his duties as he was in his teens.

On a recent fishing trip, we were incarcerated in the same bedroom and had to use the same clothes closet. Flick, flap went his slippers into the closet. Rather pointedly, I set mine neatly just inside the door.

In the morning do you know what he did?

He opened the clothes closet door and kicked my slippers out of sight.

"You live your life," he said, "and I'll live mine."

HASTY PEES IN AFRICAN DESERT . . . not quite. Captain Cochrane, officer in charge of the Summer Recruit Course of the Regiment, and Sergt. Marshall, RCR, instructional staff officer attached to the regiment for this training course, are definitely under a blazing sun but on the sands of Outlet Beach Provincial Park where the men had a swim parade yesterday afternoon. Despite swim parades for the personnel there is still much planning for the four weeks of training to go and that is what these two gentlemen are up to, although Sergt. Marshall appears to be casting an appreciative glance towards the cool water.

Before the strike began, Eisenhower had rejected a proposal from the union that a fact-finding board be named to consider the deadlock. He said he lacked the legal authority to do that.

The Taft-Hartley powers also would involve naming a fact-finding board. After the board reported to the president, he then could instruct the attorney-general to seek a federal injunction requiring the strike to end for an 80-day cooling-off period.

The union's proposal Wednesday called for a representative on the board from both the union and industry with a neutral member to be named by Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court.

David J. McDonald, USW president, told reporters in New York that the deadlock is "very serious" and he renewed his charge that the industry is trying to "break the union." He vowed that the union would not be broken.

McDonald said the union is ready to meet at any time with industry representatives if management is ready to make a wage offer.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, reiterated that the companies have always been willing to negotiate "fair, non-inflationary agreements." He said again, however, that there can be no wage increase that will increase the companies' total labor bill.

Queen, Philip See Canadians As They Are During BC Tour

VANCOUVER (CP)—In British Columbia the royal visit has been something of a come-as-you-are party.

This has been especially true at the whistle-stops and has given Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip a chance to look at Canadians as they are day in and day out.

"The Queen wants to see Canadians as they live, not all dressed up and fluffed", said an aide of the royal couple.

There was the woman with her hair in pincurls, probably preparing for a party; the shirtless workmen in hard hats and hobnail boots ready to return to mountain tunnel work when the royal train had passed; and the man with his thumbs hooked behind his broad suspenders, likely a good story teller in the general store.

COWHANDS, CARRIES

The blue jeans, boots and broad-brimmed hat identified the working cowhand in Kamloops. Everywhere nurses' uniforms stood out with those of theatre ushers, cab drivers and service station attendants who had stopped briefly from their tasks to get a glimpse of the royal couple.

Youngsters were baseball uniforms, football sweaters or swimming trunks. There were golfers, skiriders and holding their clubs, swimmers in trunks along the walls of the pools and boys atop the bath house wearing only a towel around their waists.

These and many other costumes—including those of placard-carrying strikers — were in the crowds that lined up to see the Queen and Philip during their first six days in B.C.

QUINTS 16 YEARS OLD

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The world's only known living quintuplets were 16 years old Wednesday. They celebrated with a party at their family home in suburban Buenos Aires. The quints, three girls and two boys, are the children of Franco Dillegrodi, a wealthy Argentine industrialist of Italian birth, who has always shunned publicity for them.

REVOLTS AGAINST

manic Soviet leader kept to his full schedule Wednesday even though he had seemed tired and worn on his arrival by train from Warsaw.

Khrushchev himself was in a laughing mood as he made his swift round of surrounding towns, visiting factories and mines. At one town he got mixed up in the name of the place and a local Communist official interrupted to correct him. The Soviet leader quipped: "I am subject to clarification because I am an antiquated man."

(Khrushchev's health has been the subject of speculation for several months. Several West German and French newspapers reported in April that he had suffered fainting spells and printed rumors that he was afflicted with a brain tumor, high blood pressure or circulatory ailments.

Soviet officials brush off all such reports and rumors. Frol Kozlov, Soviet deputy premier, said during his recent American tour that Khrushchev is in good health and predicted he would live a long time. And Western visitors who have had marathon interviews with him in Moscow in recent months have found him full of energy and enthusiasm and in full command of his faculties as usual).

SEVERE MAGNETIC STORM

BOSTON (AP) — A magnetic storm, described as "extremely violent," caused aurora borealis and electrical ground currents which disturbed teletype and similar communications systems in a wide area of the northeastern United States Wednesday. Coinciding with the magnetic storm was unusual "flare" activity of the sun. Radio communication with Europe was virtually blacked out.

Dr., Mrs. Hartt Presented With Farewell Gifts

ROSLIN — On Saturday evening members of the Roslin community met in the Anglican church hall to spend one more evening with Dr. J. N. and Mrs. Hartt, before their departure to Belleville where he has opened up his new practice.

When all had assembled, the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton (as chairman) called the gathering to order and gave a short address. Randy Gray sang a solo, "Let the Sun Shine In"; Mrs. Middleton gave a reading, "The Doctor"; Mrs. Doggett favored with a solo, and Mr. Middleton sang an old Lancashire song. The Rev. D. L. Woodward spoke briefly.

Dr. and Mrs. Hartt were asked to take chairs at the front of the hall and Mrs. W. Chisholm read the address after which they were presented with a table lamp from the Roslin United Church, and a dinner wagon, magazine rack and wall brackets from the community.

Both expressed their thanks and appreciation to the donors.

Later refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

Rural Women Getting Ready For Courses

TORONTO (CP)—Whether Ontario's rural women are making lampshades, fashioning hats or catering for a service club luncheon, it's likely they learned how at one of the courses offered by the province's home economics service, an extension branch of the department of agriculture.

The service director, Helen M. McKercher, has predicted that 20,000 women and 12,000 girls will take part in the coming fall and winter program, one of the largest ever undertaken by her department.

Most of the women will be members of the Women's Institutes, although the service is also extended to other groups as well. The girls are members of 4-H Homemaking Clubs.

The home economics service has received 657 requests for short courses in the coming season on topics ranging from home care of the sick to aids to effective speaking. Topping the list are 183 requests for a millinery course. Two other favorites for this year are courses on catering for crowds with 70 requests and sandwiches for all occasions with 75 requests.

The courses vary from one-half to three days. Part-time instructors aid the staff from the Toronto office during the busy fall and winter months.

The growing popularity of the courses leads Miss McKercher to believe the service is meeting special needs of Ontario's rural women.

A sociological study of farm women is now being carried out jointly by the federal and provincial departments of agriculture. Final results are not expected to be tabulated for a year.

"When we have those results we will be able to offer tailor-made courses," Miss McKercher said.

Princess Anne Takes Pledge to Help Mother

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, second in line to the British throne, took a pledge Tuesday to do what mama tells her.

Furthermore, she promised to lend a hand with wiping the dishes at Buckingham Palace "when" whenever the need arises.

The pledges came with official induction of the eight-year-old princess in the Buckingham Palace Brownie pack, whose last previous royal recruit was Princess Margaret.

Her fellow members in the pack are a dozen ordinary children from the palace neighborhood.

The Princess Royal, Anne's aunt and president of the English Girl Scouts, was presiding officer as Anne lisped the Brownie law:

"A Brownie gives in to her elders, but never gives in to herself."

Next she repeated the Brownie promise:

"I promise to do my best; to do my duty to God and the Queen; to help other people every day, especially those at the home."

She had to assure her officers that she can wash dishes, set a table, light a fire, and tie a reef knot behind her back.

TRYON — McMULLEN

Tall standards of red and white peonies adorned Halloway United Church, Halloway, Ont., and white satin bows designated the guest pews at a recent lovely summertime wedding when Lois Marguerite McMullen, of Halloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McMullen, became the bride of Floyd Russell Tryon, of Kaladar, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tryon. The Reverend R. F. Darke, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mrs. Donald Rose, guest pianist, provided the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Francis Rose, in his rendition of "Where'er You Walk" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Kenneth McMullen, the bride was radiant in her ballerina-length bridal gown of white embroidered Chantilly lace and taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice with empire waistline, long, sheath-like sleeves ending in "V"-points over the wrists, and Sweetheart neckline. She wore a band of sequins and seed pearls with elbow-length scalloped nylon net veil, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, and fern. A single strand of pearls with matching earrings completed the bridal costume.

Miss Ruth McMullen, of Halloway, was her sister's only attendant, attractively attired in orchid shade crystalette fashioned in ballerina length on princess lines, featuring a boat-shaped neckline "V" pointed at the back, and short cap sleeves, with white accessories. white picture hat and bouquet of yellow 'mums in cascade style.

Mr. Gerald Hillier, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom while Mr. Arthur Marshall, of Halloway, and Mr. Glen York, of Kaladar, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's mother received, gowned in powder blue linen with white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother also assisted in the receiving line, wearing navy blue silk with white accessories, and corsage of white 'mums.

For travelling through the Adirondack Mountains the bride chose a blue silk sheath with white accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds.

The bridal table was prettily appointed with white damask, centred by a three-tier, pillared wedding cake decorated with pale-pink roses and tiny blue birds, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath a heart-shaped arch of white orchids. Pink candles were placed about the base with lacey doilies.

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Tryon was entertained at a kitchen shower held at the home of Miss Helen Kelly of Foxboro, and at a miscellaneous shower given by the staff of the Bank of Montreal, also at a community shower held at the bride's home by district neighbors and friends.

Bride-to-Be Feted With Many Gifts

On a recent Wednesday evening a happy time was spent at the home of Mrs. James Sazras, of Ivanhoe, when 30 young friends of Miss Shirley Sazras, bride-to-be, was honored with a miscellaneous shower.

The evening included contests conducted by Mrs. John Stephens, and lively games of bingo.

Mrs. Garnett Hobbs, of Toronto, read the address on behalf of those present, wishing the bride-elect, who was seated in a gaily decorated chair, every happiness in the coming days, after which a host of attractively wrapped gifts, accompanied by lovely cards, were presented. As the honored recipient unwrapped her gifts, and read the accompanying cards, she graciously thanked each donor for her kind gesture and for the gift.

The evening came to a close with the serving of dainty refreshments, both Shirley and her mother expressed their appreciative thanks for a delightful evening.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a child-welfare worker, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council answers only those letters that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Graham B. — My wife doesn't want me to give my son the money.

Bertha B. — The boy expects too much from his father.

Graham B. — I am in a terrible dilemma regarding my 20-year-old son.

Frank recently lost every penny in a foolish business venture. He has two young children and is desperate. He wants me to set him up in a new business. I can only do this by drawing on money that was invested for my wife and me in our old age. Of course, Frank assures me that every penny will be repaid.

I would be willing to do as he asks, but my wife objects. She is second wife. Frank's mother died years ago. My second wife is not a selfish woman but of course she can't feel for Frank as I do.

* * *

Bertha B. — I realize that I'm in a bad position to offer objections. People may accuse me of being a selfish stepmother and say I just married Graham for security. I do want security, but that isn't the only reason I admire Graham against giving the money.

I feel that Frank expects too much from his father. Graham is 60 years and his health isn't too good. A healthy man of 30 shouldn't come to his father for money. It isn't right.

I also feel that Frank hasn't a good head for business. Graham doesn't agree, but I'm sure it's true.

* * *

The Council: We don't think that Bertha is out of line in offering advice on this subject. It concerns her and it is part of her responsibility to her husband to give an honest opinion on matter he discusses with her.

The mere fact that Graham has discussed this with Bertha is an indication that he wants her views and we think it very likely that he wants her to voice precisely the arguments she has given us.

It is very hard for a parent to deny a child who is in need and it is hard for a parent to think ill of his own child. In this case, we are afraid that Graham is putting this burden on Bertha.

Graham knows the fact that his son has made one "foolish business venture" is not exactly an indication of his having a good business head. He also knows that the young man should not be coming to him at this stage of his life for financial aid if there is any possible way of avoiding it.

The common sense thing to do is very often the kindest thing as well. If Frank's new business idea is a good one, it should be possible for him to get a bank loan or other financial backing. If it is not a good one, the quick way Frank is forced to recognize this the better.

A friend from his father at this time may be just what Frank needs to pull himself together. When he comes to his father he is saying in a sense, "I'm a baby. I am child. I can do nothing but depend upon you."

Graham's answer should be, "I have confidence in your ability to come out on top in this thing. You don't need me because your earning potential is far greater than mine. The future lies with you — not me."

Cool Desserts With Lemon

by Mary Moore

Naturally I tie in with the seasonal fruits as they appear on the market. Yearly I usually run the season giving you rhubarb recipes in March and strawberry recipes in April.

But this time I'm jogging along with a year round fruit — the lemon — which is so much in demand during the summer's heat that the shameless dealers raise the price.

However lemons keep well in the refrigerator and if yours is big enough you might decide to buy a couple of dozen in advance of the hot weather and store them.

The cool desserts I am enthusiastic about are Lemon Chiffon which may be made in the cool of the morning and a Lemon Refrigerator Cake which may be made 24 hours in advance and will serve 16.

LEMON CHIFFON:

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatine, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup water, 2 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 cup sugar, divided, 4 eggs, separated, 1-2 cup lemon juice, 16 lady fingers.

Mix together gelatine, 1-2 cup sugar and salt in saucepan. Beat together egg yolks, water and lemon juice; add to gelatine mixture. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in lemon rind. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add remaining 1-3 cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold in partially set gelatine mixture. Spoon into 8 dessert dishes. Split and cut lady fingers in half (getting 4 pieces per lady finger). Press 5 halves as a trim around the edge of each dessert. Chill till firm. When ready to serve, garnish with whipped cream, if desired and a plump berry or cherry.

LEMON REFRIGERATOR CAKE:

4 eggs, separated, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon plain gelatine, 1-2 cup cold water, 2 cups heavy cream, whipped, 2 dozen lady fingers.

Beat egg-yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add lemon juice, lemon rind and sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Soak gelatine in the cold water for 5 minutes. Then place over boiling water, and stir until dissolved. Stir into first mixture. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Place in refrigerator until thick and syrupy. Meanwhile line a 9-inch tube pan with some of the lady fingers which have been split. Pour in the lemon mixture and top with remaining lady fingers. Chill in the refrigerator overnight. Unmould and serve. Serves 16.

NOTE:

To serve eight make half of this recipe, using 1 1-3 teaspoons unflavored gelatine.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

INTRODUCING THE SPOUSE OF AN "IN-LAW"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I and our husbands go out together quite often. Last evening my sister's husband introduced us to some business acquaintances of his. Introducing me he said, "This is my sister-in-law." When he introduced my husband, he said, "This is my sister-in-law's husband." My sister felt that, to be respectful, her husband should have said, "This is my brother-in-law." But I think her husband was correct since actually my husband is my sister's brother-in-law, but not my husband's brother-in-law.

One more question concerning this: Would my husband's sister's husband be my "brother-in-law" or, when I am introducing him, should I say, "This is my sister-in-law's husband"?

This may sound confusing, Mrs. Beeckman, but I am sure you will understand. And I thank you for your reply. — P.

For some time it has been considered so unnecessarily awkward and complicated to introduce the husband of your sister-in-law as "my sister-in-law's husband," and the wife of your brother-in-law as "my brother-in-law's wife," that these forms have, very sensibly, been simplified. Now, although the spouses of these in-laws are not actually your relatives by marriage, it is entirely proper, and is indeed customary, to introduce the husband of your sister-in-law as "my brother-in-law" (as your sister's husband could have done), and the wife of your brother-in-law as "my sister-in-law," and this as "my sister-in-law" and the simplified form certainly makes it easier for the one making the introduction.

Nifty Knit Coat

By VERA WINSTON

Something new, something nice, has been added to the knit coat. It is a lightweight foam back lining laminated to the knit. This gives the knit coat a much longer span of wear and usefulness. This coat is in a herringbone weave of deep bottle green or mustard yellow, with matching leather buttons and patch pockets. It can be worn over almost any day time clothes except, of course, the dressy variety.

Fashion Show Films Will Be Changed

NEW YORK (AP)—A fashion show prepared for the American exhibition in Moscow, with scenes of Negroes and whites together at a wedding and a barbecue, will undergo drastic changes before it gets to Moscow.

The changes will be made, in part, because of a petition signed by 41 fashion editors who saw the show Sunday and raised a protest against the race-mixing scenes and others.

They said the scenes were "not representative of the American way of life."

Fashion editors from all parts of the United States signed the petition. In addition to the scenes with Negroes mingling with whites, they opposed a teen-ager scene showing rock 'n' roll dancing with the boys clad in black leather jackets — considered by many Americans a symbol of the wild or delinquent teen-ager.

A young Negro couple, Norma Jean Johnston, a registered nurse, and Gilbert Noble, office worker - pianist - artist, who actually plan to be married soon—possibly in Moscow — were to be the bride and groom in a street-clothes civil ceremony, with a white couple as their witnesses.

The scene will be dropped, but Negro members of the cast will remain with the show.

Members of the Mission Band conducted the worship service and the remainder of the program had been prepared by the Baby Band leaders, Mrs. Murney Kirkey, and Mrs. Verde Stapley.

Sharon Reide, Mission Band president, presided, while Beverley Stapley acted as secretary for her sister, Audrey, who was away on holidays.

Joanne Reide was pianist.

The scripture lesson, Psalm 93 was read by Lloyd Clancy, after which Vickie Browning read a prayer.

The offering of $3.55 for the Baby Band was gathered by tiny Sandra Stapley and Judy Johnson, and dedicated with a prayer by the W. M. S. president, Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

After singing the hymn "Father Lead Me Day By Day", Glenn Stapley came to the front and repeated the Mission Band Purpose.

REPORT GIVEN

The treasurer of the Mission Band, Marilyn Stapley, gave an encouraging report for the 1st half of the year; and Mrs. Clarence Pitchett gave the report sent in by the W.M.S. treasurer, Mrs. Carl Bridges.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy, Mission Band leader, thanked all the ladies, who had helped so generously with contributions of baking for the recent Mission Band bake sale.

A recitation, "My Neighbor's Pony," contributed by Lorraine Matthews was greatly appreciated.

A lovely reading, "The Reward of Honesty," was given by Joanne Reide.

The "World Friends" papers were distributed by Sheila Clarke and Gerald Stapley.

A short business period followed. Next regular meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. will be held in the evening at the church on August 13th. Mrs. Harry Clarke was appointed to prepare the program.

Several handed in parcels of their discarded nylon hose, so a parcel could be packed to make up a parcel to be sent to Toronto and later overseas.

Motion made that postage be paid to supply secretary for parcel sent away, recently.

Mrs. Dyson and Mrs. Bruce Stapley each expressed the appreciation of all present, for the splendid program presented by the boys and girls of the Mission Band.

After the closing hymn, the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mr. Dyson.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, cakes, homemade candy and orangeade were served by the W.M.S. and W.A. members, present.

It's brewed for you—from freshly roasted, freshly ground coffee beans — right in Maxwell House's own fragrant coffee kitchens. (What a place to work!) Queen's Visit to Vancouver Finds City's Slips Showing But Heart in Right Place

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The royal elevator wouldn't work; the footbridge over a plaque failed to function; the kids got mixed up around the mayor; the debut of the Dutch dancers flew afloat and the new Queen Elizabeth Theatre was nearly misnamed.

But if its slips were showing, Vancouver's heart was in the right place Wednesday when the Queen and Prince Philip came to town for 12 crowded public hours.

The formal program may have gone awry, but the informal program—the welcome by thousands lining the streets—was a roaring success.

GOES ABOARD SHIP

When the University of British Columbia Faculty Club, she wore a white satin evening gown with bodice and hem as quiet regal in her garnet-studded accordion pleats. Philip was in the uniform of the Canadian Pacific Navy.

The troubles began Wednesday when the Queen was seated so that the sun shone directly into her eyes and she couldn't see the maypole dancers. This arrangement was repeated later at a reception but this time the Queen came prepared—she raised her huge parasol.

The elevator in the Vancouver Hotel wouldn't work at first and the Queen had to ascend to the 14th floor. She had to transfer.

The pull cord for a curtain over a plaque being unveiled to mark the opening of a new tunnel under the Fraser River didn't work properly when the Queen yanked it. She had to pull the curtain back by hand.

SLIP OF TONGUE

At the banquet of the new Queen Elizabeth, R. T. Rose, chairman of the management board that the Queen had graciously consented to the structure being named the "—— ——," he corrected himself hastily.

The slip was understandable. Six months ago city council decided on the name Royal Elizabeth Theatre and asked for royal consent. The Queen apparently liked Queen Elizabeth Theatre better and that name was decided on.

During the day, the Queen wore a turquoise blue silk topcoat over a turquoise blue and white printed dress with pleated skirt. Her small hat was of white straw and white chiffon.

For dinner at the University of British Columbia Faculty Club, she wore a white satin evening gown with bodice and hem as quiet regal in her garnet-studded accordion pleats. Philip was in the uniform of the Canadian Pacific Navy.

The formal dinner was followed by a ball at the Hotel Vancouver.

Coroner's Jury Says Station Manager Slain

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Service station operator Neal (Ray) Tessier was murdered March 31 by a person or persons unknown, a coroner's jury decided Wednesday.

The inquest into the shotgun death of Tessier, 35, was told that he had bought a 12-gauge shotgun only a short time before he died.

His body was found on a Twin South township road beside his blood-splattered car. A shotgun shell had severed his head.

WEAPON MISSING

The car's doors were shut and the headlights were turned off. Constable George Podor of the provincial police testified. He said he found a recently-fired shotgun shell on the road but the weapon has not been located.

Walter Milligan of nearby Steeden said he sold a 12-gauge shotgun to Tessier about 10 p.m. only 1½ hours before his body was found on the Shannonville road.

Mr. Milligan asked the protection of the Canada Evidence Act before giving testimony.

HEARD NOISE

Gaston Demeester, who came upon the body when he saw the car in a ditch, said he heard no kind of noise around the car before he drove off to get the police.

The body was searched by Sgt. Earl Richmond. He found $290 in cash in a wallet and cheques for $580 and $90.

Pathologist Dr. A. B. Adilman said it appeared the weapon had been fired from extremely close range and that the gun was pointed upwards.

Retail Chain Buying Power Reason Given for Compulsory Marketing Plan for Farmers

GUELPH (CP) — The shift of food-price control to retail chain stores was a major reason for development of compulsory marketing plans for farmers, the Interprovincial Farm Union Council was told Wednesday.

G. Frank Perkin, chairman of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board, said the chain stores often were the determining factor in prices because of their volume buying.

Advertising — which had changed the public's buying and eating habits — and the chain stores' ability to clear surpluses in a matter of days, also gave the retail outlets price - control power.

Mr. Perkin said another contributor to marketing plan developments was the farmers' need for control over his produce in the face of rising costs.

During discussion on Mr. Perkin's remarks several delegates from prairie provinces said marketing plans were the only answer to vertical integration which they consider a major threat to the family farm.

MANY DIFFERENCES

At a press conference earlier, A. P. Gleave, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union and IFUC chairman, expressed doubt that the IFUC and the Canadian Federation of Agriculture would ever unite.

He said differences are continually arising between the two organizations, particularly in Ontario.

President Gordon Hill of the Ontario Farmers' Union said that deficiency payments be extended to cover all commodities because producers of those commodities which are supported.

President J. B. Lemoine of l'Union Catholique des Cultivateurs told delegates that farmers must learn to accept more discipline and a stronger central organizations and general farm associations.

Promoter Says CBC TV Offer 'Is Ridiculous'

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Durelle returned to Montreal Wednesday from his home in Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., and immediately resumed training for his July 29 meeting with lightweight champion Archie Moore.

Durelle's weight was reported at 170 pounds over the limit. He again set up his camp at nearby Ste. Anne de Bellevue. Durelle interrupted his training there for the trip home when the fight was announced earlier this month.

Meanwhile, Moore has his gymnasium workout in secret for the second successive day. The secrecy business, which ends Saturday, was the brain child of manager Jack (Doc) Kearns.

NO CBC-TV

Eddie Quinn, promoter of the fight, said Wednesday he has received the CBC's "final offer" of $50,000 to televise the July-29 bout with no blackout.

Quinn said he has sent this offer to Allan Gilroy of the CBC sports department in Toronto.

"Your final offer really does not deserve an answer; it is so ridiculous," he said. "Thanks but no thanks."

The promoter asked for $50,000 with no blackout but with the CBC paying for unsold seats in Montreal Forum.

Enemies Open War of Nerves Against Trujillo

HAVANA (AP) — Enemies of the Dominican dictator, General Rafael Trujillo, have opened a war of nerves against him.

Led by Dominican exiles, who seek to unseat the veteran ruler and give his people freedom to choose a new government, barrages of words are being beamed at the Caribbean nation from three directions.

From Cuba various radio transmitters around Trujillo's country with threats and propaganda, some of it billed as originating from groups within the Dominican Republic.

Other propaganda volleys are fired from Caracas and from Puerto Rico—all aimed at stirring up discontent to drive the generalissimo from his seat of power.

Listeners find some amazing examples of propaganda warfare.

SIX OF NERVES

One message repeated's report from Puerto Rico that over the six months boats had been spotted lurking in the waters around the Dominican coast.

Then comes a well-staged "atmospherics" followed by the announcer's frantic call: "Over! Over!" Then came another period of atmospherics from the same mythical track.

Such transmissions go on hour after hour.

Main efforts of Dominican exiles abroad at this time appear to be concentrate on this "softening up" period. The sale of "bomb" by Trujillo's government in exile and frequent benefits of various kinds here and in Europe help finance the radio transmissions.

Long Shut-off of U.S. Steel Caused by Strike Would Have Serious Effect in Canada

By FORBES HUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian economy generally the United States steel strike in apparent good condition to stand a short-term loss of American supplies, but with considerable apprehension about a longer shutoff.

Six weeks is the generally stated period which can elapse before serious dislocation will be felt, but the figure doesn't represent a definite dividing line.

Some effects are immediate and some strains are already under way which—even if not apparent now—may become apparent later on.

On the other hand it can be expected that if the strike goes past the six-week period, surprising ingenuity will be shown in finding substitute ways of doing things or finding alternative sources of supply such as Europe and Japan.

25 PER CENT OF SUPPLY

Nevertheless, Canada for the time being is losing nearly 25 per cent of her normal finished steel supply and this is bound to cause serious dislocations if the strike continues.

Alleviating the situation is the fact that inventories have been built high because of the threat of the strike; and the expected fall has taken place in the Canadian steel industry both in total production and range of products.

Immediate effects include:

Loss of revenue by transportation companies who would normally be handling U. S. imports.

Shutdown at Marmora at midnight Wednesday of the iron-ore pits and smelter of Marmora Iron Mining Company, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation of America. This affects more than 250 men, whose contracts are arranged from the U.S. and who have joined the American strike.

Immediate strains include:

Further threat to next winter's iron-ore supplies of Steel Company of Canada and Dominion Foundries and Steel Company, both at Hamilton.

Further upward pressure on prices—already strained through increased taxes, wages and transportation costs—which may be further strained if increased supplies are involved in getting substitute iron ore during the strike, or if the strike results in higher-priced American ore.

NO WORRY HERE—YET

Among steel - consuming industries, the strike comes at a good time for automobiles, with their annual model changeover completion and with annual shut-downs for holidays and retooling almost at hand.

E. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada, says that under present conditions the company can operate until October.

Bulk of the industry's steel comes from Canada, but many substantial parts are imported from the United States.

Serious dislocation is expected first in the construction industry when present inventories of some structural - steel types, such as wide-flange beams, used in building bridges are exhausted. "It really hurt," one steel source said, "and even after the strike is settled it will take a while to get back into a normal supply situation."

LONG HOUR LONGER

At present, with other ships sharing the facilities of the canal, a vessel makes the journey in about nine hours.

The eight-hour passage breaks down into four hours travelling 25 miles an hour and another four hours traversing the eight locks at half-an-hour for each locking.

The people would stop to realize that we are getting a 25,000-ton ship safely over Niagara Falls in eight hours," one official is not doing a bad job," said Mr. Ryan.

A 25,000-ton ship carried the equivalent of roughly eight to 10 freight trains. "That's pretty hard to beat."

Mr. Ryan said compliments on the operation of the canal had been received from the U.S. Navy following passage of some of the ships from Lake Ontario to Lake Erie. The admiral who commands the royal yacht Britannia also commended the canal.

Mr. Ryan said delays of up to 16 hours have occurred on the Panama Canal this year, which passes an average of 25.2 ships a day compared to the Welland Ship Canal's 22 ships a day. The Panama has one eight-hour shift every day for maintenance, where the Welland Ship Canal operates around the clock.

Welland Canal Now Operating Close to Capacity

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—There may be some advantage in twinning sections of locks on the Welland Ship Canal, but the canal now is operating close to maximum speed, the seaway's western superintendent, T. J. Ryan, said Wednesday.

Mr. Ryan was commenting on a recent statement by federal Transport Minister Hees that the government was considering the need of twin locks. Three of the eight locks now are twin locks.

Mr. Ryan said that if a ship were to go through the canal with no other traffic to interfere along the 27-mile route from Port Weller to Port Colborne, it would take about eight hours to complete the journey.

Nikita's Junket to Poland Taken to Make Poles Happier

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russian Premier Khrushchev's current junket in Communist Poland may be designed to make the Poles happier about the trend of the Geneva conference of foreign ministers.

Western diplomats are convinced that the Poles—and the Czechs as well—are not exactly receiving with open arms the reluctance being accorded East-Germany by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Andrei Gromyko at the Geneva talks.

Khrushchev's visit at this time points up what is not always obvious—that Russia often has trouble lulling the rivalries of its satellites and keeping them in line in the power politics of diplomacy.

Diplomats stress that while there may be considerable unity in Western allies at Geneva, where there is little quibbling and hauling among the Communist countries —but behind the scenes.

SOME HINTS

There have been hints of this since Khrushchev quietly dropped his early proposal that Poland and Czechoslovakia be included in Geneva talks to achieve representative parity with the Western powers. It was a bid for each particular interest in German affairs.

The interesting feature is that Russia dropped this idea without consulting the Communist states of Eastern Europe.

This has enhanced East Germany's prestige although Khrushchev has not struck important significance to Gromyko's bid for the Soviet Union's withdrawal from the divided in secret Geneva negotiations.

They see this as a diversionary move, adding that the Gromyko tactics are unchanged in the second act of the dull Geneva drama: He's still stalling for time in the hope of undermining Allied unity and determination.

SECRET VISIT

Some interest has been aroused by Gromyko's reference to the United Nations when he was outlining his plan for an 18-month interim agreement on the German question.

Gromyko is well aware of the resentment the Western foreign ministers who need solid Russian guarantees that the Soviet regime in Berlin would be respected during the "truce" period.

The threatened cut of past Soviet performance, cannot even be that Russia would live in fact abide by such guarantees even if they were given at the current conference.

The United States, Britain and France have been worried about taking the Berlin crisis to the United Nations for fear it would become a greater propaganda forum than it has at present.

Gromyko needled the Western

Two Byelections In Que. Called By Duplessis

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis Wednesday night called two byelections for Sept. 16 to fill vacancies in the Quebec legislature.

The call ended mild speculation that a snap general election might be called for mid-August.

The byelections are to take place in Labelle and Lake St. John ridings. They were made necessary by the resignation of Dr. Antonio Auger, Union Nationale member for Lake St. John and by the death last June 30 of Premier Edouard Lacroix.

Dr. Auger's resignation for reasons of health—was also announced Wednesday night by Mr. Duplessis at a press conference following a meeting of provincial cabinet meetings.

ministers about their doubts of Soviet sincerity and its aims.

"We have proposed that the UN be invited to share in these guarantees.

"Unfortunately, however, the Western powers, who earlier repeatedly made curtsies before the UN and who like to pay lip service to the principle of that organization , have displayed complete indifference and almost disregard toward the UN."

Widow, Age 71, Enjoying Walk To West Coast

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Mrs. Emma Gatewood, 71-year-old great grandmother, stopped here on the Boise River on her trip from Independence, Mo., to Portland, Ore.—on foot.

She has worn out a pair of shoes in Boise for the journey.

Mrs. Gatewood has been trying to scare me out of this for a long time," said Mrs. Gatewood, who lives in Gallipolis, Ohio. "But I haven't had any trouble."

She is known as they come."

She says she is enjoying the trip. She averages 20 to 25 miles a day, turning down all offers of rides and staying overnight in hotels.

She carries some spare clothing, food, two cans and a blanket in a 14-pound pack. She also carries an umbrella.

Mrs. Gatewood is a widow. She has 11 children, 27 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

She started the 2,000 - mile trek May 4.

Woman's Dream Of Son's Accident Comes True

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Police revealed here Wednesday a woman's dream of her son's accident last Friday was the same death car accident in which Gary Sanderson met accident to them three days earlier.

Mrs. Madeleine Andrews, 45, postal police Tuesday, July 7 after awakening from a dream in which she saw son Gary, 20, injured in a crash near the Thousand Islands International Bridge.

Mrs. Andress, a patient in hospital here, was assured that her son was safe, police reported.

Friday night Gary's hardtop convertible slammed into the rear of a road paving machine parked on an unopened section of Highway 401. Two companions were killed and he was seriously injured.

The crash scene was exactly where Mrs. Andress had dreamed she had been west of the Thousand Islands bridge.

Bill to Regulate Humane Slaughter of Animals Passed

OTTAWA (CP)—A government bill to regulate humane slaughter of animals in Canada was passed by the Senate Wednesday night, after two unsuccessful opposition attempts to have the bill specify that only electrical slaughter should be considered humane.

Agriculture Minister Harkness, replying to opposition criticisms, said the provisions were the most the government has no power to interfere with religious rights.

Cabinet regulations implementing the act would be in line with recommendations of the Committee on Humane Methods of Slaughter which said the Jewish ritual—schechitah—should be considered as being humane.

PROPOSALS DEFEATED

Liberal senators on a proposed amendment on this point, both of which were defeated.

One amendment by Alexis Caron (L — Bedford Carrier), the only Jewish member in the Senate, would have provided that nothing in the act should not "invade or interfere with any religious rights and practices presently enjoyed by persons in Canada."

Mr. Harkness said this was in general terms, and he doubted whether it would be "good legislation."

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Mr. Harkness said the government intends to pass regulations which can be met by small abattoirs. A new, inexpensive type of electrical "stunner," for example, probably would be satisfactory.

The bill follows two years of study on the problem, which was first considered by the Commons agriculture committee this session.

Mr. Harkness said the bill will ensure that humane slaughter practices are followed in plants that are within the jurisdiction of the parliament and come under federal meat inspection".

This would cover 80 per cent of the total slaughter of meat animals in Canada.

Instead of adding provisions to the Meat Inspection Act, a separate statute will be established. It would be administered by meat inspectors who would have the powers under the new act as they have under the inspection statute.

Phillips to Recruit Committee To Cope With Vice Problem

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Nathan Phillips, expressing shock at recent revelations of vice in a suburban area, generally considered to be the centre of prostitution in Toronto for the past few years, said Wednesday he plans to recruit a committee to study the problem.

The mayor said he had "no doubt" that the revelations of the situation in the Jarvis-Dundas-Pembroke streets area in the centre of the city.

The Metropolitan Toronto Licensing Commission has been holding hearings to determine whether licenses of restaurants in the area should be revoked. The hearing is turning up reports of prostitution, prostitution and dope-peddling in the area.

Aside from the committee being formed by the mayor, Controller Allan Gardiner, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto, has ordered an investigation into the police operate methods and facilities for the treatment of drug addicts.

Mr. Gardiner said the investigation will be placed under the direction of Metro Welfare Commissioner R. J. Smith.

At present a withdrawal period which extends from 10 days to three weeks is the only means of treating drug addicts. Under the proposed co - ordinated system addicts would be followed by a period of supervised care.

The investigation is also expected to study the idea of making it mandatory for a convicted addict to take prescribed treatment.

ASKS PROVINCE HELP

Mayor Phillips said besides forming a committee of social workers, police, representatives of the provincial attorney-general's department in the fields of medicine and science, he will ask the province for provincial government for financial help.

The committee's first task, said the mayor, would be to study Britain's method of controlling addiction by providing legal doses of narcotics to apparently incurable addicts a reasonable cost.

Mr. Phillips suggested there should be hospital institutions for drug addicts along the same lines as provincial mental hospitals.

"We've been playing hide and seek — Tommy hid in the fridge."

Fancy Upsets Are Predicted In Ontario Amateur Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — The stage could be set for some fancy upsets this year in the Ontario amateur golf championships.

When the dust settled from Wednesday's 18-hole qualifying round, the big names were well down on the list.

Out front was Bill Parkes of Woodstock, who thrashed his way through the trap-strewn Toronto Golf Club course with a score of 68, equalling the competitive record.

Following him were a pair relatively unknown in major tournament competition. Pat Tremblay of Sudbury's Kiviwyde Club came in with 69. Dave Lee of Hamilton carded a 70.

FEW BROKE PAR

They were the only three to break par 71 on the sun-baked course, whose hard fairways often sent balls bouncing crazily. The cut-off score was 78, one higher than had been anticipated for the 64 golfers who qualified from the starting field of 175.

Today was the first of three days of match play, with the two-man final scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Defending champion Nick Weslock of Windsor could do no better than par 71 Wednesday, where he was joined by four others—Bill Maile of Thornhill, A. K. Harvie and Ernie Bentley of Toronto, and Bob Pasutnik of Windsor.

Phil Brownlee of Scarborough, provincial junior champion, was back at 73. Bruce Castator, Canadian champion from Weston, came in at 74.

COWAN JOLTED

The stiffest jolt of the day went to Gary Cowan, the 22-year-old whiz from Kitchener, who blew to a 77 and thereby lost his place on Ontario's team for the Willingdon Cup interprovincial amateur championships.

The four-man team is chosen on the basis of the qualifying round in the amateur plus 54-hole totals in the Ontario Open played last month.

Parkes' sparkling performance placed him on the squad with a total of 289, the same as Castator. Other members are Weslock with 279 and Brownlee with 290. Since the provincial amateur champion must be on the team, however, Brownlee will be called if one of the present four does not win.

Parkes, 31, had a magic putter working for him to grab the qualifying lead. He shot a one-under par 34 on the first nine and shaved off two strokes coming in.

Weslock was two under until he hit the ninth, a par-five 457-yarder. Then he hooked his second shot into the woods and his game lost its edge.

TV Program Creators Plan Viewing Menus Years Ahead

NEW YORK (AP)—When most of us were packing the first picnic baskets of the season, the McGuire sisters, bundled in furs under hot lights, were busy making a Christmas commercial for a soft drink company.

Long before favorite sons dared make noises like candidates, the three major television networks were planning their coverage of the 1960 political conventions and subsequent presidential campaign.

And right now, before those same networks have confided to us viewers all the goodies in their 1959-60 season holds, the creators of television programs are working on the 1961 and even 1962 menus.

What will viewers be looking at 18 months or more hence?

Richard Dorso, former Hollywood actor's agent, and now director of new program development for ETV television programming, predicts that, basically, it won't be much different from what will be available next season—only better: Westerns, adventure, suspense, drama, variety and so on. Sources for new ideas for TV shows, Dorso says, come from a wide variety of sources—newspaper items, magazine articles, even casual conversations. They come, as every viewer must know, from successful shows—to witness the flood of copycat westerns and now crime-adventure shows with music.

"I'll tell you one place that shows ideas never come from," he adds. "From amateurs. Invariably the people who tell you they have a great idea turn up something that's already been done or is absolutely impractical to do."

AT THE BELLE—Anthony Perkins, having found the elusive girl of the forests (Audrey Hepburn), is reluctant to let her go in this scene from "Green Mansions," the famed story of love and adventure in the South American jungles. 'Keep Hollywood Glamorous' Pet Theme of Carolyn Jones

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everyone talks about putting some glamour back into Hollywood, but Carolyn Jones is doing something about it.

The actress and her producer-husband, Aaron Spelling, have just moved into an all-white $200,000 hilltop home that harks back to the way movie stars lived when they really lived. Carolyn had planned the place in spare moments on movie sets for two years.

"Glamour is a basic element of this town, and anybody who tells you different is crazy," she says. "I think one of the reasons that the movie industry has had so much trouble is because the sense of glamour has been lost."

I visited her new home overlooking the broad sweep of the San Fernando valley on one of the hottest days of the year, yet the house looked white and cool, like a vanilla ice cream cake.

"Made, it's all white," how come?

"Which is more expensive to keep clean—a white suit or a dark suit?" she asked. "A white suit, of course. White is more glamorous because it is more expensive to maintain."

WHITE TERAZZO FLOORS

She took me on a tour through the place, which is still largely unfurnished. The rooms are not massive but large — 5,000 square feet of living area. The den and dining rooms have white terazzo floors, the living room a lush white carpet. Carolyn is especially proud of the great Italian marble fireplace with suspended chimney.

"I planned it that way but they said it couldn't be done," she remarked, "I wouldn't give up, and

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Producers of last Friday night's ring "whodunit" say the Mystery of the Pumbly Pocketeers and Who Put the Referee in Orbit, will not have a re-run once this week's fish day.

There was some talk of bringing in private eyes Richard Diamond, Peter Gunn and Mike Hammer but as these guys work only in half-hour stints, it was felt it would not be fair to the fans.

However, last week the mystery was solved before the lights went out on Front Street. Don Lee Jamieson was discovered circling Chris' Drive-In while Hardboiled Haggerty was found in a local eatery looking for potato chips in ten-package lots. Joe Gollen remembered a date he had in Toronto with Sunny Dunlop and at midnight was half-way to the Queen City.

There was a summit meeting in Frank Tunney's official igloo in Maple Leaf Gardens the next day and it was decided the venue of the next clash between Don Leo and the Hardboiled Goon would be in Memorial Arena again.

But this time it will be different. Just in case one of the arbiters decides to take off for the shady content of Zwick's Island, another will be around to take over the judge and jury duties. One of them, Printanee in young Don Jardine, Montreal's young-man-about-town. He will loosen up in one of the preliminary bouts.

Jardine is no fish-and-chips lover. He fears not the whale-like antics of the Mammoth Mormon, nor the chippy calisthenics of the Hard-Boiled one. He is not averse to having a Brewbeck-like fist in the bottom of either, which should make the bouts more interesting than ever.

For those who prefer the class, fast type of wrestling what better could they ask than young Wally Seiber and Jack Laskin.

Marse Robert Temple, the Bobcats' Bengal, who can address a judge or jury with courtroom dignity, or blast an umpire with verbal fireworks without batting an eyelash, purred satisfactorily on Tuesday night.

For hadn't his Cats, their fur ruffled by an unexpected setback to the hands of Trenton, just set the stage for Bourg Merchants back on their sandy beaches with a heart-breaking 3-1 defeat, and by the same token, caused some skull-scratching in the camp of the Ox Pointers.

The Cats needed that victory. It meant either consolidation of their clutches on the top rung, or demotion to a second-place tie with Cobourg. A defeat would have eased the Pointers into top spot without touching a glove.

But the Bobbies bobbed peak into the form that kept them on top throughout the season. They played brilliant defensive softball, backed up the fine five-hit hurling of Bobby Green who showed his appreciation with some admirable pitch-pfielding. That defensive effort didn't break any records but they clipped the Campbell shocks for clouts when they meant runs.

And what should be a rip-snorting battle for the top rung is scheduled for tomorrow night at the CNRA Park when the Ox Pointers and Cats clash. It's a big battle for both clubs.

Cobourg will be the guests of Trenton tonight. On the record they should take this one — but you never can tell. A victory won't affect their third-place standing. Saturday night the Cats and Cobourg go at it again on the latter's diamond.

HARNESS RACING

Ask any harness-racing lover and he'll tell you there is something about it that reaches thrill-spots no other sport can touch. There are the tense early moments of the start and the drive for the coveted post position, the final thunder of the turn and back stretch climaxed by the thrilling drive in the home stretch for the wire and victory.

The Quinte Driving and Riding Club is staging its second "spectacular" at the Fair Grounds Saturday night starting 6.45, and it bids fair to add-de the outstanding inaugural meet held two weeks ago.

Outstanding horses of the city and a wide district will be here. The track is in splendid condition and with the co-operation of the weather-man, we're all set for another night of keen racing. There will be three two-heat races with the first heat getting away sharp on scheduled time.

Rudy Pilous Now Sole Owner Of St. Kitt's TeePees' Club

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Rudy Pilous has become sole owner of the St. Catharines TeePees Hockey Club.

General manager since 1951 and team coach until two years ago, Pilous has taken over complete control of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A entry.

He assumed the position of owner, president and general manager. He will, however, continue as a coach of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National League.

Pilous became sole owner with the purchase Wednesday of shares belonging to George Stauffer, president of the club since 1946. Stauffer remains on the directorate.

Pilous came to St. Catharines to play senior hockey and was instrumental in founding the old St. Catharines Falcon junior club in 1941.

Stauffer became president in 1946 and brought Pilous back as coach and general manager in 1951. Pilous coached from 1951-1953.

Harry Watson coached the TeePees last season, winning the regular schedule, but losing out to Toronto St. Michael's.

Individual clubs don't have the control they used to and "much as we may dislike it, the owner for junior hockey to be controlled is by the pros."

The TeePees will maintain their affiliation with the Black Hawks.

Drysdale Sparks Dodgers; Killebrew Eyes Record

Righthander Beats Pirates, Puts Bums in Second Spot, Harmon Nine Ahead of 'Babe'

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

It was on a rainy afternoon in mid-March that Harmon Killebrew shrugged and said, "I think I may be able to hit better if I can hang on long enough to get a good look at the pitchers."

Four months later, on a rainy night in mid-July, Harmon swung and put himself nine games ahead of Babe Ruth's record 60 home run pace.

That shot Wednesday night was Killebrew's 31st, tops in the majors, and touched off a 3-0 victory over Detroit that pulled Washington Senators past the Tigers into fifth place in the American League.

The game, held to five innings by rain, was the Nats' 85th. Ruth didn't hit No. 31 until his New York Yankees were in their 94th game when he set the record in 1927.

Rookie Bob Allison drove in the other Senator runs with a pair of doubles while Camilo Pascual, winning 10 for the first time in the majors, put the Tigers away on one hit in the short distance.

OTHERS WASHED OUT

It was the only AL game played. The others were rained out.

Killebrew has made Detroit pitchers look like a 12-year-old sandlot hitting mark in his fifth try with the Senators since becoming their first baseman in 1954.

Wednesday night's blast, a solo drive in the fifth inning, was his eighth against the Tigers and his third off Jim Bunning, a righthander with an 8-7 record after his first loss in a month.

Pascual, curveballing righthander who became City Hobbie (10-7) pushed his career record to 5-0 over the Braves with a five-hitter. He also drove in the first run that clinched it when the Washington Senators beat Milwaukee's Lew Burdette, seeking his fourth straight victory, 5-3 decision.

Pascual, who struck out five, walked four and gave up two hits, was lifted for pinch hitter Ernie Banks with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly, Johnny Temple drove in four runs with a double and sacrifice fly for the Reds, who had 17 hits off Lew Burdette, Bell, Rookie Jim O'Toole (2-3) won it, with Brooks Lawrence's save.

Tribe's Gordon Not Selling Yankees Short

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Joe Gordon rates his Cleveland Indians capable of winning the American League pennant but he refused to make an outright prediction Wednesday.

"Anyone who says flatly that this team or that team will win the pennant just doesn't know what he's talking about," said Gordon. "There isn't a team strong enough to pull away from the rest."

Gordon was relaxing, having just learned that the doubleheader with New York Yankees had been postponed because of rain. Instead there will be a twin bill today with the other game played on an open date on Cleveland's next visit here.

"I see where you fellows have been counting the Yankees out a lot," said Gordon, a member of five earlier Yankee pennant-winning clubs. "You're making a mistake."

Ox Point Bats Blast Big Barrage In 13-1 Victory Over Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen stretched their winning streak to seven games and crept within 25 percentage points of the leading Bobcats by swamping the Trenton Garretts 13-1 at the Point last night.

Bobcats play host to the Ox-Pointers in a battle for top spot at the CNRA Park Friday night at 6.30 p.m. Fastballers Bobby Hunter and Doug Hull are expected to do the chucking.

Point Anne experienced little difficulty breezing to victory in a 4-0 lead in the opening frame. The Garretts got one run back in the second but the winners wrapped it up with another eight-run blast. Trenton broke loose for four in the sixth and a pair in the eighth.

Pat Maracle tamed the Garrets on five hits. He struck out nine and walked only one, this the first batter he faced.

Losing Gord Maroney worked the first six frames and Ron Wannamaker finished the chore. They were met with a 19-hit barrage, Maroney fanned two and issued one while Wannamaker had a one and one mark.

Carr singled to start the Cementmen's fourth inning. Hull also hit safely and Batchelor's fly ball scored one run. Chuck Kingston homered for two more when McLean in right field misjudged his sinking shot. Elliott Jr.'s single, a walk and an error made it 4-0.

An error, a passed ball and Ron Smith's single to centre plated Trenton's second-inning marker. Point Anne came back with a trio as Batchelor followed singles by Maracle and Carr, with his fourth home run of the season.

Maroney got the next ten men in order before the Ox-Point bludgeons came to life in the sixth. Jackie Elliott ignited the rally with a double while Jack Elliott Sr., Bob Hunter, Carr and Hull singled for four runs.

Singles by Carr, Hull and Batchelor plus a couple of errors chased two markers across the plate in the eighth inning.

Maracle, in the meantime kept Trenton at bay. Only in the seventh did the Garretts threaten back-to-back did they manage to get a single in the other one run. A double play started by Johnny Batchelor ended the threat.

Claude Carr was the biggest Point Anne gun with three hits and as many runs. Doug Hull rapped three singles while Batchelor, Maracle and Kingston singled. Jack Elliott Jr. doubled and singled and Wannamaker stanton had his home run. Bobby Hunter also collected two hits while Jack Elliott Sr. and Bob Hunter Sr. rounded out the attack.

The Trenton hits were evenly divided among Donnie Cole, Billy Fox, Ralph Jeffcott, Ron Smith and Harold Stinson.

Priest Tosses Good Hammer

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Rev. Dempsey Chisholm said "Hobbiness and lack of muscular tone is a trademark of Canadian life." Then he went out and threw the 16 - pound hammer farther than any of the competitors in Highland Games here.

The onetime Maritime track and field star, now in his 50s, heaved the hammer 117 feet, several feet better than the winner of the event.

Father Chisholm, now a parish priest at New Glasgow, holds the Games record for the hammer throw, set in the 1930s.

Minor Baseball

The Dodgers scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to earn a 4-3 tie with the Indians in a Pelham League baseball tilt the other evening.

Larry Brant saved the game for the Dodgers when he slashed a single to score two runs in the last frame. The Dodgers had failed to take advantage of many runners earlier in the game.

The Indians had a big fifth frame when they scored three runs to open a 3-0 lead but they could not hold it.

Boyle hurled the distance for the Dodgers while Wayne Woods and David Rose shared the Indians' pitching assignment.

Indians	100 121 0—5 runs.
Dodgers	001 011 2—5 runs.

The Tigers hammered the Red Sox 10-3 in a Peewee League game played Wednesday evening.

The winners scored in every frame except the fourth on their way to the top-sided decision. Red Sox plated both their runs in the sixth.

Bill Hallam tossed five - hit ball for the winners while Larry Woodcock gave up 18 hits on the Red Sox hitters.

Farrell and R. Smith had three hits each for the victors while Bobby Ethier, Ron Post, Lucas and Hallam had two apiece.

Tigers	345 025 1—20 16 3
Red Sox	000 002 0— 2 —5 7

Mims Smothers George Benton

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bolly Mims, right-ranked middleweight contender, smothered George Benton in a bout fought at close range Wednesday night to win a unanimous decision in 10 rounds.

Mims weighed 155½, Benton 158½.

The 30-year-old winner from Baltimore kept on top of his younger opponent and refused to give him punching room for his vaunted right hand. Benton, a 26-year-old boxer from Philadelphia, began to solve Mims' style in the late rounds.

Referee Billy Regan scored it 98-94, Judge Sid Winston 97-94 and judge Gus Jacobson 96-95, all for Mims. Benton had beaten Mims in an eight-round bout at Philadelphia in 1952.

There were no knockdowns or anything close to it.

Some reclines of the country received no television picture of the first half of the fight. The TV announcer had to provide a radio-style broadcast.

Mims now has a 46-18-6 record for 70 pro fights. Benton's record is 36-5-1 in 42 starts.

BETTER WORLD MARKS

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said Wednesday Anatoly Yegurov of Leningrad covered 30 kilometres (18 miles) in two hours, 17 minutes and 16.8 seconds and walked 20,429 metres in two hours to better two world records. These were a time of 2:20:40.2 for 30 kilometres set by Rustik's A. Yedlshov and 20,117 metres by E. J. Allsopp of Australia.

Stomach Upset, Felt All Rundown-Always Tired

"I just want to let you know what fine results I got by taking Syntona Herbal Compound," said Mr. William G. Arnold, 112 Thornton Avenue, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

Felt Draggy, Tired

"For a long while I have suffered with indigestion after my meals. All I ate awful gas, bloat, upset stomach and heart burn. I also had aching, tender limbs, which nothing seemed to relieve. Constipation was a problem, too, and my limbs, joints and muscles were sore and painful. Many days I felt draggy and tired out from the time I got up in the morning.

Grateful For Relief

"Syntona has been just wonderful for me. I got relief from the gas, indigestion and pains and am feeling so much better. Now I can retain my food, sleep well and every day and the pains and soreness in my joints, shoulder and limbs are much less. I sleep better and am not tired on rising as I used to be.

"Thousands of men and women have had similar experiences in relieving distress such as those described by Mr. Arnold. Why not let this great Syntona medicine help you too?

Syntona is sold and recommended by Dolan the Druggist,

Harness Racing

HULL, Que. (CP) — Talas Joe, owned and driven by Cecil Stone of Ottawa, came from behind along the rail Wednesday night to win the $5,000 Invitation pace at Connaught Park.

The five-year-old chestnut gelding, winning his third race in seven outings this year, returned $25.20 to win.

Pari - mutuel betting totalled $87,850, a record in seven years of harness racing at Connaught and only the second time that a six-night take exceeded $80,000.

The Cornwall entry, Vogue Direct, driven by Bill Pyles, won the ninth, a mile D pace, in 2:17 1-5.

MONTREAL (CP)—The Kingston entry Betty Renown won the first leg at Richelieu Raceway in a $500 mile D event, in 2:10. Driven by Don Gallinger, he won over two Quebec entries, Lida Lad and Section Lady.

Russian Gals No Superwomen Says American

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ed Temple, coach of the American girls who meet the Russians in the big international track meet of the year this weekend, no longer considers the Moscow lasses phenomenal.

"When I took our team to Russia last year," said Temple Wednesday, "I didn't know what to expect. Everyone told me the Russians were unbeatable. But we won four of the 10 events on the program and surprised everyone."

The Russians outscored Temple's team, 52-44, and are favored to win handily again this time.

"I'll concede they have the advantage in the field events," said Temple, who coaches at Tennessee State, "But we may surprise them again just as we did last year."

It Is Always Spring With This Russian

MOSCOW (AP) — A little known Russian track athlete high-jumped 6 feet, 9 inches, then 6-10 1/2 before the judges became curious and discovered springs attached to his heels.

Soviet Sport magazine Wednesday identified the athlete as Vasily Korolnikov of Rostov. It did not describe how the springs were attached nor how they operated.

The incident happened, Soviet Sport said, in the Leningrad Spartakiad Tuesday where athletes of that region were competing to see which of them would be sent to a national sports jamboree in Moscow in August.

The listed world record for the high jump is 7 feet, 1 inch by Yuri Stepanov of Russia.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, July 19

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Ideal day to step out of the rut and meet new and interesting people who can give you an insight into more progressive methods for increasing your income or abundance. Think big. Be broad - minded and the future is infinitely brighter.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Secret anglings are very fine today if you want to advance in many important affairs in connection with your business or emotional life. Be smart and ethical in all that you do, and private affairs also will prosper.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — If you discuss with good associates and friends what your actual desires are for the future, this will gain you excellent suggestions and support, as well as give you a better insight as to how to get along more harmoniously.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Delving right into the work that awaits you gets such immediate and excellent results that you will be greatly satisfied. But you must think in bigger and more constructive lines, since you are capable of reaching greater heights.

Castro To Resign As Cuban Premier To Test Backing

Is Bid for Expression Of Public's Confidence

HAVANA' (AP)—Fidel Castro is resigning as premier in an apparent effort to rally support to his cause.

Speculation in Havana is that Castro's absence from office will be brief—that the people will be rallied to demand that he return to the office.

Castro's decision to resign was announced today in Revolucion, newspaper of the July 26 movement, and confirmed by Raul Castro, his brother and boyhood friend. He took over as premier Feb. 17.

Associates said Castro had been upset by recent developments, including the resignation and flight to Florida of Pedro Diaz Lanz, later Diaz told U.S. senators his and others high in his government are Communists—a charge the Castro forces vigorously deny.

GROWING OPPOSITION

Castro also has been disturbed about evidence of opposition to him within Cuba.

Opposition to Castro's plan to break up large land holdings to promote small farms for those who have been reported from surveys and cattle interests.

July 26 marks the anniversary of Castro's successful revolution against Fulgencio Batista. The movement began in 1953.

The movement's newspaper, Revolucion, pledged to the country and the people to "maintain order and confidence in the responsibility of the men who head our destiny."

There was no indication in Havana that Castro's action was the result of any anti-revolutionary movement.

LIKELY TO RETURN

Political observers expressed belief Castro's absence from the prime ministry would be brief.

President Manuel Urrutia could appoint a temporary successor. It might also be either the minister of state and foreign affairs, Raul Roa, or the minister of national defence, Maj. Augusto Martinez Sanchez.

The development came not long after Roa charged that former Batista officials in the United States were in new "official connections" in Congress are planning an invasion of Cuba with 6,000 mercenaries based in the Dominican Republic.

Roa cited as a ringleader Emilio Nunez Portuondo, Cuban ambassador to the United Nations during the regime of dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Hold Montreal Man Who Had Stolen Bonds

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said a 41-year-old Montreal man was arrested 17 hours after he stabbed and severely injured a man in connection with the theft of $6,000 worth of stolen securities at a downtown Montreal brokerage firm.

The serial numbers of the bonds were widely circulated after the burglary Saturday morning of the brokerage firm apparently tipped police where the bonds would turn up.

Three other men are before the courts on charges stemming from the burglary, one of a series in Quebec and Ontario that netted millions of dollars in securities to thieves in the last 18 months. Much of the loot was recovered.

Police believed the operations would be three times the size if several arrests. Two establishments in Montreal and one in Miller Trust Company at Brockville were the other places looted.

Bandit Shoots Pal To Death In Diner Holdup

Victim Escapes From Joyceville

TORONTO (CP)—Ronald Watts, 23, who escaped prison a week ago was accidentally shot to death by his partner in a holdup attempt Thursday.

The shooting happened while Watts and another man were attempting to rob a waterfront diner. Arthur Keay, a former policeman and the man for whom the bullet was intended, emerged the hero of the incident.

A few minutes after the holdup attempt two policemen arrested George R. Burton, 42, and charged him with murder.

This is the story pieced together by police.

A man entered the diner, strolled towards the cash register, drew a gun and said in a loud announced: "All right, it's a holdup, everybody get down."

HITS THUG OVER HEAD

Abraham Rubinoff, co-owner of the diner, reached for his cash drawer, whereupon a third man, who fired one shot, smashing a window. Keay, a boxer and part-time counter slinger at the soft drink, smashed the bottle over the gunman's head.

When they fell to the floor the second bandit, standing by the door with gun in hand, ran over and pistol-whipped Keay over the head. Keay, his head full of blood, hit him. It hit the first gunman in the head.

The bandit ran out of the restaurant and jumped into his car. But Keay and Rubinoff tried to run through a red light and collided with a truck. He fled on foot and ran.

Two detectives saw the accident and captured the man in a parking lot. The gun was fired not less than 10 minutes.

Police said the bandits were armed with powerful .357 magnum pistols.

Watts escaped from Joyceville institution Friday along with Kenneth Chapman, 22, who is still at large. Watts was transferred from Kingston Penitentiary to Joyceville, a minimum-security penal farm near Kingston, about two weeks ago.

He was first identified by police as Barry French, 20, of Toronto because of a wallet found on his body. But police learned from the mother of French that her son had lost his wallet a few days previously and that he is working in Port Arthur.

Keay and Rubinoff were treated for shock and minor wounds.

Keay, awarded 12 commendations during his 20 years as a policeman, is a security officer for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited.

Search Bottom Of River for Red Suitcase

ELK LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Constable Jack Boyd of Kirkland Lake and another amateur skindiver are to search the bottom of the Montreal River for a red straw suitcase.

The suitcase is believed by police to contain a sawed-off .22 calibre rifle used in the slaying of A. Stephens of Thorold, Ont., Wednesday night in a parked car.

Dragging failed to find the suitcase, resting police said, of the river is clogged with sunken logs.

The suitcase apparently was abandoned in the water when Ronald Young, 17, of Matheson, and Marvin McKee, 19, of Timmins, were taking police back month in a stolen canoe. They were captured in bushland.

McKee and Wayne Sloman, 16, of Huntsville have since been charged with murder. Mr. Young is being held as a material witness.

The bodies of the drivers, Francis Grosso, 29, and Bruce Bunche, 25, were found in a shallow grave three miles from Highway 35 near Huntsville.

Bunche's Son Will Not Seek To Join Club

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Bunche, 55, son of the United Nations undersecretary, has decided against applying for membership in the West Side Tennis Club, which now says Negroes may join.

"He took out a $500 life membership in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People instead," Kivie Kaplan, life membership chairman of the NAACP, told the association's convention Thursday night.

The elder Bunche had been told that because of his son was eligible for membership in the exclusive tennis club because Negroes had been barred from it in the midst of widespread protest. He said Ralph Bunche had left and his son would be welcomed. The club president has resigned.

Several Hundred in West Holland Victims of Mild Form of Typhoid

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (Reuters) — Several hundred persons in the western parts of Holland today were reported suffering from typhoid fever.

But health authorities said "very few" had been sent to hospital and every effort to isolate was "extremely mild in character."

There are a camp of 200 Canadian boys near the Dutch port of Ijmuiden was isolated because medical authorities feared the outbreak of an epidemic of typhoid fever. Sixteen of the boys, children of Canadian servicemen stationed in West Germany, were reported ill.

A medical spokesman said there was nothing to be alarmed about. No one at the camp was seriously ill.

"It is a lot of summer diarrhoea about," he said, "and we have to make sure it is not typhoid fever. The laboratory tests will take a day or two."

Commons Faces New Rumpus When CBC Seeks More Funds

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons faces another rumpus over the CBC.

In the next few days the House will be asked, to approve another grant of treasury funds for the publicly-owned corporation.

The debate is virtually certain to centre around a hard-hitting report by the Commons broadcasting committee, tabled Thursday, that the CBC's management is "weak and in need of a thorough revision" and that some ceiling should be put on the CBC's growing demands on the treasury.

Two prominent opposition members on the committee have already attacked the report, especially its finding that the committee "found no evidence to support the charge" that political influence was behind the cancellation of Preview Commentary.

Liberal MP also questioned the competency of the committee to make its report without recommendation on CBC administrative organization.

Capital Spending in Canada Will Exceed Early Estimate

OTTAWA (CP) — A mid-year increase in estimates of this year's capital spending in Canada was announced Thursday by the trade department.

The revision adds $224,000,000 to the $8,400,000,000 total of an earlier department prediction in January s the total 1959 capital investment figure will reach at least $8,624,000,000 — nearly double the 1958 total of $8,185,000,000.

The 2.7-per-cent increase is $8,545,000,000 may be a fairly modest one, the department said, but nevertheless "a substantial increase" over the rate of activity in the early part of the year.

The increase, reflecting "increasing business confidence," will help keep capital spending at levels below the 1957 record of $8,717,000,000.

Much part of borrowing was main difficulty reported by companies but "relatively few firms had reduced or postponed their programs for this reason."

Over-all investment intentions include $5,979,000,000 for construction, up $24,000,000 from 1958.

Federal Govt. Rejects CLC Nominee for Insurance Body

OTTAWA (CP)— The federal government has dived into a new fight with the Canadian Labor Congress by turning down one of its nominees for unemployment insurance advisory committee, it was learned today.

Just after the government and the congress appeared to have made peace following an open battle last spring, the cabinet refused to name Carl Goldenberg, Vice-President Stanley Knowles said he was consulted last summer.

The decision was reached Wednesday, informants said, on the recommendation of an old political opponent of the Progressive Conservative government — Donald Fleming, QC, MP for Eglinton, Toronto, and Minister of Justice in the Diefenbaker government.

Mr. Fleming, a former Winnipeg North Centre MP, is said to be one of the chief architects of a new political party which CLC officers are trying to form in conjunction with the CCF, badly beaten in the last federal election.

The congress, which in April pulled 1,000 representatives off the nine-man committee in protest against the government's commitment to the unemployment insurance commission, received a letter from Mr. Knowles and Andy Andras of Ottawa, head of the CLC's political action department, for the committee.

The cabinet decision said, according to Mr. Andras but turned thumbs down on Mr. Knowles and Mr. Andras' choice, Mr. Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer.

A Stephens of Thorold, Ont., Wednesday night in a parked car. CLC-affiliated Sulphite and Paper Workers' union.

The government also reappointed Guy McLean, representing the Canadian Manufacturers' Association as the other Labor representative Roger Mathieu, head of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor.

Mr. Goldenberg was recommended to the government after his confederation secretary-g e n e r a l Jean Marchand of Quebec, also resigned in protest during the April controversy over the appointment of Alastair MacArthur of Toronto, Canadian head of the CLC's Office Workers' International Union.

Mr. MacArthur was named in the $13,000-a-year job, on the recommendation of Labor Minister Starr, over three nominees from the CLC, which by law is to be "consulted" on the Minister's choice.

Throwing out the nomination of Mr. Goldenberg came as a jolt to the congress.

Earlier this month, congress president Claude Jodoin met with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Labor Minister Starr. He had been reported that the cleavage over the MacArthur appointment was closed.

Today in the Commons, the prime minister said in reply to questions about a Canadian Press report of this meeting:

"There was an very clear that in the future, as in the past, this government will at all times consult labor organizations with a view to having from those organizations the best nominees it can get them as worthy of appointment."

Mr. Starr, Labor Minister in the letter added, "means consideration of the suggestions made but does not imply a determination of the issue by reason of the nominee's appointment."

Mr. Starr was asked in the House by Paul Martin (Essex East) whether the CLC was right in saying that George Burt of the Canadian Director of the auto workers' union who quit over the MacArthur issue had refused to be reconsidered to the committee.

George Burt's name has not been submitted by the Canadian Labor Congress," the minister answered.

"Will the United Automobile Workers' union be reconsidered?" asked the automobile city MP.

"All workers are represented by labor who are on the committee," Mr. Starr replied.

HAMILTON GIVEN ROUGH RIDE ON ROADS PROGRAM

House Sits Overtime To Pass Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons opposition teed off on Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton again Thursday night—but consented to sit 1½ hours overtime so he could escort the Queen through western Canada.

Mr. Hamilton was given a rough ride in his third attempt to get his spending estimates through the Commons. He made it at 11:30 p.m. after a prolonged grilling on his roads-to-resources program. The questioning sprang from his statement Sunday that he would have to check with Premier Frost of Ontario before developing federal financial commitments in the roads program in that province.

The opposition had been "very patient" with Mr. Hamilton because of his lack of experience, Opposition Leader Pearson said. But perhaps Mr. Hamilton now could explain why it was necessary to check with a province before providing information about the responsibility of federal funds.

HIS EXPLANATION

It's simply a matter of simplification, Mr. Hamilton said of northern roads, Mr. Hamilton said. Negotiations conducted in public would "create a pool" among communities to get those roads. Such dealing it difficult to reach agreements.

The answer appeared to satisfy few opposition members.

Mr. Hamilton, his estimates approved, was to leave Ottawa at 8:30 a.m. today to join the Queen in Victoria. On Saturday, she begins a quick sweep through the western sector of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Mr. Hamilton's explanation of how he hoped to keep the roads program details secret until agreements had been signed was greeted as a "new pious platitude" by Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur).

NAIVE OR NOT?

"Maybe he is naive," said Mr. Fisher, "if you want to call it that. But perhaps the minister wasn't so naive as all that because it appeared he had been willing to be co-operative with his Conservative friends in Ontario.

William Benidickson (Liberal—Kenora-Rainy River) said he would like to be privy of the minister to his royal duties but Mr. Hamilton deserved no such consideration. He was "in a jam."

Lady Who Had Right to Sing Blues Sees That Evening Sun Go Down

NEW YORK (AP)—Billie Holiday died today in a city hospital bed—an ironic ending for the once great blues singer who packed night clubs from coast to coast.

Bouts with narcotics and liquor ravaged the body of the gifted stylist, and she had been in eclipse for recent years.

Her husband, Louis McKay, was at her bedside when she died. The immediate cause of death was given as congestion of the lungs complicated by heart failure.

The 44-year-old Negro entertainer was taken to the hospital unconscious May 31 after she collapsed in her apartment.

When death came, she was under arrest—charged with possession of a pack of heroin in her bed.

Billie Holiday, who had a sordid childhood in her native Baltimore, hit the big entertainment heights in the 1930s. In the 1950s she started to slip badly—arrested and convicted on charges of several states; a "cure" in a federal hospital in 1947; long brushes with the bottle, and only small jobs despite the best efforts of her manager-husband.

Because of her arrests, police had banned her from entertaining in night clubs here in recent years.

The last record bearing her name was a long-playing disk of 12 of her old recordings, made in spring. It was called Lady Sings the Blues.

Man Cut in Two As Car Upsets At Speed of 100

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two London men were killed when their car flipped over and landed in a ditch south of Calamity Corners near here early today.

Ontario provincial police said the small car hit a bridge and was subsequently travelling at 100 miles per hour. It careened into a culvert and flew through the air for some distance before diving into the ditch.

Police said Durcan was cut in half by the impact.

Open 'Tea Party' Negotiations On Truce Terms

May Be Able to Shelve Berlin Crisis for Years

GENEVA (AP) — The Big Four foreign ministers opened a round of secret "tea party" negotiations today on terms of a truce in the Berlin crisis. The West is seeking an ironclad pledge of Soviet respect for the Western position in Berlin.

U.S. State Secretary Christian A. Herter, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville for talks in the Soviet villa.

Officially it was a social gathering. In fact it was the opening of a new round of secret diplomacy.

Gromyko insisted Monday on bringing the East Germans into the current session.

After three days, to find out how far the Soviet delegation would soften, Gromyko made use of a loophole he himself had proposed for joining in Social occasions such as luncheons and tea parties, which the Germans would be excluded.

STATELY SESSION

Herter, Lloyd, today's luncheon Herter, Couve de Murville and Lloyd held a strategy session on the eve of their talks with Gromyko for specific and detailed discussions of Western and Soviet proposals for a Berlin stopgap agreement.

This process started Wednesday, when Herter urged Gromyko to do away with the propaganda debate of rival plans and expressed confidence the West-ern side to accept Gromyko's plan for an 18-month truce as a basis for negotiations. He said the West's own demand for Soviet assurances respecting arrangements for continued access to West Berlin across East Germany.

Thursday's meeting produced no concrete evidence that they had find it possible in the end to get an agreement with Russia before the Soviet threat in Berlin for several years.

Gromyko indicated in a speech to the conference Thursday that he may be willing to meet Western criticisms by amending his proposal for an 18-month Berlin truce.

950 Employees Laid off at Cornwall Mill

OTTAWA (CP)—The plant of Canadian Cottons Limited at Cornwall is closing down today, laying off the last of 800 employees, Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) said Thursday.

The shutdown will leave one of three cotton mills working in the Seaway City, he said during Commons discussion of trade matters. Yet little more than a year ago Prime Minister Diefenbaker was pledging help for the distressed textile industry.

The textile industry position is worse today than it ever has been, Mr. Chevrier said. Government members disagreed.

Trade Minister Churchill said that while he sympathizes with the Cornwall employees being laid off, he wouldn't like the impression to be left that the situation is general.

Lucien Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) suggested a changing taste in textiles might be responsible for the decline of cotton mills, Shirting was

That might be part of it, Mr. Churchill replied. The people of Cornwall residents laid off in what is a Conservative city, he promised.

Metro Chair Says Hospital May Be Used

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto, council chairman Fred Gardiner announced today that Riverdale Isolation Hospital may become Canada's first centre for treatment of drug addicts.

He said operatures are being made by the federal government to permit the east-end Toronto hospital to qualify for Ontario Hospital s e r v i c e s commission grants.

Mr. Gardiner's announcement followed the disappearance of a woman drug addict from a Salvation Army home here and a girl told the Metro licensing committee last week of two addicts in the midtown Jarvis and Dundas Streets district.

The girl, picked up by police soon after her disappearance, was to appear in court today on a vagrancy charge.

Salvation army officials said today the girl escaped being confined in the home.

Police, who persuaded the Salvation Army to give the girl treatment after her return, said he is disappointed "but not discouraged."

DOUGHNUT FRYER CAUSES BLAZE

Belleville firefighters answered an alarm at the McMaster doughnut factory on RR 7, Belleville, at 6.00 a.m. this morning. The fire, which apparently started due to a fryer overheating, was first discovered when Harry Parks, an employee of the firm, arrived for work.

The fryer, which contains a lot of grease, had apparently been left on overnight and the grease ignited. Fortunately the fire did not have a chance to spread before it was discovered and the damage was confined to the immediate area of the fryer.

The equipment and building is covered by insurance, admitted Mrs. N. R. McMaster, although the amount of the damage has yet to be determined.

Plan No Action On Complaints Re Nomination

Wednesday evening the immediate executive of the Hastings - Prince Edward Progressive Conservative Association met in Marmora to discuss the alleged irregularities at the riding nomination convention, which saw Rod Welch of Norwood chosen as the Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding's federal election.

There has been some concern by the association's members over the variation in votes cast during the election of the candidate on June 24th in Madoc. No direct complaint has been made to the association executive in view of the lack of ed irregularities, according to President Hollis Neat of Marmora. Hence no action is contemplated by the immediate executive in view of the lack of complaints. The complaint has to come through a member of the executive, stated Mr. Neal. Plenty of Water Available Says PUC Official

TRENTON — There is plenty of water available at the present time in Trenton the Public Utilities Commission members were assured at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon, and held in the offices at the filtration plant on West St.

Jim Page, manager of the PUC, told the commission that with the new addition to the filtration plant now in operation and with the town wells it is possible to supply the town with a total of 4,600,000 gallons of water per day, without putting a strain on the filtration plant or the town wells. He also informed the commission that if it became necessary to fulfill a larger demand then, by turning the plant on for longer it would be possible to supply up to 6,000,000 gallons per day.

However this would be twice the amount used on a peak day in June when slightly over 3,000,000 gallons were used in one day, and they expect the daily consumption to be higher on some days in July.

Smiles by the commissioners greeted the report and asked later not funny. Clifford Baker, chairman of the PUC said, "We promised the people there would be an end to the water restrictions in Trenton and this looks like it is near at hand." Although I would suggest that residents at present remember that there is no need to waste water. We will, if we have to, but we would rather not force our pumps and bring unnecessary strain on them."

The commission also knows that it now has a large reserve of water, but Sidney Street well discovered last year and can be put into operation in a short time, although it would be costly to develop if not needed.

Mr. Page also reported that only clean-up work was needed to finish the construction of the extension to the filtration plant and the work is coming along satisfactorily.

The extension was constructed by the Tatham Construction Company of Belleville and Trenton.

VALUABLE INDUSTRY

Ontario marketed $ 2,200,000 Christmas trees in 1957 with a value of $1,784,000.

TRENTON — This is the time of year when drownings take the heaviest of death toll and usually children are the victims.

We as adults should do all we can to prevent these needless drownings in any way possible.

Yesterday, Dennis Atkins, probation officer for Trenton, who is also an instructor in life saving, was telling me of an experience he had while at North Bay Beach near Consecon. Mr. Atkins said he and his family had been spending the Sunday at this popular picnic grounds and beach when they suddenly made aware of a seven-year-old Belleville boy in trouble in the water. He had apparently gone out into water over his head and was in only a few feet from shore.

He said it was a credit to the boy and had not he been noticed as soon as he was he would have been added to the growing list of drowning fatalities.

Mr. Atkins and his son Robert investigated the beach and found that it was very shallow for a distance of about 10 feet out and then it began a very steep slope into deep water. He said his son went out only a few more feet and he was over his head. And the slope is such that a non-swimmer, or a youngster, would not be able to keep a footing and would begin to panic, as happened with the Belleville youngster.

The probation officer felt signs should be put up on the beach warning adults of this danger and they in turn could warn children and watch them accordingly.

He has taken the matter up with proper authorities and hopes that in turn will request that the Department of Lands and Forests, which controls the property, put the proper warning signs up. Mr. Atkins hopes the Department will see fit to erect signs there in the very near future.

In the meantime, all who read this column, please warn your children when and if they go to this beach and tell your neighbors about it. You may never know about it but you may save a life with just a few words.

Mayor Still Awaiting Report By Auditors

Mayor Gerald Hyde is still waiting for the auditors' report on the city's financial affairs. In connection with the alleged unauthorized spending of city funds on the Belleville Mafra-lands, the city's Allan Cup and world hockey champions. He is still waiting, too, to learn what procedure should be followed in making this auditors' report public. But he will not have to wait long for a decision on this point once the report is received. In communication with an official of the Department of Municipal Affairs this week, he was instructed to send the report to Toronto immediately he received it. He was assured that the Department officials would read the report the same day it was received there, and would inform him what steps should be taken with regard to making it public. Mayor Hyde stated earlier this week that the report would definitely be made public but he wanted to get the Department's opinions as to whether this could be done immediately or whether the report should be withheld until a public enquiry is held.

Russia Offers To Limit Veto On Tests Ban

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia today offered to eliminate veto powers from a proposed treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests except on budgetary, financial and administrative matters.

U.S. delegate James J. Wadsworth, acting for Britain gave Michael Wright, said he would prefer the Soviet offer "very carefully."

Three-power talks for a test-ban treaty began last October. Russia's initial insistence on veto powers within the control organization to police the ban held up progress for several weeks.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials advanced sharply after a good start reversed their trend and dropped off as the stock market faded today amid the slowest morning trading in more than a year.

Strike Problems Still Plaguing Economy in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The hard core of British Columbia's strike problem remained unsettled today despite the end of a jurisdictional waterfront dispute.

More than 45,000 workers are on strike, threatening strike action or out of work as a direct result of walkouts.

The provincial economy continued to suffer. Economists estimate the—loss since July 1 at more than $4,000,000.

The largest and most costly walkout involves 17,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America (CIC) and 125 coastal lumber operators.

The shutdown of the $400,000,000 industry is costing the province $3,000,000 a day, including $350,000 daily in lost wages by the woodworkers. No settlement appears near.

BASIC WAGE $1.75

The union seeks a 20-per-cent increase over the basic wage of $1.75 an hour. The company has offered seven per cent spread over two years.

Hope dimmed for settlement in the strike of 500 longshoremen which has tied up $80,000,000 in construction throughout the province. The men walked out June 15 in support of demands for a 60-cent hourly wage increase over the basic rate of $2.65.

The waterfront battle among four unions and Northland Navigation Company ended Thursday night. Settlement details were not announced.

The dispute began June 26 as a strike for higher wages by fewer than 100 members of the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC). It turned into an interunion dispute for control of coastal engineers and brought a halt of regular freight and passenger service to B.C. coastal centres.

Nikita Rides Triumphant Into Baltic Port

SZCZECIN, Poland (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today rode triumphantly into this Baltic port in a big American automobile for a warm if not riotous welcome.

The pace-hatted premier, who is mixing bluster and sweet reason on a goodwill tour of Poland, flew from a visit to coal mining towns in Silesia to this city, formerly Stettin, close to the East German frontier.

He was pelted with bouquets as he rode with Polish leaders in the car along the 35-mile drive from the airport.

Probation Order Protested by Liberties Union

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge's probation order that an 18 - year - old youth go to mass every Sunday for two years was protested Thursday by the American Civil Liberties Union.

"I don't question the judge's motives," was declared, "but the union's northern California director.

"But surely the state or government has no right to require support or adherence to any faith as a condition of staying out of jail."

In answer, Municipal Judge Andrew J. Ryman declared: "In the several times in the past and I intend to continue in spite of what the Civil Liberties Union may say."

BEAT UP PARTY GUESTS

When William J. Korpa, 18, pleaded guilty to charge of beating up two guests at a beach party, Judge Ryman asked what church he attended and the boy revealed Roman Catholic.

The youth's mother assured the judge she would attend mass every year with Korpa for two years.

Another probation condition was no drinking.

"My interest is to see whether I can help rehabilitate a boy without sending him to jail," said Judge Ryman.

Lost Fingers Replaced by Grafted Toes

LONDON (CP) — A Montreal doctor has described a method of "replacing" lost fingers by grafting toes in their place.

Dr. Martin Estin of the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal told the International Congress of Plastic Surgery that his work in transplanting feet bones to replace fingers has been tried seven different times.

The result of some operations was described as good and others average. Some doctors stressed that still was early to have a definite idea of a permanent success through his method.

Similar work has been done in the U.S. Dr. Bromley Smith, Freedom of Houston, Tex. showed films of a boy who lost his thumb when a car door slammed on it. Freeman removed one of the boy's toes and sewed it in place of the missing thumb. Within six weeks it began to grow.

Now the boy can play the piano and write normally. He manages satisfactorily with only four toes.

Suspect Taken To Hospital After Questioning

LONDON (AP) — A scarfaced German arrested after a nation-wide hunt for the slayer of a London detective was taken to hospital today after hours of police questioning.

A doctor decided 30-year-old Gruenler Ernwin Podola, who came here after he was deported from Germany, was suffering from exhaustion and was not fit to make a statement.

As yet no charges had been filed against Podola, who once was a member of the Hitler youth.

Podola was arrested Thursday in a shabby hotel room in South Kensington. Armed police, acting on an underworld tip, burst into the room. Their startling attack nearly seized the German as he lay on the bed, smoking and listening to dance music on the radio.

Detective Sergeant Raymond Purdy was first in an apartment building Monday while trying to arrest a man suspected of making offensive calls to Mrs. Jean Schiffman, a 30-year-old model.

The killing of Purdy raised new demands that pistols be issued to British police, who normally carry only nightsticks and whistles.

Jimmy Stewart Likely to Get General's Star

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gangling Jimmy Stewart, the greying all-American boy of the movies, is getting his air force general's star after all.

Even Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Maine Republican who blocked his promotion for two years, voted for him Thursday as the Senate armed services committee unanimously approved his elevation to brigadier general in the air force reserve.

With Senator Smith's opposition melted, it is a foregone conclusion that the full Senate will confirm Stewart's new rank.

Senator Smith, while acknowledging Stewart's fine record as combat pilot in the Second World War, had contended originally that the actor since hasn't put in as much sweat and as many hours as he should have in keeping up his responsibilities as a reserve officer.

Why did she have a change of heart? As armed services committee side said the air force ace lured her that Stewart were called up in active service, it would be as a public relations officer in Washington, not as chief of staff of the 15th Air Force.

She apparently figured he was qualified for that.

"Come on, take your picture and hop it."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Ralph Lee Betts, 36, white father of four children, was sentenced Thursday to life imprisonment for the rape of an 11-year-old Negro girl.

A USEFUL STUDY

The Canadian Senate's finance committee, it seems to us, has served a most useful purpose by its study of the trend of inflation and its report suggesting measures which should be taken to guard against this threat becoming an actuality.

The Senators found that there is a widespread fear of inflation. With that conclusion, no sensible man will quarrel, although it ought to be added that there are probably some who hope for, rather than fear, inflation. Of the latter who believe that their personal financial fortunes would be improved by a further dose of the inflationary trend which has cut the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar by 40 per cent since 1946, it is probable that the majority are mistaken. They might gain some temporary advantage, but in any extended inflation practically every Canadian would be a heavy loser.

There were some surprises in the Senate committee's report. Frankly, we do not comprehend what led the Senators to reach "virtually unanimous agreement" that there is no actual inflation going on at present. It is obvious that we have had a considerable amount of inflation during the past fifteen years and the very fact that this was of the "creeping" type should suggest caution before concluding that the same process is not still in operation. True, there may have been periods during which this creeping movement was temporarily halted, and it may be that the present is one of these halts, but it seems to us that even during these lulls certain pressures were being built up which were responsible for the resumption of the creeping motion after a brief halt.

Most of us can think of examples of such pressures today - - there are union wage contracts in existence which call for progressive wage increases in the future, stock prices are high in the anticipation of higher profits and increased demands for services from government at all levels will make higher taxes inevitable, with it being a moot question whether such higher taxes tend to check inflation by reducing the supply of money available for the purchase of consumer goods or whether they are added to by taxpayers seeking higher remuneration from their employers in order to attempt to maintain their present standard of living.

The Senators rejected the view of some economists that "creeping inflation" is inevitable and necessary to economic growth. They do not, however, seem to have been able to suggest any practical methods of halting such creeping inflation without tightening money controls, with such tightening discouraging business expansion.

The Senators have been helpful - - but it was too much to expect that a six-weeks' study would enable them to come up with the answer to the No. 1 economic problem of the age.

HASTY JUDGMENTS DANGEROUS

It is difficult to realize that a whole year has passed since the day when Nuri Said, Iraqi premier, and King Faisal were assassinated by a mob and Abdul Karim Kassem seized control of that strategic Mid-East country.

Yet those months have passed and Kassem is still in control, still ruling by his own right, neither the tool of the Communists nor of Nasser.

This does not mean that the danger of Communists seizing control of Iraq is passed. It does suggest, though, that we in the West ought not to always be so sure that every struggle for power in every little country is inevitably a battle in the war between West and East, that every rebel is a Red.

By the very nature of things, Communists are likely to be in the forefront of those seeking to overthrow established governments - - but this does not necessarily mean that when such an overthrow is achieved the frustrated revolutionists will inevitably follow the Communist line. Nor ought we to lose sight of the fact that there are some governments, this side of the Iron Curtain, which need to be ousted and whose defeat should bring cheers from the lips of all who believe in freedom.

In the years that lie ahead, there will be need for the utmost restraint in making judgments about unrest and civil wars in many of the countries of Central and South America, as well as the lands of the Middle East and, in all probability, in Africa and, possibly, the East Indies.

ORDERS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Gladness, go out there today,
Find my friends along the way
And all life's pleasures bring them;
From their shoulders lift their cares,
Let them hear such merry airs
You alone can sing them.

Love, my friends are scattered far,
Go them wherever they are,
Reach at spirit make them;
Fill their lives with joy and
bliss,
See to it they never miss
Charms that you can take them;
Health and Wealth and Laughter, too,
Form a gay, a cheerful crew,
Marching late and highway,
And make glad and smooth
my way.
Of the friends of mine today
Who have brightened my way.

Give Thanks To St. Jerome

Hamilton Spectator

Concerning the apocrypha, the collection of writings which is included in some Bibles, St. Jerome wrote that "the Church doth read them for example of life and instruction of manners but yet doth it not apply them to establish any doctrine."

Perhaps, for the comfort of the children of today, that is just as well, for harken what Ecclesiasticus has to say about raising children:

"He that loveth his son causeth him oft to feel the rod that he may have joy of him in the end. . . .

"He that chastiseth his son shall have joy in him.

"He that maketh too much of his son shall bind up his wounds and his bowels will be troubled at every cry.

"A horse not broken becometh headstrong: and a child left to himself will be wilful.

"Cocker thy child, and he shall make thee afraid: play with him and he shall bring thee to heaviness.

"Give him no liberty in his youth and wink not at his follies.

"Bow down his neck while he is young, and beat him on the sides while he is a child lest he wax stubborn, and be disobedient unto thee, and so bring sorrow to thine heart."

Jerome is very vague to suggest that much later character, the duchess in Alice in Wonderland whose advice included giving the baby plenty of pepper to "beat him when he sneezes."

Jerome was a very wise man when he felt that there should not be read to establish a binding precedent. At least we trust, now under the age of 21 will think so!

Editor Knows His Onions

Des Moines Register

The Manchester (England) Guardian reports a research project in Germany to determine the perfection of an onion, "odorless but equal in other respects to the standard onion." An onion is an odor and the accompanying taste. And onions, if they are to be anything more than a garnish or a condiment, must be a little aggressive, and have a bit to them, just as roses have thorns.

The purpose of all this tampering with nature, it seems, is to make the onion "rocial" and to tame it so that the "rocial" one won't cry. Well, a social onion would be something like a gregarious hermit — a contradiction in terms.

The prospect of a tasteless, odorless "social" onion is enough to move one to tears of chagrin. Indeed, as one of the few remaining stands that have any taste to speak of. Remove that and we might as well eat sawdust three times a day.

Apple Trees Grow in Mine

Steel Facts Magazine

Oddities during the last two years in the Minnesota iron ore industry have included apple trees growing 2,500 feet down in an underground mine and sea shells' fossils near the highest point in the state.

The apple saplings apparently grew from cores discarded by apple eating miners. The seeds germinated under a total lack of sunlight. Transplanted to the surface, the seedlings were last reported to be growing rapidly.

The other topsy turvey development was a four foot layer of sea shells found on the Vermilion range between Aurora and Ely. The shells were 13 feet below the surface of the soil, on top of an iron ore deposit.
